DEATH OF OUR LATE RECTOR.

The Rev. Simeon C. Hill, for 37 years Rector of this Parish, died October 13, 1912, in Newport, R. I., after an illness of several weeks. During his summer abroad, Mr. Hill was taken very critically ill in Scotland. Careful nursing and attention gave him temporary relief, and he was able to return to this country the latter part of August. He went directly to Newport, where his early ministry had been passed, and where he had many warm friends. Shortly after his return, his half-brother died in Fall River. In attending the funeral Mr. Hill was exposed to inclement weather and caught a severe cold. It resulted in a return of the sickness which he had abroad. He never fully rallied from this second attack, though for a week or two the doctors were hopeful of his improvement. On Saturday he took a decided turn for the worse, lapsed into semi-consciousness and died quietly on Sunday afternoon. At the request of his nephew, who lives in Fall River, and is his nearest surviving relative, the interment was in Fall River, preceded by a funeral service in Emmanuel Church, Newport, the Rector of which, the Rev. Dr. Porter, had known Mr. Hill from boyhood. Owing to a misunderstanding, the date of the funeral was publicly announced here in Philadelphia as being Wednesday of the past week, instead of Tuesday. It was owing to this that no representatives of the Diocese were present. The Bishop Suffragan, four members of the Vestry of this Parish, and some personal friends of Mr. Hill's would have gone.

The Bishop wishes to state that he is at least partly responsible for this misunderstanding. In his long distance telephone communication with Dr. Porter on Monday morning, the Bishop understood Dr. Porter to say that the service was set for Wednesday. This information was confirmed by other messages and immediately notices were sent out to all the Clergy of the Diocese to this effect. The Bishop wants me to express to you his regret at this unfortunate mistake.

During Mr. Hill's Rectorship of this Parish, all the important improvements were completed, which have made it one of the most noteworthy Parishes in this part of the city. During his long term of service the record of the Parish shows a constant growth in strength and numbers.

Mr. Hill was also prominent in many Diocesan activities. He was always faithful and able in the discharge of these responsibilities. His work as Secretary of the Commission on Church Work among the Deaf was especially noteworthy, and the success and progress of that important work is largely due to him.

The Convocation of Germantown at its meeting last Tuesday passed an unanimous vote of appreciation of his long continued help and unfailing interest in the Convocation, and of its sorrow at his loss.

[Statement prepared by the Bishop of the Diocese and read in Grace Church, Mt. Airy, Sunday, October 20th, 1912.]

MINUTE.

The members of the Vestry of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, desire to place on record their appreciation of the services rendered to this Parish by the Rev. Simeon C. Hill, its late Rector, whose death occurred at Newport, Rhode Island, on Sunday, October 13th, 1912. Becoming the Rector of this Parish at a time when it was weakened by the withdrawal of many of its most influential members, he devoted his best efforts for over thirty-seven years to its upbuilding, and greatly endeared himself to the members of this Parish and to the community at large. During his Rectorship this has become a strong Parish. The Rev. Mr. Hill was also prominent in many Diocesan activities. He was always faithful and able in the discharge of these responsibilities. His work as Secretary of the Commission on Church Work among the Deaf was especially noteworthy, and the success and progress of that important work is largely due to him.

But whatever their sense of loss, the Vestry cannot grieve that for him the end has come so soon after his life work was done. And they humbly commend his soul into the hands of Almighty God as into the hands of a faithful Creator and most merciful Saviour; humbly beseeching Him that it may be precious in His sight.

While the confusion in regard to the time for the funeral services prevented the attendance of several of our Vestrymen who would have found it possible to go, one of them was present at the grave and able to assure the relatives and friends there of the intended presence of Bishop Garland, Rev. Mr. Gossling, other clergy of the Diocese and our Vestrymen, and many of his friends in the Parish. Two clergymen held the usual services at the grave, which were very beautiful and touching.

The new Diocesan paper, "The Church News," in its first issue, on going to press, chronicled the death of Mr. Hill, speaking of him as "one of the oldest and best-known presbyters of the Diocese."

The pages of the "Parish News" could not hold or express the great sorrow and sense of loss that weighs upon the host of sincere friends of our late Rector. These are not a'one those of our Church, but from all over the Parish and Diocese, those who in the course of many years have recognized an underlying sincere desire, notwithstanding the human impediments of physical ailments, to faithfully serve his Lord and Master.

May the memory of his good works, and especially of his constant sympathy and comfort to the sick and dying, so fill our hearts that every sad and disquieting thought may be wholly effaced.

DIOCESAN MISSIONS.

The Rev. A. J. Arkin of St. George's, Richmond, writes: "My store is almost empty."

Mr. Arkin looks upon our Parish as one of his most generous supporters, and never fails to express the greatest appreciation of our donations.

Please send any partly-worn clothing, especially shoes, to the Parish House as soon as possible, and have all packages plainly marked

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE BISHOPS' CONSECRATION.

A memorable meeting was held at Holy Trinity Church, October 28th, the occasion of the First Anniversary of the Bishops' Consecration.

Both Bishops made addresses, and were followed by Dr. Hubert Carleton, General Secretary of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, and Dr. George Wharton Pepper.

At the conclusion, Mr. E. H. Bonsall, representing a commission appointed at the Convention last year, announced a program which the men of every Parish and Mission are asked to adopt. It read about as follows:

1. Every Vestry, individually and personally interested in and leaders of the Church's work in their respective Parishes and Missions.

2. Senior and Junior Chapters of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in every Parish and Mission.

3. A Bible Class for men and systematic Bible Study in each.

4. A Boys' Club or its equivalent.

5. Groups of men interested in Social Service.

6. A Missions Committee in each Parish.

This is a pretty strong program, but not too big a goal.

A WONDERFUL DAY AT GRACE CHURCH.

We cannot let it pass without notice, and yet the writer feels entirely unequal to any fitting account or expression of what Thursday, October 10th, 1912, will ever stand for in the great heart of the Woman's Auxiliary, as represented by its Germantown and Chestnut Hill branches.

The day was ideal, our beautiful Church at her best, the congregation large and receptive, and the hymns well chosen and heartily rendered. The Bishop was most helpful as he spoke to us of "the grace of God" which we must seek in our communion that it may dwell in us for our enriching "in all utterance, and all knowledge." As never before we realized that our Holy Communion is indeed "the meaning and the means" of our Christian Missions as it is of our Christian Faith.

At mid-day there was a service of intercession, followed at one o'clock by luncheon at which about one hundred and seventy-five persons were served in our Auxiliary and Infant School rooms. Many of our guests sat in groups on the lawn until time for the afternoon conference, when we assembled in the Main School room. The conference was ably conducted by the Bishop. There were ten-minute talks on Mission topics, followed by discussions and questions. We adjourned promptly at four o'clock, many of us "wanting more" as the Bishop expressed it.

It is the wish of many that there may be from time to time other united meetings of our local branches of the Woman's Auxiliary.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

Branch No. 2 resumed its meetings on Thursday, October 17th. Interesting reports were read by the delegates to the Indian's Hope and the Domestic Committees. Letters of thanks were read from the Rev. George P. Mayo and Deaconess Lawrence, of the Blue Ridge Industrial School, Virginia, for the boxes of new and second-hand clothing sent to them in the spring. It has been decided to send a Christmas box to the boys in the mines for whom Bishop Darlington has asked help. Contributions of money and second-hand clothing, especially shoes, are asked for this Christmas box.

The lower departments of the Sunday School will, it is hoped, shortly be re-graded. Under the splendid direction of Mrs. Lowber this portion of our Sunday School has always been marked for its good progress. We congratulate them on this good step.

"THE CHURCH NEWS."

The new Diocesan "Church News" meets our hopes and exceeds our expectations.

We earnestly commend it to the members of our parish, and hope every family will immediately subscribe.

Send subscriptions to the "Church News," 1016 Arch street. One dollar per year.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

Our first missionary box is to go out to Casper, Wyoming. It is for the Rev. Charles J Villiers who is in Bishop Thomas' jurisdiction The family consists of Rev. and Mrs. Villiers and two children—Ralph, aged sixteen and Olive, fourteen. We have written to Mrs. Villiers to learn of any special needs and wishes With her reply in hand, the work should be well under way, so that the box may reach the family before Christmas. We shall need many helping hands at our Wednesday (10 A. M.) sewing meetings.

THE UNITED OFFERING.

The Parish Treasurer for the United Offering has forwarded to the Diocesan treasurer $87.32—the amount of the fall collection from the women of Grace Church.

We are now on the threshold of the last year of our triennial. At New York in October 1913, the United Thank Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary will once again be presented. What a blessing that we are permitted to share in that "holy offering, rich and rare," but we cannot rest satisfied as long as there are so many women who have no part in it. Surely they must come to see it as a wonderful privilege, and will in time help to make our offering in very truth a "united" offering.

If there are any women who have recently come to us who have been contributors to the United Offering in other Parishes, will they kindly send their names to Mrs. Ralph H North, 7301 Boyer street.

Missions

We regard ourselves as among the chosen people of God. But chosen for what? Is it not that we should leaven the whole lump? In choosing the seed of Abraham, God did not reject other people. The purpose back of the choice was the blessing of the nations.

The Church a beginning, not an end

The Christian Church is not the end and goal of God's purposes. Our Lord says: "I have chosen you and ordained you, that ye should go and bring forth fruit." We who are called to a place within the innermost circle of Christian privilege are called to work with God for the accomplishment of His purpose for the world.

We of Grace Church are commanded to make disciples of all nations. How can we do it? We are doing it measurably through our deputies, the missionaries. By our prayers and support we enable them to perform the work. The Mission Boards are at work continuously as our agents. It is for us to provide them regularly and systematically the amounts they need to carry on the work. They can only plan intelligently when they know what means they may expect from the Church at large.

The Missionaries our Deputies

We should regard the amounts asked of us on the apportionment plan, whether for diocesan or for general missions, as debts of honor, to be paid first, no matter what the inconvenience to us.

Debts of Honor

At the Diocesan Convention this year it was determined to increase the amount raised for Diocesan Missions from $19,000 to $22,000. This necessitates an increase of $950.00 in the amount to be raised by the Convocation of Germantown. The share of this parish in that increase is $25.00, so that we are asked to contribute $200 in all. The offering for that purpose on Trinity Sunday amounted to only $93.26. Our apportionment for General Missions is $1607.05; of this we have paid to May 1st $1154.27.

The fiscal year of the Board of Missions ends September 1st, so that we have until then to complete our payments.

A special offering for this purpose will be taken on St. Peter's Day, Sunday, June 29th. Let us clear off these debts before we separate for our holidays.

T. S. C.

The Work of the Women

Attention is called to the Annual Report of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild given in another column. It is most encouraging to note that, in spite of the changes and unrest in the parish during the past year, no department of the work of the Auxiliary and Guild has suffered. On the contrary, there has been steady and even remarkable progress, as shown by the large increase in receipts and the amount of work accomplished. All this is due, in large measure, to a fixed purpose and an abounding faith on the part of the workers, who have pressed forward in a beautiful spirit of loyalty to the Church and to each other. Praise be to Him who giveth the courage and the strength!

A very important part of the parish work this year has been the reorganization of the Junior Auxiliary along somewhat different lines. This has been accomplished by a Joint Committee of able leaders. The revival of interest and the good work carried on give promise of a strong Auxiliary with the highest ideals. Congratulations to all who have taken part in this splendid work.

Duplex Envelopes

The recent introduction of Duplex Envelopes, for the purpose of enabling the members of our Church to make regular and systematic contributions to Domestic and Foreign Missions and Benevolences, has not produced as hearty a response as had been hoped for. In fact, the contributions to our own Church support, by this means, have not increased as they should.

The system, if properly supported, could be made very efficient as one means of definite income for the Church, and, at the same time, an automatic method of reminding the individual of his obligations and duties.

It enables members of families holding pews, but who do not themselves pay the rent, to personally aid in the work; it enables those who hold no definite sitting to do their share; and it enables those who rent pews or sittings to make their payments very conveniently by the week or month instead of twice a year; while the mission half of the envelope enables both themselves and the Church to know definitely what is appropriated to this cause, and that the desires of the individual will be carried out.

May we hope that many more will aid in the work of the Church by this means?

Interment

The remains of the REV. SIMEON C. HILL, the late Rector of Grace Church, received final interment in Ivy Hill Cemetery on Friday, May 9th.

The Bishop Suffragan of Pennsylvania officiated, assisted by the Rev. Joseph L. Miller. The Rector and Vestrymen of Grace Church attended in a body and a large number of the congregation were present. "May he rest in peace, and may light perpetual shine upon him."

Confirmation Service

A large congregation assembled for the Confirmation Service on the evening of Trinity Sunday. After the processional hymn, the Right Rev. Dr. Rhinelander, Bishop of Pennsylvania, read the bidding prayer and proceeded with the sermon. His text was the first seven verses of the 19th Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, which relate how St. Paul confirmed some twelve Corinthians.

The Rector presented to the Bishop thirty-one persons who "openly before the Church" ratified and confirmed their baptismal vows. Then, as they knelt before the Bishop, he laid his hands upon them that they might receive the Holy Ghost.

The choir sang the Veni Creator as an anthem. The whole service was most spiritual.

The newly confirmed will make their first Communion at seven o'clock on the second Sunday after Trinity (June 1st). The members of the Confirmation classes of the past three years are invited to receive with them at that service. There will be a special service of preparation on the Wednesday evening previous, May 28th, at 8 o'clock.

Ordination

MR. JAMES MONROE COLLINS was ordered deacon on Trinity Sunday, at Holy Trinity Church.

Although Mr. Collins' studies and mission work the last few years took him from the parish, there are scores of friends and former associates remaining to recall his years of patient labors and faithful attendance in Grace Church and Sunday School.

Lack of space and as well a regard for Mr. Collins' dislike of personal publicity restrain us from recounting the splendid work he has been doing while preparing for the sacred ministry in the past twelve years. Among many minor things, he has served as secretary of the Junior Department, Philadelphia Local Assembly, Brotherhood of St. Andrew; Lay-reader in charge of St. Andrew's Mission, near Phoenixville; and St. Andrew's Mission, West Manayunk, being over two years in each place.

On his graduation from the Philadelphia Divinity School, in June, Mr. Collins goes to Cincinnati as Curate in Christ Church. He carries with him the affection and esteem of many friends in Grace Church. May God bless his labors and make them fruitful.

A Brotherhood Assembly will be held in Grace Church on Saturday afternoon and evening, June 7th.

Members of all chapters, Senior and Junior, in this diocese, will be present at this spring rally, and will probably number between four and five hundred men and boys.

The boys meet in the early afternoon for a conference of their own.

Evening Prayer for all will be said at 5 o'clock.

Supper will be served by the ladies of Grace Church at 6 o'clock.

The evening conference for men will be conducted by Mr. George H. Randall, of Boston, Associate General Secretary of the Brotherhood.

The Bishop of the Diocese will be present and will make an address.

All are welcome to any of these meetings, whether members or not.

The Annual Conference of Church Clubs was held in Boston on May 23d and 24th. The general subject of conference was Church Unity. The editor of the PARISH NEWS was in attendance as a delegate from the Church Club of Philadelphia. The purpose of the Church Club and its work are very laudable, and more of our men should be interested definately.

Woman's Auxiliary Branch No. 2

The last regular monthly meeting of Branch No. 2 for the year was held on Thursday, April 17th, with a good attendance. Miss Hicks, the head nurse at the University Hospital, Manila, was present and gave a delightful talk. Miss Hicks spoke of the high ideals set before the nurses by Bishop Brent, and showed how ready these girls are to respond to this teaching.

During the year two boxes have been sent, one at Christmas to the Rev. A. P. Wilson, of Lykens, Pennsylvania, for the boys in the mines; this was valued at $69.70.

A box of new and second-hand clothing has just been sent to St. Augustine's School, Raleigh, for Mrs. A. B. Hunter, valued at $76.70.

If we have added to the missionary labors and interest in the parish, even in a modest way, our work has not been in vain this year.

We hope earnestly for a great increase of interest next autumn.

The Junior Auxiliary

The first meeting for the year was held on Monday, February 3d, when our Rector presided and addressed the members. It was decided to sew for The Sheltering Arms, and garments have been made at the regular meetings, held twice a month, enabling us to send a well-filled box, which has been received and thoroughly appreciated. In addition, a confectioners' sale was held in the Parish House, the proceeds of which were given toward the Parish apportionment. The last meeting for the season was held at the residence of Mrs. Wheeler Jenkins, and all enjoyed the novelty of a most successful "Nickel Party." There have been many faithful workers and splendid work accomplished in a short time. Let us hope that next year the number will be doubled, that we may do even more in giving joy to those less fortunate than ourselves.

Our Missionary

An event of rather more than usual interest was the arrival in Mount Airy of our special missionary, Miss Alice M. Clark, of Hankow, China. We speak of Miss Clark as "our missionary," because, some years ago, she was assigned to our parish branch of the Woman's Auxiliary as the one for whom we were to pray and in whom we were to take a special interest. We had not met Miss Clark and we have never given her any financial support; but now that we have come more closely into touch, it is hoped that next year we may be able to help her in her work for the women and girls of Hankow.

Miss Clark addressed a meeting in the Guild room on Friday, May 2d, giving a most interesting account of the rebellion. She spoke afterwards of her own work in Hankow, explaining quite clearly the necessity for normal schools in which to train teachers, especially for the primary grades.

Miss Clark is a United Offering Missionary, as are most of the women workers in Hankow. It was interesting to hear, from her viewpoint, of the great help given through the United Offering, and of the vital necessity for its growth that many more women may be sent out to meet the wonderful opportunities in all the mission fields, but especially in China, at this critical time in her history.

The Periodical Club

The librarian of the Church Periodical Club again wishes to thank all those who have so kindly contributed magazines, papers, books and cards. Also, through the generosity of the money contributors, boxes and barrels of magazines and odd papers have been sent away during the winter months, and books as well as magazines by mail to those in the far West.

If the members of the Parish could only realize how much good all reading matter does, and the pleasure it gives to hundreds of homes, it is certain they would give even more frequently than they are now giving. Any new or old pictures, engravings, picture postal cards (religious and secular), are in great demand, and are sent to hospitals, mission stations and "shut-ins."

The librarian has had many requests for chancel furnishings for small missions, and Grace Church has sent, in past years, altar cloths to Virginia, and dossals, etc., to North Carolina. So nothing need be thrown away—just sent, instead, to the Parish House, care of the sexton, marked: "For the Church Periodical Club."

M. W. BAYARD, Librarian.

A Unique Privilege is afforded men and boys in the conference for all churchmen, clerical and lay, incident to the National Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, to be held in New York City October 1 to 5.

In arranging vacation time, allowance should be made for attendance at this great convention.

As the Convention comes just before the General Convention of the Church, those in attendance will have the benefit of the association and instruction of many Bishops and other clergymen and laymen of national prominence.

A Senior Department has been organized in the Sunday School with a Bible Class for men and one for women. Already the enrollment is 24. Both classes are taking the same course of study in the Principles of Jesus.

The subjects to be discussed during June are announced as follows:

June 1, Jesus and Friendship.
June 8, Jesus and the Family.
June 15, Jesus and Woman.
June 22, Jesus and Children.
June 29, Jesus and Character.

On Wednesday evening, July 2d, there will be a special service for the members of the Bible Classes in Church, followed by a social gathering in the Guild room. New members are cordially welcomed.

MISSION SERVICES

The Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, S.T.D., LL.D., of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Philadelphia, will preach in Grace Church during the coming week as follows: Monday, December 8, What is Christianity. Tuesday, December 9, A Happy, Useful Life. Wednesday, December 10, Dangers. Thursday, December 11, Blessings.

The Rev. Francis T. Brown, of St. Andrew's Church, Yonkers, N. Y., will preach on Friday Evening, December 12.

The special Sunday evening services, which began last Sunday, will continue throughout Advent season. The Rector is preaching a course of sermons on Christian Discipleship as studied in the lives of St. Andrew (November 30), St. Francis (December 7), Savonarola (December 14), and John Wesley (December 21).

This will make in all during Advent season, nine special preaching services in addition to the regular church worship.

They all begin at 8 o'clock. A cordial welcome is extended to everybody, especially newcomers.

The services are simple and hearty. Congregational singing, led by a volunteer chorus, is a feature. The Church Mission Hymnal is used.

THE heart of the church pulsates with eager love. Any who have gotten the impression of coldness, formality and exclusiveness will have their eyes opened by these services. They will also have their hearts warmed. Have you gotten out of touch with the Church? Now is the time to come back. Advent is the spring of the soul, the time of awaking of new desires, hopes, efforts.

EVANGELISM

IT must be manifest to all the members of this parish—and we hope of this community—that during this present Advent season the stress is markedly upon Evangelism. So long as the Church has good tidings of a Saviour for all people it must be essentially evangelical. It would be a great pity if those who enter the full communion of the Church from Protestant bodies should lose one whit of their original evangelical belief. Rather they should perfect it by sacramental truth and find its adequate expression in Catholic worship.

Fr. Herbert Kelly, the noted Educator of Kelham, England, says: "I have no objection to the term Catholic, but I cannot without protest let go the term evangelical. I have no other motive for maintaining the 'Catholic' sacramental doctrine than that I believe it to be necessary to the consistency and stability of evangelicalism. If I may be allowed a purely personal remark, I say this as one who began life as an ardent evangelical in the sense in which that term might be applied to any Salvation Army captain, and however much more I have learnt since, I would not admit I have ever abandoned my belief."

THIS combination of the evangelical spirit with sound Catholic principles was well exemplified in the life of Fr. Dolling, famous for his great work in the slums of Portsmouth, England.

In an article in the Pilot at the time of his death it was said: "For all his loyalty to Catholic doctrine and practice he was an evangelical to the backbone; that is to say, his whole interest was in the saving of those individual souls—and they were thousands—with whom he came in contact, and not in any ecclesiastical system for its own sake. He cared as little for theology and scholarship as did St. Francis or John Wesley, and it was because he discovered by intuition and experiment that Catholic beliefs and practices were efficacious for the sole end he cared about, that he adopted them fearlessly without much deference to Bishops or Articles.

"For the same reason he took over boldly and to the scandal of ecclesiastical dilettanti, such elements of Methodism as by their efficacy with the multitude had proved their right to survive. A lawless mind it might seem to some, but only because it was governed by a somewhat neglected law which puts the absolutely necessary end before any dispensable and less necessary means."

CHRISTMASTIDE

The children rightly have the first place in our plans for Christmastide. The Primary and Kindergarten Departments of the Church School will have their Christmas Party on Christmas Eve, Wednesday, from 2.30 to 4.30.

The Christmas Party for the Junior, Senior and Graduate Departments of the Church School will be held in the Parish House at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Saturday following Christmas (St. John's Day).

The Carol Service and Festival Procession for all the "children" of the Parish, young and old, will be held in the Church on Sunday morning (Holy Innocents Day) at 9.30, and will take the place of the Church School session for that day.

On Christmas Day there will be three celebrations of the Holy Communion, at 6, 7.30 and 11. In this we followed the ancient practice of the English Church. In the Sarum Missal we find offices for these three celebrations—(1) at cock-crow, (2) at the dawn, (3) in full day. The Collect, Epistle and Gospel for each of these three Eucharists indicated a distinct train of thought connected with the Incarnation: (1) Our Lord's birth; (2) the announcement to the Shepherds, and (3) His eternal Sonship.

A Light from the Land Immortal, an anthem by John E. West, will be sung at the late service. The Sanctus and Gloria in Excelsis will be Stainer's in A and D. The Agnus Dei, will be Tours' in F.

Morning Prayer will be said at 10.30. There will be no evening service.

On Holy Innocents Day, the Sunday after Christmas, the morning services will follow the regular order—Holy Communion at 7.30 and Morning Prayer at 11. At Evening Prayer (4 o'clock) the rite of Holy Baptism will be administered to infants. All parents desiring to have their children baptized must be ready at the Font immediately after the last lesson.

The Story of Bethlehem, a sacred cantata, will be sung Sunday evening at 8. The words, written by Shapcott Wensley, tell the Christmas story in all its holy charm and simplicity. The music is composed by John E. West. Our Choirmaster will officiate at the organ.

The Feast of the Circumcision, New Year's Day, will be observed by morning prayer at 9 and the Holy Communion at 9.30.

CHRISTMAS PEACE

YONDER comes a disheveled woman, feverishly pushing her way through dense crowds, breathlessly climbing countless steps, rushing through mazes of blinding light and deafening tumult. She is tired, confused, unnerved, baffled; but she may not rest, for she has a thousand important things to do. She must hasten on, on.

Suddenly a strange thing happens—a door opens before her. She rushes in, but is surprised to find herself in a new environment. How different! There are green pastures and still waters. In the soft glow of twilight she sees sheep peacefully browsing on the hills. The silence is broken only by the tinkling of their bells and the soothing sounds of nature. An angel bids her rest a while. "You are worn out my child," he says, "sit here and watch the stars come out and let God restore your soul."

The bad dream of confusion fades away and she is filled with wonder at the bright star which tints the sky with unusual light. Then she hears a company of angels far away singing "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good will towards men." And she says to herself, "Before, I was anxious and troubled about many things, but now I see one thing is needful." And then she breathed this brief prayer, "O God, restore my soul."

DO you recognize this story?. It is the story of your soul. That is what happened the other day when you returned home from your Christmas shopping and opened your Prayer Book and lost yourself in meditation upon the Gospel for the first Communion on Christmas Day. Perhaps you recognize the story up to the point where the door opened into green pastures. Ah, that is it. Some miss that door—the door into peace. Some are still rushing on distractedly. To them Christmas will be an ordeal, not the restoration of the soul.

LITTLE CHILDREN

THE Church stretches out her arms eagerly to welcome the tots in the name of Him who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me." You don't realize the full beauty of Grace Church if you have never looked in upon that circle of bright faces in the Kindergarten Room of a Sunday morning. Isn't it true that we are just coming to realize the importance of those first steps in religious training?

We believe there are parents who would like to send their children to the Church Sunday mornings, but who have no one to take them and bring them home. Others are prevented because they live a long way from the Church. Therefore arrangements have been made to send a stage coach to gather up these children and give them safe conveyance.

All parents who desire to have their children called for will please notify Mr. Thomas Ball, chairman of the Committee, or Mrs. Reginald N. Hall, the head of the Kindergarten Department.

THE CHURCH SCHOOL

THE Report Secretary of the School is about to send home the first quarterly reports. These reports cover the work of ten weeks. An examination was held on Advent Sunday. The results show that much faithful work has been done. They also reveal some weak points in the curriculum which must be strengthened. The banner class for attendance and work during this first quarter is the Fifth Grade Class of boys, of which Mr. Alfred L. Hallstrom is teacher. They received an average rank of 84.5.

This class will have the honor of being the first to claim the handsome banner which has just been presented to the school by the Principal. Its emblem is the monogram, Chi Rho, encircled by the victor's wreath, crimson and gold upon a field of white.

The Class for Men in Church History began on Advent Sunday under the leadership of Mr. J. W. Bayard.

The attendance at the school has gotten up over 200, and is steadily increasing.

CHRISTMAS BOX

THE Junior Auxiliary, assisted by the Advent offerings of the Church School, are sending a Christmas box to the Rev. Wilmot S. Holmes, of Orangeburg, South Carolina. As there are three little children in the family, it makes it a most interesting box to prepare.

Mr. Holmes has a territory of 55 miles under his care, and in his congregations are as many colored as white people.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

WE call attention to an announcement in the October Parish News (page 5), in regard to a Service of Intercession on the third Wednesday of the month at 9.30 A. M. This service immediately precedes the meeting for work. It is open to, and intended for, all the women of the parish. Thus far the largest attendance has been thirteen. To be sure, there is the promise to the "two or three," but in our parish family of say two hundred women, is an average attendance of seven at all representative or can it bring that most abundant blessing which we need and which God waits and longs to bestow?

Prayer is the soul of our work, and while we are striving for extension in every department of our activities, dare we neglect the life-giving force of the devotional meeting?

The regular celebration on the Thursday (9.30 A. M.) following the third Wednesday is a Corporate Communion for the Woman's Auxiliary.

The Rev. Warren R. Yeakel, of Burlington, Kansas, will address the Domestic Missionary Meeting at 11.30 A. M., Wednesday, December 10th.

NOTES

THE offering on Thanksgiving Day for the Episcopal Hospital was $85.00.

A barrel filled to overflowing with food supplies was sent to a trained nurse for distribution among the poor of the slums.

The Primary Juniors, together with the boys of the Church School, had a delightful party at Mrs. Crouter's home on Tuesday, December 2d.

One of our earnest missionaries in Japan narrates the following incident: "Another case of a stone falling out of the walls of Jericho came when one of the evangelists in our district here came to me and said that the principal of the secondary school near his place of work, about forty miles from here, wanted me to come and teach Christianity to the upper-class students in his school. He said it must not be openly called Christianity at first on account of public opinion in the town, but it was Christianity he wanted, for the students must be made to have a real faith in something."

St. John's University, Shanghai, reports the closing of the most successful year in its history; 500 students have been in attendance. A class of twenty-one were graduated at the last Commencement with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. At the entrance examinations 200 applicants presented themselves, most of them well prepared, but only 85 could be received for lack of accommodations. Dr. Pott, the President, completed twenty-five years of service in the institution; in loving recognition of this the Chinese Alumni presented the sum of $10,000 toward the erection of a new building.

By means of the every-member canvass and the weekly offering plan, the fifty-four communicants of the Church of the Redeemer, Okmulgee, Okla., found it possible to send to the Board of Missions last year $95.65, although the apportionment for the parish was only $21.50. If a small congregation in a missionary district can give more than four times its apportionment, what might not be done if the same methods and especially the same spirit were in operation everywhere?

Another successor to the Apostles is soon to go from the well-named Church of the Holy Apostles of this city. The Rev. Wm. T. Capers accepts his election as Bishop Coadjutor of West Texas. Other Bishops-elect who have accepted are the Rev. John P. Tyler, North Dakota, the Rev. Charles B. Colmore, Porto Rico; the Rev. Frederick B. Howden, New Mexico.

THE PARISH NEWS

Published by Grace Church, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia

VOLUME X JANUARY, 1914 NUMBER 1

A. D. 1914

CROSS the threshold of the New Year with the courage and resolution becoming a Christian. Do not join the company of those who make light of New Year's resolutions. These solemn secret vows before God and your own conscience are sacred. It is a serious thing to forfeit the confidence of a friend by a broken promise. It is a more deplorable thing to lose respect for yourself by bad faith with yourself.

One trouble with our resolutions is that they are hastily drawn up. They must be carefully thought out if they are to merit the respect of all the days of the year.

Once you make a resolution, keep it. Admit of no single exception. If you do by chance break it do not think it forever useless. Mend it and begin again, only this time with greater reliance upon prayer.

The only persons who can afford not to make New Year's resolutions are those who have already attained and are already perfect. S. Gabriel and S. Michael might qualify, but most of us must press on.

"Every year, through all its months, remember the Son of Righteousness. Follow the Lord Jesus Christ, who came to save you, who gave Himself for you, leaving you an example, that you should follow His steps. He is your Light in the darkness of this world.

Every month, throughout its weeks, note what season the Church bids you observe, that you may learn how to follow Jesus in His sufferings and triumphs. Remember His feasts and fasts, the solemn seasons—Advent, Christmas, Epiphany, Septuagesima, Lent, Easter, Ascension and Whitsuntide.

Every week, throughout its days, note the special teachings that come to you as the Saints' Days pass by. One by one the saints of old days teach us to be like them. Apostles, martyrs and evangelists lead us to Christ.

Every day, throughout its hours, let the thought of your own weakness cause you to go for help to One that is stronger than you are. Make it your daily rule to pray, morning and evening, before the Lord in your secret chamber; and when you can visit the house of God, seeking His presence there.

Every moment you are in the hands of God. He supports your life. He gives you all you have. He is your only sure hope for time and eternity.

Set Him always before you, through all your work and your rest, your cares and your pleasures."

THE EPIPHANY

THE great feasts that chance to come on a weekday must not be neglected by us. The Epiphany, or the "Twelfth Day," is one of the chief commemorations of our Lord. It is a more ancient festival than Christmas Day itself.

There will be two celebrations of the Holy Communion, at 7.30 and 9.30. Morning Prayer at 9.

THE Sundays of Epiphany season present certain flashes of our Lord's divinity which penetrate the veil of His humanity, as when, at the age of twelve, He astonished the doctors in the Temple, or when He manifested forth His glory by turning the water into wine in Cana. Or we see His divine power in the healing of human ills and the stilling of the storm.

THE PURIFICATION

THE Feast of the Purification, on February 2d, is primarily a festival of our Lord, who was presented to His Eternal Father in our nature. It is also a feast of the Blessed Virgin Mary, who, forty days after the birth of her Son, was purified, as we read in St. Luke 2:22.

Another name for this festival is "Candlemas," from the pre-Reformation custom of bearing lighted candles in the churches, in memory of Christ, the Light of the Gentile world, of whom Simeon spoke in his Nunc dimittis, sung at Evening Prayer.

NOTES

Grace Chapter of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew has elected to membership Messrs. Wm. L. Chrisman and A. Clarence Manning.

The Christmas offering for Clergy Relief amounted to $179.79.

The Church School reached high-water mark for attendance on December 21st, there being 218 present.

The teacher-training class will resume regular work, Wednesday evening, January 7th. Let every teacher be present.

Story-telling was a delightful feature of the Christmas parties this year. We are grateful to Miss Zara and Miss Adair for the beautiful stories.

The children enjoyed giving as well as receiving at Christmastide. Christmas stockings were filled and sent to St. Ambrose Mission, in Kensington. The primary and kindergarten children gave presents of their own handiwork to their mothers.

The Carol Service and Procession in Church on Holy Innocents' Day was one of the brightest features of the Christmas season. The carols were all ancient: "The First Nowell," "We Three Kings of Orient Are," "Good King Wenceslas," "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen," "Blessed Night When Bethlehem's Plain" and "O Bethlehem."

The choirmaster, organist and choristers should know how much we appreciate their excellent rendering of the Christmas music. The cantata, "The Story of Bethlehem," on Sunday evening was greatly enjoyed by a large congregation. We hope it will be repeated another year.

Pennsylvania has a foreign-born population of 1,438,719. This total does not include the children born in this country to foreign-born parents. More than 800,000 are from southern and eastern Europe.

Bishop Roots, of Hankow, in speaking of the opportunity for work in China, gave utterance to what seemed a Hibernianism when he said that our greatest chance for work in China is here in America. "Why," he asked, "do you treat the Chinese as you do? Unless you deal squarely with the Chinese here we shall have no opportunity in Hankow. We must make the action of our nation a true expression of the spirit of Christ in international affairs."

From the united offering of 1910, $5000 was set aside toward the erection of a new dormitory for young women students at St. Augustine's School, Raleigh. It was determined to make the building a memorial to the late George C. Thomas, former treasurer of the Board of Missions. The construction work was carried on vigorously so far as the money in hand would permit. For many months the unfinished building has stood as an appeal and challenge to the people of the Church to complete a work well begun. The Auxiliary, at its last triennial meeting in New York, decided to give another $5000 from the united offering of 1913. This amount, together with the individual gifts that have been made from time to time by many good friends in different parts of the country, and the sum the students have undertaken to raise, will be sufficient to complete the south wing of the building. Unfortunately, the money so far given has been sufficient only for actual building operations, and has not sufficed for equipment. The result is a debt of about $4500 for the heating and plumbing. As the building was absolutely useless without this expenditure, it seemed wise to the Rev. A. B. Hunter and his advisors on the Board of Trustees to assume the obligation. The completed portion of the building was formally opened on November 26th by Bishop Cheshire.

MUSICALES IN THE PARISH HOUSE

ON Tuesday evening, January 13th, there will be given the third in the series of musicales under the direction of Mrs. Herbert M. Fuller, chairman of the Music Committee of the New Century Club. It is to be a violin recital by Master Max Olanoff, a young music student of remarkable promise. He will be assisted by Miss Ruth Buck, soloist, a graduate of the Overbrook Institution for the Instruction of the Blind. We can assure the people of Mt. Airy a rare treat. There are no tickets of admission. A silver offering is taken.

Mrs. Fuller has arranged for an extra (afternoon) musicale on Saturday, January 31st, at 3 o'clock. This will be given by a double quartette (male), also from the Overbrook Institution, and it will, without doubt, prove a most interesting and enjoyable entertainment for old and young. Do not fail to be present at both of the January musicales.

JUNIOR AUXILIARY

JUST as Wednesday is Woman's Auxiliary day in the parish, so Monday will be Junior Auxiliary day hereafter. The Primary Juniors will meet at 3 o'clock in the primary room. The Juniors will meet at the same hour in the guild room. Members may come and go at their convenience during the remainder of the afternoon. Plans for the grading of the Junior Auxiliary are about complete. Many are advanced from the Primary Branch to the Junior Branch.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

A HAPPY New Year to all!

The Wednesday meetings (9.30 A. M. to 4 P. M.) will be resumed on January 7th. We look for a large and enthusiastic attendance after the holiday recess, and we are hoping to welcome a number of new workers. There are garments to be prepared for diocesan and foreign boxes, and, later on, for an Indian catechist, or helper (Louis Greenwood) and family. This will be the annual "Lenten box." The valuation of our November and December boxes stands at about $500, or nearly the total for all boxes in 1912-13. Nothing succeeds like success, and we feel confident that the grand total for 1913-14 will far exceed that of any previous year.

A gift of a hand machine from a lady in the parish is greatly appreciated. It will be most useful.

WE WOULD take this opportunity to say that the response to our appeal for second-hand clothing was both prompt and generous, enabling us to fill two barrels for both Miss Edrington and the Rev. A. J. Arkin and to make other donations. It may interest our readers to hear that of shoes (for which there is the greatest demand) there were 50 pairs! We can distribute to good advantage all clothing of any kind. It may be sent to the Parish House throughout the year.

Every third Wednesday, at 9.30 A. M., there is a service of intercession in the Church, and every third Thursday, at the same hour, a Corporate Communion.

DO NOT forget the missionary meeting on Wednesday, January 14th, at 11.30 A. M. This meeting is entirely in charge of the delegates (Branches 1 and 2) to the Foreign Committee, and they are happy to announce that Dr. Mary V. Glenton, of Hankow, will address the meeting. We remember Doctor Glenton as one of the most interesting of the jubilee speakers, and we welcome this opportunity to come into closer touch with her. Doctor Glenton was formerly physician-in-charge of the Elizabeth Bunn Memorial Hospital, in Wuchang. As it was necessary to close the hospital during the revolution, she went to Hankow to assist in the Red Cross work and did splendid service at the Cathedral Hospital. There should be a large attendance of interested women to greet Doctor Glenton.

ON WEDNESDAY, January 7th, at 10.30 A.M., there will be an important meeting of all our parish delegates (Branches 1 and 2) to the five committees at the Church House. A notice has been mailed to each delegate, and it is earnestly requested that she keeps the date and hour free for the meeting. The monthly meeting of the Executive Committee falls on the same day, at 12 o'clock.

A STATED meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild will be held on Tuesday, January 13th, at 3 o'clock. This is one of only three business meetings during the year. They are not only open to every woman in the parish, but it is of vital importance to Grace Church that there should be a more general attendance. It would surely result in a better understanding of and a more lively interest in the missionary and parish work of the Auxiliary and Guild.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY DELEGATES

(Stated Meetings held in the Church House, Twelfth and Walnut streets)

Colored—First Monday, at 11. Mrs. J. M. Hartman, Mrs. John Burton, Mrs. F. V. Chambers, Mrs. B. G. Hardy (Branch No. 2).

Indian—Last Monday, at 11. Mrs. C. M. Bayard, Mrs. C. S. Pease, Mrs. R. J. Thompson, Mrs. Edw. Jefferson (Branch No. 2).

Foreign—Third Monday, at 10. Mrs. C. M. Bayard, Miss E. D. Sewall, Mrs. G. F. Breed, Miss Adele Bayard (Branch No. 2).

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

LAST autumn the members of this Parish were asked to contribute at the Parish Thank Offering in November the sum of $1500. This was required to meet the balance due for the alterations and repairs to the Rectory and the extra expense of the organization of the Church School and of the unexpected repairs to the church tower. The amount received, including recent special contributions for the repairs to the tower, was only $806.82. The remaining $700 is urgently needed now. The Accounting Warden now has

on hand available for parish purposes only	$274.88
Outstanding pew rents due and likely to be paid do not exceed	125.00
Out of these funds which, when received, will be only	399.88
He is called upon to pay on January 1st, on salary accounts	200.00
And for the Diocesan Assessment for the Episcopal and Convention funds	224.98

Besides bills, not yet audited, for Christmas outlays and sundry current expenses.

It is obvious that this cannot be done. And the expenses for the remaining four months of the fiscal year are yet to be provided for.

The receipts from pew rents, envelope subscriptions and regular Sunday offertories are barely sufficient to pay the ordinary running expenses of the Parish. It has always been our custom, in the past, when money was needed for some object out of the ordinary, to raise it by special offerings or subscriptions. In the present case every member of the Parish has received the benefit of the extra expenditures—through the children in the work of the Church School and in his individual safety through the repairs of the church tower—and it is hoped, therefore, that every member of the Parish will do his share towards making up the needed amount.

December 31, 1913. J. W. B.

A CHURCH with rented pews is, in a way, exclusive, while a church in which no one can lease a place for himself is open to all and is inherently attractive. If we can aid, by any means, in making Grace Church even more attractive than it is, I am sure that all of us are willing to further such an advance, even if we may be called on at times to surrender our accustomed place of sitting.

There is a great forward movement going on in this parish. If you want further evidence of it, come around some Wednesday evening to the guild room, where the teachers of the Church School go to school. More than half of the company are not teachers, but those who come because they too want to be going forward.

The church pew has been changing with the years. I well remember my father's pew, up in New York State. That is fifty years ago, when I was a small boy. The woodwork was painted white, with a broad brown moulding along the back and end. On the top of the pew door was a silvered name plate. The door had a catch on it that could be opened from the inside. This pew was not quite so much of a fortress as the type of 150 years ago, but was still very exclusive.

In a process of evolution the backs and the ends of pews have been sinking, the doors have dropped off and the forbidding effect is fading away.

In a church for which I have a great affection (Christ Church, New Haven, Conn.) the pew effect has entirely disappeared. Chairs take the place of pews and the appearance of ownership of five or eight sittings has happily vanished. You feel as though you'd like to walk right in and occupy one of those chairs. It isn't any person's pew. It's an inspiration to go there! You quickly note the absence of exclusiveness and feel a sort of a welcome as to God's House, not to man's house.

There are at least two reasons why we rent pews. One we offer as the important and overwhelming one and the other we say nothing about. The first reason is, "we cannot pay parish expenses unless we rent the pews." The second reason is, we like a reserved seat in which to get our religion, just as we get accommodations in advance for the play. The latter consideration is, as a matter of fact, appallingly larger and heavier than any one of us is prepared to admit, and is utterly unworthy of a Christian. The former reason shows an entire lack of faith.

Would we be warranted in abandoning the system of renting pews? Would we be "taking chances," as we call it in business? Let us regard the religious life as an enterprise. Some of us enter business life as an enterprise, and if we expect to be successful we must be enterprising. Just so in the religious life; but here ends the parallel. In one enterprise we have man's backing and in the other the help of Almighty God. God's work calls out His powerful support, and why should we fear for the results if we really feel that we are engaged in an enterprise to bring more and more souls under the influence of His Church?

Some men were once engaged in an enterprise of fishing and were not making a success of it; perhaps they were working in shallow water, where they could see bottom. SOMEONE came to them and said, "Launch out into the deep and let down your nets for a draught," and at His word they did launch out into the deep, the unknown, the untried, the region of countless possibilities. You know the result; it was so great that their equipment was insufficient to bring in the draught; and so, seeing their great faith, He called them and they followed Him, and they became "fishers of men."

THE PARISH NEWS

Published by Grace Church, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia

VOLUME X FEBRUARY, 1914 NUMBER 2

FORWARD!

THE challenge of personal loyalty to the Church is always present, but there do come at rare intervals in the life of a parish special opportunities for concerted action which enhance the value of a man's service tenfold.

The men of Grace Church are now confronted by such an opportunity. Wherein lies this special opportunity? In the fact that a group of earnest men are organizing a movement to make the Church efficient.

The best interests of all mankind demand that the Church be made efficient. It is plain to be seen that what we need most in our own lives, in our community, throughout the whole wide world is the life which Our Lord Jesus Christ alone can give. The medium through which this Divine Gift is conveyed is the Church. Before the Church can perform her glorious work for all nations we, the individual members, must catch the vision and stand ready to do our share.

IT HAS been well said "efficiency, like hygiene, is a state, an ideal, not a method." Have we churchmen the right ideal for the Church? Have we the right principles in the management of her affairs? Have we the type of organization which the situation demands? How can we develop the great resources of the Church and meet the world's needs?

The laymen of Grace Church are facing such questions as they bear upon our parish life. They may get some light. If so, they plan to make a thorough canvass of the parish and talk the matter over with every member of the congregation.

If we all co-operate prayerfully and intelligently we can without doubt double the fruitfulness of Grace Church within a short space of time.

"The rising tide lifts every boat."

LENT

BEFORE another issue of THE PARISH NEWS we shall have entered upon the welcome observance of Lent, welcome indeed in proportion to our longing for spiritual growth.

Lent ought to make for depth of soul. There is among us a great deal of worldliness—the sort which tends to shallowness. Perhaps Lent will help us to see it. No present gain can compensate us for the loss of our souls. The currents of our life run too swiftly to be deep. Let us make room for meditation and devotion.

Many among us are scandalously ignorant concerning our holy religion, simply because we have not found time to listen to instruction or to seek out for ourselves the truth. Perhaps we can make provision for something worth while in the way of study this Lent.

Discipline is what we need. We are very easy going. Church attendance is neglected. Sundays are slept and loafed away. Regular intelligent giving not only for the work of the parish, but for the support of the Church's worldwide enterprise, has been overlooked. We have unconsciously dropped down to a selfish plane of living. We are capable of better things. Oh, let us remember Jesus Christ.

Lent is not well observed by running about from church to church to hear noted preachers. The modern custom of inviting a series of visiting preachers is very much overdone. It is more exciting than edifying. Rather let us settle down to a family Lent—with simplicity, humility and love. Above all, we must learn to love one another better.

LITTLE CHILDREN

IN THE December number of THE PARISH NEWS we spoke of the plan to send a stage coach to gather in the little children who could not otherwise attend the Sunday

Kindergarten. To make this plan effective, a committee of fourteen churchwomen start this week upon a house-to-house canvass of the parish.

Parents who wish to avail themselves of this safe and free conveyance of their children to and from the church will please notify Mrs. Reginald Hall, 31 Gowen Avenue.

LUTHERANS

THE following, from the pen of the Rev. Junius B. Remensnyder, D. D., LL. D., President of the General Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, is significant, and has special interest for churchmen who have Lutherans for neighbors.

"The Episcopal and Lutheran Churches, as representing the conservative, churchly side of Protestantism, would seem to have the most features in common. Their views of the Sacraments, their regard for the historic, their high conception of worship—and of common forms—their theory of Christian nurture and catechization, with the use of confirmation—their emphasis upon the church, etc., give them a close resemblance."

CONGREGATIONALISTS

THE report of the Committee on Church Unity of the National Council of Congregational Churches recently published is a splendid utterance.

In referring to the Episcopal Church, they say, "We desire to bear witness to the breadth of view and nobleness of spirit which has uniformly characterized their counsels with us. In these conferences we have been lifted far above the beaten controversial cross-ways where hitherto they and we occasionally may have met to exchange passing salutations with one another, and to go further along our separate ways."

This same "breadth of view and nobleness of spirit" characterize the whole report of the committee as appears unmistakably in the following passage:

"As Congregationalists we have justly been accustomed to find the reason for our denominational existence by recurring to some of the conditions of primitive Christianity and the comparative independence of the early churches before the full development of the monarchical episcopate. Recent historical researches into the origins of Christianity have led scholars to lay emphasis on the fact that the local congregations of believers regarded themselves as belonging to, and presentations or evidences of the one people of God. In the recovery throughout all churches of the primitive Christian consciousness of the one people of God lies the hope and the power of the greater Christianity of this missionary age. Your committee as a result of these past three years of conferences and hopeful preparation are profoundly convinced that the opportunity is opening for this generation, and that the obligation rests upon us, of achieving a dynamic unity of the churches of Christ. For the redemption of the homeland and for the sake of the Christian civilization of the world, a courageous faith is now called to greet this promise of the Lord."

THE WEST WINDOW

When the stately limestone framework for the new west window in memory of Mr. Charles McKean Bayard was erected last summer it was hoped that the glass would be ready before Christmas. That would indeed have been an appropriate season for the dedication of a window whose subject is the Holy Nativity. But it was thought best to make some alterations in the design, and so considerable delay has been necessary. The final design was approved at the January meeting of the Vestry, and the window is now being executed in Munich, by the Royal Bavarian Art Establishment, Mayer & Co., the same company who made the beautiful east window.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

ON the eve of the new year we sent out the duplex envelopes with a letter of appeal. Because of the imperfections of all parish lists, it is quite possible that we may have mailed the envelopes to some one who should not have received them, or omitted some one who should. If there are any such cases, we take this opportunity to express our regret.

As we stated in the letter, we cannot carry on our work successfully "without the co-operation of every woman in the parish," and the aim was to reach every woman who regularly attends Grace Church. She may not "belong" to our Woman's Auxiliary and Guild as she understands membership. She may not be actively engaged in any of the parish work or have the missionary spirit which the Auxiliary stands for. At the same time she must acknowledge a certain amount of responsibility for the expenses of the Guild in carrying on its work within and for the parish—such as the care of the chancel, clergy and choir vestments, the maintenance of a telephone in the Parish House and a share in the expense of THE PARISH NEWS.

A keen sense of personal responsibility not only on the part of every woman, but of every member of Grace Church, would create such a parish atmosphere that there would be plenty of money for both parish and missionary uses.

THE FEBRUARY MISSIONARY MEETING

ON WEDNESDAY, February 11th, at 3 o'lcock, there will be a missionary meeting under the direction of our delegates to the Diocesan Committee. The Rev. Herman L. Duhring, D. D., Superintendent of the City Mission, will make the address. This will be a fine opportunity to learn a great deal about the missionary work in our city—along many and varied lines.

Do not miss this meeting, and please note the change of hour from 11.30 A. M. to 3 P. M.

All the women of the parish and their friends are cordially invited to be present.

Tea will be served.

ALASKA AND BRANCH No. 2

ON JANUARY 6th a telegram was received at the Church Missions House, telling of the complete loss by fire on January 3d of our mission buildings at Tanana, Alaska. Fortunately no lives were lost. The buildings consisted of a dwelling house and a hospital which for some time had been in charge of Miss Florence G. Langdon, who has given devoted service alone at this point for the last three years. The work which she has so bravely carried on is the only one of its kind for a good distance along the Yukon River, and the loss to the native people will be felt very keenly. The Church of Our Saviour at Tanana is one of the most attractive in Alaska.

Miss Langdon is now in the United States on furlough, and is expected in Mount Airy, Thursday, February 26th, to address the regular monthly meeting of Branch No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary. The meeting will be at 2.30 P. M. instead of the usual morning hour. Miss Langdon will speak at half-past three.

It is hoped that a large number of the women of the parish will be present to meet Miss Langdon. Peculiar interest attaches to her story in view of the recent disaster.

Branch No. 2 hopes to send a box to Alaska, making the articles for it during Lent.

A MUSICAL EVENING

THE last of the series of five musicales will be given in the Parish House on Tuesday evening, February 10th. A piano quartet, from the New Century Club, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth T. McCloskey, vocalist, suggests an attractive program for a most enjoyable evening.

Do not forget the date, or to pass on the word to your friends. There are no tickets of admission. A silver offering is taken.

C. P. C.

THE Librarian of the Church Periodical Club wishes to thank all those who contributed the books toward the library in Alaska. Fifteen hundred volumes were sent to Valdez, where they will be greatly appreciated. The club has also forwarded five barrels and eight boxes of reading material this winter to many parts of the country.

The Librarian wishes to thank all who contributed either books or magazines, some of whose names are in the following list: Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. Henderson, Miss Ramée, Mme. Myer, Mrs. Jefferson, Mrs. Price, Miss Jenkins, Miss Sewall, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Lowber, Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Baldy, Mrs. Sharps, also the boys (most of whom are in the choir) for collecting the books and helping pack the barrels.

Now that the Christmas season is over, do not forget to keep on sending in magazines to the club. They are always needed. Among those especially asked for just now are The Churchman, The Pictorial Review, The Living Church, the Saturday Evening Post and The Geographical Magazine.

The Bishop's visitation this year will be on Whitsunday.

Branch No. 2 of the Woman's Auxiliary gave a delightful tea Tuesday afternoon. January 27th.

The record attendance for the Church School is 230. Three classes of boys have organized into clubs. They are the classes taught by Messrs. Davis, MacDonald and Chrisman.

The Confirmation classes will organize for training immediately after Easter. Already a number of men and women have asked to be enrolled as candidates. There is every indication of a large proportion of adults this year.

Grace Church is a growing church in a growing community. The presence of numerous strangers at the Sunday services is a suggestive fact. How long will they remain strangers? Is the work of assimilation going on vigorously? We all have a share of this responsibility.

The announcement of Choral Evensong last Sunday had the effect to double the size of the congregation. The service will be sung hereafter on the third Sunday of the month at 4 o'clock. It seems to be the general opinion that the choir shows marked improvement this year.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Missions, held January 13th, the Treasurer of the Board was able to report that up to January 1st there had been an increase of $18,000 over the same date last year. At the same time, however, it had been found necessary to increase the appropriations in the sum of about $25,000.

With the coming of Lent the children of the Church enter upon the raising of their thirty-eighth annual missionary offering. The gift of the first year, thirty-seven years ago, was $7,000; last year it was more than $175,000. During the last three years the offering has increased at the rate of about $10,000 each year. The fact that this sum is raised during the six weeks of Lent adds to its significance. So far as we know there is no other Christian body where a like achievement is made, year after year, in so brief a space of time.

Great distress is being experienced in Japan. The volcanic eruptions and earthquakes in the south have cost the lives of hundreds, and have rendered thousands homeless. This disaster was in the Anglican Diocese of Kyu-shiu. In the north has appeared the still greater scourge of famine. This extends into a portion of our own district of Tokyo. There will undoubtedly be great suffering, and the aid of sympathetic Christian people is greatly desired. Contributions for the sufferers will be received and forwarded by the Treasurer of the Board of Missions, Mr. George Gordon King, 281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Point Hope, Alaska, is in continuous darkness for a considerable portion of the year. It lies far within the Arctic circle, and is our northernmost mission, influencing and Christianizing not only the immediate dwellers of the locality, but many other bands of Eskimos within a large radius. Bishop Rowe has arranged to light up Point Hope. It is to have an electric plant, which is to be designed and built by Doctor Temple, of the Engineering Department of the University of Pennsylvania. Power will be obtained from wind-mills driven by the gales from Asia which blow almost continuously upon that bleak coast.

THE VOICE OF THE CHURCH

WHEN occasion demands it the Church can speak with authority. The recent attacks upon the Faith and Apostolic Order of the Church brought about a widespread desire for the voice of the Episcopate to be heard. In response the Bishops of the Convocation of Canterbury have made a notable Declaration which every Churchman ought to ponder to his soul's health:

We print here the full text:

"Inasmuch as there is reason to believe that the minds of many members of the Church of England are perplexed and disquieted at the present time in regard to certain questions of Faith and Church Order, the Bishops of the Upper House of the Province of Canterbury feel it their duty to put forth the following resolutions:—

"1. We call attention to the Resolution which was passed in this House on May 10, 1905, as follows:—

"'That this House is resolved to maintain unimpaired the Catholic Faith in the Holy Trinity and the Incarnation as contained in the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds and in the Quicunque Vult, and regards the Faith there presented, both in statements of doctrine and in statements of fact, as the necessary basis on which the teaching of the Church reposes.'

"We further desire to direct attention afresh to the following Resolution, which was unanimously agreed to by the Bishops of the Anglican Communion attending the Lambeth Conference of 1908:—

"'The Conference, in view of tendencies widely shown in the writings of the present day, hereby places on record its conviction that the historical facts stated in the Creeds are an essential part of the Faith of the Church.'

"2. These resolutions we desire solemnly to reaffirm, and in accordance therewith we express our deliberate judgment that the denial of any of the historical facts stated in the Creeds goes beyond the limits of legitimate interpretation, and gravely imperils that sincerity of profession which is plainly incumbent on the ministers of Word and Sacrament. At the same time, recognizing that our generation is called to face new problems raised by historical criticism, we are anxious not to lay unnecessary burdens upon consciences nor unduly to limit freedom of thought and inquiry, whether among clergy or among laity. We desire, therefore, to lay stress on the need of considerateness in dealing with that which is tentative and provisional in the thought and work of earnest and reverent students.

"3. With regard to other questions which have arisen and anxieties which have found expression, the Bishops of this House, desiring to forward as much as in them lies such unity among all Christian people as is according to the will of God, hereby affirm their adherence to, and their determination to maintain, as applicable to the whole Anglican Communion, the principle laid down in the preface to the Ordinal, namely, that 'No man shall be accounted or taken to be a lawful Bishop, Priest, or Deacon in the Church of England, or suffered to execute any of the said functions, except he be called, tried, examined, and admitted hereunto according to the Form hereafter following' [that is, the Form contained in the Ordinal], 'or hath had formerly Episcopal consecration or ordination.'"

THE RECENT CONVENTION

THE One Hundred Thirtieth Convention of the Diocese of Pennsylvania assembled Tuesday, May 5th, at St. Luke and the Epiphany, [illegible]et below Spruce at ten o'clock [illegible] lander presiding. The usual Opening Service was celebrated. The sermon by the Bishop on Unity was unusually strong and created an impression that was felt through all the sessions, which though more protracted than usual were filled with interest from beginning to end. A spirit of loyalty to our Leader characterized all the proceedings. After the election of officers had been effected and the reports of Committees presented, the Convention got down to the regular business of the Meeting. Under the Bishop's gracious and at all times, courteous way, business proceeded rapidly. Matters that at times threatened serious complications, under his guiding hand, rapidly gave way to amicable and satisfactory solution in the earnest, conscientious desire to promote at every stage the best welfare of the Church. In this spirit the able report of the Committee on Proportionate Representation, Rev. D. M. Steele, Chairman, and the report of the Committee on Parochial Apportionment, Rev. G. G. Bartlett, Chairman, were after full and enlivening discussion very wisely disposed of.

In the consideration and final disposition of the report of the Committee on Missions the Convention loyally resolved to leave the matter in the hands of the Bishop, thus disposing of a seeming attempt on the part of a few members to curtail his power. The report of the Committee on Charters, after a full presentation of the difficulties besetting their labors, went over to the next Convention for final action.

A most interesting interlude in the regular proceedings was an address by Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts, presenting a plan for pensioning retired clergymen, their widows and children. The scheme, as outlined by the Bishop, has been carefully worked out by experienced insurance men and elicited very wide-spread interest among the clergy present and the lay delegates as well. Bishop Lawrence has a most [illegible]ing personality and had the rapt attention of his audeince in presenting his subject.

Another delightful aside to the general work of the Convention was the very remarkable Missionary Mass Meeting held in the Academy of Music on Wednesday Evening, the 6th, when a large and delighted audience had the rare privilege of listening to three noted Bishops—Rhinelander, Lloyd and Garland on the subject of Missions; their addresses were able and convincing. The address of the Rev. Arthur M. Sherman was also a splendid effort. But the gem of the evening was the address of George Wharton Pepper, Esq., who spoke with convincing logic and rare eloquence.

The Convention adjourned finally on Thursday morning after accomplishing an unusual amount of work for the advancement of God's Kingdom, and leaving behind it an universal spirit of loyal and brotherly affection among all the delegates whose good fortune it had been to attend the sessions.

THE BOARD OF MISSIONS

THE members of the Board of Missions evidently felt the importance of the meeting held in New York, May 14th. There was a record attendance. There has been widespread anxiety felt throughout the Church during the past four months, due to the steady decline of missionary offerings. The Treasurer's report brought new courage to all hearts. By a splendid rally since Easter the Church has regained the lost ground. While apparently we were $52,000 behind the record of May 1, 1913, we were actually $21,000 ahead of last year after allowing for a difference of three weeks in the date of Easter. But then we must remember that the appropriations this year were $70,000 in excess of last year.

In making the appropriations for the coming year the Board was very conservative. This was due not only to the present deficit in the treasury but to the general state of the country. A severe cut of $14,000 was made in the appropriation for central expenses. This made possible a net decrease in the total appropriation of $2,908. The apportionment therefore remains $1,308,000 for the coming year.

This information will cause heart searching on the part of all loyal churchmen. It means the Church armies are marking time when they should be going steadily forward.

THE APPORTIONMENT

The current fiscal year for the purposes of the General Missionary Apportionment begins September 1st, 1913. Our apportionment is $1440.36.

Our offerings applicable to the apportionment since that date, including generous amounts contributed by the Women's Auxiliary and the Church School, aggregate the sum of.....$1,046.39

The envelope contributions for Missions during the first three Sundays in May (not yet forwarded) amounted to 129.85

Making a total of $1,176.24

The balance, therefore, to be raised for this purpose before September 1st is $264.12. This we can easily do if everyone keeps his or her duplex envelopes paid up.

Any pledged person who is to be away any Sundays during July or August, will aid the missionary cause by putting in his contribution for those Sundays not later than the first Sunday in August.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild was held in the Parish House May 12th, at 3 P. M., with thirty-four members present. In the absence of the President the Vice President Mrs. Cline presided.

Reports of Officers and Chairmen of Committees were read and accepted.

Election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Miss Adele Bayard; Vice President, Mrs. T. S. Cline; Secretary, Mrs. E. W. Jenkins; Treasurer, Mrs. A. L. E. Crouter; Treasurer of United Offering, Mrs. R. H. North. The members of the Executive Committee were re-elected, the one vacancy being filled by Mrs. John Burton.

The following preamble and resolutions were offered and adopted:

Whereas Mrs. Ralph H. North has for three years, been at the head of the "Woman's Auxiliary and Guild of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, first as Vice President under the Rector, and later as President, and

Whereas because of her appointment by the Bishop as "Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering," she is obliged to decline a re-election as President of our Parish Branch of the Auxiliary,

Resolved, That we the members of the Auxiliary and Guild, do hereby express our high appreciation of Mrs. North's kindly, generous, and most efficient service, as our presiding officer, and,

Resolved, That while we deeply regret, that she can no longer inspire our efforts, and direct our activities, we rejoice in the larger field of opportunity, entrusted to her care, and pledge to her our loyal support, our love, and our prayers in the discharge of her duties as "Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering."

It is with profound sorrow, that we, the members of the Executive Committee, of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, place on our minutes, the record of the death of our late Secretary, Caroline M. Breed.

In the short time, she has filled that position, she had endeared herself to us all; always ready to help the work of the Guild in every way. Just as we learned, what a treasure we had in her, God called her to Himself.

May she rest in peace.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee held May 20th, Miss Bayard presented her resignation which was accepted with regret.

In accordance with [illegible] vacancy will be filled [illegible] meetmg in October.

IN MEMORIAM

ON Sunday evening, May 3rd, the Rector asked the members of the congregation to attend a special celebration of the Holy Communion early the following morning to pray for the recovery of Mrs. Caroline Martin Breed, then dangerously ill. Just as the service was about to begin word was received that Mrs. Breed had passed to her rest.

On Wednesday morning, May 6th a requiem Eucharist was celebrated. The Burial Office was read in church at ten o'clock. The interment was at Laurel Hill Cemetery.

In the death of Mrs. Breed the parish sustains a great loss. Mrs. Breed loved the church and served it generously and skillfully. Her cheerfulness was unfailing. She is sorely missed by all who knew her. But she is still ours in the Communion of Saints.

"O blest communion fellowship divine!
We feebly struggle, they in glory shine;
Yet all are one in Thee, for all are Thine.
Alleluia."

To the Rev. Dr. Breed, who has so often ministered at the altar of Grace Church we extend our sincere and loving sympathy.

JUNIOR AUXILIARY

A most enjoyable entertainment by the "Juniors" was given just too late in the month to be reported in our last issue. Practically the entire membership appeared in a very happily arranged program of tableaux. At intervals vocal and instrumental music added materially to the enjoyment of the occasion.

A silver offering was made and cake and ice cream were on sale.

"The Juniors realized $23.32 from the entertainment, over and above their expenses, so they have been able to forward $75.00 to Missions to count on the Parish Apportionment. This, with a change in officers, owing to resignations of two members who leave for college next winter, closes the work of the 'Juniors' for the season."

M. M. G.

It was with great gratification, that all those interested in the Mission Study Class conducted by Mrs. Ralph L. Hays, heard of the pleasing result of the examination on the "Junior Book Forward March." Miss Josephine M. Murphey won the first prize. It was a close contest and considering the fact that the girls had no books, the lessons being oral and the pupils taking notes, all the more honor to the winner. The prize was a five dollar gold piece, the understanding being of course, that it should be given to Missions and needless to say it has already been designated to China!

THE UNITED OFFERING

THE semi-annual service for the presentation of the United Offering was held on Thursday morning, April 30th. The following account is taken from "The Evening Bulletin" of that date, and will be of interest:

"The sum of $7,755.44 was announced by Bishop Rhinelander, as the united offering of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, Diocese of Pennsylvania, which was formally presented by the treasurers at an impressive service in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Saviour, Thirty-eighth street, above Chestnut street, this morning.

This sum represents the offerings for six months since the holding of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in New York last October. The united offering is turned over to the Board of Missions every three years—on the eve of the General Convention.

To the money presented today will be added the subsequent semi-annual offerings until the fall of 1916, when the whole will be united with similar offerings from dioceses all over the country.

The offering today was about $2,000 greater than that for the corresponding six months of the last triennial term."

It is noteworthy that the offering from Grace Church, Mount Airy for the year ending April 30th, 1914, was $435.92.

PRAYER AND ENTHUSIASM

We are indebted to the Parish Intelligence, published by the Parish of the Holy Apostles, Philadelphia, for the following:

"This is the rallying-cry suggested by Mrs. Ralph North, the Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering, in her address at the meeting held in the Guild Room, Wednesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary. Mrs. North is an easy and pleasing speaker, and for nearly an hour told of the work of those women who have so deeply at heart the missions of the Church. She told of the possibilities, if all would help, laying stress upon the opportunities afforded to every woman to take part.

She spoke of the offering being 'a great thank-offering of the women; a thankful-prayerful, loving gift of those who cannot go, to the women workers who can go. It is a gift of substitution.' She told of the inspiring service of presentation at the last convention in New York. Two incidents were impressive, an individual check of $5000, and a slip of paper with this quotation: 'Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have give I thee.' It developed subsequently that it was [illegible] a Miss Singleton, who [illegible] self to the cause of missions.

Mrs. North also said that there is no work in the Church so 'uniting' as the United Offering. It is the one object in which every woman is interested, and every woman should have the opportunity to engage in it."

CHURCH SCHOOL NOTES

At a meeting of the teachers and officers held Monday evening, May 18th, it was voted that the school should close for the summer vacation June 28th and reopen on September 13th.

On Friday evening, May 1st, the School Hall was filled with a merry crowd assembled for the entertainment postponed from Easter week. Expectation ran high and was not disappointed. Mr. Oscar M. Thomson, of Germantown, who generously gave us this treat, proved a master of clever tricks and cleverer explanations of them and well deserved the warm appreciation he received.

Ascension Day was marked for the school by a special service at five o'clock in the afternoon. The address by the Rector gave the scholars a vivid picture of the meaning of the day. At its close the following members of the school were presented with Bibles in recognition of their missionary efforts in bringing new pupils into the school: Casper Bartle, John G. McGuire, Frank Fortescue and Marion Haldeman.

A Lawn Party for the Kindergarten has been planned for Saturday afternoon, June 6th, from two to five. A large attendance is hoped for.

KINDERGARTEN

THE Kindergarten Class has an enrollment up to date of forty-five little ones.

It is intended to continue the classes throughout the Summer on Sunday mornings at 9.30.

The Committee repeats its appeal to all within the Parish to aid them in locating more children for the class. Names and addresses sent to Mrs. R. N. Hall, Kindergarten Teacher or to the Rector, will be recorded and parents duly notified of time of Coach call.

The Committee wants assistants for the Kindergarten Teacher for the Summer months. Those who will volunteer, kindly notify Mrs. R. N. Hall, 31 Gowen Ave., Mt. Airy.

It is earnestly hoped the interest displayed regarding the pledges for each Sunday or periodically for the support of the Church and Missions may be kept alive.

Envelopes for pledges or information regarding pews and sittings may be had by addressing Mr. James Wilson Bayard, Accounting Warden, 105 E. Johnson St., Germantown.

THE DUPLEX ENVELOPE SYSTEM

IF the working of the Duplex Envelope System in this parish for the first five weeks is a fair test of its effect, we have great reason to hope that it will go far to solve the difficulties of our Church finances.

The total weekly pledges were $56.25 for parish support and $32.50 for missions. The total sums pledged for the five weeks were, therefore, $281.25, and $162.50 respectively. The amounts actually received (eliminating advance payments) during this period were $257.65 for parish expenses and $140.15 for Missions. The deficiency is but little more than ten per cent. of the total amount pledged.

Experience suggests one or two warnings:

(1) Please use the right envelope. The envelopes were all in regular order, except that for Good Friday, when mailed to you.

(2) If you know in advance you will be away on any Sunday deposit your envelope for that Sunday before-hand so that the regular parish services may be maintained during your absence.

THE COMMUNICANTS GUILD

THE Communicants Guild is an organization composed of all those who have been presented for Confirmation by the present Rector. On the Feast of St. Mark a special service was held for the Guild and the Confirmation candidates. The Rector made an address on Perseverance. There will be a meeting of the Guild on Friday June 5th, at 7.30, when the new members confirmed on Whitsunday will be received and plans for future work developed.

Following this meeting there will be a service of preparation for the corporate Communion of the Guild on Trinity Sunday at 7.30.

This will be the anniversary of the Confirmation of last year's class and the first Communion for this year's class.

SETTING APART OF DEACONESS

MISS Lillian N. Kaighn was set apart as Deaconess in Grace Church on Saturday, May 23d.

The preacher was the Rev. James DeWolf Perry, D. D. The Bishop of Pennsylvania was celebrant, the Rev. G. Herbert Dennison, Gospeller and the Rector of Grace Church, Epistoler.

The members of the Church Training and Deaconess House and the representatives of the Midnight Mission attended the service in a body.

The offering was devoted to the Deaconess Retiring Fund.

Deaconess Kaighn has the good wishes of the Parish as she enters upon her duties as an official Church worker.

CONFIRMATION

The annual Episcopal visitation to Grace Church will take place on the evening of Whitsunday, May 31st, at eight o'clock.

The Bishop Suffragan will administer the rite of Confirmation to thirty candidates.

At half after twelve the same day there will be a public Baptism "of those of riper years."

DEDICATION OF CAMP MORRELL

ON Saturday, May 9th, 1914, Troop "67" of Grace Church, "Boy Scouts of America" went to Torresdale. The trip up the river was much enjoyed, in spite of no sunshine. At about 4.15 we landed in a shower and marched for half a mile or more, along the road, attracting much attention. At a certain bridge we were to run Scout's Pace and the troop showing greatest skill was to receive a prize. Upon arriving at the race track in sight of the cabin, we passed the reviewing stand. On the stand beside the Scout officials was General Edward de V. Morrell, the benefactor, who gave the camp. He was a large, fine looking, middle-aged army man wearing a Scout suit. The Scouts were kept marching and counter-marching about the camp for two hours, until every boy was hollow, Oh! how hollow! At a word, the whole army of over 950 Boy Scouts broke ranks and charged across the race track and fell upon the food General Morrell had given them. In his speech he gave them the camp and its surrounding woods for their use. Mr. Fox accepted the camp on behalf of the Boy Scouts as Director Porter could not be present.

Fifteen hundred bananas, 1200 blocks of ice cream, 800 pounds of cake, 280 quarts of cocoa and 200 gallons of lemonade melted away.

Here is part of the General's speech:

"The Boy Scout of today is not simply the man of tomorrow! He is the man of today. If you live up to the principles laid down in your manual you'll not be only men today, but you'll be men all the years of your life. We'll need all of those principles, and more, in this country in the days to come. Of course, the Boy Scout is not supposed to have anything to do with military matters, but at the same time he learns from this organization to appreciate the principles for which his country stands."

After this, led by Mr. J. W. Patton, three cheers were given for Gen. Morrell.

It was a great day for the Scouts, 42 troops, khaki clad were there, each with its scoutmaster.

After "eats" the long line of Scouts made its way down to the cabin to see the flag-raising. A blue pennant with "Camp Morrell" was run up, surmounted by the Stars and Stripes. When they reached the top, every scout saluted, and the band struck up the "Star Spangled Banner."

Then the Scouts assembled around the lighted camp-fire. Here it was announced that Troop 131 had won the Scout's Pace prize and received a troop flag with "first prize" embroidered on it. Here it was also announced that the youngest troop in the city, our own "67" had won second, for which we received a troop flag with "second prize" on it. It was announced that no troop had ever before captured a prize in the first month of its existence.

We marched three miles back to the boat with glaring red torches and at 8.00 P. M. started for home. The cool night air was refreshing after our joyous day, and we all felt thoroughly happy. Troop "67" marched up Chestnut Street to the Reading Terminal and boarded a train for home. It was a sleepy bunch of Scouts that turned in that night. G. H.

NOTES

FOR several years, what has been known as a Summer School for Sunday School workers, and interested church people, has been conducted in South Bethlehem.

This year the date is June 29 to July 3. Notable speakers from among clergy and laity serve to make it an occasion long to be remembered.

Note the date and plan your vacation period accordingly.

Our readers are requested to notify us of change of address, even if but temporary, that they may receive the "Parish News" regularly during the summer months.

IF the Rector had not read his paper on Comprehensive Churchmanship recently published in the Churchman before the Clerical Brotherhood some months ago, we should have thought it based upon the Bishop of Oxford's recent open letter, so identical is the attitude toward the various elements of churchmanship.

Mr. Cline says: "In all our thought regarding the Reunion of Christendom let us bear in mind that in religion there are three great essential elements which, however contradictory they may seem, are nevertheless equally vital and necessary. These three elements are the Authoritative, the Rational and the Emotional. They are the three sides of the triangle of religion. The moment any one of them is sacrificed to the interests of the others, religion loses its symmetry and strength." He maintains that this follows from the very nature of God and man and tries his thesis out in experience and history.

In applying this theory to the Anglican Church, Mr. Cline shows how the three elements correspond to the three tendencies known as the high church, broad church and low church and claims that the strength of the Church lies in her comprehensiveness. He says "Many grow panicky as these various tendencies assert themselves—the evangelical, the ecclesiastical, the rationalistic. These forces do seem to be mutually antagonistic, oftentimes to threaten mutual destruction but we must remember that they are all essential elements in our holy religion. Outsiders seem to think the Church will be rent asunder by these contending forces but the glory of the Church lies in the fact that these three great elements are all present in their native vigor. This is the reason why the Anglican Communion finds herself in the providence of God in a central position regarding the great work of the reunion of Christendom."

In like manner, Bishop Gore takes cognizance of three movements in the Church which appear to be facing away from one another with "a markedly disruptive tendency." He calls upon all churchmen, especially the clergy to undertake the "painful duty of thinking" in order that no one of these tendencies should jeopardize the true balance of religion. He speaks of the Church as "a comprehensive body, which can tolerate much difference of opinion and practice amongst its members because at the basis bound strongly together by principles held in common."

He says the common principles of the Church are imperilled in three directions—first by the tendency of the liberal movement "which has resulted in what I think is an inordinate claim for license of opinion among our clergy threatening most fundamentally our basis of faith," secondly by the evangelical movement, especially strong in the mission field, "towards fellowship among protestants, which has had its outcome in proposals which [illegible] our Catholic basis of [illegible]" and lastly by the tendency of the extremer members of the Catholic movement which in its turn seems to ignore the appeal to antiquity and scripture as restricting the dogmatic authority of the church and to leave us without any reasonable basis for resistance to the claims of the Roman Church."

These two writings both recognize the three great tendencies—the Authoritative, the Rational, the Evangelical to have their essential value within the church—and point out the danger of exaggerating one at the expense of the others. In the light of recent church history nothing is more needed than this doctrine of comprehensive churchmanship. It would put an end to our partisan intolerance. It would give scope for the exercise of the "scientific temper" and "Christian sympathy" without surrendering any of the fundamentals of Faith and Practice.

Comprehensive Churchmanship is the need in the universal church, in the Diocese of Pennsylvania, in Grace Church and in every individual Christian.

The Grace Church Parish News

Published by Grace Church, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia

VOLUME X — JULY, 1914 — NUMBER 7

THE RECTOR'S LETTER

AS we review the past season's work, there are not lacking causes for optimism and hope. The strong attendance at the Church services, the successful introduction of the duplex envelope system, the fine record of the Church School, the splendid Confirmation Class, are evident signs of health and progress. But there is something deeper that many are conscious of—the fact that the various elements in the Parish are being knit together more closely.

A professor in a New England College recently wrote as follows: "It is a fine thing that students are being brought here in increasing numbers. It is a fine thing that money has already been secured and that much needed buildings, equipment and more money are in prospect. But it is better still and much more fundamental that those who owe allegiance to the College are learning to stand in closer ranks, while they devote time and energy to the accomplishment of such results, sacrificing private interests when necessary and finding their chief compensation in the consciousness of good work well done for the college of their hearts affection."

We have made good beginnings along several lines this year, but they are only beginnings. In order to carry them through to successful issue we shall have to move in closer ranks during the coming season. Here is need for the "tactics of the Spirit."

Loyally Yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

SOCIAL SERVICE

OUR Lord said: "I am among you as he that serveth." That same spirit must ever characterize the Church which bears His name. The Church finds her true life in losing it. She must always labor disinterestedly, for the good of the Community.

The need for Social service is more evident in the slums than in the suburbs. But that need exists in Mount Airy for those who take pains to seek it. The recent Kindergarten Canvass has brought to light opportunities for neighborliness which we did not before realize. In order to meet these present needs and to be prepared for future developments a Social Service Committee has been organized. Mrs. Geo. Parkman has been appointed Chairman and Miss Georgia Bender, Secretary-Treasurer. The committee will study to adopt the most enlightened methods of social work. Indiscriminate giving will be carefully avoided. There will be thorough co-operation with the secular agencies already at work. Full advantage will be taken of the expert knowledge and skill of trained social workers. Wherever possible the emphasis will be upon preventive work, rather than temporary relief. This will eventually lead the committee into new and larger fields of effort. Already arrangements are being made with the Child Federation for some educational work. Meanwhile we are beginning in a very simple way to help as best we know how some pressing cases of need. We want to rally all who are already awakened to the importance of social service and set them to work. There is a lot to be done—both in the way of investigation and friendly visiting. It is a very practical sort of Church work. Something worth while is sure to be accomplished if we follow our cue. One good deed opens the way for another.

Any who are interested are requested to communicate with the Secretary, Miss Georgia Bender, 224 East Mount Airy Ave., who will gladly keep them informed regarding meetings and plans.

WHITSUNDAY

AMONG the special features which rendered Whitsunday memorable were the following: the preparation service on the Vigil; the Children's Service with an address on the Fire of God—symbolized by the altar lights; the Litany of the Holy Ghost, sung in procession before the late celebration; the Baptism of adults in keeping with the ancient custom at such seasons; the Bishop's visitation and the solemn and beautiful service of Laying on of Hands. There was a peculiar fitness in all these things. Whitsunday, or White-Sunday, took its name from the white robes or "chrisms" of the newly baptized. This fact gave added significance to the white hangings and veils of the Confirmation service in the evening.

The Accounting Warden advises that by or before July 1st, 1914, he will be in funds to meet the apportionment of Grace Church Parish, Mt. Airy—$1440.36.

As recently stated from the Chancel; Grace Church should not stop at this figure for two reasons. First, it is less by $200.00 than we gave last year and second, the whole Church is making a splendid effort just now to rally to the support of the Missionary work of the Church, and we must have our full share in it. The need was never more urgent. We have until September 1st.

THE COMMUNICANTS' GUILD

At the meeting of the Communicants Guild on the Friday of Whitsun-week, thirty new members who were confirmed on Whitsunday were admitted as members.

Words of welcome were spoken by the President, Mr. A. Clarence Manning and the Rector. A committee was appointed to arrange for a gift to the Church on the occasion of the Dedication Festival next November.

It was voted to hold regular monthly meetings of the Guild, beginning next October.

The meeting adjourned to meet in the Church for a service of preparation for the Corporate Communion on Trinity Sunday. The former members of the Guild provided the altar flowers as a tribute to those who were making their first Communion that Sunday morning.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY—BRANCH No. 2

A special meeting of Branch No 2 was called by the Rector, for Thursday, June 18, at ten o'clock. Acting on Mr. Cline's recommendation it was decided to merge the two Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary into one.

THE OBSERVER

"What do you think," said a shocked parishoner, "I saw the boys and girls bowing the knee to the Rector after service today." But when she was told that the children had learned to courtesy at dancing school she was much relieved.

"I was thrilled," said a gentleman who visited the Boy Scout camp at Camp Hill, "to see the serious manner in which the boys stood at salute when the colors were raised or lowered." Would he be equally thrilled to see the same boys salute the altar with reverently bowed head?

One of the speakers at the Missionary Mass Meeting at the Academy of Music recently, struck a vibrant note that will ring in the ears of his hearers for many a day. Speaking in the high confidence of one who sees a Vision thro' faith, he said "What we all need is to be converted in order to bring to pass the great things needed by the Church in this diocese. A conversion means the biggest kind of a revolution in lines of thought and action."

Do you suppose that there were militant suffragettes in the Psalmists' time? The following words in Sundays Psalter were a striking description of present day militancy in England:

"Thine adversaries roar in the midst of thy congregations and set up their banners for tokens.

They break down all the carved work thereof with axes and hammers. They have set fire upon thy holy places and have defiled the dwelling place of thy Name, even unto the ground.

Yea they said in their hearts, Let us make havoc of them altogether.

O God how long shall the adversary do this dishonor?"

The public press makes recent mention of the fact that Boy Scouts found a three year old in the woods near Waterbury, Conn., after the police had given up the search.

If in trouble call on Troop 67, Mount Airy.

NOTES

Please send us your Summer address that the Parish News may reach you each month.

The Rector attended the Albany Cathedral Summer School for the Clergy for a week during the past month.

Some one suggested as a memorial gift to the Church, a brass lamp over the lecturn to correspond with the handsome one over the pulpit.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew have appointed a Committee to consider the plan of an organized Bible Class for young men to begin in the Fall.

The women of the Auxiliary and Guild recently sent to Mrs. Ralph H. North a handsome Silver Loving Cup in token of their affectionate regard for her, and in appreciation of her work as President of the Guild.

Laymen of the Church numbering perhaps one thousand, will appear in Atlanta, October 14-18, for conference and inspiration. This is the annual Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

All men and boys, whether members or not are invited to attend.

A number of Communicants of other Parishes who have recently moved to Mt. Airy have expressed their intention of sending for letters of transfer. Now is the time to attend to this important matter, so that no time will be lost in the Fall in getting to feel at home and enlisting in the active work of the Parish.

The Rector has been appointed a member of the Diocesan Board of Religious Education. Provision for such a Board was made by Canon at the recent Diocesan Convention. In this way the work of Religious Education in the Diocese of Pennsylvania will become properly affiliated with that of the Province and General Convention.

The Rector and Superintendent are investigating the methods used in St. John's Church School in Jersey City Heights. The School has had marked success—building up the smallest parish in Jersey City until it is now the largest in New Jersey. Both Mr. Meehan and Mr. Cline have visited this School during its Sunday sessions and report new ideas for our future consideration.

The Summer Schedule of services will be found on the front page. It merits careful study. The morning service is advanced from eleven o'clock to half past ten. The evening service is at five. The Church School (except the Primary and Kindergarten) will close June 28th and re-open September 13th. The Rector invites all children who care to do so to meet him Sunday mornings at 10.

The Church Periodical Club of Grace Church, Mount Airy, has thirty-two members sending fifty-eight periodicals regularly. This year 477 books, religious and secular, were sent away, 1594 old magazines, 250 picture cards and six barrels of periodicals. $19.00 has been contributed. It is hoped that the donors will continue to send their magazines regularly during the Summer, and that there will be a large accumulation of reading matter to be sent away in the Fall.

A PART OF THE KINDERGARTEN CLASS ARRIVING IN COACHES

The Kindergarten Circle will form every Sunday morning throughout the Summer. Parents who would like the Coach to call for their children Sunday mornings will please notify Mrs. R. N. Hall, 31 Gowen Ave.

CHILDREN'S LETTER

ONCE upon a time there was a venerable man with kindly face and snow white hair. He was very aged, but he was wiser than he was aged and holier than he was wise. And yet this great and good man was accustomed to amuse himself with a pet partridge.

One day a huntsman saw him playing with his beloved bird and said: "How can a man of your ability spend his time so idly?" The old man did not answer his question but glancing at the huntsmans side he said "I see you do not carry your bow always bent." "No," he replied, "it would soon lose its spring." "Just so with my mind," said the old philosopher. And who do you suppose that sage was? Well if the old story is true, it was St. John who was then the only one left of the twelve Apostles whom our Lord chose to be the founders of our Church.

Now I suppose that is the reason for vacations—we can't keep our bows forever bent—can we? Like other Schools, the Church School (except the Primary and Kindergarten) will close during July and August.

But I can't stand it not to see you Sundays all Summer, so I am going to ask all who care to come, to meet me Sunday mornings at ten o'clock. It will not be a service—except the first Sunday in the month when we shall read a short form of Matin's together. Nor will it be like school —Oh no, just a pleasant informal meeting, perhaps out under the trees, perhaps in the Church. There will be stories and conversations and chances to get better acquainted.

We have had a good year in the Church School haven't we? Your fathers and mothers have been telling me how you have enjoyed it. I am awfully glad. I have enjoyed it too—some. Not so much as you because I wasn't admitted into any class. So, I want to see something of you at close range this Summer. Oh of course I shall see you in Church every Sunday. Or perhaps you are going to the seashore or mountains. Wherever you go my good wishes and prayers will follow you.

Let us not forget one another or the Church we love. Faithfully yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

BOY SCOUTS IN CAMP

MEMORIAL Day, 1914, will be long remembered in the minds of the members of Troop 67, as with it came our first real camping experience.

Mr. John R. Fell, of Camp Hill near Fort Washington, placed his estate at the disposal of the Boy Scouts of Philadelphia, and 1200 strong, we assembled there on Friday, May 29th. As we filed into the beautiful valley where the camp was situated one almost felt as if one was a member of a marauding party of Doones bent on a pillaging expedition, the scenery being so picturesque and romantic.

As the various troops marched in, they were quickly assigned camp sites, the whole field being divided regularly into streets, etc. Our troop was assigned to the far end of camp, and when we reached there we were given bundles of tents and poles with orders to erect them in regular fashion. The writer's heart failed him when he looked into the faces of these gently nurtured lads for he saw very plainly a storm was coming, and as to erecting a tent without outside assistance, it seemed impossible. But the boys were equal to the occasion, and in one hour's time our own tents were up in good shape, and, as if by magic, the whole hillside was laid out in regular order and camp fires were twinkling on all sides.

As the dusk of evening stole over us the really remarkable part of Boy-Scout life became apparent. At 9.30 taps was blown and as it was sweetly wafted across the fields we felt as if we were really catching the true patriotism of Memorial Day. But the interesting feature was, that in one minute's time after the bugle call every boy was in his tent and a stillness stole over all that was amazing when one remembered there were 1200 boys of all sorts and conditions, and no doubt the majority like our own, had never slept out-of-doors before and could hardly be expected to sleep. This is merely one of a great many incidents which happened during our stay which made a deep impression on one who was observant.

As reveille was sounded in the morning we went through a few calisthenics to remove stiffness, then away to the brook for the morning ablutions. All rations were doled out at headquarters and two scouts were assigned from each troop to report there and get supplies. Our scouts brought back large quantities of bacon, eggs, oatmeal, coffee, and bucketfuls of the most delicious milk. Again the situation appeared hopeless. Twenty-five scouts with ravenous appetites and nothing but a wood fire and raw food! But by this time our boys had begun to be infected with the self-reliance of the boys around them, and in short order, delicious oatmeal (it must have been, as the older scouts did not even get a taste, there being such a demand for it,) to say nothing of coffee, boiled eggs and fried bacon, were eaten under conditions which made home breakfasts seem quite mediocre. And here again the ideals of the boys became apparent. The older boys refused to have any food until the younger scouts were fully served, and it was not merely idle self-sacrifice either, as they served the younger boys so liberally very often, that they found themselves short. But there was an unlimited supply of delicious milk and bread which was our mainstay.

I do not mean to imply that there was any meagreness in the supply of food, but when the heads had to divide among 1200, sometimes a miscalculation would occur. But the one marked feature of the whole camp was the self-sacrifice of the older boys and the wonderful self-reliance of all.

Saturday we spent in swimming and recreations generally, and numbers of incidents could be related showing that our own boys were fast catching the ideals which the leaders of the movement are trying to place before them.

Saturday night tents were struck with the same precision with which they were erected and we marched to the station tired but happy. As we had to wait an hour for our train the older scouts were permitted to hike home, while the younger ones came by rail.

All the troop are now looking forward eagerly to the summer camp at Treasure Island on the Delaware, 25 miles above Trenton. The Scoutmasters have considered this problem seriously, as the responsibility of taking our boys away for a week or more is not a matter to be regarded lightly. But after we observed the efficient way Camp Hill was conducted, the wonderful care that was taken to have everything as it should be, and the spirit of courtesy and manliness which was so strikingly apparent on all sides, it seemed a most desirable thing to permit the boys to go for a longer time. We feel positive that the lessons they learn sink into their moral fibre and help weave a structure that will give them stamina to withstand the more trying periods of life a little later when they must leave the shelter of their homes and enter the activities of college and business life.

A number of the parents visited the boys in the recent camp. Those endeavoring to guide the boys in their present activities, would be glad to have any one in doubt as to the wisdom of the Treasure Island camp, call upon these parents, and ascertain the impression received by their visit.

RENTAL OF PEWS AND SITTINGS

All those desiring pews or sittings may apply to Mr. James Wilson Bayard, Accounting Warden, or communicate with him at 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

DUPLEX ENVELOPE SYSTEM FOR MISSIONS AND CHURCH SUPPORT

All members of the Parish are urged to avail themselves of the Duplex Envelope System as a regular method of contributing toward Missions and Church support. For pledge cards and envelopes, address the Accounting Warden.

The result of the modern methods of Church Finance are illustrated in the following experience of St. David's Parish, Portland, Oregon. The every-member canvass and weekly offering has changed a yearly anxiety into a monthly privilege, having perceptibly increased ability to give and has in no wise hindered parochial activities but on the contrary has stimulated them. Since introduction of the plan, city taxes are discontinued and the Rector's salary has been increased by 25 per cent.

THE RECTOR'S LETTER

"IN quietness and in confidence shall be your strength." (Isa. 30:15)

To all who are away from home seeking rest and refreshment the Feast of the Transfiguration brings this message. In your groves and high places far away from the distractions of the world seek the silence of God's presence. Mere physical silence, so coveted by the sensitive, is but the empty shell of silence and its reverberations are those of an imaginary sea. Under an outward appearance of calm the soul may be restless with unsatisfied desire. Beneath the semblance of stillness the mind may be distracted by clamoring thoughts and violent emotions. There is also the silence of inertia in the unawakened soul. But the golden silence of which I speak is the soul's loving and obedient attention to the still small voice of God. From such communion is born the inner confidence which makes for strength of character.

Wherever you may be on August sixth observe the Feast of the Transfiguration without fail. If within range of an altar make your communion and be assured you will be remembered at the home altar in Grace Church. If remote from the Church's ministrations at least make a meditation. (Of course you have your Prayer Book with you.) Read in the Gospel how our Lord took a few chosen friends and went for a mountain climb. There upon the summit in the silence He prayed. The fashion of his countenance was altered. His raiment was white and glistering. Heaven revealed its glory. Earth faded away. No wonder those men were loth to go down the hill that night. That experience gave them abiding confidence. Years after, as the Epistle tells us, St. Peter referred to it as the basis of his unshaken faith. "For we have not followed cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eyewitnesses of his majesty. For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And this voice which came from heaven we heard when we were with him in the holy mount."

Use your vacation to the same worthy end. By communion with God gain that inner poise and serenity which make for strength. Forget the noise and contention of the world you left behind. Come back to us with clearer vision, steadier faith, more resolute purpose. We need your help in the quest of "quietness and confidence."

> "O God, who on the mount didst reveal to chosen witnesses thine only-begotten Son wonderfully transfigured, in raiment white and glistering; Mercifully grant that we, being delivered from the disquietude of this world, may be permitted to behold the King in his beauty, who with thee O Father, and thee, O Holy Ghost, liveth and reigneth, one God, world without end. Amen.

Faithfully Yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

THE EASTERN CHURCH

WHEN we think of Christian Unity let us be truly comprehensive. How often we hear persons talking about reunion—who have never gotten beyond the idea of the merging of the Protestant Sects. The very fact that our Bishop is a member of a Deputation to the Churches of Europe—both Catholic and Protestant ought to enlarge our horizon.

Let us follow him in our thought and prayers as he strives to prepare the way for the coming Conference on Faith and Order.

Starting from London early in September, the Deputation will visit Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland arriving in St. Petersburg about the 19th of the month.

Later they will take their journey through Germany, Austria, Hungary, Servia, Roumania and Bulgaria. They expect to be in Constantinople about the middle of October. Returning through Syria and Egypt they will continue their work in Italy and France.

Jerusalem will be reached the last of October and Rome not until December. Bishop Rhinelander returns home the last of October and Bishop Brewster of Connecticut takes his place.

When Bishop Rhinelander visits Mt. Airy, as he has promised to do during our Dedication Festival the first week in November, he will be fresh from these interesting and important interviews with the heads of the various branches of the Church Universal.

IT would be appropriate while our Diocesan is extending to Archbishop Platon, in St. Petersburg, an invitation to participate in the Conference on Faith and Order, for us to inform ourselves more regarding the Russian Church.

The report of Father Frere, of the Community of the Resurrection, England, regarding his visit to Russia on the invitation of eminent Russian Churchmen, as published in the July 4th issue of The Living Church is appropos.

Speaking of our extraordinary ignorance of the history, customs, and beliefs of the Russian Church he said: "A knowledge of the Churches of the East would be a valuable corrective to loose ideas about home reunion, for no reunion could be according to the mind of Christ which left out of account the Orthodox Eastern Church."

We quote The Living Church:

Father Frere first gave his impressions of domestic life amongst Russian parochial clergy. It was simple, wholesome, and pious. The simplicity in Russian clerical families was quite suitable as the meeting point of people much more wealthy, and formed a link with those much poorer. There was not that "chasm" between the vicarage and the village often to be found in England. The people among whom he stayed were able to give him much information about the complicated services of the Church; "they had it at their fingers' ends, and explained with real enthusiasm and spiritual joy." As to the services themselves, one could never see or learn enough. He could think of nothing better to express his own feelings about them than that passage in the Confessions of St. Augustine "in which the Saint breaks out into exclamations of the joy and delight of hearing the services, in the days of his early conversion, in St. Ambrose's Church in Milan." The feeling of the tremendous delight and uplift of the services increased as one got accustomed to them. "The whole spirit and essence of the worship had, it seemed, permeated the Russian mind, and produced that extraordinarily high temper of piety which characterized the people." His experience in Russia went to show that the externals of religious worship saved one from being "sentimental and emotional."

To those who care to read further along these lines we commend the book entitled The Mother of all the Churches.

SOCIAL SERVICE

ONE only needs to scan the headings in the instructive report of the Social Service Commission at the General Convention of 1913 to realize that Social Service Committees are being recognized as a vital need in church life and that already vast fields of usefulness are being opened whereby the Church may minister to those "other sheep" who have been stultified and degraded by lack of opportunity, employment, health and all else that goes to make strong souls and bodies.

Grace Church is among the earliest in the Diocese of Pennsylvania to have organized a Social Service Committee.

In June the Rector invited several persons who might be interested in such an undertaking to discuss the project at the Rectory. The result has been that a Social Service Committee is a reality in Grace Church, Mt. Airy, with a program which is comprehensive and adaptable to local needs. There have been two general meetings and the response shows that there are those in the Parish who have the "heart" for Social Service and that already the subject has been well grasped.

A greater matter for congratulation is the fact that the Rector understands Social Service not only from the ethical and economic point of view but from real practical experience; so the outlook for efficiency of this Committee is extremely promising.

THERE is a vast amount of charitable effort in Germantown and its vicinity. This locality has kept the Poor Board, which was abolished by the city proper years ago, and there are two hospitals, an orphanage, day nursery, a relief agency with free dental and eye clinics, the State Tubercular Service, a charity organization, a reformatory for girls, a society working in the interests of children, and a Consumptive Home, several homes for the aged, and various other agencies allied with churches and organizations.

With such facilities for service at hand it seems as if the Visiting Committee would have an unusual opportunity for good, if from the first a very definite program is adopted. To this end the Committee has been visiting a few of these organizations seeking their cooperation and the result has been ready and enthusiastic.

Dr. Andrus and Dr. Ullom of Germantown and Dr. Fetterman of Mt. Airy have kindly agreed to be called upon for free services in cases of emergency. Visitors have been assigned and are in close touch with several needy families.

ON July 7 a very interesting and instructive address on "Social Service in the Church," was given before the Visiting Committee by the Rev. Mr. Little, General Secretary of the Society for Organizing Charity and it is planned to have from time to time speakers representing various interests to address this Committee.

A library of twenty-five volumes on "Social Service," has been started in the Guild Room—Miss M. E. Kaighn is the librarian. Persons wishing to use these books are requested to consult Miss Kaighn or the Rector so that a record may be kept of the books lent.

There will be great need for visitors. The meetings are held on Tuesdays at four o'clock in the Parish House. Anyone wishing to render such aid will please notify Mrs. George Parkman, 115 Allen Lane, Mt. Airy, Chairman. It would be of interest if the Chairman might know of any members of the Parish who are doing Social Service work elsewhere. She should be notified also of any families in distress to whom the members of this Committee may be of service. At present the chairman will be glad to hear from any who desire to secure a woman for days work.

"The Good Neighbor," by Miss Mary E. Richmond, and "Poverty," by Robert Hunter, are two illuminating and interesting books to read in beginning the work of Social Service.

A live Social Service Committee in a Western Parish has twenty laymen serving as volunteer probation officers under the Juvenile Court. Could there be a better opportunity for diocesan missionary work than to thus bring the influences of religion to juvenile offenders?

MISSIONS

THE following letter received a few days ago by the Rector is of general interest:

Last month it was our privilege to report an increase of over $8,000 in the offerings to the Apportionment from those of the previous year. Today it is our greater privilege to say that to July 1st the increase, reported a month ago, has grown to $26,883.65, viz:

From Parishes	$543,081.44
From Individuals	50,343.30
From the Sunday Schools	171,258.99
From the Woman's Auxiliary	84,991.30
From the Junior Auxiliary	15,848.25
Total	$865,523.28
To July 1st, 1913, they were	838,639.63
Increase	$26,883.65

Our financial year is drawing to its close, and but two months now remain in which to receive the balance of the gifts from the Church. No Apportionment letter will be issued in August, so this must be the last word.

It has been an anxious year for many and many a loyal soul throughout the land. Anxious, because their hearts are bound up in the advancement of the work, and their happiness depends upon its prosperity. Very few there are who can consider with equanimity the possibility of an increased deficit, already far too large, with the ultimate necessity of a partial curtailment of the work. Yet, these very thoughts have weighed down the hearts of the Members of the Board, and for them too, the year has been a most anxious one. All honour to the Missionaries themselves. Like us, they are human, and they must have heard of the Church's perplexity. But never a word has come from them, so far as we know. No thought of what might be their fate has been uttered, only the prayer has been made that they might receive greater understanding, and be given greater opportunity.

When we look back over the past decade and a half, we would be lost in wonderment at the amazing growth of the work, did we not remember Who it is that directs it. He once said, "I have compassion on the multitude," and behold, four thousand men, besides women and children, were filled with the seven loaves and a few little fishes. He also once said, "Feed my sheep." He did not say, the Sheep near by, nor the Sheep far away, but simply "My sheep." Has Christianity a greater responsibility, a greater privilege? For when the "Sheep" are fed, as fed they must and will be, then everybody's anxiety and fear and trouble will pass away. And all will then follow Him, and He will have compassion on the multitude.

GEORGE GORDON KING,
Treasurer

CHURCH WINDOWS

THE vestrymen, at their recent meeting, approved the idea of having a set scheme of subjects for the stained glass windows of the Church. This plan will prevent the placing of Memorial Windows haphazard and will ensure an appropriate and harmonious series of subjects. The tentative scheme as submitted provides for the presentation of the chief events of our Lord's life in chronological sequence around the Nave. The clerestory windows would be devoted to the Church Triumphant, Apostles, Saints and Martyrs.

This scheme has been examined by experts and is now being submitted to the Diocesan Commission on Church Building for their consideration. The final plan will be presented to the Vestry for their adoption in the Fall.

"Lord, how can man preach thy eternal word?
He is a brittle crazy glass:
Yet in thy Temple thou dost him afford
This glorious and transcendent place
To be a window, through thy grace.

But when thou dost anneal in glass thy story
Making thy life to shine within
The holy Preachers, then the light and glory
More reverend grows, and more doth win;
Which else shows waterish, bleak, and thin.

Doctrine and life, colours and light, in one
When they combine and mingle, bring
A strong regard and awe: but speech alone
Doth vanish like a flaring thing,
And in the ear, not conscience ring."

GEORGE HERBERT

CHURCH SCHOOL

SOME have been asking whether teachers as well as scholars will be promoted to higher grades in the Church School in the Fall. Attention has been called to the public school where the teachers remain stationary. It seems that the United States Commissioner of Education has some ideas on this subject. Referring to his annual report, recently published, an Editorial in the Living Church says:

"He takes the rather novel idea that it would conduce to the efficiency of a school if a teacher advanced with the child from grade to grade through at least three or four years of work. There would be the opportunity for much greater individual study, and a broader grasp upon teaching possibilities in connection with the particular children.

One remembers that in our Sunday School work our authorities have discussed this problem largely from the point of view of seeking to eradicate as an evil this very thing that differentiates the Sunday School from the day school. It may be that the Sunday School may yet be held up as a model for the attainment of the public school! The Commissioner speaks for this change at some length, and his arguments seem fairly conclusive."

THE work of the Church School in its first year has been very gratifying. Reports and statistics read favorably, and a spirit of enthusiasm and faith prevails.

However, under re-organization, and the difference which a graded system involves, there must be imperfections and lost opportunities.

Now is the time to consider where improvements can be made. Suggestions are in order, whether from officers, teachers, scholars, parents or the congregation at large. It is only when we get every point of view, we may attain to the best.

Please express your ideas to the Rector, Superintendent or Principal.

A number of the scholars are thoughtfully keeping in touch with their teachers frequently during the summer, by correspondence if not in person.

We are hoping for a much larger membership in the Graduate Department. Active interest on the part of adults is a great factor in holding younger ones who would otherwise feel themselves "too old" for Church School. This Department should have at least one hundred enrolled in Bible and other classes next season. Resolve to be a member.

The Church School will strive to outgrow its quarters in 1915.

BETHLEHEM SUMMER SCHOOL

THE Summer School of Religious Education of the Third Department was held at South Bethlehem, June 27th to July 1st, at Bishopthorpe Manor.

Mr. August Fiot, a Frenchman, of Philadelphia, came to this place, purchased a large tract of land and built the present mansion, planting a number of beautiful and valuable trees. The Manor House and grounds were repurchased in 1886 for the use of a Church School for girls. Rt. Rev. William Bacon Stevens, then Bishop of Pennsylvania, suggested it be renamed Bishopthorpe, an old English term signifying a Bishop's demesne.

Among these pleasant surroundings, our Rector, an officer, and two teachers of the Church School had the opportunity of attending a few sessions of the Summer School, and regret that more of our teachers were unable to be present. All the meetings were held under the trees and were inspiring and helpful to the earnest workers. Each Department of the Church School work was enthusiastically discussed by able speakers. Among them were: the Rev. S. U. Mitman, Ph. D., Educational Secretary of the Third Province, the Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl, D. D., Missionary Secretary of the Third Province; the Rev. Llewellyn N. Caley, B. D., of Philadelphia and others.

The lantern lectures at night, given out of doors, by Dr. Mitman, were very interesting. The one enjoyed by us was entitled "From Joppa to the Jordan Valley."

The committee has decided to hold the Summer School at South Bethlehem again next year. Would not all our teachers be helped by attending such conferences?

A summer school might suggest to some all work, but we found time for some sightseeing. South Bethelehem is located across the Lehigh River from the Old Moravian town of Bethlehem, which is rich in historical memories particularly of the Revolution. More remote are the buildings of the Lehigh University, an architectural pile of rare magnificence, embowered in a park of generous extent. In another direction rises the square stone tower of the Cathedral of the Nativity.

THE OBSERVER

Do not try to make excuse for lack of activity by saying that help to the poor makes paupers. Ask the Committee on Social Service what you can do to help.

Something was said to the Social Service Committee the other day which ought to be passed on to the whole parish.

"The Congregation is not the Rector's field but his force." This is more than a neat bit of alliteration. The adoption of this point of view by most any parish would be to swing from the Ptolemaic to the Capernican conception of things. It would be the transposition of the congregation from the passive voice to the active voice. It would convert the energies of the Church from potential to dynamic. The world would feel the impact.

Some years ago I stepped into a cross-town car in New York very early of a winters morning and took the one remaining seat. The only woman passenger was a business girl.

At the next corner a rather feeble old man came aboard, and as every man of us jumped to his feet when the girl gave him her seat it's sure we were conscious of his having come in. We looked rather shamefacedly at each other, and the conviction was borne home to more than one that we are not given to doing the right thing unless a duty is brought out to us with something of a shock.

I recall a case of a woman faint with hunger on a city street at night—people gathered and some voluble soul stated the case. It was interesting to watch the rescue. Enough money to keep the woman and her family two months was instantly produced, and from a nearby restaurant food enough to satisfy three teamsters was passed over the heads of the crowd.

I suppose the most of us went along and have never fed or clothed a needy one since, simply because the necessity has never been forced upon us. Isn't it just as important—more so—to hunt for the hungry and naked than to wait for an emergency case to be thrust upon us.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

THE letters of thanks that have been received since the missionary boxes were sent away in the spring, give one a real Christmas feeling.

Louis Greenwood, Indian Catechist, of Rosebud, South Dakota, had more difficulty in getting his box than the others, as he lives over forty miles from a railway. It is also hard for him to write letters, and while his style was crude it was easy to read his expressions of genuine thanks and appreciation to the good people of Grace Church.

The Rev. Mr. Wm. C. Emhardt in charge of the "Country Centre Work," in Bucks County, thanks the members of the Woman's Auxiliary for the curtains made by them for the house in which the students stay in Newtown. He writes again thanking them for the four rag rugs for "Grace Church Room" which must be quite attractive now, with the oak furniture, blue rugs and white dimity curtains.

Fifteen more of the twenty-seven rugs made by the Rug Committee since the first of the year, have been sent to St. Andrew's School for mountain boys in Sewanee, Tennessee.

Letters have come reminding us of the Bazaar to be held in the Fall, for the benefit of St. Martha's House. Surely each member of the Auxiliary will make at least one article during the summer for this object. Let us start now, and encourage Deaconess Colesbury in her good work among the poor children in the lower part of the city.

CHOIR OUTING

DURING the week of July 13th the boys of the Choir enjoyed their long looked for excursion to Wildwood, New Jersey. Several days were spent at a hotel close to the shore, and all took advantage of the very fine bathing at this resort, and the many attractions of boardwalk and beach. A couple of fishing expeditions were made to Anglesea where a startling number of clams roused the enthusiasm of a very small number of fish, which disproportion did not detract in the slightest however from the hilarity of the occasion. A delightful trip was made by motor-boat to Cape May; or rather to Schellenger's Landing, from which an attempt was made to discover Cape May on foot; a process rather long but finally successful.

The prevailing good temper of the boys seemed to be proof against many very badly sunburned shoulders and arms; and it was a tired but happy crowd that reached Market Street Ferry on July 17th, with heavy suitcases (bathing suits packed wet along with presents for the family) and lightened purses.

The generosity which made the Choir excursion possible was most highly appreciated. The quiet and gentlemanly behaviour of the boys drew many compliments from the other guests at the hotel and also a hearty invitation from the proprietress to visit her again next year. No accidents were reported; the one bathing scare resolving itself into the lengthened nap of Parker under the boardwalk from which he emerged two hours late for dinner, the other members of the party hunting for him meanwhile amongst seaweed and breakers. It is believed that no difficulty will be found in persuading the boys to visit Wildwood again at some future time.

NOTES

Mr. Hagenbaugh, the Sexton, is enjoying a two week's holiday.

The Church School Rally Day will be Sunday, September 13th.

Do not forget to give the Rector your summer address in order that the Parish News may reach you every month.

On the Feast of the Transfiguration, August 6th, there will be two celebrations of the Holy Communion, 7.30 and 9.30.

Friends of Mr. William J. Burns, a former resident of Mount Airy, and a communicant of Grace Church, will regret to hear of his recent death. Mr. Burns moved to Noble several years ago. His health had not been good for some time.

Early last month the Accounting Warden sent to the Treasurer of The Board of Missions a check which brought our total up to $1454.14, being something over the amount of our apportionment. A further remittance will be made about September first.

Our very best wishes are extended to Mr. Wenerd who, after five years service as organist, leaves this parish for another field of activity. He is succeeded by Mr. McMichaels, who comes to us from St. Albans, Olney

DUPLEX ENVELOPE SYSTEM FOR MISSIONS AND CHURCH SUPPORT

All members of the Parish are urged to avail themselves of the Duplex Envelope System as a regular method of contributing toward Missions and Church support. For pledge cards and envelopes, address the Accounting Warden.

THE RECTOR'S LETTER

SEPTEMBER! That suggests the scent of burning Autumn leaves and the opening days of school. Who does not recall those first days of the term, the reunion of friends, the challenge of fresh tasks, the promise of new delights? With something of the same keen expectation we all look forward to the quickening activities of the Parish at this season.

Every Scholar should be in his place for the opening session of the Church School, Sunday, September thirteenth. We might call it Cross and Flag Day. The day following happens to be both Holy Cross Day and the one hundredth anniversary of the writing of the Star Spangled Banner.

TWO new features will, I hope, interest the young people of the Parish. The young men will organize a Bible Class which will meet separately from the School. It is to be my privilege to lead this class and I ask every young man in the Parish to rally to the standard and help make it a big factor in the Church life.

Nor will the young women be slighted. A normal training class will be formed under the able leadership of the Principal of the Church School. This class will be composed of "graduates" from the Church School and will take up a splendid three year course of study.

The scope of the Wednesday night meetings will be enlarged. Instead of being especially for Church School Teachers, they will be for all. They will be known as Parish Conferences and will take up each month in rotation four great lines of practical study: Religious Education, Missions, Social Service, and Personal Religion.

THERE are many special things to look forward to—conspicious among them the Dedication Festival—but after all it is the regular things that count most and give us deepest satisfaction. Every Sunday will be a Feast. The ever recurring Divine Service can never lose for us its freshness and charm.

Yours in Christ,

THOMAS S CLINE

THE GREAT WAR

ON Sunday, August 9th, the Rector asked the question: "What is the truly Christian attitude toward the present European War?" His answer was summed up in three words, penitence, sympathy and hopefulness. Penitence, not in this case for our personal guilt but for the sins of Christendom with the whole of which we are bound to make common cause; sympathy, not merely with one nation or group of nations, but with all who are involved, for they are our brothers; hopefulness based upon unwavering trust in God who overrules. All of these motives drive Christians to their knees in prayer. Accordingly the Rector appointed Wednesday and Friday, August 12th and 14th, as special days of abstinence and prayer. Services of Litany and Intercession were held. The following Sunday it was announced that there would be a special Litany service at five o'clock every Friday so long as the war should last.

ACT OF REPARATION

O GOD our Father, we thy people desire to make here in thy presence a solemn act of reparation for the ingratitude and wilful disobedience of mankind.

In love hast thou created and preserved us; in mercy hast thou redeemed us. Yet we have sinned against thee and done wickedly in departing from thy precepts. We have stoned thy prophets, persecuted thy saints and slain upon the Cross thy well beloved Son.

Even those of us who have been admitted into the fellowship of Christ's religion have betrayed the trust committed unto us. We have not sought first the Kingdom of God. We have neglected thine altars and thy laws. We have been slow to proclaim the gospel to all the world. We have oppressed the weak and stained our hands with violence and blood.

And now, O Eternal Father, thou dost behold Christian Nations arrayed in deadly conflict and Europe transformed into a charnel house.

"O Lord, righteousness belongeth unto thee, but unto us confusion of faces, as at this day, * * * to our Kings, to our princes, to our fathers because we have sinned against thee."

O Lord, we bow in shame and humiliation before thee. We confess our sins and the sins of our race. We acknowledge thy countless mercies. We confess our ungratitude and hardness of heart.

Accept, we beseech thee our sincere penitence, spare us good Lord, spare thy people and give not thine heritage to reproach.

Help us, in so far as in us lies, to make amends for the sins of mankind. May we show thee some token of love and honor. May we learn to serve humanity that thou mayest take pleasure in our deeds. "We here offer and present unto thee ourselves, our souls and bodies to be a reasonable holy and living sacrifice unto thee."

"Hear us, O Lord, for thy mercy is great, And after the multitude of thy mercies look upon us; Through the merits and mediation of thy blessed Son, Jesus Christ our Lord." Amen.

PRAYER FOR THOSE IN PERILS OF WAR

(Authorized by Bishop Garland)

O GOD, the Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ, our only saviour, the Prince of Peace, give to those charged with the government of nations the grace seriously to lay to heart the dangers of their unhappy divisions, and a realization of the dreadful sacrifice of human life in time of war.

Look down with infinite mercy upon all engaged in battle: bless those who minister to the wounded and the dying; have compassion upon the widows and the orphans; and hasten the day when all war will cease and universal peace shall reign; through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen.

SOCIAL SERVICE

THE greatest glory of our modern civilization is the existance everywhere and particularly in this City of Brotherly Love, of so many institutions established to relieve the numerous ills that forever beset our frail humanity, institutions which are struggling in a constant effort to break down the assaults of disease and suffering, and institutions devoted so earnestly to the elevation of the individual and of the race. It is surely a great privilege for the lay worker to have the opportunity of joining hands with these organizations. There are new doors opening constantly to Social Workers. Numerous cases have been given to our committee of doors ajar to welcome friendly visitors which have of necessity been laid aside because of the lack of workers at present. This may be caused by the universal habit of summer vacation trips but it is a very hopeful feature that the Fall always brings a return of workers as well as a return of fruitful energy.

The Social Service Committee appreciates that the future holds great possibilities for development along many lines of activity, yet, it hesitates on the threshold of the work fearing to plunge in too hastily without due preparation in the way of training and organization. Much assistance is offered in the advice of workers with wide experience thro' the books so kindly loaned and presented to the workers of our Parish. They will be found of easy access so that "he who runs may read." A glance at the list will no doubt prompt a visit to this nucleus of our Library in the Parish House for the purpose of borrowing one of the number. The following is a list only of the books presented by Deaconess Morris of the Midnight Mission. There are others of equal value and interest loaned by Miss Bender.

"What Bad Housing Means to the Community"—Albion Fellows Bacon.

"Social Unrest—Studies in Labor and Social Unrest"—John Graham Brooks.

"Boys of the Street"—Charles Stelzle.

"Challenge of the City"—Josiah Strong.

"Christianity and the Social Crisis"—Walter Rauschenbusch.

"Introduction to Sociology"—Arthur Fairbanks.

There have been regular meetings of the Social Service Committee—informal conferences are held, and the members find the work holds an ever increasing interest.

Some members of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild are meeting every Wednesday morning, making garments for distribution thro' the Social Service Committee. A surprising amount of work has been accomplished.

Plans are under way for a Bazaar to be given for the benefit of the Social Service Work on September 29th. The Stenton Club have very kindly granted the use of their grounds for this purpose. The women of the Committee ask the co-operation of the members of the parish in providing articles for the Bazaar. Further announcement will be made later.

A GOOD SAMARITAN

THE following pathetic little story was not written for publication, but for the archives of the Social Service Committee. We publish it because it seems conducive to the cultivation of the "art of being kind." The record does not tell how much it meant to this friendless woman to find a true friend in the time of her heavy trial. This new friend (we are proud to think she was one of us) promptly visited her children in the hospital, invited her out to Mt. Airy for some cheer and refreshment, comforted her in the loss of her baby and helped her plan her future. Perhaps there are among those who minister to us day by day many heavy hearts which we could cheer, if we only had eyes to see.

WHILE waiting for my change in one of the department stores, I became interested in the appearance and voice of the clerk waiting on me. Judging from her accent that she belonged south of the Mason and Dixon line, I asked her how she came to be working up here in Philadelphia. Little by little she told me the history of her six years of married life and the whole narrative was a tragedy! Married at the age of eighteen, to a man twenty years older, she soon discovered that his intemperate habits were going to lead to much unhappiness. Being an intelligent, capable man, he was able to obtain several lucrative positions, all of which he lost at different times on account of his failure to attend to his business. During these periods, the family would run hopelessly in debt and the man would only add to their misery by borrowing right and left, not paying his just debts, but going off on protracted sprees, leaving the wife and mother penniless. Four little children were born to them. After a while the father deserted them and the mother was obliged to go to the Philadelphia Hospital, the three other little homeless ones being taken in by neighbors. At the time I made her acquaintance, three of her children were in the Philadelphia Hospital suffering with whooping cough, their ages respectively being, a girl of four, a boy of three, and baby of eleven months. Last February the five year old boy died of pneumonia in another hospital. At that time they were living in two rooms and in order to keep her position at the department store the mother was obliged to take these little tots, each morning no matter what the weather was, to a day nursery to be cared for during her absence. Returning from work in the evening about six o'clock, she would call for them to take them home. This exposure in inclement weather, with her inability to give him proper care, the mother believed was the cause of the boy's death which took place away from her at the Hospital. During the period from January to July her children were victims of the following diseases, chicken pox, diphtheria, pneumonia, whooping cough and cholera infantum. Meanwhile, Mrs. D. was working hard at eight dollars a week, living in a cheerless, boarding house, and trying to support her babies. Through the interest of two wealthy women of Philadelphia she was financially aided from time to time, but hers was a fierce struggle for existence. On July 31st the baby died at the Philadelphia Hospital leaving her with two little ones. Utterly crushed and heartbroken, she felt she could not stand the struggle any longer, and as she had no home to take the babies to, she decided to go down to Jacksonville, Fla., to be with a sister-in-law, transportation being furnished by a friend. After seeing that they all three had a substantial dinner, I bade goodbye to my new found friend and with tear dimmed eyes looked after one of the bravest little women and two of the lovliest children that it had ever been my fortune to meet. The fact that Mrs. D. had been well born and raised in a home of refinement in the South, added to the pathos of this sad story of poverty and neglect.

The last thoughts of Mrs. Wilson, were of Social Service. Her request that Congress pass certain measures looking to the alleviation of the poor of the slums of Washington met with a quick and favorable response.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

IN this number of the Parish News, will be found a list of the delegates of The Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, the names of the members of the Diocesan Committee, and the delegates to The Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Pennsylvania. These delegates are appointed by the Rector to serve for 1914 and 1915.

As President of the United Offering, Mrs. North will represent Grace Church at the meetings of every Committee. All delegates are expected to be present when possible, and all the members of the Parish who feel an interest in missions are cordially invited to attend these meetings which are most interesting and instructive. Reports mean little unless they show life and growth. We know of the work done by our committees, and by the Woman's Auxiliary in general during the last year. We have supplied many needs—and we are encouraged to go forward with renewed hopefulness and consecration praying that we may do still more in the coming year. The hearty co-operation of our Rector and his deep interest in his Parish, cannot fail to encourage those who are sometimes "weary in well-doing", and to inspire them to renewed zeal and effort.

A UNIQUE MISSIONARY MEETING

THE afternoon of Thursday, July the thirtieth was ideal, and with every allurement on land and sea, one would hardly have expected to find eighty women gathered together at a summer home in "fair Castine" for a missionary meeting. Added significance attaches to this fact when we consider the make up of the assemblage, for the large gathering was composed not only of women of our own Church, including many active wrokers in the Woman's and the Junior Auxiliaries, but also of women from seven other Christian bodies.

The meeting was primarily in the interest of the United Offering, the Diocesan Treasurer of Pennsylvania presiding. In her opening remarks she emphasized the thought of Christian Unity—"that they all may be one," and suggested that a Woman's United Thank Offering could mean as much to the women of other Communions as to ourselves. A card of greeting from the sometime Assistant Treasurer (U. O.) of Pennsylvania furnished most appropriate texts for the Bible reading. The treasurer gave an outline of the nature, ideal and aim of the United Offering and spoke of results accomplished.

Miss Grace Hutchins, of St. Hilda's School, Wuchang, China (to which $10,000 was appropriated from the United Offering of 1910) made the address of the afternoon. Miss Hutchins read some fascinating letters from Chinese girls and gave a word picture of the life of the Chinese woman before and after her conversion to Christianity. By her earnestness and charming personality Miss Hutchins won every heart and attained that acme of all public speaking—the desire on the part of her audience for more.

Following Miss Hutchins, Mrs. George C. Thomas of Philadelphia, for many years the beloved Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering, made a very clear statement of the purpose and plan of Pennsylvania's Annual Presentation Service.

It had been difficult to carry out the original thought, to make this meeting a diocesan conference, but, including the missionary district of Hankow, fourteen dioceses were represented, of which New Hampshire, Milwaukee and Mississippi gave words of greeting or brief reports.

The Rev. James Goodwin, D. D., rector of Christ Church, Hartford, Conn., closed the meeting, expressing his deep appreciation of the work of the Woman's Auxiliary and his interest in the United Offering.

This rather unusual missionary meeting has not been without visible "signs" of seed springing up from good ground. Praying that not in vain was it scattered far and wide, we leave it all with Him who giveth the increase.

CHURCH SCHOOL NOTES

There will be a corporate communion for the Officers and Teachers of the Church School at 7.30 A. M., Sunday, September 20th.

At the beginning of a new school year, the opportunity is good to get new scholars.

The boys and girls should remember that the reward of a Bible still holds good for those who will bring a new scholar.

A Church School is no less important to its scholars than is a day school. It should be conducted on business principles, and the sincere and hearty co-operation of parents and pupils is expected.

Work with the school, and give it your every encouragement and support. Instill a spirit of loyalty in your children.

The envelopes provided for the weekly offering of each scholar were, of course, made to cover the summer period. Expenses take no vacation, and so we wisely and necessarily give our support to the Church every week the year round. Envelopes should be brought on the opening Sunday. Do not forget them. The accounting will be much facilitated by your promptness.

Parents are urgently requested to regularly report the cause for absence of scholars, that proper records may be made. Last year we were often misled as to such causes in the absence of authoritative information.

"WHAT chance has a child whose parents are deeply interested in music lessons and dancing lessons, but have little interest in Sunday School lessons? Whose family consider a thorough knowledge of Arithmetic, History and Geography necessary to success in life, but who seem to look upon a thorough knowledge of God and Religion and Character as "extras" to be secured only if the child is not too overworked by other studies?

What chance has that child?"

THE KINDERGARTEN

THE Kindergarten held its first session on the church lawn on the second Sunday in July. To the tune of the customary march, each child carrying his own chair from his indoor room walked to a shady corner of the lawn. Here they formed a circle and you could tell by their happy faces how much they enjoyed their summer school.

Close to a little child is God's outdoor world for through nature he receives a dim conception of God's love and power. As Froebel writes: "The things of nature form a more beautiful ladder between heaven and earth than that seen by Jacob."

To the children the most interesting feature wa the transplanting of the flowers which had been previously grown indoors. A small plot of ground at the rear of the Church was transformed into a pretty garden.

THE CAMBRIDGE CONFERENCE

HOW full were those ten days spent at the Conference for Church Work! And how soon they were over. One's memories centre on St. John's Chapel on the campus where all the daily services were held. The Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge had very kindly placed at the disposal of the Committee all their buildings for the Conference. We began the day with Morning Prayer and the Holy Eucharist in the Chapel at seven o'clock. The noonday intercessions again brought us there. The Sunset services too were held in the Chapel when the weather was stormy. The day ended with Compline at half-past nine. The full attendance at all these services showed the spirit of the Conference. The Rev. H. C. Robbins had charge of the chapel services during the first week—the Rev. H. McV. Harrison O. H. C. during the second. Both gave besides, a course of instructions. Mr. Robbins on the Bible as a "Book of Missions;" Fr. Harrison on the "Holy Eucharist, the Centre of Church Unity." Dr. Hart gave a course on the "Church's Faith" and Dr. Waterman on "Some Notable Churchmen." The Rev. Chas. H. Boynton gave a course on "Foundations of Pedagogy," the Rev. P. E. Osgood on "Missions in the Sunday School." Our debt to the clergy is a large one. It was a great privilege to attend these lectures and have them meeting with us constantly during the Conference. The mornings were given over to study, the afternoons to pleasure trips. There was so much offered in the various courses for Bible study, Mission Study, etc., it was difficult to make a choice. In fact one wished often for a fairy's wand to permit one to be in two places at once. Miss Emery and Miss Tillotson both had classses, the former on the Woman's Auxuliary, the latter a normal mission study class; Miss Lucy Sturgis one for the Juniors, Mrs. C. B. Coleman, a class on the Old Testament and Miss Whittier on the Girls' Friendly Society. All the members of the Conference met together at the Refectory for their meals, which I might mention were exceedingly good. The moonlight trip down the river on the night of July 4th and the afternoon tea at Miss Houghton's were two especially pleasant occasions, amongst many others. There were delightful public meetings every evening of which many availed themselves. Some informal conferences were also held in the afternoons. One must not omit to mention two interesting plays, one representing the work of the Church Periodical Club, the other "As it was in the Beginning," a mystery play. The latter was written by Mr. Osgood and given most kindly by members of his school in Roslindale.

Bishop Parker and Bishop Perry both were on the committee in charge of the Conference giving much time and thought preparing for it. One cannot but be especially grateful to Bishop Parker who was able to be at the Conference throughout. His kindly interest and care for every member of the Conference added so very greatly to the happiness of all. As one member expressed it at the Conference meeting: "It would not be a Cambridge Conference without Bishop Parker." July 8th, the last day of the Conference, came all too soon. Many friendships were cemented there and new ones made and it was hard to say goodbye. As the members of the Conference, about 100, left Cambridge that morning going to so many widely distant homes—for Maine was represented as well as California—all left with a deep sense of gratitude for many benefits received, and with the hope and expectation of returning in 1915.

A VACATION LETTER

THE August number of the Parish News was eagerly welcomed by us, absent from home and desiring to be in touch with all the activities and plans of Grace Church.

The message of our Rector's letter is one to be grateful for, in this time of uncertainty and apprehension. The great nations of civilized Europe are engaging in a death struggle for supremacy, at the bidding of their rulers who call themselves Christian. We view it with horror and dread, and many thoughts arise in our hearts. We hear the far away voice of the Prince of Peace to his impetuous disciples: "Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of, the Son of Man is not come to destroy men's lives but to save them." "They that take the sword shall perish with the sword." This King said to the Roman governor: "My kingdom is not of this world, if my kingdom were of this world then would my servants fight."

Yet, there is something thrilling in the spectacle of a mighty mass of men advancing with one fixed purpose, in absolute loyalty and obedience to their leader. Is not this the ideal of the church militant?

"Like a mighty army moves the Church of God." But does it move in such fashion, to victory? Is it not more like bands of skirmishers carrying on a guerilla warfare?

Our Lord said, "the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light." The Christian warfare is waged with spiritual weapons against spiritual enemies, but there must be united effort, supreme and unfaltering loyalty to our one Leader on the part of every private in the ranks, and brotherly recognition of all that serve the Lord Christ, before victory can be won. The victory that overcomes the world is the faith that works by love.

As we reflect on the spirit in the world which makes wars possible, does it not bow the heart in humble penitence for personal lack of love? How otherwise can we obey the command to "follow after peace."

Every private in the church militant needs to study the tactics of this love that comes only as the fruit of the indwelling Holy Spirit, and learn how to check snapshot judgments, and inconsiderate speech, and absorption in one's own affairs to the exclusion of sympathy with others. The conquests of such an advance may be slow but they will be sure. Such love will sweeten the bitter waters of life, dignify the daily line of duties, give reality and worth to social service, and keep us confident and quiet under stress and strain. It is the only convincing proof that Christians have really been with Jesus.

BOY SCOUTS

NAUTICAL TROOP

On July 21st Scouts Gordon Crouter, Frederick Gerson and I, members of troop 67, Boy Scouts of America, started for Island Heights, where we were to join the Nautical Troop. After a train ride of about an hour and a half we arrived at our destination, a small town on Tom's River, New Jersey.

Waiting for us at the Island Heights Yacht Club was Mr. Patton, who assisted Captain Longstreth in taking care of the Scouts. Aboard the House Boat YOUNG AMERICA we found Captain Longstreth and eleven Scouts. We were just in time for a swim which felt good after our long train ride. After that, we were questioned on our knowledge of seamanship and found we were three green sailors, but we soon caught on. Two days later one of the Scouts of our Troop had the bad luck to fall sick and had to go home.

The houseboat AMERICA which has a spar deck, quarter deck, head, forecastle, ward room, galley, and after deck was very comfortable quarters. It was scrubbed every morning for nine o'clock inspection. Belonging to the houseboat were three dorys and one dinghy.

The third morning at inspection three crews were chosen to man the dorys, the Red, the White and the Blue, and crews were made up of three boys each. Routine on the houseboat consisted of a morning dip at 6.30, breakfast at 7, and a general cleaning of the boat from 7.30 to 8.30. The blankets aired while we cleaned the boat. Bunks were made before inspection at 9. Inspection by Captain Longstreth, at 9. Leisure. Sailing, rowing, shore liberty, etc., 9.15 to 12. Lunch, 12 to 12.30. Leisure, 12.30 to 4. Swimming, 4 to 5. Supper, 6.30. Sometimes shore liberty until 8. At 9 came taps and soon all was quiet aboard. All the work on the boat was done by the Scouts themselves. Sometimes we had a "man overboard" drill. Two boys of our own Troop were chosen to be "men overboard." Every year a cup is given to the winner of a race between the three dorys, Red, White and Blue. This year the boats started from the Island Heights Yacht Club and went down the bay as far as Seaside Park, returned and finished at the Yacht Club. The White boat had the good luck to win.

The time to return home came too soon, but as we left, Captain Longstreth gave us a standing invitation which we will gladly accept. Captain Longstreth was a dandy host and we'll be glad to see him and the house boat next year.

IN CAMP

On Monday, July 20th, Troop 67 left Mt. Airy for the Boy Scout Camp at Treasure Island, 25 miles above Trenton, New Jersey, for a week's outing.

The Troop travelled by trolley to a point about 10 miles above Easton, and then hiked across country to the Delaware River where they were ferried over to our camp. A few of the boys had arrived a day in adance, and, as a result we found the camp ready for us.

Treasure Island is about a mile long and a half-mile wide and is admirably suited for camping. On its outer edge it is fringed with thick woods, but towards the center it is cleared. The troops were assigned to various parts of the Island, each camp being a unit in itself, and each troop responsible for its condition.

The days were full of instructive activity. At 6.15 reveille would sound and soon all were up and assembled by the flag staff for setting up exercises. The colors would be run up while the bugles blew, all standing at respectful attention. Usually here the orders for the day would be issued—then to the river for the morning dip. After breakfast, camp had to be put in neat order, as it was regularly inspected, and woe to that scout who forgot and left a wet towel in his tent or who had neglected to clear up any loose paper, as the Deputy Commissioner and his orderlies let nothing escape them, and every scout in 67 felt the humiliation keenly if there was the slightest criticism of the camp after such an inspection. We are glad to be able to say our Troop was usually commended.

The balance of the day was spent in healthy instructive recreation. Some took long hikes, others studied the flora of the island and went swimming. There were any number of agreeable ways to spend the days and they passed only too quickly.

On one afternoon a nautical meet was held, and every Troop on the island entered their best men to compete. Of course 67 entered with great enthusiasm. To our great joy our boys swept everything before them in almost every event and won 28 points to our nearest opponent's 10! We are indebted to Scouts George Jefferson, Stanley Thornton, Harold Hansell, Edward Jefferson, Harvey Marthing, Donald Rowe and John Williams for this remarkable showing.

John Hansell, by passing a most severe examination in all departments of signaling was awarded a merit badge, and Scout Rowe was awarded his "T. I. S." for securing a 100 points in various scout activities.

The week was full of healthy excitement and the true Boy Scout ideals of courtesy and kindness prevailed at all times. On Monday, July 27th, we broke camp and returned home full of happy memories with not one discordant note to mar the outing.

Since the Parish News for July was issued, the following Scouts have entered the First Class, which is the highest grade; they are Scouts Gordon Crouter, John Hansell, Phillip E. Guckes, Stanley L. Thornton and J. Gowen Hood. In order to attain this grade Scouts are required to pass a trying examination in First Aid, Nature Study, Signaling, Cooking, Judging Distances. Swimming, Use of Tools, Hiking and making a map of the hike, and further must have an untarnished Scout record. Our troop may well be proud of these Scouts, as it is no easy matter to pass the examinations; other Troops much older than ourselves have not as yet been able to pass any of their members into this coveted First Class. It is also a matter of great satisfaction that we have nearly a dozen other boys ready to enter this class, but who have been unable to qualify as yet on account of the examining board in town having adjourned for the summer.

ST. ANDREW'S BROTHERHOOD

THE Annual Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew is a matter that may interest all men and boys.

Atlanta, Georgia, is the place of meeting and the time, October 14th to 18th. All Churchmen are urged to attend.

It is in no sense a business meeting, but rather one for personal benefit in gaining great inspiration and practical suggestions for Christian work.

The most helpful speakers obtainable, lay and clerical, numbering many Bishops, will not only address the meetings but be in close personal association with those in attendance. Detailed information may be had from our Chapter Directors.

The Brotherhood Chapter of Grace Church has resumed its regular services at the Pelham car barn. Meetings every fourth Sunday.

NOTES

During the summer the Rector has been conducting services frequently at the Midnight Mission in Germantown.

The Volunteer Choir, under the leadership of Mr. Denison has been doing faithful work during the summer.

Mr. McMichael will return to the Grace Church Organ on September 13th after a month's holiday.

In accordance with widespread custom in the Anglican Communion Sunday, October 18th, (St. Luke's Day) will be observed in this Parish as a special day of Intercession for the work of Religious Education.

DUPLEX ENVELOPE SYSTEM FOR MISSIONS AND CHURCH SUPPORT

All members of the Parish are urged to avail themselves of the Duplex Envelope System as a regular method of contributing toward Missions and Church support. For pledge cards and envelopes, address the Accounting Warden.

THE RECTOR'S LETTER

IT is fitting that we should annually unite as one great family, knit together in spiritual fellowship in this Parish, in the joyous observance of a Feast of Thanksgiving and Rededication to God the All-bountiful. But there is special cause for such a Festival this year, for it was just a quarter of a century ago that Grace Church was built.

Accordingly, All Saints Day, Sunday, November 1, and the seven days following have been set apart as a Feast of Dedication and Twenty-Fifth Anniversary. Let us make the most of them. We established an excellent precedent at our Dedication Festival last Fall. The large Corporate Communion, the generous Thank-offering of over seven hundred dollars, the interesting Conference of Parish Workers, the Men's Dinner and Parish Reception welded the Parish together and gave marked impetus to the life and work of the season then just opening.

By united prayer and effort we can realize much greater results this year. The events of the Festival week will not be isolated events. In several cases they will initiate an important series. For instance, the offering will be the first of a series of annual offerings for the establishment of an Endowment Fund for the benefit of Grace Church. The Parish Conference will inaugurate the series of Wednesday night Conferences to run throughout the season. The meeting of the Communicants Guild will begin a new series of monthly meetings for this organization. The admission of Servers will mark the formal beginning of a Guild of Servers under new leadership.

Let us hope that the Corporate Communion of the Parish on All Saints Day may result in the restoration of all lapsed Communicants to God's Altar. The Festival could fulfill no more important function. I wish every Communicant in the Parish would prepare to make his Communion that day, or at least during the Octave.

Above all else let us make it a great spiritual Festival, well pleasing to God.

Loyally yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE

NATIONAL DAY OF PRAYER

IN accordance with the Proclamation of the President of the United States, Sunday, October 4th, will be observed in Grace Church as a Day of Prayer and Supplication to Almighty God for the Restoration of Peace. There will be Eucharistic Services with this special intention at 7.30 and at 11. Morning Prayer and Litany will be said at 10.30 and Evening Prayer at 4. Appropriate forms, authorized by the Bishop Suffragan of Pennsylvania will be used at these Services. It is well to remember however that it is not forms but the Spirit that counts in such matters. "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of."

THE Dedication Festival is a very venerable observance. It was a great day in the religious year of the ancient Hebrew Church, commemorating an event of national importance—the dedication of the new altar of the temple of Judas Maccabaeus.

In honor of this event Judas Maccabaeus "ordained that the days of the dedication of the altar should be kept in their seasons from year to year by the space of eight days from the five and twentieth day of the [illegible] with gladness and joy."

In [illegible] 10:22 we read of the observance of this feast and of our Lord's presence in the temple at the time.

It is difficult to find out how early the Dedication Feast was kept in Christian times. There is however distinct evidence that it was kept with solemnity at Jerusalem in the closing years of the fourth century. At these times the Churches were adorned as for the great festivals of Christmas and Easter.

Dr. Dearmer says "The Dedication Festival is a principal double with an octave." This ranks it in dignity with the great Feasts of the Church year.

ALL SOULS DAY

AS the idea of the preeminence of the great Christian saints and heroes was realized, and their number by the lapse of time increased, a very natural desire grew up in the middle ages, in the West, of remembering before God the innumerable and ever increasing company of Christian people, departed this life in the faith and fear of God, who whilst on earth did not attain to any special heights of holiness.

This desire in time and by degrees found expression in setting apart November 2, the day following All Saints day, to be observed as All Souls day—The Commemoration of all the faithful departed, of the Pre-Reformation English Kalendars. This day became generally recognized in the West in the course of the eleventh century. But when certain grave abuses, connected with crude notions of the place and condition of souls in the intermediate state, arose (abuses so great as to have a large share in causing the Reformation), All Souls day was removed from the Kalendar of the English Church in the Sixteenth Century. This is the reason why All Souls day does not find a place in the list of holy days appointed to be observed in the Book of Common Prayer. It is much to be desired that the commemoration of All Souls should be restored to the English Kalendar, for its presence there would be of service in bearing witness to a duty which, sad to say, has been much lost sight of amongst us—the duty of remembering the faithful departed before God, in earnest intercession.

To pray for the dead is one of the oldest of Christian practices as history plainly declares. To neglect or to abandon this duty in public worship and particularly at the celebration of the Eucharist, is to part company with the Christianity of the purest age of the Catholic Church.

At the present time there is no authority in the English Church, we regret to say, for any public observance of November 2 in commemoration of the faithful departed. But this may be confidently urged—that any disparagement of prayer for the faithful departed is glaringly inconsistent with the emphatic appeal which was made at the Reformation in England to the faith and practice of the early Centuries of Christianity. —Selected.

DOES not this commemoration of the faithful dead take on unusual significance just now in view of the countless army of those on whom death has come suddenly in the course of the war?

THE CHURCH SCHOOL

THE second Sunday in September was "Rally Day" in the Church School. It well deserved the name, for certainly there was a grand rally of scholars, teachers and officers to the Cross and Flag. One hundred and eighty were present, and in addition a number of parents and visitors. At least twenty-five absentees could be accounted for as still out of town, so the record of attendance was most excellent. It was indeed an inspiration. One felt that there was not simply faithfulness evidenced, but a deep interest and enthusiasm. Undoubtedly all are keen for the second year of the new regime. The day following being the one hundredth anniversary of the writing of "The Star Spangled Banner", and also "Holy Cross Day" made the occasion one of special interest. The one thing that unanimously troubled the assemblage was the enforced absence of our Rector who was too ill to be present. Our comfort was in the knowledge that a good rally would give him cheer.

The procession was lead as usual by the Crucifer. Farther on a chosen representative of Troop 67 of Boy Scouts carried the American flag, and at the head of the upper school came our own school banner which tells of scholastic achievement in Christ's name. Beautiful souvenir cards illustrating the Cross and Flag and having the "Star Spangled Banner" printed in colors, were distributed to all.

The Rally Service was held in the Church, with addresses by Dr. Crouter and the Superintendent.

THE school organized its classes on the following Sunday, and lessons were assigned. A class of boys and one of girls were welcomed from the Primary School. Several new teachers were added. A new course of memory work was introduced, being a general Catechism compiled by the Rector, and designed to include and elaborate the Church Catechism in a very instructive way.

THE classes for men and women, conducted respectively by Mr. Bayard and Mrs. George, will be resumed at 9.30 the first Sunday in November. The organized Bible Class for young men, under the Rector's leadership, will hold its first meeting the first Monday evening in October. The Normal class for young women under Mrs. Hayes, will change its time of meeting from Sunday mornings to Monday afternoons at 5, beginning October 5th.

The Superintendent announced Sunday that the award of a Scholar's Bible would be given as heretofore to every scholar who would bring a new [illegible] School. The [illegible] not already connected with [illegible] schools.

PLANS are being made for a most interesting program for the Church School in the week of the Parish Festival. Full announcements will be made later.

TEACHER TRAINING

THE formation of a Normal Class looking to the thorough training of future teachers marks a distinct advance in the educational work of the Parish. The courses given will conform to the "Standard Course" of the Church comprising the following subjects: Religious Pedagogy, Gospels and the Life of Christ, Prayer Book and Church Worship, The Christian Year, Catechism and Christian Doctrine, Missions and Social Service, The Apostolic Church, Biblical Geography, The Old Testament, Church History, Organization and History of the Sunday School.

This course covers three years of study and leads eventually to a diploma awarded by the General Board of Religious Education.

Mrs. Crouter will direct this advanced work, assisted by other teachers in various subjects. The class has begun the course on The Prayer Book and Church Worship under the leadership of Mrs. Ralph L. Hayes.

The original plan was to hold the sessions in connection with the Church School. But some of the present teachers, being desirous of entering the class have requested a change of hour. Beginning the first week in October therefore the Normal Class will meet on Mondays at five o'clock and will be open to all teachers or parents who care to join.

It is to be hoped that many young women in the Parish not formerly connected with the Church School will join this class.

[illegible] attention of some [illegible] course the Rector [illegible] you will some day become a teacher and have your share in the important work of passing on to the next generation the precious things of holy religion. But in any case, whether you ever become a teacher or not, this rounding out of your own religious education is highly desirable is it not?"

YOUNG MEN'S BIBLE CLASS

A group of active laymen are at work enrolling the members of the Young Men's Guild or Bible Class soon to be organized under the Rector's leadership.

The organization meeting and election of officers will be held on Monday evening, October 5th. The course as announced by the Rector will include a major and a minor subject: "The Life of Christ" and "Friendship—the Master Passion." The social feature will be emphasized in this organization, which promises to be more like a Guild than a regular Bible Class. While a separate society holding its meetings on week days, this class has of course its place in the Educational scheme, being a part of the post-graduate department of the Church School. It will interfere in no way with the Men's Bible Class on Church History. It promises to be a vigorous Guild and it is hard to overestimate the benefit which may result both to the individual young men and to the Church.

PARISH CONFERENCES

"I hope the Wednesday night meetings which proved so stimulating last year are to be resumed," said an interested teacher the other day. They are, indeed, but with a difference of scope and function. The more technical work of Teacher Training will be turned over to the Normal Class as announced elsewhere. The details of method and administration as well as the planning of the courses for the Church School will be better handled in the Faculty Meetings and private sessions of Principal and Teachers.

Meanwhile the general discussion of live topics, which was perhaps the most valuable feature of these Wednesday meetings, will continue. The first Wednesday evening each month will be devoted to the study of Religious Education. This will concern especially the Officers and Teachers of the Church School and parents. The second Wednesday evening each month will be given up to the consideration of Social Service. Perhaps the members of the Social Service Committee will be especially keen for these nights, but like the first subject it makes a very general appeal.

Missions will be the theme on the Third Wednesday evening. Not only the Woman's Auxiliary, but also the Men's Missionary Committee, will feel a special responsibility for the success of these Missionary evenings. The fourth Wednesday each month will be used for the present for the presentation of Personal Religion, with special reference to Christian Mysticism. Later on, opportunity will be given for miscellaneous topics.

When a fifth Wednesday occurs as in December it may well be given up to a Social or Entertainment. The first of the Conferences will be held in connection with the Dedication Festival, November 4, after which they will continue until Easter.

While the Rector will preside at these Parish Conferences and frequently give the address, the plan is that other members of the parish, as well as outside speakers, will have a large share. The custom of free discussions, started last year, will be continued. With such a wide range of topics the Conferences will no doubt appeal to many persons. Some will follow up a certain series, such as Social Service or Missions. Others will be equally interested in all, and will be regular attendants. These Conferences ought to keep the Parish awake anyhow.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

"THE Church itself is the Missionary Society. Every baptized person is a member of the Society. Therefore every baptized woman in this parish, should be an active member of this Association," and every woman is needed for the work before us. The Winter promises to be a hard one and we hope to have more barrels of second hand clothing to send away than ever before. (Shoes are asked for particularly.) Some are sent to Virginia, some to Kensington, some nearer home. In looking over your patch-bags, do not forget that cotton goods of all colors are needed for the rag rugs made each year.

A card addressed to "The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild, Grace Church, Mt. Airy," will bring a call to any address for articles to be used by the Auxiliary.

Letters have been received in reference to our Domestic Box and we are looking forward to helping the Social Service Committee with the clothing they find needed by the families in whom they are interested.

We will gladly send sewing to any who cannot attend the Wednesday meetings and yet who would like to share in the work in this way.

After all, the whole problem of living, of happiness, of progress, depends upon our sharing. "All our blessings, therefore have, as it were, a cash value. They are real blessings only as they are shared."

Then let us share our blessings for the good of others.

THE JUNIOR AUXILIARY

AS our Church School grows, the Junior Auxiliary must grow with it; so your Leader asks that each Junior will try to bring a new member to the meeting on the fifth of October. The work started in the Spring is well under way but it must be finished before "Rose-bud Day." Those who attended the services in St. Mark's Church on that day last Fall, will remember the exhibition of work sent by the Junior Auxiliaries in and around Philadelphia. These articles were sent to Dakota, each Indian child receiving a "glad" gift. The "glad" gift ... ly) showed the wonderful results of the kindergarten. The Juniors marched from the Parish House into the Church where Bishop Rowe spoke to them of his work in Alaska.

Some of the Auxiliaries carried banners, but as our Juniors had none, the older girls have made a handsome one which they will be very proud to carry this year.

Work will soon be started for the Christmas Box; all the Juniors and all the Juniors' envelopes must help in the filling of it.

THE UNITED OFFERING

Various questions, such as: "Does the United Offering count on the apportionment?" "Do you put it in the duplex envelopes?" "It is only for the members (active) of the Woman's Auxiliary, is it not?" "What am I expected to give?" reveal a lamentable ignorance, on the part of many women of our own and other dioceses, as to the nature and purpose of the United Offering.

The United Offering could not consistently apply on the parish apportionent because it is not an assessment but a free-will offering. It is the Churchwoman's great Thank Offering and therefore not the discharge of a debt but a gift given gladly.

We do not put the United Offering in the duplex envelope but in "the little blue box" distributed for that purpose. Semi-annually the contributor opens the box and sends its contents to the parish treasurer of the United Offering. She, in turn, remits to the diocesan treasurer, who deposits the offering, to remain at interest until its presentation at the next triennial service. The interest for three years on Pennsylvania's offerings alone (1907-10 and also 1910-13) amounted to more than $1200, which proves the advantage of semi-annual collections.

The United Offering is not confined to the active members of the Woman's Auxiliary. To have a share in it is the high privilege of every woman, old or young, rich ... worker or shut-in.

... I expected to give?" Nothing. To expect any stated amount would be entirely contrary to the spirit of the United Offering. It is what you wish to give, and "the over-and-above all-else", never conflicting with any regular offerings. The United Offering should be the soul of, and the inspiration for, all giving, and it is, as so perfectly expressed by our Bishop, "the purest and the finest gift that goes into our Missionary treasury."

THE first United Offering of $2,000 ($1000 being the gift of one woman) was made in 1889. The last offering, presented in 1913, amounted to $306,496.66. At the first glance this appears to be a wonderful increase, but consider the interval of nearly a quarter of a century, and also the fact that, had every woman communicant given only five cents a week during the three years from 1910 to 1913, the amount of our last offering would have been more than $3,000,000 instead of a little over $300,000.

The ideal for the United Offering is—every woman a contributor. This ideal can be attained only when realized in each and every parish. Why not begin at once to accomplish this in Grace Church? Our first United Offering of $12 was made in 1895 by members of the Guild of the Silver Cross—many of them working girls who deposited small amounts regularly in their blue boxes. From this faithful and systematic beginning, our offering has grown to the amount of $435.92 for the last year (1913-14) or to a total of $2,157.36 contributed since, and including that first offering of $12. We rejoice, but how much larger it might have been!

We have in the parish at the present time about seventy regular contributors, out of a possible two hundred and fifty, the total number of women communicants. The next semi-annual collection will be made during the last two weeks of this month. The usual notices will be mailed to contributors, but are there not others who may wish to make a special thank offering at this time, and many who will help to "realize the ideal" by sending in their names for enrollment on the treasurer's list? Address—Mrs. Ralph H. North, 7301 Boyer Street.

For further information about the United Offering, the readers of The Parish News are referred to a series of articles to appear in the diocesan paper—The Church News—beginning with the November number.

WAR AND MISSIONS

A question that must have occurred to many of our Church people who are conscientious in their stewardship, is "what effect will the war have upon missionary giving?" The reply is "That depends upon how fully we believe in our missionary work. There is only one agency which can abolish war, and that is the promulgation and practice, by nations as well as individuals, of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. It is God only who can "make wars to cease in all the world." If, realizing its horrors, we desire to work for its abolishment, we certainly will not regard curtailment of income as an excuse for failing to spread the Gospel of the Prince of Peace. In proportion to our ability, our gifts for the extension of God's Kingdom are small indeed; perhaps hardship or loss may make some of us realize the truth.

Bishop Whipple used to tell a story which in this connection will point a moral. He called upon a great New York merchant, noted for his generosity to Christian enterprises, and was given an opportunity of presenting the needs of his work in Minnesota. The merchant received him in his private office and listened with interest and sympathy to his appeal. When the bishop had finished he turned to his desk, and, writing a check, handed it to the bishop, who of course received it without glancing at its face and expressed his thanks for the assistance rendered. At that moment an anxious attendant hurried in, bringing a telegram. The merchant read it with evident perturbation, thought a moment and turning to the bishop said: "This message brings me the news of the loss of my finest ship with all her cargo. It is a severe blow. I must ask you to be good enough to return the check which I just gave you." With a sinking heart the bishop took from his pocket-book the bit of folded paper which meant so much to him and returned it to the donor, who tore it across and threw the pieces into the waste basket. The merchant again turned to his desk, and writing quickly in his check book he handed the bishop a second slip of paper, saying, "If I had gone on giving to God in the same ratio that I have been doing, I should not deserve to have a vessel left afloat! Of course the good bishop never knew the amount of the first check, but the second one was the most generous he had ever received.

THE MID-WEEK CELEBRATION

AT the request of certain members of the Woman's Auxiliary, the Rector has decided to have the mid-week Celebration of the Holy Communion on Wednesday at 9.30 instead of Thursday.

As the Woman's Auxiliary Meeting comes on Wednesdays this new arrangement will make possible a much larger attendance at the Service.

SOCIAL SERVICE

"HARK! hark! the dogs do bark,
The beggars are coming to town;
Some in rags and some in tags
And some in silken gowns.
Some gave them white bread,
And some gave them brown,
And some gave them a good horse-whip,
And sent them out of the town."

We are warned in this juvenile poem, by creatures having ramarkable instincts, that beggars are undesirable citizens. The dictionary says that a beggar is a rogue, and that a rogue is a thoroughly dishonest and unprincipled person.

To most of us this [illegible] pointing—For we have already [illegible] in our midst and we have felt a certain satisfaction in giving them help of various sorts. Beggars are historical figures and have been considered necessary factors in inciting our charitable impulses. Then at our doors, they are so appealing, so picturesque, and above all so threatening!

Fear is often a stronger element in "our cup of cold water" than the altruistic motive.

We are also warned in the poem that "the beggars are coming to town:" They already have arrived in Mt. Airy. Those that have come are the remnant who have escaped the investigation of the Society for Organizing Charity. During the past year this Society has investigated three hundred and nine in co-operation with the City authorities, taking the able bodied first and later the halt and the blind and giving each the chance to live a more worthy life. All of these people were found to belong to an organized company. The majority of beggars are homeless men, who prefer to be idle and dissolute and who find wandering, lying, deceit and drunkeness a way to an easy independence, for in this chosen field a man may work or not as he pleases because a charitable public has always been quite willing to foot his bills. He may ply his trade and make good profits and then dissipate and begin again at his leisure. A few years ago the son of a New England Episcopal clergyman, and a former student at Yale College, with both legs amputated below his thighs, begged in Kensington from a wheel chair, with enough income to employ an attendant—Meanwhile his parents were heart sore over the horror of it. Who made this possible?

Women too, beg ostensibly often to support deserted and starving children. Alas! truly sometimes starving children!

And children, especially deformed children, beg to support able bodied, vicious and criminal or lazy parents or adults.

A hunch-back girl begged for a long [illegible] on the streets of Philadelphia and thus supported two drunken Uncles. She became profane and vulgar, and enjoying the excitement grew wedded to the life and could not be influenced to leave it. Besides "rich ladies" gave her presents, one keeping her in real Peter Thompson blouses, finally she died of spinal tuberculosis.

The law would not interfere in this instance because of the pretense of selling shoe laces for a living.

Objection has been made by good people to the general denunciation of begging on the part of discouraged, helpless women and children. For lack of space one can only take time to wonder, what ultimate good can fall to any woman or child while in this degrading business.

It seems plain therefore in view of all the facts that we should not give to beggars at our doors. We can refer homeless men to the splendid Whosoever Mission in Germantown where a man is sure to receive a moral uplift, good meals and perhaps a steady job.

In the case of women and children, take their names and addresses and telephone Spruce 6516, The Society for Organizing Charity. A visitor will go at once to the address and furnish a report of the conditions found. It is better to telephone the name and address to the Society for if given to the applicant he or she will seldom go to a charitable agency. Whereas if the visitor makes an investigation a record is kept, which may be helpful at another time.

As such excellent work is being done by the present city administration and the society already mentioned, it seems well to present the facts and urge the co-operation of all householders.

For a further study of the vagrant classes, the reader is referred to two very illuminating chapters on "The Vagrant" and "The Pauper" in Mr. Robert Hunter's book on "Poverty." This book is in the Social Service Library.

THE BAZAAR

IN helping to meet the many needs, present and prospective of our parish organization for Social Service, very competent and enthusiastic committees, directed by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ball conducted a most successful bazaar in the afternoon and evening of September 29th. The Stenton Country Club very kindly tendered the use of its house and grounds for the occasion. There was a goodly attendance comprising not only people of our own parish, but many other friends of a good cause. Useful and ornamental articles of almost endless variety, made by willing hands, were placed on sale, a select musical programme was rendered, and a delectable supper served for which a nominal charge was made.

A Fish Pond, and candy and cake departments were notable features.

Altogether the event was most enjoyable, well attended and realized the substantial sum of about $300.00 for a most laudable purpose.

Mrs. Thomas H. Ball, as Chairman of the Finance Committee, had general charge of arrangements. She was ably assisted by the following committees:

Advertising and Tickets, Mrs. Parkman; Supper, Mrs. Clapham, assisted by Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Chambers, Mrs. Taylor, Miss Taylor, Miss LaRue; Fancy Articles, Miss Miller, assisted by Mrs. Pease, Mrs. Shoemaker, Mrs. Weiler, Mrs. Burk, Miss Thompson, Miss Zell; Cake, Mrs. Insinger, assisted by Mrs. Meehan, Mrs. E. H. Ball, Mrs. Lowber, Miss Steel; Candy, Mrs. Deming, assisted by Mrs. Wilkinson, Mrs. McGuire, Miss Benerman, Miss Coleman, Miss Jefferson, Miss Lincoln; Fish Pond, Miss L. A. Miller, assisted by Mrs. West and Miss Landenberger; Lemonade, Mrs. Baldy, assisted by the young ladies; Tea, Mrs. Hayes, assisted by the young ladies.

Mrs. S. G. Weiler directed the music assisted by the following artists: Miss Marguerite Strehle, Miss Edna F. Steinmetz, Miss Bradley, Miss Loughney, Mr. Adolph Yost, Miss Louise Meyers and Mr. William Yost.

To everyone's regret, the organizers of the enterprise, Mr. and Mrs. Ball were unavoidably absent by reason of illness in their family.

Many summer visitors to the services of Grace Church have expressed admiration for the Church and its [illegible]

The Rev. [illegible] F. Breed, [illegible] presented to the [illegible]rch a beautifully embroidered funeral pall in memory of Mrs. Breed.

The Rector received during the summer the present of a silken cord cassock and girdle from the Junior Auxiliary.

The Envelope System is certainly doing the work expected of it, for it brought into the treasury during the last six weeks of the summer over three hundred dollars.

Any who are contemplating the presentation of Memorial Gifts to the Church at the time of the Dedication Festival may consult with Mr. Geo. J. Lincoln, Chairman of the Committee in charge, or with the Rector.

The Treasurer of the Board of Missions has just announced that the Children's Lenten Offering for this year amounts to the sum of $181,183.67. This is an increase of $5,448.96 over the offering of last year. (The record shows $405.64 to the credit of Grace Church School for the year's Missionary work.) All honor to the children of the Church!

The Librarian of the Church Periodical Club writes that the Rev. T. C. Tupper, Chaplain of the U. S. Penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia, sends an earnest plea for the the following magazines—if he can secure these odd numbers, he will be able to have three more volumes of bound magazines for use in the Penitentiary. Cannot some of these be found in the Parish and mailed to him? Harpers Monthly, June 1910; Atlantic Monthly, September, 1910; Atlantic Monthly, December, 1913.

Our foreign mission work is not directly effected by the war, none of our fields being within the radius of serious conflict. It [illegible] however, retarded by interrupted communication, rise on the exchange and other indirect effects from which the whole world suffers. The Board of Missions is taking energetic measures to send the new workers to their posts, believing that at this time more than ever the presence of devoted Christian men and women is needed in the lands abroad.

Ten Chinese girls, the first to be sent to the United States to be educated under the Boxer Indemnity Fund, arrived in New York in September. These girls were selected from the candidates who presented themselves by competitive examination held in English in China. All of them are Christians; eight of them are daughters of Chinese Christian pastors. Three of them are our own girls from St. Mary's Hall, Shanghai, one of whom stood first in the national examination.

The missionary treasury closed on August 31st with an indicated deficit for the year amounting to $57,000. This sounds depressing but it should be remembered that the appropriations for the year were $84,000 greater than those of the year preceding, and that legacies available toward paying appropriations fell off in amount about $20,000. Therefore, as a matter of fact, the gifts of the living in the Church were $47,000 in excess of last year. This in a year of financial depression, which closed with a month of European war, is a record which shows that the Church has not given way to discouragement nor panic, and justifies the expectation that she will continue bravely to carry on her missionary work. Grace Church exceeded its apportionment by $150.00.

For over thirty-five years Bishop Brewer has been going up and down the valleys and mountains and riding over the prairies and buttes of Montana, preaching the Gospel of "Mother Church" and confirming children to the Church in halls and schoolhouses and cabin homes. The Bishop is still as vigorous and rugged as the eternal hills, but he cannot travel and keep up with the growth of the Church which he has labored to establish. So the convention which met in Butte last June—during the stormy days of the riots when the Miner's Hall was dynamited—elected coadjutor, in the person of Dr. Faber, of Detroit, and beginning with this autumn Bishop Brewer will have assistance in his great work.

COMMISSION ON CHURCH BUILDING

WE have many causes for pride in our Diocese. One is her advanced position in regard to the modern revival of good taste in Church Architecture and decoration. She is one of the few Dioceses which have appointed Commissions to safeguard the parishes against architectural blunders and inspire them with worthy ideals of Church building.

Provision for this important Commission was made in the Convention of 1913. It consists of three Clergymen and six Laymen, three of whom are architects, skilled or learned in ecclesiastical design. It is their duty to examine and approve sites for the location of newly formed and other Missions, to consider the architects plans and designs for the building and the ordering of the land belonging to such Missions; to consider the cost offered for construction, alteration or addition to all Missions; as well as the general schemes for the furnishing and embellishment of all such churches and chapels throughout the Diocese.

In the case of parishes the Commission stands ready to extend assistance in the way of counsel and advice with regard to plans for Church building, furnishing or decoration.

THE response of this Commission to our recent request for advice regarding a scheme of subjects for our windows was most generous and helpful. Two members of the Commission, a Clergyman and an Architect spent most of an afternoon in Mt. Airy studying the Church and consulting with the Rector about the proposed plans.

The following report of the Commission is of general interest:

THE Commission highly commends the action of the Rector and Vestry of Grace Church, Mount Airy, in seeking to adopt a definite scheme of subjects for the glass to be used in the windows of the Church. Of the two schemes outlined, and submitted for study by the Sub-Committee, either, in the opinion of the Commission, would be satisfactory, although subject to the local conditions affecting each scheme.

The Commission would recommend that the Vestry take steps as soon as possible to secure definite designs, cartoons or descriptions of the subjects for the various windows and would advise the Vestry to adopt these designs as those to be usesd, in order to secure the permanency of the scheme as well as to prevent complications arising in the future.

The Commission regards the subject of the installation of memorial objects to be quite as serious and as important as the objects themselves, and would therefore urge upon the Vestry of Grace Church the substitution of stone for the wooden tracery now in place, and to further provide, that the insertion of stone tracery shall be a part of the donation of all windows in the future.

I was further directed to express to you the deep appreciation with which this Commission has held the submission of this problem to it, and to state to you that the members hold themselves ready to serve you whenever you desire their advice or counsel.

Respectfully yours,
BURTON CHANCE Secretary

SUBSCRIPTIONS

ALL 1913-14 subscriptions to the Parish News are now expired. It will relieve the management of sending out direct notices if subscribers will kindly renew without undue delay. Our subscription list has been a good one, especially when we consider that it has not been built up under solicitation. Readers have been anxious to be numbered as supporters.

ALL SAINTS' DAY

THE annual corporate communion of the parish was well observed on All Saints' Day. At the late celebration the Rector preached from the text Heb. 12: 1 and 2—"Wherefore seeing we are compassed about with so great a crowd of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith."

At this service those members of the Parish which have died during the year were commemorated. Announcement was made of numerous memorials and gifts presented to the Church both by individuals and organizations.

AT Evensong those gifts which were already in place were dedicated to their sacred uses. The new choristers, Frederick W. Anton and Richard C. Parker, were admitted to the Choir. Messrs. Gray, Koenig and Bisbing were formally admitted as charter members of the newly organized Guild of Servers.

THE NEW GENERATION

"IT is fitting that Religious Education should have this place of honor on your program for the Festival Week, for it is fundamental in the work of the Church." So commented the Rev. Lester Bradner, Ph. D., who made the address at the evening service on All Saints Day.

Taking as his key note the phrase in the Jubilate "From generation to generation." Dr. Bradner maintained that like the family the Church exists for the sake of a new generation. Her chief concern therefor must be the child rather than the adult. Every form of activity must be judged according to its educational value.

We were reminded that Grace Church Parish is about sixty years old—a span representing two generations, and that our present edifice is about twenty-five—one generation. The work of the founders of the parish has led through two steps to the results by which we are now profiting. We were admonished to press onward, not resting upon the achievements in which those passed on have had the greater part, but through Religious Education of the generation now just rising, to fit them to take our places bye and bye, carrying on the work. As a tree taking deep root, and whose branches wider spread, this parish should become firmly grounded, and of more extended range, for the generations that are to follow us.

THE RT. REV. P. M. RHINELANDER, D. D.
Bishop of Penna.

A perspective of the past shows but two generations while that of the future is unlimited. The only hope of the future lies in the education of the young.

At the conference on the following day, led by Dr. Bradner, he took up the practical application of ways and means of teaching.

As Director of the General Board of Religious Education, he represents thorough, systematic methods which have borne the test of time. Emphasis was laid on home teaching of children as an indispensable adjunct to the instruction of the Church School, which is the core of the parish education. It was pointed out that a teacher must not fall into the rut of pursuing routine matters only, but must work out to the circumference of the childs life; all means, to be effective, must develope a re-action on the part of the child; methods mechanical or perfunctory must be studiously avoided. Information and training in the various organizations of the parish are all developing processes producing ways of action to show what children are learning; in other words, the scholar reacts properly when he gives expression to motives inspired by his instruction. The feature of intelligent leadership was held by Dr. Bradner to be of great importance.

THE REV. S. C. HILL
Rector 1875-1912

THE JUNIOR AUXILIARY

ON Monday the annual meeting of the Junior Auxiliary was held in the Parish House from 3 to 7.30. An address was made by Miss Margaret Y. Bannard, who pointed out the duty and pleasure of service, giving practical suggestions as to the method of accomplishing results. The Rector spoke on many topics of interest to the members. A supper was served, with the Rev. Dr. Brader as the guest of honor.

CONFERENCE ON SOCIAL WORK

A LARGE attendance at the Conference on Tuesday afternoon encouraged the parish workers in the interesting field of Social Betterment. Close attention was paid to the address of Hon. Clinton Rogers Woodruff who spoke eloquently in the practical way of one thoroughly conversant with his subject.

After giving a resumé of the history of the Social Service movement, beginning in England under the name of the Church Service Union that directed attention to legislation helpful to the working class, he took up considerations of moment for Grace Church Parish. We were told that it is not right to assume that in the pleasant prosperous looking suburb in which our lot is cast, there are no destitute; none in trouble; in fact, that there is no social service for us to perform. It is our business to know local conditions perfectly; to be acquainted with all the men, women and children in the parish. The practcal politician knows his ward from end to end, and all about the people in it intimately—makes it his business to. We can do as much.

When we have "lent a hand" to the needy in our own parish, let our activities overflow into some of the city districts, where workers are overwhelmed with demands on their time and purse. An idea new to many, was suggested by the speaker. Let a man or woman of broad sympathy find and become intimately friendly with half a dozen young people, to whom to give timely advice and counsel, for, by some strange bent of nature, many would rather go to others than their own relatives for guidance in time of perplexity.

The speaker invited questions, and very helpfully supplied suggestions for all who wished them.

PARISH RECEPTION

On Tuesday evening the Church parlors were filled with members of the parish, friends and neighbors, to meet the Rector and Mrs. Cline. The most cordial spirt prevailed. The floral decorations added materially to the general effect. Bountiful refreshments were served by the young ladies.

THE MISSIONARY OUTLOOK

AT the meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary held in the Parish House at 11.30 on Wednesday of Dedication Festival week, business matters and reports of delegates to the Diocesan Auxiliary Committees, were disposed of, when the Rev. Franklin J. Clark, Recording Secretary of the Board of Missions, arrived as by arrangement, and made a most interesting address. Although there are great demands on his time and energies, Mr. Clark was very glad to repeat his visit to us during last year's festival week.

He observed that among many people, the thought had found lodgement that missionary work would fail of accomplishing anything during the European war. On the contrary, there is all the more need for continued effort; for systematic effort. As in the days when Nehemiah rebuilt the Walls of Jerusalem, the trumpet call to concentrated action must be answered and now, as then, "Our God shall fight for us." We were told that the first recognized organization of the Board of Missions was held in Philadelphia in 1835, and that the Woman's Auxiliary dated from 1871. The speaker eloquently pictured the scene in the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine when, last autumn, the women of the Church presented that free-will gift which is over and above all pledges or other obligations—a United Offering of $360,000.

THE REV. T. S. CLINE

In 1878 was organized the Sunday School Auxiliary and during the Lenten season of 1913 the harvest for Missions gathered by 450,000 children in their mite boxes reached the splendid figure of $181,000. Mr.

Clark aroused intense enthusiasm by relating that there came a sealed condensed milk can from the Sunday School children of Fairbanks, Alaska, (most food, you know, reaches Alaska now in cans) containing their lenten offering for Missions. It took a can opener to disclose the contents, which proved to be fifty-eight ten dollar gold pieces, and three pennies $580.03. Mr. Clark paid a tribute to the efficiency of systematic giving through the duplex envelopes, and advocated the Every Member Canvass for pledges.

A. L. E. CROUTER, LL. D.
Rectors Warden

The speaker's time would hardly permit him to take up a discussion of the missionary work among the Indians, or the Negroes of the South, but he reminded us of the crying needs of the Southern mountaineers—our highlanders, who number upwards of five million souls, including one million children. They are a people apart; they are 300 years behind the times; they have no respect for law as we know it. Living up to their traditions, a man supplies the deficiencies in protection to life and property by the use of any weapon available. Utter lawlessness prevails and the only hope for that race is in the education of the children. At this date less than one twentieth of these children are receiving a Christian education. Think of that for a missionary field!

Mr. Clark referred to an anonymous gift of $100,000, recently made for missions in Utah, saying that this was especially welcome, as the funds for supporting work in that field were at a low ebb.

In conclusion it was stated that one of the stock excuses for withholding money for Missions in the foreign field, was the often heard remark—"it takes a dollar to get a dollar to the heathen," while statistics show that administrative expenses of the Board of Missions are only three and one-fifth per cent. of the funds handled, and, if people would give what they do less reluctantly, the six per cent. now required to collect the money would be very materially reduced.

Following the address, a luncheon was served by the ladies, at which Mr. Clarke with Mr. Cline were guests.

CONFERENCE OF PARISH WORKERS

    The Benediction

THE assembly sang with fervor hymn number 491, "The Church's One Foundation," one of those used at the laying of the cornerstone twenty-five years ago. Dr. Crouter then pointed out the difference between practical and half hearted parish workers, holding up a high ideal of service.

Mr. Bayard took us back to the first Church edifice of Grace Parish. It was small, the windows were narrow but the people sat up close and each one knew everybody else. When the old Church was outgrown it became necessary to provide on a much larger scale for requirements at that time, and for the future. The rare foresight, energy and generosity of Mr. Franklin B. Gowen, then Rector's Warden, brought about far better results than would have resulted if the new Church had been built on Germantown Avenue as first planned. From the first, it was the best that was chosen for the house of God; the best available architect, the best site and the best materials. There were many new comers, and the close harmony of the old congregation was a thing to re-establish, but it came about in due time. The envelope system lately adopted relieves us of a load of anxiety carried in the past, insuring, as it does, strong financial support, while the help of the system to the cause of missions is far beyond expectations.

F. M. DUNN
Secretary of the Vestry

MISS Sewall referred to the solemn charge to the Church in the Wilderness—"Thou shalt remember all the way the Lord thy God led thee." She pointed out how the Lord had led the women of this Parish from that first meeting in Red Men's Hall on February 20, 1888, when the first organization was formed to the present time. Many interesting events were recalled and significiant facts and figures presented. Miss Sewall closed with these words:

Much of the work of a united Chruch is like the Mosaic pavement of a Sanctuary; each bit of stone is scarcely distinguishable, yet in its place essential to the completeness and solidity of the structure where worshippers safely stand in prayer and praise.

The workers change. Some of those who have worked most devotedly in the Auxiliary and Guild for its Missionary and Parish interests, rest from their earthly labors. Some have moved away and are at work elsewhere. Let us give thanks for the others who from time to time have entered into our labors and still continue with us.

MRS. George, in speaking of the Women's Work, opened by saying that it depended upon the training of the girls. After describing the work of the Junior Auxiliary she proceeded to tell about the present work and aim of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild. We print the text of her address elsewhere.

IN speaking of the "Responsibility of Laymen" in the Church's Work for Missions, Mr. Meehan thought there should be one standard of responsibility for all Christians—not one for men, one for women, one for children and another for the clergy. Their should be no distinctions as to responsibility—it must be a standard of efficient work—no shirking—no hesitation, but well directed, strong effort for the spread of The Kingdom.

MRS. Crouter, Principal of the Church School spoke of the Educational work of the parish.

The school has just entered with enthusiasm upon the second year of graded study. There is a strong corps of teachers and a growing body of scholars. The graduate department has been strengthened by the addition of a training course for prospective teachers and a flourishing organized Bible Class for young men. The School session has been divided into two periods. The first shorter period is devoted to church knowledge and memory work, culminating in a public catechism by the Rector. A special Cathechism is being compiled for this purpose which is eventually to be published in book form. Already the children have mastered some forty questions and answers.

A parish Conference in the interest of Religious Education will be held the first Wednesday evening of each month. This will promote co-operation between teachers and parents.

THE "Boys of the Church" have a valiant champion in Mr. G. Harry Davis, Assistant Scout Master of Troop 67, Boy Scouts of America, and well may he be proud of that troop. He explained away a popular misapprehension that the Scout movement has a military color—that the intention is to make soldiers ultimately of them; nothing of the kind. The aim and object is to make men of them—to take boys of from 12 to 18 years of age and show them how much better it is to be truthful than to lie; to be manly than mean; to be courteous than boorish; to lend a hand than be indifferent. The Scout Law is pretty stiff, candidates without a bone in their backs need not apply. High standards—the highest standard; nothing less, is required of a Scout. There isn't a "not" in the rules. There are orders to do something. No dont's.

Mr. Davis related an instance going to show the stuff our Scouts are made of: While in Camp, down came a tent one night; it didn't come down of itself. It was helped down. The Scout Master scented mischief and a lad known to have a surplus of that commodity about him and very likely to have been the author of the prank was ordered out to put up the tent forthwith. Without a word the job was done though it took an hour of hard work; and well done. The next morning another scout came up, saluted and owned up to having been the culprit. It's a good thing to be a scout.

THERE are many activities in the parish but it is never forgotten that worship is the central purpose of the Church. Even in this Conference of Workers it received its proper recognition and emphasis. Mr. Chrisman, who has recently accepted the office of Warden of the Servers Guild, spoke in an impressive manner about the Holy Communion as the Central act of Christian worship. He pointed out the distinction between the two aspects of the service as reflected in the names, "Communion" and "Eucharist," emphasizing the latter. He appealed to the example of the early Christians who not only weekly but daily gathered for the Breaking of Bread and urged more frequent attendance at the Eucharistic worship. Mr. Chrisman also spoke in favor of an open Church, where individuals would feel free to enter and meditate or pray at any time week day or Sunday.

THE REV. J. H. LAMB, D. D.
Historian

THE work of the Altar Guild was beautifully described by its president, Mrs. Lowber. She spoke of the high ideals of scrupulous cleanliness, careful forethought and reverence which characterize the work.

Everything is "done decently and in order." There is an obedient and teachable spirit among the members, who ever desire to attain a higher degree of perfection in their sacred work. One felt as Mrs. Lowber told of these hidden ministrations that those who performed them regarded their work a pleasure and privilege.

MR. Manning, president of the Communicants Guild said the name did not convey a clear idea of its scope and purpose.

It is composed of those who have been presented for Confirmation by the present Rector and its object is to insure their perseverance in the Christian way. It grows out of the pastoral love of the Rector who desires to keep in close touch with young Communicants. It aims also to promote mutual interest and helpfulness among its members.

SEVERAL of the papers presented are printed elsewhere, including that on the newly organized work of Social Service by the Chairman, Mrs. Parkman; that on Church Periodicals by Mr. Pease and that on the Young Men of the Church by the President of the Young Churchmen's Association, Mr. McGuire. In the absence of Mr. Coleman, the Brotherhood of St. Andrew was not represented.

THE Rector reviewed the year that has passed since the last Dedication Festival and found ample evidence of substantial progress.

Among the things accomplished during the year he mentioned the following:

The Kindergarten Canvass and sending out of Coaches to gather the little children for the Church School; the first years work of the Graded School; the beginning of a course of Teacher Training; the Every Member Canvass instituting the duplex envelope system which has resulted in larger giving both for Missions and Parish work and eliminated the dreaded deficits; the establishment of an Endowment Fund; the organization of a Social Service department; the development of a superior troop of Boy Scouts; the organization of the Young Churchmen's Association and of a Server's Guild; the beautifying of the Church by the addition of the West window and other ornaments.

Together with the vital statistics of the parish for the past year, the past quarter century and the life of the parish (57 years) the Rector gave figures indicating the growth of attendance at Sunday services and celebrations of the Holy Communion.

THE MEN'S DINNER

NEARLY sixty men gathered on Thursday evening at the Parish House to partake of the substantial dinner provided by the Committee and to listen to distinguished speakers who favored us with their presence. Bishop Rhinelander spoke on the evolution of a Men's Club. At first the gatherings of men serve as "recruiting stations" for the Church. They form a "bridge" as it were to Church life and activity. But the time should come when Churchmen strongly conscious of the bond which unites them in Christ delight to mingle socially without ulterior motives.

Mr. George H. Streaker, the boy's man, the keen character architect, told us that in the boys now batting at baseball, the chaps at foot ball, the urchins with a strap full of school books, were going to take our places pretty soon, and that on them depended the destiny of this country. All that, we knew before, but in some way, when Mr. Streaker got through, the boys looked bigger than before.

It's our business to see these boys turn into Christian men—and not only average Christians at that.

The Rector, God bless him, received an ovation when called to his feet. He made a plea for the application of the principles of efficiency to the Church.

Edward James Cattel, Esq., the versatile orator, plied us with municipal statistics, held before us high ideals of the manhood that puts self in the background and without the least effort had his audience in a roar from start to finish with witty illustrations.

Mr. William W. Roper presided with the ease and dignity which marks the born toastmaster.

COMMUNICANTS' GUILD

THE Communicants' Guild held its annual meeting in the Parish House on the evening of November 6.

The officers, Mr. A. Clarence Manning, President, and Miss Estelle M. Steel, Secretary-Treasurer, were re-elected for another year. A committee, appointed to purchase a gift for the Church, reported that an altar book had been bought.

It was decided to celebrate Corporate Communion twice this year, on Advent Sunday and on Trinity Sunday. The Guild decided to give its special support to the Conference on the fourth Wednesday evening of the month, which is to be devoted to personal religion. For the members of the Guild the Rector has arranged a service on the Saturday afternoon before the first Sunday of the month as a preparatory service for the Holy Communion.

The President and the Rector made short addresses giving special attention to the fact that the purpose of the Guild is to aid the Rector in keeping in close touch with the younger members of the Church.

The Rector conducted the devotional exercises, exhorting the members to steadfastness and perseverence.

THE CHILDREN'S PARTY

SATURDAY afternoon of Festival Week, was begun most interestingly by the planting of an oak tree on the lawn of the Church, thus commemorating the children's part in the anniversary. The day was bright and it was a very happy scene as the children gathered around the sturdy young oak while the Rector briefly addressed them. He contrasted the youth of the oak with the age of the venerable cherry tree nearby, which is known to have borne fruit for over a century. Prayers were said, with reverent attention on the part of the children, the tree dedicated, and then followed the actual planting—an act and a sight every one present will remember all his life. Four lines of boys and girls filed up to the tree, each successively throwing in a shovelful of earth. Every age was represented, from scarce three years, to that of our good friend, the Sexton.

The Rector, the Superintendent of the Church School, the Rector's Warden, teachers, officers, parents and friends, joined in the memorable event. The singing of the National Anthem added to the inspiration of the occasion.

After the services at the oak, the children of the Church School were very kindly entertained by Mr. Geo. H. Streaker, Superintendent of St. Stephen's Sunday School, who made a most interesting address entitled "Ships," illustrated by excellent lantern slides. Mr. Streaker showed his audience all imaginable forms of craft, from the primitive canoe and dugout of the savage, to the modern dreadnaught. The children were shown Roman and Greek galleys, the vessels of the Norsemen, the tiny fleet of Columbus, early war vessels of Venice, of France, of Spain and of England. There were pictures of sea fighters when gun powder came into use, the first craft propelled by steam and so on up to the fleet ocean greyhounds, the submarines, torpedo boats and mighty floating fortresses.

At appropriate places in the lecture a chorus rendered deep sea ballads, for which we are indebted to Miss Caroline Y. Crouter, Miss Sydney Hood, Miss Ida Jefferson, Miss Susanne Coleman, Miss Elizabeth Insinger and Miss Sarah Meehan, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. George A. Rumsey.

Directly after the lecture, the children were invited to the Kindergarten room where gingerbread, milk, apples and nuts were served in unlimited quantity.

THE ENDOWMENT FUND

Previous to the Dedication Festival the following circular was mailed to the parishioners.

The expenditures of every Church tend steadily to increase. Its receipts fluctuate greatly with the changes in the population to which it ministers. It is, therefore, most desirable that every Parish Church should have some endowment, the income from which may supplement the offerings from its members.

With this in view, our late Rector, the Rev. S. C. Hill, by his will gave the sum of $1000 to The Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities, in trust, to accumulate and invest the income therefrom, together with any sums received from other sources for the same purpose, until the principal of the fund should amount to $10,000; after which the income from that sum will be payable to the Church. This forms the nucleus of our Endowment Fund. The Vestry have adopted a plan for the accumulation in like manner of successive sums of $10,000, and have resolved that the Thank Offering at the time of our Annual Dedication Festival shall be added to this fund.

What better way can we take to show our own appreciation of the blessings we are receiving from the Church than to help to preserve them for those who, after we are gone, will worship within her walls? Every one of us can have a part in this. Let each one give according to his ability and to the measure of his thankfulness for the spiritual help he has here received.

For the Vestry,
A. L. E. Crouter,
Rector's Warden
J. W. Bayard,

The offering on All Saints Day for the Parish endowment fund was $284.21 which brings the fund up to $1284.21. This fund may be added to at any time. Any amount sent to the Accounting Warden or put on the plate and marked for that purpose will be promptly delivered to the Trustee. We should try to increase it as soon as possible to at least $10,000, so that the Church may get the benefit of the income.

MEMORIALS AND GIFTS

IN memory of loved ones gone before, and in affection for the Parish Church, many beautiful tokens have been placed or promised during the Festival week:

A double window, to be placed in the South transept. Subject: The Annunciation. A memorial to Caroline Martin Breed.

A single window in the chancel. Subject: The Supper at Emmaus.

A new Bible for the Lecturn. A memorial to Lelan Bates.

A Book of Altar Services. Presented by the Communicants Guild.

A Litany Book. Presented by Chapter No. 490, Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT CONFERENCES

AROUND every parish is an outer fringe of indifference—more ornamental than useful. The widening circle of activity in Grace Church is a healthy sign. There is now going on in the Church such a rich variety of work and study that even casual onlookers are daily being swept into the vortex of enthusiasm and service.

All who are particularly anxious to avoid being interested in the Church are warned to keep away from the Wednesday night conferences. By a happy rotation of subjects various aspects of Church work will be presented as follows: the first Wednesday evening each month, Religious Education; the second, Social Service; the third, Missions; the fourth, Personal Religion.

Each of these subjects suggests at once many sub-topics of vital interest to all thinking people today. The scheme is easily remembered. Special speakers and topics will be announced from time to time. But this much is pretty certain, there will be something of interest in Grace Church Parish House every Wednesday night from now on until Easter.

THE CHRISTMAS SHIP

AN earnest appeal was made to some of the women of Grace Church to come to the Parish House and sew for the children of the Belgian War Sufferers. There was a hearty response and some twenty-five women met on Friday, October 23rd, from 9 to 5, and worked with zeal and diligence. As a result of their efforts 138 garments were made, and money donated to more than pay for the cost of materials, leaving a balance of several dollars to be added to the fund for the purchase of boots and shoes.

There was also a contribution of warm second-hand clothing valued at $16.50 for the Red Cross work.

It surely was a privilege to have even a small share in this great undertaking in Philadelphia by the Child's Federation to give relief and Christmas cheer to thousands of little ones across the seas, who, like the Babe in Bethlehem, have not where to lay their heads.

THE KINDERGARTEN

A permanent Kindergarten Canvass Committee has been organized as follows: Mrs. A. Harris Insinger, Chairman; Mrs. Reginald N. Hall, Mrs. Robert J. Thompson, Mrs. S. Mendelson Meehan, Mrs. Frederick T. McGuire, Mrs. Albert C. Brand, Miss G. L. Bender, Mrs. Allen F. Horton, Mrs. Harry M. Brown, Mrs. James C. Robb, Mrs. Chas. B. Hansell, Mrs. Frank G. Landis, Mrs. H. W. Goodall, Mrs. Chas. B. Dunn, Mrs. Chas. S. Pease.

The coaches will call for children throughout the parish for the Kindergarten class Sunday morning, if notice is sent to Mrs. R. N. Hall, 31 Gowen Avenue.

HONORABLE MENTION

Troop 67 Boy Scouts, continues to make satisfactory progress, and interest in it continues unabated. Its membership has now reached 40; which will be the limit for the time being, as it is felt that a larger number than this can hardly be efficiently handled. However, those in charge are working on a plan to provide for a larger number of boys, and no doubt when more complete it will take care of all the boys desiring to join.

The Panther Patrol under the leadership of Stanley L. Thornton, and consisting of J. Gowen Hood, Edward Jefferson, John Williams, John Hansell, Gelston Hardy, Harold Hansell, Robert Cridland, Dimmick Baldy and Yale Crouter were entered in the All-Philadelphia Competition Drill. This event was held at Belmont Plateau on Saturday, November 7th. A large silver cup was the trophy. The interest among the Boy Scouts was very great, as many Troops entered, and the competition was very keen.

Inasmuch as our boys were members of a comparatively new troop, it was not expected by the other Scouts that "67" would be a serious competitor. However, the lads entered with grim determination. After the event it was announced that Troop 93 had won with an average of 93 per cent. and Troop 67 was second with an average of 92 per cent., Troop 131 being third with an average of 90 per cent. In view of the short time our boys had in preparing for this event their showing is very commendable.

There were a number of other events at this meet; competition in signalling, wood chopping, bandaging, handicraft, etc. Our troop was represented in all these activities but they were not so successful as the Panthers in their event. The Scout Masters watched them in their various efforts and by noting the manner in which they conducted themselves we could not help but feel our time was well spent and showed a magnificient return.

THANKSGIVING DAY

THURSDAY, November 26th, will be duly observed in Grace Church as the Day of National Thanksgiving. Morning Prayer will be read at 9.30, Troop No. 67, Boy Scouts of America will attend in a body. There will be a formal presentation of a silk National flag to the Church with appropriate ceremony and address.

The great service of the day, the Holy Eucharist, will begin at 10.30. The full choir will be in attendance.

NOTES

The contribution from this parish for the Red Cross which was received on the National Day of Prayer for Peace was $41.24.

Mrs. John G. Kaufman of Stenton gave a "cellar party" recently and sent the proceeds amounting to twelve dollars to Grace Church to be used for the work of the Social Service Committee.

The organ recitals at the close of Evening Prayer during the Sundays of the past month have been highly appreciated. The program is posted from Sunday to Sunday in the vestibule.

There will be a Corporate Communion for the men of the Parish on Advent Sunday, November 29th at 7.30 A. M. Following the service, breakfast will be served in the parish house under the direction of the Young Churchmen's Association.

Bishop Rhinelander will visit Grace Church for Confirmation on the evening of Quinquagesima Sunday, February 14, 1915. Classes of preparation will be organized during Advent and begin regular sessions immediately after Christmas.

At the Festival Service of the Church School on All Saints Day the following scholars were awarded Bibles for bringing new scholars:

Allen Horton, Jr.
Richardson Hansell
William Hansell
Rutherford Brown.

Some of the long resident, and several former members of Grace Parish, have joined in giving expression to their appreciation of the efficient and faithful services of Mr. E. L. Hagenbaugh as Sexton during thirty years, by presenting him with a wallet containing sixty dollars.

Mr. Hagenbaugh desires to make grateful acknowledgement of this remembrance.

The following letter from the General Secretary of the General Board of Religious Education, is published in full as being an unqualified approval by an expert of the plans for teacher training of this parish.

New York, October 6, 1914.

Rev. Thos. S. Cline,
Gowen & Ardleigh Sts.,
Mt. Airy, Phila., Pa.

My Dear Mr. Cline:

Just a note of congratulation to you on the splendid program outlined in your October Parish News. I am very glad that Mrs. Crouter will direct this work for I am sure Grace Church, Mt. Airy, will be able to give us a demonstration of how Teacher Training can be conducted in the local parish in accordance with the plans of the Standard Curriculum.

Faithfully yours,
William E. Gardner,
General Secretary

RECTOR'S OFFICE HOURS

I HAVE appointed the following special times for the consideration of the details of parish work: Wednesdays, 11 A. M. to 1 P. M.; Fridays, 4 P. M. to 5 P. M. In addition to these I can usually be seen at the Rectory from 2 P. M. to 3 P. M. daily or at the conclusion of any service or conference.

May I ask the members of the congregation to observe these "office hours" when convenient? In this way I shall be enabled to keep my mornings free for un-interrupted study.

Faithfully Yours,
THOMAS S. CLINE

THE OBSERVER

The custom of giving anniversary presents to the Church is indeed a delightful and fitting one. May it be perpetuated. But the gifts already presented start one thinking. Must we wait for another Dedication Festival to add many much needed things, such as: outdoor lanterns in front of the Church, parish house and rectory, a safe in the sacristy where certain precious things could be safely lodged, a reliable sacristy clock, and last but not least a cloak room for the use of the Church School scholars and others?

It has probably escaped the notice of all but the Observer that we are fast outgrowing our parish house. The Primary Department was already mobilizing for a war of expansion when the excellent scheme for an exchange of rooms with the Kindergarten Department relieved the situation. The parish house is already out of date in several respects. Ventilation in the Guild room and Choir room calls for immediate attention.

There is pressing need for space for cloak rooms and additional toilets. But most urgent of all is the necessity for spacious stairways leading to the Church School Room. If this cannot now be accomplished, an outside fire escape should be provided without delay.

After the Men's Dinner the other evening one man remarked to the Rector. "The establishment of an Endowment Fund is a wise step, I want to add fifty dollars to it." That is the idea. Once started this Fund is bound to commend itself to men of foresight. "Who hath despised the day of small things?"

CHURCH PERIODICALS

WILL you very kindly permit me to draw your attention to the important matter of keeping posted upon current Church news?

We all propose to keep pretty well up with the information in the daily press, comprising war news, local and general politics, the cotton situation, slides in the Panama Canal, the coming Worlds Fair in California, social happenings, offerings of music and the drama, sports and the fashions. We would perhaps rather dislike to be known as quite ignorant of the latest murder trial, or some divorce proceedings. We are presumed to have, at the very least, a bowing acquaintance with the magazines, new books, critiques, and even the heavy reviews. Do not stop there, include in your reading the Church periodicals.

Beginning from the center and proceeding outward, let me prescribe The Grace Church Parish News, our home paper; The Diocesan News, covering great interests under the ministrations of our beloved bishops; either The Churchman or The Living Church, or both, as representing the American Church at large, and the Spirit of Missions, whose field is the world.

Remember that The Grace Church Parish News is issued every month in the year, and takes no vacations. It can find you in the mountains, at the shore, or wherever you take your outing. Remember that in the summer school, the convention, in the quaint country church you attend, a record of your impressions may be of great interest to those who cannot travel so far as you. Let the Parish News hear from you.

As the organ of our parish, the News wants more readers and more writers. Let us make it a paper whose issues the people will look forward to as interesting and helpful; particularly let all the parish organizations be represented by note, or by extended mention as events warrant, in each number. The diocesan paper has similar claims upon our attention, and should find a place in every home.

In The Churchman, and in The Living Church, are found not only up to date news of the American Church, but essays showing the trend of thought of eminent churchmen, together with an extensive miscellany.

The Spirit of Missions is so well known that it needs no advocate.

Special inducements offered for subscriptions to these publications will be found fully set forth in the following paragraphs:

The Churchman Company offers to new subscribers The Churchman for one year, and The Grace Church Parish News for three years, for the one regular subscription price of $3.50.

The Young Churchman Company offers to new subscribers The Living Church for one year, and The Grace Church Parish News for two years, for the one regular subscription price of $2.50.

The Spirit of Missions is offered to new subscribers for one year for the price of $1.00 with the premium of a new book: The Social Aspects of Foreign Missions, by Dr. William Herbert Perry Faunce, President of Brown University,—"distinctly good reading, as well as an excellent study work."

Our own parish paper has a very small paid subscription list, and with the increasing columns required to meet the growing needs, the publication requires more financial support. Its subscription price is only fifty cents per year. Sample copies may be had from the ushers at church services.

The Business Manager gratefully acknowledges the many subscriptions received since the last issue, both new and renewed. It is not only a real financial help, but as well personal encouragement. We have a feeling that most persons appreciate the Parish News, but when that appreciation is shown in the more positive way through a subscription the assurance has a stronger foundation.

Other renewals will be gladly received at this time.

The Church News of the Diocese of Pennsylvania is offered at the uniform subscription price of $1.00 per annum. Sample copies may be had from the ushers at church services.

Those desiring to subscribe for any of the above publications may send the stated amount to the undersigned, who will attend to their requirements and turn over any cash premiums to the business manager of our parish paper.

Faithfully yours,

CHARLES S. PEASE,
7442 Devon Street, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, Penna.

WOMEN'S WORK

WOMEN'S work in the Church begins with the training of little girls and so inspiring them with the love of service and awakening their interest in the work of the Church, that they will be true and loyal Church women all their days. To this end the Junior Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary was formed, of which Grace Church has three divisions, namely Babies Branch, Primary Juniors and Older Juniors. Meetings are held twice each month, and considerable work is accomplished between October and June. Last year two boxes were sent to Missionaries, valued at $115.00. Seventy-five dollars were sent to the Board of Missions, and $21.50 was raised to purchase clothing for a needly child in the Parish.

The true love of giving and doing can not be without knowledge of the needs, and so three Mission Study Classes were held during Lent. One Junior won the prize for the best examination paper in the Diocese, receiving $5.00 as a reward, which she forwarded to St. Mary's, Shanghai, and one of the classes collected $20.00 as an offering for St. Hilda's, Wuchang. The Juniors elect their own officers at the annual meeting, have two stated meetings each year and transact all their own business. It is earnestly wished that every girl in the Parish would realize her privilege and duty to serve her Master, and become personally interested.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild has continued the same good work during the past year as in previous years.

In the early Spring, the Bishop appointed Mrs. North to be Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering, and in consequence we lost her as our President, much to the sincere regret of every member of the Auxiliary.

Let us here record the sad loss of a devoted member, and untiring Secretary in Mrs. George Fitch Breed, who has passed to her rest.

Every year a box of new garments is prepared for each branch of the Mission Work of the Church and last year the total value of five boxes was $728.97. In addition several boxes of second hand clothing were forwarded to different parts of the country.

Delegates attend the monthly meetings of the Missionary Committees at the Church House, bringing back a report to the weekly meetings so that we are kept in touch with the work at home and abroad. Also there are four delegates to the Women's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown. The intention is to cover the entire field of Women's activities in the Church. The Funds, brought in through the duplex envelopes, which are a counterpart of those used throughout Grace Church, are used in purchasing materials for the boxes, furnishings for the Church, and for responding to the many appeals that come to us through letters and from Missionaries themselves at the monthly meetings at the Church House. The United Offering is a most important factor, and as I do not feel qualified to speak of it—I refer every one to Mrs North's message in the October number of Grace Church Parish News. Women's work also includes Social Service, and an interesting account of the work of the Committee in that field will be found in this number. The Committee has our hearty congratulations in the work already accomplished, and will have our co-operation and interest in all its plans. The members of the Auxiliary are not only accomplishing Missionary and Parochial work but are always alert to cope with emergencies, as was shown a short time ago, when a little band of women under Mrs. Pease's direction, helped to load the Christmas Ship, of which another notice will be found in this number.

I am not sufficiently imaginative to draw a picture of the future, but I am sure it will spell the words,

LOYALTY—SERVICE—SUCCESS

YOUNG CHURCHMAN'S ASSOCIATION

THE Young Churchman's Association is an organization of young men in Grace Church Parish, which meets every Monday evening, in the Parish House, at 8.00 o'clock.

A systematic course of study of the Life of Christ is conducted by the Rector, in a most interesting and effectual manner.

The events in Christ's Life are presented to us every evening as we are assembled, just as though they were occurrences of the present time, and of our immediate concern, affording a conception of character and deeds which may well serve as a pattern for our own lives.

A full appreciation of the benefits of this study can be best realized by attending the Young Churchman's meetings, and a sincere and cordial invitation, to do so is extended.

After a devotional and study period, but secondary thereto, music and other entertainment is a regular part of the program.

A Christian fellowship is rapidly developing, and the members are given a needed opportunity of getting acquainted, and learning of the abundance of good in the other fellow.

The first meeting of the Association was held October fifth, nineteen hundred and fourteen, and, notwithstanding the organization was but recently formed, the membership is constantly increasing. The earnest enthusiasm manifested, promises an association of highly beneficial influence and strength for helpful and constructive work.

REPORT OF SOCIAL WORK

IN view of a growing interest on every hand in the Social Service movement and of an increased sense of responsibility in each indivdual, it seems to behoove us as a presperous and up-to-date Parish to step forward in the march of the times and line up our force of workers. Consequently a number of interested people accepted the invitation of our Rector to meet one evening last May and talk over plans for an organized effort.

At a second general meeting in June, Mr. Cline appointed a Finance Committee and a Visiting Committee with a Chairman and Secretary-Treasurer. Since then regular weekly conferences have been held beginning with a meeting on July 14th, at which time we were fortunate in having an address from the Rev. R. M. Little, General Secretary of the Society for Organizing Charity, on the subject of "Social Service and the Church."

In subsequent conferences an effort has been made to plan means of relief for those persons whose names are on our books. These names were secured by Mr. Thomas H. Ball from the local Poor Board and also through the canvass of the Parish early in the year, in behalf of the kindergarten in the Church School. That canvass revealed the existance of many poor families within the limits of our Parish and the necessity for such a committee as this. As a result our energies have been devoted to friendly visiting only. Seventy-one calls have been made by our visitors up to the present time, resulting in many forms of relief. Through the assistance of our Social Service Committee, a tubercular case was removed from the Chestnut Hill Home for Consumptives to the Orthopoedic Hospital for some very essential treatment. This costs the Committee $3 a week and it is urgently hoped that sufficient interest can be aroused to extend this opportunity for as long a time as she needs specific treatment. If anyone may feel interested in this appeal we shall be glad to confer later. Our aim is, if possible, to make this young woman self-supporting.

An effort has been made to learn to know and to co-operate with the many agencies for good in this city of Brotherly Love. We have already received invaluable aid from the Germantown branch of the Society for Organizing Charity. On August 4th, Mr. Longshore of the City Misson attended our conference and explained to us the system used by the Fuel Saving Fund of Philadelphia.

Four physicians of good standing have kindly agreed to assist us when called upon to advise or prescribe.

Several ladies of the Auxiliary cheerfully continued their Wednesday meetings during the hot Summer months and as a result we have fifty-eight infants' garments for distribution. In addition to this, the Auxiliary voted at the last meeting to assist the Social Service Committee in making garments during the coming Winter. Therefore a Committee has been formed to take charge of that part of the work. The Finance Committee very successfully engineered a Supper and Bazaar at the Stenton Country Club, on September 29th, whereby our bank account was increased by the substantial sum of $291.38.

We will be able to find many valuable side-lights in a number of books on subjects relative to Social Service, which have been loaned and presented to the Parish, and which form a promising addition to the fine library started by the Woman's Guild. Miss Kaighn has kindly consented to act as librarian for us and has made a splendid card index.

Information in regard to the establishment of a play-ground at the lower end of the Parish has been secured and further steps will be taken at the opening of the New Year. We long ardently for volunteers, not only for friendly visiting but to organize into other branches of Social Service. The Fuel Saving Fund, for instance, needs a station in Mt. Airy. We want a Committee to work in connection with the Fruit, Flower and Ice Mission, also one to co-operate with the Child Federation in giving advice to ignorant mothers on the care and feeding of children, and among others a Committee to visit the wards of our local hospitals. The work must, of necessity, go slowly during the first months of effort. The chief aims are to learn to know the ground upon which we stand, to see the special demands of our immediate surroundings, and to hold ourselves in readiness for sudden calls upon our funds and our energies.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE

WE are observing this week the Festival of Dedication. We are thinking of the opening and consecration of our beautiful Church twenty-five years ago, and it has been interesting to discover that our woman's organization is nearly two years older than our Church building! According to the first minute on record—"A few ladies of the congregation of Grace Church, Mount Airy, proposed to form a 'Women's Working Guild' to help in raising funds for the new Church; and, the rector cordially approving, a meeting was called for February 20, 1888, to be held at Red Men's Hall." The meeting was well attended. Officers were elected, corresponding in title and number to those of our present organization, and, until within three years, we have worked under exactly the same constitution.

The Vice President elected at that first meeting is today a dear and valued member of our Executive Committee. The first Treasurer, Miss Rachael S. Miller, of blessed memory, whose life and presence were a benediction to all, served faithfully for twenty-one years. Glancing down the list of the Executive Committee, we note the names of several who are still members of Grace Church. Some have "passed on." Some are in other parishes. So much for the personnel of the Women's Working Guild, which was in very truth a working guild. The first vote recorded is to the effect that a fair shall be held!

At the first stated meeting, on April 3, there were thirty members present. There was a report of receipts of more than $600. We note the items:—$134 from Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works; nearly $300 from a strawberry festival; and $196 from envelopes—undoubtedly special subscriptions as well as "dues." At that time, and for many years, there were membership dues of not less than five or more than twenty-five cents a month, and these dues were, in the early days, collected by the parish visitors.

The revenue of the organization increased steadily and rapidly until in 1890, it was reported that $2477.79 had been spent for Church furnishings, the largest items being, pew cushions $542; stone pulpit $465; and brass lecturn $425. The first contribution to the "Rectory Fund", in May 1890, was $121.25, the proceeds of a strawberry festival. From that time until the year 1913 of large outlay (with a single exception when the vestry came to our assistance) it has been the pleasure and within the ability of the Guild, not only to raise a mortgage of $7000 resting upon the rectory—thus freeing the church property from debt, but also to make all necessary repairs and to pay for a new heater in 1903 at a cost of $490.

The parish house was enlarged in 1894 by the addition of the kitchen building, cost $1800.

An organ was purchased for the Sunday School, cost $100.

Where there have not been individual gifts, altar furnishings, vestments for clergy and choir, flowers for the altar (for which there is a special "Flower Fund" from envelopes sent out in Advent) are some, but not all of the responsibilities of the Guild.

In 1902 the name of the organization was changed from "The Women's Guild" to "The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild," thus expressing what in actual fact had existed from an early date—that it was not only an organization to work within the limits of its own parish, but that its members belonged to the great army of missionary workers.

The first record of the sending out of a missionary box is in 1890—only two years after the organization of the Working Guild. It was for the Rev. G. W. G. Van Winkle at Hailey, Idaho, who is now recorded as rector of St. Paul's Church, Columbus, Montana. Unfortunately the value of this earliest missionary box is not given. The missionary spirit has been awakened and quickened with the increase of knowledge and interest in missions until the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild can report, for the year 1913-14, for mission work within the diocese, $186.25—General Missions (counting on the parish apportionment) $450; Specials $93; and the value of the missionary boxes, for all branches of the work, $728.97; making a total for missions of $1458.22.

Any review of the life of the Auxiliary would be incomplete without allusion to the United Offering—the Churchwoman's great Thank-Offering and Gift of Substitution, which is presented triennially at the time of the meeting of the General Convention. The first Thank-Offering from our parish was presented at St. Paul in 1895. It was from twenty-four young women of the Guild of the Silver Cross, to whom the blue boxes had been given by their President on condition that each member should place therein one cent a week. The amount of the offering was $12. The last triennial offering of the women of Grace Church was $768.37. Every woman in the parish should be a contributor to the United Offering. In no other way can we realize its ideal as expressed by the word "united."

The Auxiliary has also a "Birthday Fund" established in 1899, primarily to help in paying the mortgage on the rectory. Its first $100 was so applied. Since that payment the fund has been devoted to parish uses, such as the purchase of furnishings for the guild room and the chest and rug in the sacristy. This fund is intended for every member of the parish. It accomplishes much with very little hardship to the individual contributor who simply gives the amount of his or her age at birthdays.

The adoption by the Auxiliary in January, 1912, of the duplex envelope, for parish and missionary purposes, marked an important advance both in the increase of the number of contributing members and in the amounts available for all uses.

There are many present-day problems facing the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild. One of the most important is—How shall we interest the women who as yet are not active workers or even contributors? We need the latter, oh! so much, to give an increase of revenue that we may be able to meet the growing demands upon the treasury; but, above all, we want the active members for themselves and for ourselves, that we may work together unitedly, and that they may know the joy of service. We must not, we dare not, stand still. As Bishop Lloyd so well expressed it at the Woman's Mass Meeting in Carnegie Hall in October, 1913—"We must always set our stakes a little higher." This leads us to the thought and the question:—What of the future? What does it hold for us? We and it are in God's keeping, but He asks us to pray more earnestly, to work with greater diligence and devotion, to realize as never before our responsibilities, and to be keenly alive to each and every opportunity. Then, although we may fall far short of our ideals, "the touch of His hand will make all complete."

THE CONSECRATION SERVICE

At one of the Conferences the Rector read the following article taken from the Church Standard of November 23, 1889:

"On Wednesday, November 13th, Bishop Whitaker consecrated the new substantial and symmetrical edifice of Grace Church, at Gowen and Ardleigh Avenues, Mt. Airy. Rev. S. C. Hill is rector of the parish. More than sixty clergymen in surplices attended the service, those to whom parts of the service were assigned being Rev. Drs. S. Upjohn, J. K. Murphy, J. de Wolf Perry, J. B. Falkner, J. A. Harris, B. Watson, and two former rectors of the church, A. B. Atkins, D. D., and R. A. Edwards. The sermon was by Rt. Rev. Dr. Whitehead, Bishop of Pittsburgh. After thanking his seminary classmate, the rector, for the invitation to preach, and congratulating him and the Bishop of the diocese upon the erection of this and so many noble churches which are rising in this region, he announced the text, Esther V. 2: 'And it was so when the King saw Esther the Queen standing in the court, that she obtained favor in his sight; and the King held out to Esther the golden scepter that was in his hand. So Esther drew near and touched the top of the scepter.' Picturing the timid approach of the Queen, forfeiting thereby, under custom, her life, but being graciously received, the Right Reverend preacher used the event as illustrative of the doctrine of God's grace, a subject suggested by the name of the Church. Our thought of God determines what kind of worship we offer Him. St. Peter declares him to be the God of all grace, and we recognize it as the language of experience and penitence. The Church has never narrowed the message of God's grace. She ever stands bidding men reach out the hand to touch the Incarnation. Observation shows that men will naturally believe anything rather than the abundance of God's grace. The bearing of this message fully has its effect on the worship of the Church. Each church building becomes a witness of grace. The Sacraments assume the chief place in worship, and their celebration becomes even gorgeous. Those who minimize Christian doctrine are most afraid of what they call externals of worship. The Church is not merely the messenger, but the very body of Christ, herself filled with His grace. In conclusion, the Bishop invoked the richest blessings upon the rector and congregation in the use of this church, saying: 'The Lord hear thee in the day of trouble; the name of the God of Jacob defend thee, send thee help from the sanctuary, and strengthen thee out of Zion: remember all thy offerings and accept thy sacrifice; grant thee thy heart's desire and fulfil all thy mind.'"

THE HISTORICAL SERMON

BY REV. JAMES HART LAMB, D. D.

TAKING as his text, a portion of the twenty-eighth verse of the twelfth chapter of the Epistle of St. Paul the Apostle to the Hebrews, Dr. Lamb defined the Grace of God as a spiritual gift attained by those who desire and seek it, and which will enable them to consecrate themselves wholly to God and his service. Trials fit us better for the service of God, because they make manifest His sustaining power in adversity. So from small and difficult beginnings and through many perplexities was built up Grace Church as we know it. Dr. Lamb proceeds as follows:

A little more than fifty-seven years ago, the Rev. Addison B. Atkins, Rector of Christ's Church, Germantown, with a heart full of missionary zeal found, as he believed, in Germantown and Mt. Airy, great need for missionary work among the children. A place was found in Germantown, and the mission work, begun there finally resulted in the establishment of St. Michael's Church on High Street. The place found in Mt. Airy was the second story of a small fire engine house on what was then known as Miller street. That room was procured and on Sunday, September 6th, 1857, Mr. Atkins, together with six or seven of the Sunday School teachers from Christ's Church, Germantown, began the work of instructing the children there. The room was soon found to be too small to accommodate the number of children who assembled. So another place was sought. It was found in the parlor of the house then known as the "Steamboat House," because upon the top of the flat roof there was built in regular fashion the deck of a steamboat with its berths and all things complete.

The school was transferred on the first Sunday of October, 1857, just one month after the first service held in the engine house. Mr. Harry Smith, a candidate for Holy Orders, was appointed Superintendent, and with his assistance, the Rector of Christ's Church, Germantown, was enabled to hold an afternoon service with sermon. This service was so largely attended that those interested were forced to consider the erection of a suitable place of worship large enough to accommodate the many who came.

At this time the Rector of Christ's Church invited several gentlemen interested in this matter to meet at the Rectory to consider the desirability of forming a new parish. There it was decided that the time was ripe for such a movement, and ten men were nominated for vestrymen. W. E. Stone was chosen as Secretary, Messrs. Carstairs, Robinson and Stone were appointed a committee to procure a charter, and to receive title to the piece of ground kindly offered by Michael Baker, Esq., upon which to build a Church. This piece of ground which was gratefully accepted was situated on Willow Grove Turnpike, now called Mt. Airy Avenue.

On August 23d, another meeting was held and those nominated at the previous meeting were duly elected vestrymen, viz.: Messrs. Charles S. Carstairs, Henry Berry, Thomas H. Powers, A. S. Robinson, Eli Burrhouse, S. L. Creutzborg, W. E. Stone, P. E. Hamm, Clem. Tingley, Jr., and Beekman Potter. The name chosen for the new Church was "The Church of the Messiah." A committee was appointed to procure the consent of the Rector and vestry of St. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, to the organization of a new parish. A building committee was also appointed, consisting of Messrs. Carstairs, Robinson and Berry.

Mr. Tingley was placed upon the committee to procure a charter in the place of Mr. Robinson, who had resigned. An offer from the ladies of Christ Church to hold a fair for the benefit of the new church in the Town Hall, Germantown, between December the 18th and 25th, was thankfully accepted. The title having been properly transferred, ground was immediately broken and the work of building begun.

The corner stone was laid with appropriate services and an address by the Rev. A. B. Atkins, on Saturday afternoon, September 18, 1858. The building was to be perfectly plain, simply a large room in which a Sunday School and other services could be held, estimated at from $1,500 to $1,700. October 21st, at a regular meeting of the Vestry, the names of Nathan Birchell, James Yocum, Jr., and G. W. Merchant were added to the list of Vestrymen, the last mentioned to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Potter. At this meeting the name of the Church was reconsidered, and the name of "Grace Church" substituted. The charter was adopted. Plans were presented for a more artistic little chapel costing about $1,900 to $2,000, with a seating capacity of from 250 to 300 persons. The building committee reported through Mr. Carstairs that such a building would cost very little more than the one first planned which was to be perfectly plain, and that the effect would be very much better. Subscriptions were reported amounting to $900, whereupon the building committee were directed to accept the plans, and to advance the building as rapidly as practicable. The Fair proposed by the ladies of Christ's Church was held in the Town Hall, Germantown, on the 14th, 15th and 16th of December, 1858, and netted $1,000. The building was completed and opened for the Sunday School on the first Sunday of April, 1859, the Sunday School and afternoon service having been continued in the "Steamboat House" up to this time. Mr. Harry Smith who had been ordained deacon in June, 1858, had charge under the Rector of Christ's Church.

THE Church was consecrated by Bishop Bowman on the first Sunday in May, 1859, the Rev. Dr. Pratt, of Philadelphia preaching the sermon. The Clergy robed in the house of Mr. Shermer, at the corner of Main Street and Mt. Airy Ave. There were no houses on Mt. Airy Avenue at that time. It was a novel sight in Mt. Airy to see the white-robed clergy marching to the Church. Mr. Smith continued in charge of the chapel under the Rector of Christ's Church, until the Spring of 1860. The success and growth of the congregation up to this time was due, under God, to Mr. Smith more than to any other. His winning ways and delightfully instructive addresses won not only the children to the Sunday School, but also their parents to the church services. These came to hear him speak to the children and stayed to the service which followed, and listened attentively while he was telling them of their duty to God and to man. Mr. Smith was ably seconded in all he did for the Sunday School and Church by a band of devoted Sunday School teachers, among whom should be specially mentioned Mr. and Mrs. Carstairs.

Mr. Smith was followed by the Rev. Mr. Nutt, who worked hard, but as he was in delicate health he lived but a short time. He in turn, was followed by the Rev. Charles R. Hale, afterwards the Bishop of Springfield, who remained but a short time. He was followed by the Rev. Thomas S. Yocum, Rector of Calvary Church, Conshohocken, where there was but one service during the week, on Sundays. The rest of his time was mainly given as assistant to the Rector of Christ's Church, Germantown; this included the charge of Grace Church, Mt. Airy. Mr. Yocum did a very good work and was much beloved by the people. These gentlemen were assisted by Mr. George W. Elkins, who was appointed superintendent of the Sunday School, and who also as lay-reader frequently held services in the absence of a clergyman. In 1863 Mr. Charles M. Bayard, who had been a teacher in the Sunday School for some time, was elected a member of the Vestry. He maintained an unflagging interest in Grace Church and parish and Sunday School from that time until his call to Paradise. He was superintendent of the Sunday School from April, 1865, and Acounting Warden from February, 1865, excepting the years 1873-74, until his death. At the same meeting at which Mr. Bayard was elected a member of the Vestry, it was proposed to enlarge the church by building an Infant School which was very much needed. Messrs. Bayard, Elkins and Merchant were appointed a building committee. After due consideration this committee proposed that the addition should be so constructed as to increase the capacity of the Church, and at the same time provide an Infant School and Bible class rooms. Their proposal was accepted, and they were authorized to make such alterations. The work was begun in the Spring of 1864, Sunday School and Church services being still held in the building, the end being closed with rough boards.

THE building was finished in the late Fall, and it was consecrated by Bishop Potter on November 16, 1864. The Bishop preached, and was assisted in the service by the Rev. A. B. Atkins. The total cost of the improvement was $2,255.47. The Rev. Thomas S. Yocum resigned his position in connection with the parishes of Christ's Church, Germantown, and Grace Church, Mt. Airy, to take effect as soon as a successor could be appointed. The resignation was accepted, and took effect September 10, 1865, after Dr. Shiras' acceptance of the Rectorship. On April 5, 1865, the Rev. J. Saunders Reed was elected Rector, part of his salary to be guaranteed by Christ's Church, Germantown. Mr. Reed declined the election. On May 15, 1865, the Rev. J. R. Moore was elected Rector, and he also declined the election. On June 30th the Rectorship was tendered to the Rev. John G. Ames, who also declined. On August 25, 1865, the Rev. Alexander Shiras, D. D., was elected Rector. He accepted, and entered upon his duties October 1, 1865. Dr. Shiras was Rector for but a short period, his resignation taking effect on February 1, 1866. The Rev. Edward Hale was elected in April of the same year, and took charge May 1st, resigning after three months Rectorship, on July 31st. At this time the Church became entirely self-supporting, and independent of Christ's Church, Germantown.

On August 12, 1866, Rev. R. A. Edwards was elected Rector, and served the Church for a period of nearly eight years. Under his faithful care and earnest ministrations, the Church was much prospered. Mr. Edwards received a call to Holy Trinity Memorial Chapel, which he accepted, and resigned his Rectorship. On February 24, 1874, a call was sent to Rev. S. C. Hill, which he declined, and Rev. G. A. Redles was elected Rector on March 14, 1874, resigning in February of the following year. Rev. E. H. Kettell was then elected, but declined the nomination. Rev. S. C. Hill was again elected Rector on April 15, 1875, and, accepting the charge, commenced his duties the first Sunday in June, 1875.

Mr. Hill said in a sermon delivered on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his Rectorship: "The Rev. G. A. Redles resigned as Rector, on February 8th, 1875, and entered the Reformed Episcopal Church, taking with him some of the godly women and earnest workers." Therefore while the new Rector found a perfectly united Church, he found the Church in the lowest condition it had been for years. But the people had a mind to work, and they gave themselves heartily to the Church and Sunday School. Steps were very soon taken to build a Rectory on the lot adjoining the Church. This was done during that year, and in March it was finished and occupied.

The receipts for that first year, from May, 1875, to May, 1876, were $9,100.72. The ground rent of the lot which had been purchased for the Rectory was merged into the mortgage, which amounted to $4,000 and that amount remained unchanged until the property was sold. The membership continued to increase and it soon became evident that there must be a new Church. The subject was discussed in the vestry and among the people. Two lots were offered to the Vestry; one by Mrs. Bostwick, on the Main street below Sedgwick. This generous offer the Vestry felt compelled to decline because of the strong impression that they should not go South of Mt. Airy Avenue. Mr. James E. Gowen also offered a lot on the corner of Gowen Avenue and the Main Street. The Vestry presented this offer to the congregation and asked for their opinion on this matter. It seems to have been agreeable to them, for it was proposed to build the new Church on this ground, afterwards to take down the old Church, and if possible to use the material in the erection of a parish building; then to sell the lot on which the old Church stood and to use the proceeds to defray a part of the expense of building the new Church. This was ratified by a large majority, and the lot was accepted by a formal vote of the Vestry.

Just then Mr. Franklin B. Gowen offered to give the Church two lots on Gowen Avenue and Ardleigh Street, 200 by 230 feet, also guaranteeing a sum of money from himself and other members of the family. So there were four propositions before the Vestry. One to build on the old location; another to place the new Church on the Main Street, below Sedgwick; one to build on the corner of Gowen Avenue and the Main Street; another where the Church now stands. A committee was appointed and reported that "the Vestry had decided not to go below Mt. Airy Avenue."

An offer of $8,000 was made by Mrs. Bostwick and Mrs. Breese, and an additional subscription of $10,000 was added to this, making in all $18,000 to have the Church built on the old location hallowed by many memories. The second offer of the corner of Gowen and Germantown Avenues, carried with it a cash subscription of $14,220, but only the Church could be built on this lot. The Rectory and Parish House would have to be built elsewhere. This limitation decided the fate of that proposition. The third offer was that of the site on which the Church now stands. With this proposition there was a cash guarantee of $20,230, the only limitation was that the tower of the Church should be placed on the North side. This last proposal was unanimously adopted. Mr. Charles M. Burns, Jr., was the architect, and his plan after some modification was adopted by the Vestry. The members of the building committee were Messrs. E. V. Lansdale, Chairman, C. M. Bayard, C. C. Turnbull, C. H. Miller, Francis I. Gowen and C. C. Binney. There is this note by the Secretary in the minute book of the Vestry: "June 13th, 1888, at one P. M., the Rev. S. C. Hill offered prayer on the lot corner of Gowen Avenue and Ardleigh Street, and Mr. Charles H. Miller, of Gowen Avenue, dug the first spadeful of earth for the fundation of the new Grace Church, the Rev. S. C. Hill, the second; and Miss Rachel Miller, Miss Elizabeth Miller and Mrs. Hartman each dug a spadeful."

The corner stone was laid on September 18th, 1888, the Rt. Rev. O. W. Whitaker, Bishop of Pennsylvania making the address. The following named Clergymen took part in the service: Rev. A. B. Atkins, D. D., Rev. John B. Faulkner, D. D., Rev. Joseph L. Miller and Rev. James H. Lamb.

The old Church property was sold for $14,000. The new Church was finished and all indebtedness settled. The consecration took place on the 13th day of November, 1889. The service began at 11 A. M. Bishop Whitaker was the consecrator, and Bishop Whitehead, of Pittsburg, a classmate of Mr. Hill's was the preacher. About sixty clergymen were present and vested. After the service the clergymen and officers of the Church were entertained by Mr. Franklin B. Gowen, at his residence.

In February, 1888, there was organized The Women's Guild of Grace Church, Mt. Airy. This Guild immediately became interested in the work of building the new Church. It was the Guild that purchased the cushions for the Church, furnished the chancel, including the Bishops chair, rail and choir stalls; the lectern and pulpit, furnished the Vestry room and their own Guild Room. They also assisted in the finishing of the Rectory by paying for mantels, fireplaces, tile, gas fixtures, etc. From February, 1888, to June, 1900, this Guild raised and expended $13,902.89. Although the larger part of this was expended in Church furnishing, and in an addition to the parish house, and for the reduction of the mortgage, yet the mission work of the Church was not forgotten. The Rector said he had never appealed to them in vain. From November, 1897, to the end of 1900 they paid off the mortgage of $7,000.

The Rectory, I believe, was largely the gift of Mrs. Franklin B. and Mrs. James E. Gowen. You here see what a great work was done during the first twenty-five years of Mr. Hill's Rectorship. You are better acquainted with the last 12 years of his work here than I am. In his twenty-fifth anniversary sermon he closed with these words: "And now brethren beloved, with whom I have worked most imperfectly these last twenty-five years; whose children I have baptized and presented for confirmation; whose beloved I have followed with you to their last earthly resting place; to you I give most sincere thanks for your cordial support in the work of the Church; for your charity in my imperfections, for your often too high regard, and especially for your love and esteem. May God's spirit guide us through the coming years, and may He crown the work at last with His own, 'Well done, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.'" That prayer will be answered.

TO your new Rector, we of the clergy extend our heartiest greetings wishing him all good speed in the work he has undertaken. Work with him, uphold his hands, pray for grace whereby you may serve God acceptably with reverence and Godly fear. Work and pray for growth in your Christian life. Wrestle as Jacob did with God saying: "I will not let Thee go except Thou bless me." Bid defiance to your sins and failures; forget the things which are behind and asking God for His forgiveness, believe you have it, and go forth to conquer every weakness. Life is real. There are infinite possibilities for you, and Jesus is your Master. Follow Him. Trust Him implicity and you shall have grace, more grace, and so shall serve God acceptably with reverence and Godly fear.

SCENE AT THE LAYING OF THE CORNER STONE OF GRACE CHURCH, SEPTEMBER 18, 1888, BISHOP O. W. WHITAKER OFFICIATING

Dedication Festival Prayer

O LORD GOD Almighty, Maker of all things and Giver of all good gifts, who didst put into the hearts of thy servants to lay the foundation stones of this Church, not for their own glory, but to the glory and praise of our Incarnate Lord, for the worship of thy glorious Majesty, the preaching of thy holy Word, the Ministration of thy holy Sacraments, and the edification of faithful souls; we thank thee for the abundant blessings which thou hast granted in this place and we beseech thee O Heavenly Father, to continue the same blessings to us and to our children's children for all generations yet to come; that this Church may ever remain separate from all profane and unhallowed uses, and may continually stand a witness to the people, of thy truth and thy loving Kindness, which thou hast shown unto us, in thy Son our Lord Jesus Christ who with Thee and the Holy Ghost art one GOD—blessed forever more. Amen.

OUR CHRISTMAS FAITH

AT this glad season of the year the interest of the world centers around a Babe in His mother's arms—and with what thoughts and emotions! Unto us a Child is born—and as that Eternal Child casts Himself upon the world, in love and hope, the heart of this hardened old world softens and glows with new and wonderful life. What do we believe about that Child?

WE believe He was perfectly human. Mary whose honor it was to give Him birth was, we believe, the purest, noblest woman who ever lived; the flower which sprang out of all the preparatory discipline of God's chosen. But she was human. She was even lowly. And we believe her Son was as simple and creaturely as was His mother. His baby tears were a prophecy of the human want and suffering which were to mark His short career. He grew physically, mentally, spiritually as other children grow. When His childhood was over, He found Himself alone and desolate in a darkened world. For Him temptation was real and pain was bitter. When scourged and transfixed upon the cruel cross, He drank the last full measure of the cup of human sacrifice. Nor can we forget even during these festive days that it was our unbelief and sin that slew Him.

WE BELIEVE also that He was truly God. The method of His human birth and His personality set Him quite apart from all other babes. For we believe He had no human father and His mother remained a virgin when He was born. He was conceived by the Holy Ghost. God the Eternal was His Father. Every other human can say "Behold I was shapen in iniquity and in sin did my mother conceive me." But this child was stainless at birth and remained so until death. We believe this Nurseling had a history. He was the Ancient of Days.

> "The Soul that 'rose with Him, His life's star
> Had elsewhere had its setting,
> And came from afar;
> Not in entire forgetfulness,
> Not in utter nakedness,
> But trailing clouds of glory did He come
> From God who is His home."

The Child of the manger had not only a glorious past but a glorious future. Before He was caught up again to heaven men witnessed a wonderful development. Those tiny hands were destined to satisfy five thousand men with five loaves and to still the raging waves by a gesture of command. Those tiny feet were destined to tread unsinking the turbulent waters. Those lips were to speak with an authority and cheer unprecedented. Yes, we believe those lips will some day judge the world. Our very destinies are wrapt up in that Babe.

JESUS Son of Mary, Christ, Son of God, in Thee we behold the lowliness of man and the loftiness of the Godhead. Thou art our only Ladder from earth to heaven.

CHRISTMAS ARRANGEMENTS:

The Christmas Parties for the members of the Church School will be held on Holy Innocents Day, Monday, December 28, in the Guild Room.

The Primary and Kindergarten Departments will gather about the Christmas Tree at half past two. The Junior, Senior and Graduate Departments will hold their party in the evening. The Committee is making plans for a delightful time for all.

The Carol Service and Festival Procession for the members of the Church School will be held in the Church on Sunday morning, St. John Evangelist's Day, at 9.30. The Christmas observances would be incomplete without the singing of the ancient carols which so quaintly tell the sweet story of the Nativity.

The Christmas Cantata, entitled "The Story of Bethlehem," which was so enjoyed last year will be sung Sunday evening at 8. The words are by Shapcott Wensley and the music by John E. West. Evening Prayer will be said quietly at 4.

On Christmas Day there will be three celebrations of the Holy Communion: at 6, 7.30 and 11. Morning Prayer will be said at 10.30. There will be no evening service. The music at the late celebration will be Stainers Service in A. and D. The anthem will be "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks by Night," by J. Barnby.

GOOD WORKS:

THE Thanksgiving Day barrel was more than filled this year if account is taken of the packages piled in and around it by generous parishioners. Aside from a large hamper sent to Mrs. Clayton, manager of the 1st Ward Community House, four complete "dinner" baskets were sent out. In every one of them were one or more fowls supplied by the Social Service Committee

IN response to the Bishop's urgent appeal, the offering for the Episcopal Hospital on Thanksgiving Day amounted to $154.27—a marked improvement over last year's offering of $85.00.

The large attendance at both services on Thanksgiving Day showed that Grace Church people were in accord with the sentiment of the President's Proclamation that not only in their homes but also in places of worship the people should render thanks to Almighty God on that national day.

FOR the relief of the Belgian Refugees, at home and in England, and to be forwarded to "The Working Committee for Belgian Relief," 1428 Walnut Street, something over $50.00 in money has been raised in this parish, and a quantity of stockings, valued at $20.00, has been collected. One must realize that these unhappy refugees are dependent upon the sympathy of the world for the bare necessities of life. A representative of the Belgian relief fund, has received a letter from M. Paul Hyams, leader of the Liberal party in Belgium, who was one of the commissioners who came to this country to protest against outrages.

"Destitution in our poor country," he says, "is appalling and we are forever grateful to the United States. They are helping us with unbounded generosity. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for what you Philadelphians are doing. It is a noble and useful charity."

At the request of Bishop Horner, of the Missionary District of Asheville, Mr. George Wharton Pepper, of this city, undertook, during the summer, to dispose of a seven-hundred-bushel car-load of apples which are grown on one of the farms operated by the Bishop in connection with his industrial work among the mountain people of the southwest.

Many people in this diocese were glad of the opportunity to order a considerable number of bushel boxes from this lot, with instructions that they be sent as gifts to individuals, hospitals or homes, in addition to those for their own use.

The fruit was of the finest quality and each apple separately wrapped in tissue paper bearing the mark of the Valle Crucis Industrial School in which Bishop Horner is so much interested. It is stated that the apples were grown at an elevation of 2500 feet. We are officially advised that reference is made to the altitude of the orchards rather than to height of the apple trees.

ST. MARTHA'S FAIR

UNDER the auspices of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, a three days fair in aid of St. Martha's House, Eight Street and Snyder Avenue, Philadelphia, was begun on December 3d at Horticultural Hall. Some of the parish organizations furnished and stocked booths for the sale of various things, ornamental and useful, while others contributed to the general store of articles placed on sale.

Grace Church was very ably represented by Miss C. C. Schenck, and an efficient committee who supervised the disposition of articles representing the handiwork of our parishoners to the value of nearly one hundred dollars.

St. Martha's House is in many respects one of the most useful social service settlements in the country. It is a diocesan institution providing in manifold ways for girls, women and boys. There is a gymnasium, saving fund, coal fund, mothers' club, free library, dispensary and kindergarten. There are cooking, sewing and dressmaking classes. Summer and winter amusements are well provided for. It is a pity that there is usually a shortage of funds to provide for crying needs.

THE true spirit of Christmas—the blessedness of giving, because of the Great Christmas Gift to us—has led the members of Grace Church School for more than ten years to send to other children less fortunate than themselves, Christmas stockings, well filled with small gifts, toys, candy, etc. These have been distributed by Deaconesses to the children in the congested parts of the city. We propose to send them again this Christmas to Deaconess Camp at St. Nathaniel's Mission. She wrote last year that they had never had such a Christmas at St. Nathaniel's. Let us send better filled stockings than ever—and more of them. They are to be brought to the school on Sunday morning, December 20th. They will be forwarded early the next day to St. Nathaniel's.

MISSIONS:

THE apportionment of the Diocese of Pennsylvania for the year 1 September, 1914, to 31 August, 1915, has been calculated by the Board of Missions as $144,503.00, as against $147,331, last year. But though the Diocesan Apportionment is reduced our Parish amount is increased. According to the new schedule prepared by the Central Missionary Committee of the Diocese on the basis of our net receipts as reported to the convention, our share has been raised from $1440.36 to $1580.70. The letter notifying Grace Church of this apportionment asked this question: "Do you think we can fairly count upon you to meet it?" The answer from the Rector and Chairman of the Laymen's Missionary Committee went back by return mail saying "Sure."

ON Wednesday evening, December 16th, at eight o'clock, there will be the usual monthly conference on Missions. We are fortunate in having with us as speaker Mrs. J A. Ely, of Shanghai, China.

Perhaps a little bit of her life history might be of interest. Some time ago Mr. and Mrs. Ely started on a pleasure trip around the world. When they reached India, they were deeply impressed by the dreadful state of things there, but were still more distressed when they came to China. They made up their minds to stay there and devote the rest of their lives to Mission work. Mr. Ely is a teacher in St. John's College, Shanghai, and Mrs. Ely teaches at St. Mary's School. They saw the vision.

Let us have a full attendance on Wednesday, the 16th, to welcome Mrs. Ely.

CHURCHWOMEN—DO YOU KNOW?

DO you know how much valuable information in most attractive form you can obtain for the small sum of $1.35?

First there is The Spirit of Missions, just entering its eightieth year but growing younger every month! We older members of the Woman's Auxiliary remember well when this thin, small-type, pictureless magazine, with its unattractive cover was given us by our mothers to read—a religious task to be faithfully performed! All the years have wrought a wonderful change. To-day The Spirit of Missions is read eagerly from cover to cover by old and young, and it is considered, by those most competent to judge, by far the best missionary magazine published. Do not fail to send in your subscription for 1915 to Mrs. Hamilton B. Sharps, 7111 Chew Street, Mount Airy, the Secretary of The Spirit of Missions for Grace Church. The price is One Dollar. In accordance with a special offer, Mrs. Sharps may retain twenty-five cents, from every new subscription, for the United Offering.

The Church Missionary Calendar (25c) for 1915 is the best yet. From our Bishop's article, "The Spirit of Mission in the Body of Christ" (not printed elsewhere and well worth the price of the calendar) to Dr. Jefferys' "The Vision," there is page after page of up-to-date information, much of it written by our Missionary bishops especially for the calendar. This year a page is devoted to Social Service and one to Religious Education. A prayer on every page and the lectionary of lessons for each day give a devotional value. After paying expenses (by the sale of over 6,000 copies) all the receipts go to the Board of Missions towards appropriations for general missions. Last year the sum of $400 was realized passing into the treasury of the Board of Missions, through the Woman's Auxiliary Committees on Domestic, Foreign, Indian and Colored work, and counting on the apportionment. At least one of these calendars should be in every home, and what more appropriate or useful gift at this Christmastide?

The new Hand-book (10c) for the use of the Woman's Auxiliary and prepared by Miss Emery, Secretary, with Bishop Lloyd's introductory chapter—"Our Ideal," should be in the possession of every Churchwoman even if she is not an active member of the Auxiliary. The information is invaluable and the suggestions in regard to diocesan and parish branches are most helpful. There is also a Junior Hand-book. The Calendar and the Woman's Auxiliary Hand-book are on sale in the guild room every Wednesday.

As Chairman of the Memorial Gifts Committee, Mr. George J. Lincoln desires to express his deep appreciation of the prompt and generous responses to his appeal which have been made by many individual members and organizations of Grace Church Parish. The impressive list published in the Dedication Festival number of The Grace Church Parish News, of November, 1914, will be, it is hoped, suggestive and lead to the offering of many more gifts and memorials. Mr. Lincoln will be glad of an opportunity of discussing details with any who may have in mind placing a token of remembrance in the Church.

THE first four Wednesday Night Parish Conferences were conducted by the Rector upon the following subjects: 1, Social Service, The Problem of Poverty; 2, Missions, The Wider Horizon; 3, Personal Religion, Introduction to Christian Mysticism; 4, Religious Education, Lessons from the Report of the U. S. Commissioner of Education.

The order of subjects before these Conferences is as follows: First Wednesday in each month, Religious Education; second, Social Service; third, Missions; fourth, Personal Religion. See announcement of special speakers and topics elsewhere.

THE WOMAN'S AUXILIARY AND GUILD

IT is a real pleasure to know that many hearts have been made glad by the packages of clothing and useful articles sent in all directions last week by the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild. Our Domestic Box was sent to the Rev. Martin Johnson and his family at Vinita Station, Virginia. Mrs. Johnson writes: "My husband leads a busy life among his several Churches and is seldom at home. There has been much sickness during the past year, two cases of pneumonia and one of appendicitis, and the expenses incident have taxed our means greatly."

These boxes of supplies are looked forward to most eagerly by the missionaries and are often, as in this case, their one source of outfitting.

We wish to thank all who contributed to this box and to the barrels of second-hand clothing sent to Mr. Arkin in Kensington and to Miss Edrington in Wide Water, Virginia.

Valuations as follow have been made: box to Vinita, Va., $205.20; barrel to Kensington, $85.25; barrel to Wide Water, Va., $72.00.

We continually have calls for partly worn clothing and we hope that the women of the Parish will bear this in mind. Packages of this kind can be left at the Parish House at any time or will be called for on request. Besides the work in preparing these boxes we have been able to sew for the Social Service Committee in our own Parish.

The labor of love is just beginning, there is much ahead. Let us love our work whatever it may be and take delight in it, pressing forward and endeavoring to do it better and to do more of it.

"I wish for you that you may serve each day
In loving service some poor soul in need,
A lifted load from one on life's hard way;
In serving others thou art blest indeed."

THE KINDERGARTEN

THE coaches will call for any children throughout the parish for the Kindergarten Class on Sunday morning, if notice is sent to Mrs. R. N. Hall, 31 Gowen Avenue, or to others of the Kindergarten Canvass Committee: Mrs. A. Harris Insinger, Mrs. R. J. Thompson, Mrs. S. Mendelson Meehan, Mrs. F. T. McGuire, Mrs. A. C. Brand, Miss G. L. Bender, Mrs. A. F. Horton, Mrs. H. M. Brown, Mrs. J. C. Robb, Mrs. C. B. Hansell, Mrs. F. G. Landis, Mrs. H. G. Goodall, Mrs. J. J. Dunn, Mrs. C. S. Pease.

THE patriotic service early Thanksgiving Day will not soon be forgotten by those present. Troop 67, Boy Scouts, in uniform, led by their standard bearers, marched up the main aisle of the Church. The colors were reverently dipped to the altar. The Rector saluted the colors and standard bearer William Landenberger, in behalf of the Troop, presented a handsome silk American Flag to the Church. After the singing of the national hymn Morning Prayer with special patriotic prayers was read. At the Rector's request the Troop stood at attention and recited the scout oath and law with dignity and precision.

Mr. Cline said in his address that the principles just recited were those on which the future greatness of the Nation was to be built. He spoke in high appreciation of the work being accomplished by the Boy Scouts in England and America—making special reference to the high character of Troop 67. He welcomed the gift of a national flag to the Church and said it should be a permanent part of the decoration of the Church. The Stars and Stripes symbolize no narrow spirit of nationalism, but world wide brotherhood and service.

Errand boys are in great demand during this season of preparation for Christmas. The Boy Scouts are ready to be of service to parishioners each Saturday morning. Call up the Parish House, Chestnut Hill 304 and your orders will receive prompt attention. Of course Scouts take no fees for themselves. Any remuneration you may care to make will be devoted to the Christmas Fund of the Social Service Committee.

Subscribers will hereafter receive a receipt slip for payments of subscriptions. If not received, please inquire, as it may mean your subscription has miscarried.

Provision has now been made to furnish all who desire them, extra copies of the Historical number of the Parish News (November) free of charge. Do not fail to preserve a copy, and see that interested friends are supplied.

Perhaps there are still some members of Grace Church Parish who do not know that the flowers on the Altar are frequently provided by persons desiring to pay a loving tribute to some one "gone before." Any who desire commemoration thus made, may send a line to Mrs. Henry S. Lowber, Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, who will order the flowers and see that they are placed in accordance with the request.

MUSICALE

ON Tuesday evening, December 29th, at eight o'clock in the Parish House of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, Max Olanoff, the young Violinist, will give a recital, assisted by Miss Rossmassler, Pianiste. Accompanist, Mrs. H. M. Fuller.

Subscriptions of one dollar each may be sent to Mrs. H. M. Fuller, 1315 Spruce Street, Philadelphia, and they will be devoted to the musical education of the violinist at the Ende School of Music where he is continuing his studies.

THE enrollment of the Young Churchmen's Association has passed the 50 mark and new members are being added weekly. A debate scheduled for Monday evening, December 14, promises to be interesting. "Resolved that England was justified in declaring war against Germany." Affirmative, John Marsden and Alfred Collins; Negative, Chas. A. Coburn and John Miller.

Short addresses from laymen have followed the religious instruction by the Rector on several occasions. Among those who have addressed the Association have been Mr. C. S. Pease and Mr. E. J. Webb.

The other day the choir boys presented Mrs. Thompson, the choir mother, with a handsome umbrella. Was it because they had noticed she was always present rain or shine? Or was it just their spontaneous expression of appreciation for her patient and cheerful ministrations?

The cushions for the choir stalls, a gift of The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild, have been received, adding greatly to the appearance of the choir, and to the comfort of the choristers.

VERY satisfactory progress has been made in the work of placing a new window in the Chancel; the tracery is in position, and the temporary glass has been set. As previously announced the finished window will represent The Supper at Emmaus.

The artistic brass Lecturn Lantern, a gift of the Vestry of Grace Church, has recently been placed in position.

THE Librarian of the Church Periodical Club wishes to thank everyone who has so kindly contributed magazines, papers, picture cards and Christmas cards. These cards had been all carefully prepared with paper pasted over the writing, and will be received with joy by the sick, the shut-ins and those who rarely get a Christmas message. Are there not more cards that could be made over? There is still time to send them before Christmas.

As to the call for books, not a single volume has been received in response to the plea read by the Rector two weeks ago. Has no one a book, or set of books, secular or religious that he is willing to pass on? Remember there are many living far away from any libraries, to whom a new book is a great luxury.

THE speakers at the second conference on Social Service Wednesday, December 9, were: Miss Lane, of the Consumers League, and Mrs. Louise W. Clayton, a City Nurse, and manager of the 1st Ward Community House.

APROPOS of an article in a recent number of this publication on street begging, we quote the following section from the law by which this practice is being suppressed in Philadelphia. It was not possible at the time of writing the former article to include this information. Prosecutions are being conducted under Sec. 3 of the Act of May 1876, which thus defines vagrants:

"All persons going about from door to door, or placing themselves in streets, highways or other roads to beg or gather alms, and all other persons wandering abroad and begging, who have no fixed place of residence in the township, ward or borough in which the vagrant is arrested."

Nine hundred and forty vagrants of every description have been compelled to leave the streets of Philadelphia. Six have appealed their cases to the higher courts—two of them being blind. The superior courts have sustained the decisions of the lower courts, which were against the beggars. Through rigidly enforcing the law, nearly one thousand objectionable people have been taken from our streets; some of them so abnormal as to be revolting. There is no question but that these people were their own worst enemies, and appealed only to the sentimental impulses of the charitable.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF CHRISTMAS

PHILLIPS Brooks brings out the social side of the Christmas scene in the following apt words: "What is the idea present in that ever vivid scene of Bethlehem which shines in the simple and inspired words of the first chapters of the Gospels with a clearness and a depth that the pencil of Raphael could never give?

A father, a mother and a child are there. No religion which began like that could ever lose its character.

The first unit of human life, the soul, is there in the new born personality of the childhood. But the second unit of human life, the family is just as truly there in the familiar relation of husband and wife and the sacred, eternal mystery of motherhood. He who would know the whole about this Jesus must learn not merely what his own soul will grow to be, but likewise what new life the presence of Jesus in the midst of it will give to this primal group of human life, and to all the other groups, the larger families which this one represents."

IT has been Bishop Rhinelander's custom, since his consecration, to give a course of conferences or instructions in some parish church during the Advent season. This year, at the invitation of a group of students belonging to the Episcopal Church, and with the support of the University Christian Association, he has consented to give the course at Houston Hall, University of Pennsylvania, and to extend the number to six lectures, three to be given in December and three in January. The dates and subjects of these lectures are announced below. Members of the University, both faculty and students, are cordially invited to attend, and all persons who are interested will be welcomed.

You are asked kindly to make these lectures known as widely as possible.

General subject: "The Christian Character as Related to the Christian Creed."

Thursday, December 3, 4 P. M.—Character the Aim of Christianity.

Thursday, December 10, 4 P. M.—The Character of Christ the Test and Standard.

Thursday, December 17, 4 P. M.—The Christian Character dependent on Personal Religion.

Thursday, January 7, 4 P. M.—Faith Essential to Discipleship.

Thursday, January 14, 4 P. M.—The Creed as the Voice of Faith.

Thursday, January 21, 4 P. M.—The Holy Spirit and the Christian Life.

WHAT SHALL OUR CHILDREN READ?

THERE are more books sold at Christmas time than at any other season of the year; hundreds of thousands of books will be placed in the hands of children. How many of us know what our children read?

It seems trite to urge the importance of a child's reading, yet it is sadly necessary. Have you not often stood in the book stores before Christmas and heard these pathetic requests: "Will you please show me a book suitable for a girl of ten," "I want a book for a boy of fourteen," and so on until you longed to help? But even worse is the demand, only too frequent I fear, for a book that costs about fifty cents or a quarter, as the case may be.

What your child reads is part of him even more surely than the food he eats. See to it that you know what he reads, and how his mind and character are thereby influenced. If you feel you are not competent to do this, ask for help of those who do know. Consult with the teachers of your children, with librarians in public libraries, with people who are striving for the best in the development of their children.

Never set your child to the eye-destroying task of reading a book printed in cheap, blurred type on poor paper. Have quality of literature first, and quality of material next. Spread the butter a little thinner on the bread, but buy good books!

A few schools, both public and private have already taken thought as to the reading of their pupils, and more will do so as we advance in culture. Some have lists to offer, rather meagre sometimes, but helpful as far as they go. Others print lists requiring certain reading in vacation time, each grade being given a list adapted to its intelligence.

DO you realize that good books are not necessarily dull books?

There are parents who are careful to foster a love of the beautiful in nature, who are careful that their children know good pictures and hear good music, yet who leave their reading to chance. Boys must have adventure; give them high adventure. Girls must have romance; give them sweet, clean possible romance, not improbable sentimentality.

Do you read aloud with your children? Both father and son might be surprised at this "third degree" test applied to the boy's reading. Persuade the boy to read aloud to you, and wait for his own judgment. Many a book will be dropped with a shamefaced, "That's no good, is it Dad?" A child knows instinctively what is fine and true and honest. Do not cheat him in the materials for character building.

Cheap books within the range of a boy's pocket money are an enormous temptation. Judge Lindsey says that this cheap literature with its coarse flashy appeal is "first aid" to bringing boys into court. Sad to say, parents, teachers, even Sunday School teachers, buy for children books whose morale and standards would horrify them did they take the trouble to read.

THE following are not new publications, but books that have stood the test.

For little children:

Andrew Lang—"Fairy Tales."
Ann Wahlenberg—"Swedish Fairy Tales."
Williston—"Japanese Fairy Tales."
Craik—"Fairy Book and Little Lame Prince."
Louise Chandler Moulton—"Bedtime Stories," "Firelight Stories," "Stories Told at Twilight."
Laura Richards—"Five Minute Stories," and "Golden Windows."
Collodi—"Pinocchio."

For older children:

Hawthorne—"Wonder Book" and "Tanglewood Tales."
Keary—"Heroes of Asgard."
Chandler—"In the Reign of Coyote."
Baldwin—"Fifty Famous Stories Retold."
Sidney Lanier—"Boy's King Arthur."
Roosevelt Lodge—"Hero Tales from American History."

There are several series of books both for boys and for girls that are very good:

For Boys:—"The West Point" the "Roger Paulding" and the "School Athletic" Series.
For Girls:—"The Betty Wales," the "Peggy Owen" and the "Little Colonel" Series, and of course Louisa Alcott.

This is a very incomplete list. A further list will be placed in the Parish House for anyone who cares to consult it.

A CHRISTMAS APPRECIATION

TO those who during the year have rendered me service of which I am conscious, I am thankful, and they know it. But there are many others to whom I owe a measure of gratitude; to whom I would express it if I could, and to whom the obligation is not lessened by my inability.

To the miner who has risked his life for me in the depths of the earth, and to him who searched the seas or who sweat in field or factory, or labored in the shambles, that I might be warmed and fed; to them that made my clothes (how little I know of some of these), and who kept them clean; to him that walked the beat by day and night that I might be safe; I trusted him, although often I know not who or where he was, to him who watched against fire for me; to him who brought my letters and to her who at the switchboard formed links between me and absent friends; to him who stoked the fires or tended the engines in the hot depths of the ship, or who shivered in the "crow's nest" or walked the bridge or deck while I took my comfort; to him who held the throttle, and him who put down the stool at the train, that my step might be easier; to them that cooked and served my meals, and who kept a home for me where I might return when weary of work or wandering; to these and to many others that I cannot mention for numbers, including many of whom I have never heard or even thought, but who have rendered me service that which has added to my life something that mere money cannot repay; and to them that have thought kindly of me (even though I knew it not, nor, perhaps, deserved it) or who have rendered me hidden service of love or good will, I owe a great debt of appreciation, which I should like to repay, if only I could.

But there is One who knows their hearts and mine, and whom in doing our best, although unknown to each other, we are together serving. Through Him, the Great Benefactor, I thank them to me known or unknown, whom He has made in His own image, my helpers—and YOU are one of these. I wish for all His greatest blessings at this season of good will; this Birthday of His Greatest Gift.

THE WAR AND THE EXTENSION OF THE KINGDOM

FORTUNATELY none of the missions of our own Church are in the actual field of hostilities, yet we must suffer, in common with others, from the blighting effects of the conflict. The cost of transportation, supplies, freight and insurance are all increased. Thus far the faith of the Board of Missions that the Church will rise to the opportunity of meeting this increased need, has been justified. A noble example has been set by our China missionaries in the district of Hankow who have pledged a considerable percentage of their salaries to relieve the crying needs of their brothers in the missions of the French and German Churches. Because of this condition, voices have been raised in the Church advocating a splendid adventure in love and sacrifice—proposing that American Churchmen, as their share of the war burden, shall "tax themselves" and double their gifts to missions. Thus our own work could be maintained and our Board could minister substantially to the needs of others.

Some parishes are already acting on this suggestion. It is a "big thing" which is proposed—but it is therefore worth the doing. The Church has never before had such a chance to show herself Christian—and may never have again. Shall we deserve to be blest in our future missionary undertakings if we fail our brethren in this time of need? But if, on the other hand, we take the generous and the self-forgetting course, may it not be that we shall "find ourselves" as we never have done before, and will reap—in fuller consecration, wider vision and deeper spiritual life—an abundant and abiding reward?

THE American Church in Paris, under the leadership of its rector, the Reverend Doctor Watson, has been rendering splendid help in the hour of need. At the end of August the demands became so pressing that it was almost impossible to supply them. People reached Paris without luggage, without funds, many of them sick and many of them unable to care easily for themselves, since they spoke only English.

Work has also been done among the French poor. The great shops are all closed, the shop girls are without work, and unmarried women over sixteen have no government assistance. There are twenty of these girls working every day from 9 to 4.30 in the parish house of the Church of the Holy Trinity. They have made, since the Ouvroir was started, over 3,000 articles, all of which have been given to hospitals and soldiers. They are paid 1 franc 50 centimes a day, and given a good luncheon at a nearby restaurant. There are twenty-five other women on the weekly payroll who take home work, and then there are the regular mission workers, who come on Tuesday morning, receiving two francs a week and some food.

The American Colony in Paris has almost vanished and Holy Trinity Church is confronted with grave problems. It is without endowment and with the withdrawal of the Sunday offerings finds itself almost immediately in need. All expenses have been reduced to a minimum but the large tax on the Church and insurance must be paid, and the rector wishes to keep the small reserve now in the bank as an emergency fund to protect the Church property.

Fourteen laymen, one from each of fourteen parishes in the Diocese of Pennsylvania, met during last Lent as a Mission study class on China under the leadership of Dr. W. H. Jefferys' of St. Luke's Hospital, Shanghai. As an outcome of these meetings they have addressed an open letter to "all Christians in the Diocese of Pennsylvania" from which we quote the following: "After many years, during which the manhood of Christendom has deliberately shirked its spiritual privileges, and allowed itself to be fairly dragged into God's presence by the humbler and more perfect faith of womanhood. There are advancing signs from many sources, and from far and wide that there is soon to be a sincere, and we trust an utterly humbled spiritual awakening among men when every man shall face the fact that service by proxy is not good enough, that Jesus despises lukewarm things and that each living man must answer for himself Pilate's tragic question. 'What shall I do then with Jesus, which is called Christ?' Shall I crucify Him? Shall I wash my hands of Him? Or shall I stand with Him?"

The Bishop of Wyoming, through the Spirit of Missions, challenges the clergy of the Church, asking if there is one of them who has the physicial strength and the spiritual courage to become a coal-miner in order that he may win a community of social theists who look upon a clergyman as a parasite upon society but who would understand a man who earned his own living with his hands. Bishop Thomas proposes that this clergyman hire out for wages, and work for one year in the coal mine side by side with the miners.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

I need not urge upon you the faithful observance of Lent. We are all hungry for it. I honestly believe we are prepared by the experiences of the past year to enter more heartily into these forty days of fasting and prayer than ever before.

Lent is a penitential season. It finds us humble and contrite. We are eager to confess our sins, and the sins of our race. We have learned the meaning of "reparation." Evil never loomed more hideous, nor did goodness ever shine more radiant.

Lent is a time of intensified prayer. When before have we felt such a hearty desire to pray? When has the world so needed Christian intercession?

Lent is a time of retirement from the world. Did "the pomps and vanities of this wicked world" ever seem so tawdry? What fascination has the frivolous whirl of pleasure for us, sobered by a vision of gaunt starving multitudes, whose homes have been wrecked?

Lent speaks of self-denial and finds us ready at last to listen. How dare we be wasteful or self-indulgent when we consider the loss and poverty of our fellowmen—the victims of invasion, famine, earthquake and unemployment.

Lent is a call to devotion, and devotion means heroic generosity. Something has lifted us out of ourselves. God has put the world into our hearts. Our vision is enlarged. The Kingdom of God is facing a crisis. Just as we have come to realize, as never before, how desperately the whole world needs Christianity, we hear that unless the American Church comes to their aid the missions hitherto supported by the warring nations will be sadly crippled. The Board of Missions, rising to the emergency, calls upon the Church to face the situation in the following words:

"It is a splendid adventure of love and sacrifice which is proposed. The Board believes that the American Church can do whatever it determines to do, and that the stimulus of a heroic call will be a great one. It would therefore say to the Church that we are rigidly limiting our own expenditures, and it asks congregations to consider whether we may not find a blessing this year—while not neglecting our own needs—in fixing our eyes upon the larger horizon. Will congregations and dioceses set before them, not simply the needs of our own work, but a larger standard of Christian generosity, and thus enable the Board to relieve distress and avert disaster to missionaries in need?"

Once only in the history of Grace Church has the Easter Offering been devoted to missions.

The time has come to do it again, and I trust, to establish a precedent for all future years.

Thank God, Lent is coming. We need it. We believe that if Holy Church had no such custom, we should feel constrained with one accord to inaugurate it.

"Welcome, dear feast of Lent."

Faithfully yours,

Thomas S. Cline.

Church Support

At a recent meeting of the Vestry, it was decided to make a personal canvass of the parish during Lent to procure pledges of regular weekly contributions for Missions and Parish expenses from all members of the congregation who are not already using the duplex envelopes.

The use of this system of Church support, practically introduced by the canvass of a year ago, has proved of such value during the current year that the Vestry desires to enlarge its scope.

The canvass will be in charge of the Layman's Missionary Committee, as last year (Dr. A. L. E. Crouter, chairman) and will take place in February.

Meanwhile, cards for renewal of pledges have been sent to all contributors. In four days from the issuance of the request, over one-half the people have responded. This is gratifying, and it is to be hoped that all pledges now in force will be renewed, and the Accounting Warden so advised. This will lighten the labors of the canvassing committee.

Service of the Free and Open Church Association

The annual service of The Free and Open Church Association was held at Grace Church on January 24th. Following choral evensong, the Rev. Elliot White, Rector of St. Mark's Church, Philadelphia, made the address.

The Rev. John H. Goodfellow, General Secretary of the Association, read the lessons.

Father White called attention to the fact that, as he was speaking on the Eve of Feast of The Conversion of St. Paul, he might properly introduce the topic of Free Church by referring to St. Paul's life. The two doctrines for which that Apostle stands pre-eminently are the freedom of grace and the catholicity of the Church. These are the cardinal principles for which we contend.

Before his conversion, St. Paul was of the strictest sect of the Pharisees; that is, of a most exclusive religious order, but when he turned around, he turned all the way around, and became the most catholic of men. He stood for the abolition of class distinction among God's children—for leveling those barriers which promote preference of one lot of people to the exclusion of others. If, in a parish, the hiring of pews involves a sense of ownership, to the exclusion of any, or if a single soul would think himself unwelcome in God's House by reason of the rental system, it is time to abolish that system. Father White went on to say that the time was when the only people seated in a church were those who were undergoing penance in a corner for sins committed. In the eighteenth century a sort of platform or preferred place was allotted to the great, the influential, the prominent people, and after a while these preferments were bought and sold—gradually to the repulsion of the common people.

It was clearly pointed out that the open church provides a place for prayer and reflection for those who desire to go alone into the quiet and sanctity of God's House. A common objection urged against the open church, is on the ground of profanation, damage or theft.

Father White cited an instance of a church beside a much-traveled highway leading out of New York City—never closed, never locked up, never misused. In a large busy parish the sexton or an assistant is usually in attendance, and in a small place doubtless someone otherwise unemployed would be glad to act as custodian for a very nominal sum. At all events, if we could only know the blessings of the open church, a way would be found to safeguard it.

Those interested in furthering the objects for which the Free and Open Church Association stands, may communicate with Mr. E. T. Pugh, Treasurer, 419 Walnut Street, Philadelphia. One may become a life member for $10.00. The annual membership is $1.00.

Parish Conferences

The Rev. Frederic Gardiner, L. H. D., Headmaster of the Yeates School, Lancaster, Pa., and officially connected with the Provincial Board of Religious Education, will address the Conference in the Parish House, Wednesday evening, February 3d. His subject will be "The Art of Parenthood."

The Rev. H. Cresson McHenry, Assistant Superintendent of the Episcopal City Mission, will address the Conference on "Social Service" on Wednesday evening, February 10th.

The Parish Conferences will be omitted during Lent.

The Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown

A meeting of the delegates to the Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown, was held at S. Nathaniel's Church, Kensington, on January 19th. Deaconess Pugh, who has charge of the Mission there, gave an interesting sketch of her work. Speaking particularly of the Girl's Friendly Society, and of what a great help her girls are, she said that forty-five belong to the Society, and that thirty regularly attend the Monday night meetings. They are most faithful and capable. Ten teach in the Sunday School. There is a branch of The Woman's Auxiliary in the Parish, also in charge of Deaconess Pugh.

The interest in the work of the Mission has not flagged in spite of the hard times. The Deaconess is in close touch with the people of that section, for she has made four hundred calls in the three months of her residence among them. The large Sunday School attendance is particularly encouraging. There are upwards of five hundred names on the roll, and the Deaconess says "they are likely to burst out the sides of the building." They are hoping that some day they may have a building large enough to seat them all comfortably; just now there are not enough chairs to go around.

Stormy weather in Kensington cannot hold the little ones at home, for one hundred and thirty of them, under nine years, came out on a recent very stormy Sunday.

Deaconess Camp, of S. Ambrose, also told of the great need of chairs, for, on one Sunday, in order to accommodate two hundred and twenty-five children, under ten years of age, she had to put boards across what chairs there were, to make seating room. They have a splendid Boy's Club at S. Ambrose, and Leaders come from Drexel Institute to instruct them. The Westminster leaflets were a great help in this School, but money to provide enough to go around, is lacking. Their Christmas celebration was a delight to all, and the generously filled stockings from Grace Church-School were especially appreciated.

Great interest attaches to the County Center Work in Bucks County, in charge of Rev. William Chauncy Emhardt, Rector of S. Luke's Church, Newtown. Here an old farm house has been refitted for this enterprise, and, along with some other Parishes, Grace Church has furnished a room. Students from the Divinity School in Philadelphia come here for the week-ends in order to minister to the needs of the outlying missions, some of which can only be reached with considerable difficulty. Mr. Tyson told us that the Mission in Southampton was started in a hall, but that now they have a portable building. S. Andrew's-in-the-Fields, Somerton, the only Mission in Mr. Emhardt's charge outside of Buck's County, is almost isolated. It was three months before one family in the vicinity knew of the existence of the Mission. S. Wilfred's, Dolington, will be remembered by those who went from Grace Church to attend the spring meeting in Newtown last year. Every other Sunday service is held there in a most forlorn, cold and barren hall. People of other communions use it on intermediate Sundays. It is far from train or trolley.

Up to last year there had never been a baptism there. Since then, Bishop Rhinelander has baptized thirteen. Twenty-five or thirty people attend regularly.

Feastersville is even farther away and ten people mean a large congregation. One Christmas night Mr. Tyson drove there from Newtown, feeling that there should be a service on Christmas of all days. It was a tempestuous night; snow was so deep that the roads were almost impassible, but when he finally reached the little building standing right out in the fields, there were two women waiting for the service. They knew little of the prayer-book and few hymns, but they finally decided on one they all knew, and, although it was sung in three different keys, it was sung heartily.

Mr. Tyson, after a service different from any Christmas service ever attended by him, and after taking these women to their homes, felt that after all, it was probably the happiest Christmas he had ever spent.

Another Mission, Centre Hill, about twenty miles from Newtown, has a congregation of three or four.

It is such work as this that Mr. Emhardt has charge of, besides his Church in Newtown. And because of such work as this, we ask all who will, to join the Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown. We have now over fifty members, but think how many are needed to make the money go very far when the dues are only twenty-five cents a year. Will not more women of the Parish become members and help with this splendid work?

Mrs. E. W. Jenkins has charge of the money sent by the members from Grace Church and she will be glad to have as many new names as possible before March fifteenth, as the annual dues are handed in at the April meeting.

Junior Auxiliary

At the annual meeting of the Junior Auxiliary, held on January 4th, officers were elected for the coming year as follows:

Sydney Hood, President; Margaret Matlack, Vice-President; Caroline Crouter, Secretary; Dorothy Benerman, Treasurer.

After the business meeting, addresses were made by the Rector and by Mrs. Chas. E. Pancoast, of Germantown, who has just returned from a visit to the Japanese Missions, and so was able to make Japan and the needs of Japanese girls seem very near to us.

After the meeting, the girls spent a pleasant hour "over the teacups."

Thirty-three members were present.

Mission Study Classes

Two Mission Study Classes of twelve members each have been formed in the Parish. Beginning February 10th, the afternoon class will meet in the Parish House on Wednesdays at 2.45. The evening class will begin on February 18th, and meet on Thursdays at 7.30. The leader for the afternoon classes will be Mrs. S. D. Matlack, and for the evening classes, Mrs. R. L. Hayes.

The text book this year is "The Social Aspects of Foreign Missions," by Dr. William Herbert Perry Faunce, President of Brown University. The author is not a churchman, nor does he write from a churchman's point of view, but it is nevertheless an excellent text book. If there are any women whom the Educational Secretary has failed to reach, who are desirous of taking the course, will they kindly communciate with Mrs. R. L. Hayes, 7439 Devon Street, Mt. Airy.

Sample Tea

On Wednesday, February 10th, a Sample Tea will be held in the Guild Room from three until five o'clock. This will be similar to that of a year ago, but we are hoping for a larger showing of Grace Church people, and for a larger showing of samples.

The idea is to have this a social affair as well as a source of revenue. The members of the Entertainment Committee will be the hostesses of the afternoon. Samples only are to be shown at the Tea, and we solicit orders to be filled by those who bring the samples.

Last year the Woman's Guild made aprons of all kinds a feature of the Tea; some were made especially to order.

As there already seems to be a demand for this useful article, samples will be shown of aprons for the housekeeper, her waitress and the cook. An attractive novelty in the way of a chafing-dish apron will be on exhibition.

And rugs! Grace Church rugs have been sent as far as the other side of the Mississippi River. They do not require any trade mark! The chairman of the Rug Committee will take orders for rugs of any size or color desired, and, while the prices are the same as in the stores, the rugs are far superior, as the rags are clean, and not allowed to become soiled in the making. There has been a large and growing demand for these rugs, for they are not only useful, but very attractive.

Among the samples to be shown will be bags for all uses, and many things which are needed for the little folks. Last year the samples of cakes and candies were so delicious that even the samples were wanted on the day of the Tea, and this year we will sell them if particularly wanted that day.

It is not only the women of Grace Church who can make good cake and candy, but the Juniors as well. We all know what the Juniors can do. Their exhibition of samples of useful articles and sweets will be a surprise to those who did not attend the Tea last year.

New ideas have probably come to all of us just after Christmas, and this will be a good time to make use of our discoveries.

All the women in the Parish are asked to help make the Sample Tea a success.

Come yourself,—bring some samples,—advertise the thing,—invite your friends.

Church School

The Normal Class of the Church School, organized in September according to the general plans of the Board of Religious Education, has just completed its first task, a course on the Prayer Book. While prescribing the subjects to be studied by the class, the Board leaves the order in which they shall be undertaken to the option of the school. The choice of the class for its next course is Church History, and the remainder of the year will be devoted to that subject.

Two sessions of the class are being held, at five and at eight o'clock, every Monday. All women in the Parish are cordially invited to attend these classes.

Last month the PARISH NEWS published an inspiring column, setting forth some of the activities of our Church, in which our schools are helping, especially through their Lenten offerings. On January 24th our school, in place of its usual session, held a Service of Thanksgiving for this opportunity for service, which will surely inspire us all to special effort during the coming Lent.

The two addresses given were the more interesting because of their different viewpoints. The first was from a missionary worker in Japan, Mr. Lloyd Miller Smith. The second speaker was Mrs. Chas. E. Pancoast, a member of a neighboring parish, who has recently returned from a visit to our Missions in the East.

Social Service

On Wednesday evening, January 13th, Mr. A. A. Hodge, of Germantown, showed pictures illustrating the local unsanitary conditions in housing and drainage. The information was timely and instructive, as the Social Service Committee is hoping to be instrumental in starting a playground in the neighborhood of the Curtin School.

Many of Mr. Hodge's pictures showed the bad effects of surface drainage in this locality, and emphasized, from other points of view, the great necessity of providing a suitable place for recreation for the young people of the neighborhood.

Mr. Hodge very kindly took some special pictures showing available lots in different localities, where a playground would be a feature and a help in the neighborhood. With such a project in mind, the pictures were a help in visualizing to many interested who could not go in person to the various neighborhoods, where a playground would be desirable.

The Young Churchman's Association

Our Monday evening meetings have been marked by increasing attendance and enthusiasm.

The studies in the life of our Lord, conducted by our Rector, are such that all should avail themselves of this opportunity for religious study and knowledge.

The Association has also been addressed by Mr. Chas. S. Pease, Mr. Edward J. Webb, Mr. W. W. Roper and Dr. A. L. E. Crouter on subjects of great interest. In addition to this, a number of debates have been held on current topics.

We wish to state a program for February has been arranged, and on February 8th we will give a dinner (subscription fifty cents). We extend a cordial invitation to all to attend this dinner. The speakers on this occasion will be our Rector, Mr. Robt. J. McKenty, warden Eastern State Penitentiary, and others.

On February 15th Mr. Savory will give an address on English Military Operations in South Africa.

On February 22d a musical program has been arranged.

Boy Scouts

Saturday, January 9th, proved to be a cool, bright day, and Troop 67 turned out for a hike—making it a Paper Chase. At two o'clock, eighteen scouts, mindful of good sport before them, started with the understanding that the finish was to be at the "Valley Green Canoe Club." The "hares" carried bags of bits of newspaper for "scent," and were given a good start. There were four "hares" and fourteen "hounds" and soon everybody was in motion. It was, of course, up to the "hounds" to catch the "hares" before they could get to the end of the run. The trail led from the church, out Rumford Road to Stenton Avenue, and thence to the Trenton Cut-off. After that it strung out across Chestnut Hill, and ran westerly until it led into the Park. A little further on, and the "hares" were caught crossing Wissahickon Creek, and the "chase" ended, but we kept right on with the hike to the Canoe Club. The Paper Chase was a big success, excellent work was done by the "hounds," for making good speed in following paper "scent" requires a quick eye and lots of endurance. A short distance further on, and we came to our destination, the Canoe Club, which is managed by the brother of our Scoutmaster, Mr. Harry MacDonald. We soon made ourselves comfortable about a great roaring fire in a quaint old room, where we told stories and rested up. It was not long before the appetizing odor of supper reached us, and in an instant every scout was in his place at a long table loaded with all we could desire. After supper, the victrola furnished "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Tipperary" in the way of accompaniment to our singing, and if the truth were told, we sang about every song that has been written between these too!

At eight o'clock, we left for home, and returned by the way of Allen Lane as far as Germantown Avenue, where we separated. We enjoyed that afternoon keenly, and hereby wish to record our appreciation of the generous hospitality of our host, Mr. Harry MacDonald.

Notes

The Reverend Dr. Richmond Shreve, Canon of Holy Trinity Cathedral, Quebec, and Rector of S. Peter's, Sherbrooke, P. Q., visited relatives in Mt. Airy during January. Dr. Shreve preached in Grace Church the first Sunday after Epiphany and assisted at the Eucharistic service. Those who heard him or met him socially could wish that his stay might have been longer.

It is announced that the next meeting of the Convocation of Germantown will take place in Grace Church, Mt. Airy, on Tuesday, April 20th.

The annual Confirmation service will be held in Grace Church, Quinquagesima Sunday, February 14th, at 8 P. M.

The Bishop of the Diocese will officiate.

How Do Your Children Give?

Does your child come to you on Sunday morning and say, "Father, I want money for Church and Church School, please?"

You hand him some coins, which he afterward deposits in the plate as thoughtlessly as he received them—and you gave them.

Or, perhaps, you sit in Church, your little one by your side, and hear those beautiful words, "It is more blessed to give than to receive"; "All things come of Thee, O Lord, and of Thine own have we given Thee." You pass a coin into the dear little hand next yours—and your child's duty is done.

But is it? And have you done yours? Has he received the "blessing" of giving? There is nothing personal, nothing spiritual, nothing helpful, in this sort of giving.

How then should a child give?

He must be trained to give and to give of his own. Surely all will agree that most giving is too casual. Had this thought in giving been brought home to our own parents, there would now be more money for the spread of Christ's Kingdom, more prayer and loving service, more spirituality among us.

Tell the children these simple facts:

1. Christ came to tell us of God's love.

2. He told us to tell others. "Go ye into all the world"; and he told us to "feed the hungry and clothe the poor."

3. We cannot all go to China, or India, or Africa, or even into the slums of our own city. But we can help to send those who can.

4. He gave us all we have; we must give to others and so to Him.

How can a child give of his own? One mother of the Parish thought this out several years ago and decided to give her children an allowance, though they were rather young. She explained to them that as soon as people had expenses, they needed money, and then added up on the tips of little fingers, their expenses, taking the whole question as a serious one.

First came Church, then Church School, then spending money, then the balance for saving, either for some special gift to another, for the saving fund, to teach a valuable secular lesson, or for a special Church gift on special occasions. The spending money might be diverted also for special sacrifice.

The rules were—no advance, duties first, no borrowing from each other, though a gift might be allowed.

The allowance was made at bedtime on Saturday, so that there would be no money changing, etc., on Sunday morning, and also that Auxiliary envelopes might be filled.

If the spending money burned a hole in the pocket early in the week, there would be no moving pictures or candy on the Saturday following. This is character-building.

Of course, the question of candy or moving pictures did not come up till the children grew older. The allowance was raised as the children's expenses and wants grew, but it has never been large.

Neither is it ever given as payment for services, which is bad discipline. A child's allowance is its natural right as part of the family. A child's service should be given without pay, as part of a mutually helpful family life.

However, should a child who is older wish to earn money, there are tasks which can be taken from hired labor, such as grass-cutting, porch-scrubbing, weeding, and these paid for as a separate thing, distinct from the allowance.

The allowance should never be "docked" as a punishment. This is unjust, since the expenses go on and there are other methods of discipline.

During Lent, the candy and pleasure money is the children's voluntary Easter offering. Also the price of the family candy, the Sunday ice cream, etc., may be divided between their boxes. Let them earn, by deprivation, the Lenten offering. Cut out towels, etc., for the little girls to hem at 5 cents each; find something for the boys to do. Paying for this labor is different, since it is provided as a means for their giving.

Never do any of these things without the co-operation and, apparently, the suggestion of the children. Don't say, "I would like you to give up candy, or sundaes, or picture shows during Lent and to earn extra money for your offering." But make them understand that these deprivations are not merely to save money, that is incidental, but to enable us to spend in spirit these forty days in the Wilderness with our Lord.

Talk to your children about the meaning of Lent. When they are impressed, say, "I have been wondering what we could give up this Lent and I have decided on coffee and candy and the theatre, what would you like to choose?"

Discuss their offerings, express the wish that it might be made larger, show the need. They will ask you to make a way for their earning.

Children are naturally religious, which implies loving and generous. We need not teach them religion, but develop the religious instincts within them.

Tested by Fire

On Saturday, October 24th, S. John's Church, Jersey City Heights, N. J., was destroyed by fire. On the following morning the Rector, Rev. George D. Hadley, announced the organization of a committee to canvass the Parish, having at its head ex-Judge Robert Carey. In this committee 193 callers were enlisted to visit the entire communicant list. They were to secure support:

"1. For missions and charities so that our own trouble might make us think first of others worse off.

"2. For the support of this Parish so its great work need not be crippled by debt and deficiencies, even though the building be in ruins.

"3. For a Restoration Fund so that we may rebuild our beautiful church home and equip it for worship and work, for services and for service."

This was the order in which this congregation that had been "tested by fire" rated its own responsibilities. They canvassed the entire communicant list of 2,020 in less than a week, with the assistance of a large "fleet" of automobiles, calling in the interest of the duplex envelope system, and placing Missions first, current expenses second, and the restoration of their burned church home last.

As a result they secured pledges for nearly $33,000. Of this was pledged for Missions, $4,854,—an increase of $2,901 over the preceding year; for current expenses, $13,785,—an increase of $2,180; and for the Restoration Fund, over $14,000,—no subscription being over $500. The score of guilds and the Church School have not yet been heard from, and it is believed that they will materially add to the amount. All of the guilds work only for missions and charities, and they have not abated any of their usual work during the period of Parish distress. Indeed, one guild raised $1,750 for missions, and for Christ Hospital the very week the canvass was in progress, and at the same time the Rector gave two lectures for the benefit of the Belgian Relief Fund. The Thanksgiving service and the offering for the poor of the Parish were the largest the Church has known. The duplex envelopes were inaugurated on November 29th.

When asked how the Parish did this in spite of the bad times, Mr. Hadley said: "We did it because of the bad times. We know no better way to make bad times good than by strengthening the Church of Christ." Beginning with the early Communion, the morning after the fire, all services have been held in the Parish house. —The Spirit of Missions.

Children's Letter

My dear Children:

Which would you rather be, a cruiser or a hospital ship? As for me, I think there is destruction aplenty in the world these days. Earthquake and famine are bad enough, but war is worse. Would that we might have some little share in assuaging the pain!

One day last week I visited a ship of mercy in the New York Navy Yard. It would not be fair to judge this gentle ship by the company she keeps, for she belongs to the Atlantic fleet. All about her lay fierce and deadly battleships, torpedo boats and submarines. But the "Solace" (for that is her significant name) was all unarmed and unafraid. Her instruments are not those of destruction, but restoration. Her mission is one of healing and comfort. Her banner is the merciful Red Cross.

Her officers are chiefly physicians, one of whom was an old college mate of mine. He was good enough to show me all over that sea hospital and then I had the pleasure of dining on board. The officers were full of anticipations of their trip through the Panama Canal next month. For the "Solace" is to take part in the naval review at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at the time of the President's visit.

Perhaps the "Solace" is not so thrilling as the New York, but if I had my choice, do you know I should prefer to be a "Solace" rather than a death-dealing dreadnaught.

As a matter of fact, we can have a real share in the "healing of the nations" by our prayers. What a privilege it is for us to join with our Heavenly Lord in the great work of intercession.

All during Lent let us forget ourselves and pray hard for others, especially those suffering from the pain and loss in war.

Don't forget the Children's services, Fridays at 4.

Affectionately yours,
THOMAS S. CLINE.

Let us be patient! These severe afflictions
Not from the ground arise,
But oftentimes celestial benedictions
Assume this dark disguise.—Longfellow.

The Aim of a Revival

The first aim of a religious revival is to produce the mind of the crowd where the reason is in abeyance and the emotion holds the reins. There are those who decry all such religious movements because they "teach the people to feel instead of think, to act impulsively instead of rationally."

Let us bear in mind that a revival presupposes a morbid condition, which calls for heroic treatment. The disease is paralysis, showing itself in apathy and deadness.

Multitudes need the shock of an earthquake and the shattering storm before they can hear the "still, small voice." The hardened crust of selfishness, indifference and formalism must be melted away. They must be brought back to an attitude similar to that of childhood, impulsive and susceptible to tears and laughter. The crowd mind makes this possible, but if the movement stop there, great harm will result.

The second aim of the revival is to produce the mind of the individual. The intensity of the all-pervading religious emotion is focused upon the individual will. Decision is called for. While all the community is astir and consciences are awakened and pride shattered, it becomes easier to yield to this appeal. By that act the mind of the individual becomes sharply defined. He has assumed a new attitude toward God and the world.

This may seem to be the goal of a religious revival, but it is only a means to the real end, and if the movement stop here little permanent fruit will remain.

The third and ultimate aim of the religious revival is to develop the mind of the Church, which finds local expression in the mind of the congregation. The mind of the Church is as far above the mind of the individual as the mind of the crowd is below it. The one is a leveling down, a coagulation. The other is an integration into a living tissue. By the operation of the Holy Spirit the mind of Christ took possession of His apostles. Through all succeeding ages the Holy Catholic Church has continued in the apostolic doctrine and fellowship. To become a Christian is to be incorporated into the Church, the Body of Christ. To enter into our true Christian heritage, we must share the mind of the Church—its work and faith, its ideals and spirit, its life and sacraments. If left in isolation, converts of a revival will wither away.

The present revival in Philadelphia has produced the mind of the crowd to an alarming degree. It has led to thousands of personal decisions.

The crucial question is—to what degree will it contribute to the mind of the Church? No doubt its leaders are sincere in their belief that "It is only those who are planted in the House of the Lord who shall flourish in the Courts of our God." They will soon be gone, and it depends now upon those who remain—the converts and the churches—to make permanent the results of the movement.

This third aim, always by far the most difficult of the three to accomplish, has, no doubt, been made especially hard by the methods used in this revival.

Many of the religious bodies uniting in the movement share but imperfectly the mind of the Church Catholic.

But no stone should be left unturned to bring those who are spiritually awakened into their true heritage in the Church.

Let there be no intimation of coldness or cynicism, but only earnest love and sympathy.

The Young Churchman's Association

At the dinner of the Association, which took place on the evening of February 8th, interest centered in the address of Warden Robert J. McKenty, of the Eastern Penitentiary, who is one of the foremost of those masters of such institutions who advocate reaching out the helping hand to the fellow who is down. The old idea governing penal institutions was to see to it that the person "doing time" for crime got plenty of punishment; was treated as belonging to "the criminal class"; made to feel at every turn that he was separated from the sympathy of fellow human beings; so that when his time was up he skulked away with a grudge, a branded man and whose only show in the world was to live up to the place he found himself in. Debarred from making an honest livelihood, he naturally reverted to more crime. Warden McKenty told us that in the Eastern Penitentiary, with fifteen hundred inmates, the discipline is practically determined by a committee of the prisoners, the guards perform their duties unarmed, social and religious organizations promote the best interests of the inmates, the man is looked after with kindly interest while in the prison, and after he leaves on parole or through expiration of sentence.

As a result, the man leaves not as a jail bird, but as one having been taught some useful occupation and goes out to a good start in life.

Aladino Autilio, Esq., eulogized the methods employed by Warden McKenty and showed what the development of character among men under sentence of law could do for them and for the community at large.

Addresses were made by the Rector and by Dr. A. L. E. Crouter. Mr. W. F Wagner very genially officiated as toastmaster.

The recent address of Captain Richard Savory relating to conditions in Africa during the time of the Boer War was more interesting than the cold type of a book or a magazine article, for it came from the lips of one who was actually in the field during that period. The vast loneliness of the African veldt, the tremendous effect of the opening of the Rand, the sturdy qualities of the Boers, their resourcefulness and peculiar methods in time of war, the racial conditions that led up to the conflict with Great Britain were all familiar topics to Captain Savory, and he presented them most entertainingly to his audience.

When Mr. Savory read a short paper by Mrs. Savory in defence of England's policy in the war, it was heartily applauded by the men.

Notice of the promised address of the Rev. W. Herbert Burk, rector of the Washington Memorial Church at Valley Forge, brought out a large attendance of association men on Washington's birthday. It was certainly most illuminating to have presented to us the results of Rev. Mr. Burk's researches in the life and times of Washington by one so affectionately enthusiastic. That the speaker had made himself familiar with the life of the Father of his Country was evident. Not only had he studied the authorities, but he had delved into musty public documents and waded through thousands of autograph letters to abstract the last grain of knowledge of his beloved subject. Washington, the man of unswerving honesty, a master in the knowledge of men, one whose courage was never called into question, was a man who always recognized the presence of God, and made his prayers as much a matter of his day's business as any of his other duties.

The Lookout Committee of the Young Churchmen's Association occasionally know of some young man who needs employment. Members of the Parish in need of help would do well to keep this in mind. At present one man is registered for office work. Information as to an opening of any kind would be gratefully received.

Pews and Sittings

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

The Brotherhood of S. Andrew

Grace Chapter has been strengthened by the return of two Brotherhood men who moved out of the Parish for some time. These are Messrs. John Miller and Jay Bishop. There are several candidates for membership; recent losses to the Chapter through removal from the Parish will be well made up.

The noonday Lenten services for business men are being held as usual at S. Stephen's Church, Tenth Street above Chestnut, the Garrick Theatre and old S. Paul's Church. The hour is 12.30 o'clock, closing at 12.55 precisely. Five bishops appear on the schedule, who with Father Huntington, O. H. C., make an attractive list of speakers.

"Plain Rules for a Christian's Life Today," is the general subject for six conference topics on Thursdays in Lent at the Church House at 4.30 P. M.: "At his prayers," "In Church," "At home," "At business," "With his friends," and "In his community." These conferences are meant especially for men, and are planned for the help and guidance of doubtful and troubled consciences.

It is hoped that they may promote a sense of common responsibility and a desire for Christian fellowship. Opportunity for asking questions will be freely given.

The Bishop of the Diocese will be the leader.

A Few Every-Member Canvasses

A feature of a recent canvass in Englewood, N. J., was that the entire affair took place on a certain Sunday. A celebration of the Holy Eucharist, a service and sermon, a luncheon, a whirlwind canvass, a compilation of results, and a thanksgiving service made up a well-spent day. Two sets of printed matter, one after the other, reached each and every parishioner shortly before the canvass.

Reports of Every-Member Canvasses in progressive parishes show a tendency to confine arguments and solicitation of funds to the printed matter that precedes the actual visit of the committee.

The sheer audacity of one of the most successful plans of campaign has something to recommend it. People were asked to digest the circular matter; to stay at home on a Sunday afternoon, and have the pledges ready for the canvassers when they called. The beauty of the scheme is that it caught the attention of the people, and invoked their cheerful cooperation.

In Denver, Colorado, a city-wide canvass is to be made in April; every parish and mission is to be included in the movement. It is hoped that the results will warrant a diocese-wide canvass in that section.

A recent Every-Member Canvass in conservative old Charleston, S. C., resulted in an astonishing increase in the income of the Church through the concerted efforts of two hundred people, who employed over one hundred automobiles in a single afternoon's canvass.

In Manchester, N. H., the plan was:
A month in education.
A day for canvass.
Results: Beyond all expectation!

Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

This is a good opportunity to thank all who contributed to the Sample Tea of last month, and which was a very informal and pleasant affair.

There was a good showing of Grace Church people, and the orders amounted to a generous sum. We are hoping for more orders, as the samples will be on exhibition every Wednesday during Lent.

There is a good variety of aprons and fancy articles. Orders will be taken for embroidering initials, for scalloping, hemstitching and hand-made lace.

The ginger cake, snip-doodle, sponge cake and small cakes have become well known, also the marmalade, lemon butter, candied orange and grape-fruit peel, fudge, butter taffy and nut candy.

On the bulletin board in the Guild Room will be found the names and addresses of those who make these goodies, and who will be glad to fill orders for you.

Dainty China egg-cups, candle shades and place-cards will be painted to order.

It must have been encouraging to those on the Rug Committee to see the splendid results of their patient labors, for the rugs certainly were beautiful and many of them were sold that day and orders given for more.

Material is very much needed to fill these orders. Cotton goods of all kinds and colors, even though faded, if clean and strong, can be used.

Have we not some patch-bags that have not been gone through lately?

Beside the order work, we are sewing for colored girls in an industrial school in San Antonio, Texas.

Our usual missionary box is to be prepared and sent to the Indian catechist, Louis Greenwood, Rosebud, South Dakota, and there is sewing to be done for our little friend, Joanna Freeman, a scholar at Miss Ridgley's Mission School, The House of Bethany, Cape Mount, West Africa, for whom we make an outfit every other year.

Our Wednesdays are full and interesting. Reports of the delegates on the different missionary committees are read in the mornings, and during Lent the mission study class meets in the afternoon.

We have the work, we want more workers, and, yes, we still want another sewing machine.

Come, help.

We cannot all do everything, but we can all do something.

Notes

It is a great pleasure to be able to record that the Ash Wednesday offerings for Missions to the Deaf this year are practically double those of last year.

The attendance upon the services of the Church on Ash Wednesday was noticeably larger than in former years, at this season. It is hoped that the card of Lenten and other services will be kept closely at hand for ready reference.

An illustrated talk on the United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary will be given on Tuesday, March 16th, at 8.15 P. M., in the Parish House of S. Luke's Church, Germantown. There are no tickets of admission, but there will be the opportunity for a silver offering.

The Free and Open Church Movement

Let us quote from the observations of the Rector of a neighboring Parish in this Diocese: "God blesses those servants who measure their service, not by their own probable ability, but against the greatness of human need." Speaking of his own experiences in a Parish where he and his people dared to make their church free and open after recurring Easter Monday deficits, he says: "A church with rented pews is a club, built on the plan of a sect. The free church is a family, which is the church idea. As for the loss of the family pew, the answer is that a church truly free and unappropriated, makes its whole congregation one family before God."

We are told that the pew system is only 300 years old. Before that, the infirm used chairs, but most people who went to church were satisfied to reverently stand or kneel. Recall the family pew of our ancestors—do not go further back than your grandsire! Was it not provided with soft seats? How high of side it was, and there were curtains and a door with a button or a spring catch; hospitable, very. True we have made some progress—the pew door has dropped off, the curtains have disappeared, the sides are not quite so high, but say what you will, there are people who stay away from church because they cannot afford to hire a pew. Many people in the church and out of it, regard the church in the same way as they do the lyceum, lecture hall, opera, or anything else you pay for. After you have bought your seat, it's yours. Come, let's apply a test. You have a pew paid for in which five people may conveniently be seated—you and your wife are to occupy it this Sunday morning—you have fallen into the custom of placing yourself in the end next the aisle, it's less uncomfortable than sitting bolt upright in the middle of the pew. The church fills up pretty well, as the weather is fine—suddenly you become conscious that three people are standing in the aisle, waiting for you to move up, having taken this for a free church. Now, honor bright, are you glad those people came out to church today? If you are, you need not read any more of this article, but if you are a bit ruffled, not to say resentful of this intrusion, keep steadily on. Would you take it as an impertinence if you were to be reminded that it's God's House you are sitting in, not man's house? Yes, and it's God's pew you would rather have regarded as a private box for the exclusive use of self and family.

As a matter of fact, by paying pew rent, you are only taking one of the many forms of contributing to the payment of Parish expenses.

A sure cure for this disorder of mind and temper, is to pay rent for the best pew in the church, take your stand at the door, look for new people as you look for customers in your business, fill up your pew with them, and then go and sit somewhere else. Try it.

A recent estimate made in this country shows that 87 per cent. of the churches of our communion are free—in the missionary jurisdictions, almost 99 per cent. are free.

Tolerate no restrictions at the doors by pride or tax, which may bar out any child of God, and the very gates shall be named Praise.

Christ once had drawn about Him a throng of breathless auditors when He was told His Mother and His Brethren stood without desiring to speak with Him. He said, "Who is My Mother and who are My Brethren?"

Let us take a course of action that will refute the all too common sayings:

The Episcopal Church is a fashionable church.

The Episcopal Church is the rich man's church.

The poor man stays away and is expected to keep out.

The House of God is sold out in strips and square feet.

The Episcopal Church attracts the well-to-do, for, if they are late, they are assured of a reserved seat.

The Episcopal Church is a proprietary chapel, not a church.

When you have paid your pew rent, you have done your whole duty.

Listen, and you will hear Episcopalians talk of "strangers, visitors and my pew!"

The vestry set the price of sittings, and the rich are glad to say, "Well, it's all they asked; as a business proposition, I never pay more than the market price."

A church cannot be consecrated until it is out of debt. This is based on the theory that you cannot give to God what belongs to somebody else. Suppose you gave to a friend something half owned by the gas company, would it be his? Suppose you gave to God a church property that, though free of debt in the eyes of the law, you and a hundred others intend to hold a proprietary claim of exclusion on by appropriating for a consideration a large portion of its seating capacity. At the bottom of the trouble is caste prejudice, for anyone who says there is no such thing as caste in America is very right as to what he means, but very wrong as to what he says.

Perhaps the term "Free and Open Church" is a misnomer, open the church from sunrise to sunset, and that will tend to make it free.

Have you ever taken advantage of the invitation of a sign beside a church door, "Come in and rest a while and pray?" Did you not say, "There's an open church, I'll venture it's a free church?"

Who knows how many lonely souls have passed our Church today wishing to "enter in?" Have you ever gone into a church and found yourself quite alone there? Have you noted how very quickly you experience that feeling of detachment from earthly things? There are very many who need such an uplift, very likely many more than we think. Would it not be a satisfaction to know that all church doors bore the legend, "Come in and rest a while and pray"; that wherever we go Mother Church has a welcome ready and waiting? A writer on this subject uses a beautiful illustration in relating that once, while on the seashore, the full moon rose as he stood watching the horizon. Out on the water flashed a long golden pathway directly to him. Going on further, he turned, and there was the same greeting sparkling to his very feet. Then came to him the thought that wherever he might be on that beach, that glistening arm of light would reach right out to him, moreover, directly to each and every one of tens of thousands who might crowd the shore that night. Just so, he thought, beckons Mother Church to every one.

Church Periodical Club

Again the Librarian wants to thank all those who have so generously contributed magazines and books.

Grateful letters have been received from Virginia, Maryland, Oklahoma, and in the early winter from South Dakota and Ohio. One clergyman writes: "I wish to assure you and the club of the great pleasure you have given me and my family, as well as the many like ourselves, altogether out of reach of such reading matter as will tide over many a weary day and supply many longings for the outside world."

He adds: "If the C. P. C. has an umbrella, rubber shoes No. 6, a rain pair of gloves No. 6, I would be tempted to ask for some second-hand ones." Can anyone supply these?

The cook-books and books of poetry were much appreciated.

Now is the time for making over old Easter cards, so they can be sent off to the hospitals and mission stations for Easter.

The Librarian is beginning to feel the burden of the freight bills, as the railroads do not make any more free rates for missionary boxes. Will not some of the readers of the PARISH NEWS, who have not already contributed, come to the aid of the C. P. C.? Any donation, however small, towards this expense will be gratefully received.

Parenthood

The last of the Parish Conferences before Lent was one of the most stimulating thus far held. The Rev. Frederic Gardiner, L. H. D., headmaster of the Yeates School, Lancaster, Pa., was the speaker. His theme was, "The Art of Parenthood."

He said, The great body of parents are real parents as far as they know how. They are intensely and conscientiously anxious to do the very best for their children. They are ready for sacrifice, but somehow they are very much at sea as to what is the right thing to do, even though often unaware of it themselves. It is surprising how few parents have learned to realize that the training of children is an expert business, for which much preparation is necessary, and that the attempt to turn this task over entirely to the school teacher is impossible. Every parent must put himself in training if he hopes to discharge his responsibility. Fortunately, leagues and training classes to help parents along this line are being formed, and the youthful parent of today ought to be much better fitted to be a real parent than his fathers.

Dr. Gardiner spoke first of the League of Church Parents about to be promoted by the General Board of Religious Education.

He went on to unfold a plan, upon which he has long been at work, of establishing an Order of American Parenthood, which might be regarded as an inner circle within the league proposed by the board.

Public Playground

The proposal to establish a public playground for the children in the neighborhood of the Curtin School, which the Social Service Committee has had under consideration for some time, was recently submitted to the ministers of Mount Airy. The suggestion was favorably received and a committee was appointed, consisting of the Rev. T. S. Cline (chairman), the Rev. John Calhoun, and the Rev. Stephen Paulson.

Mr. W. D. Champlin, the Executive Secretary of the City Board of Recreation, went over the ground with the committee a few days ago.

He was fully convinced of the need of a playground in that vicinity and offered to provide supervision if proper equipment were procured. The most favorable place for the playground seemed to be the yard of the Curtin School. The matter will be taken up with the school authorities.

This co-operation between the Mount Airy pastors for the improvement of the community is not without significance. Let us hope it will establish a precedent.

The ministers present were the Rev. Messrs. Calhoun (who acted as host), Fry, Westwood, Swigart, Paulson, Bennett, Dodd, Berry and Cline.

Junior Auxiliary

During this Lent four mission study classes are being held for the Junior Auxiliary, under the leadership of Miss Adele Bayard, Miss M. W. Bayard, Miss Sidney Hood and Miss Margaret Matlack. The first class, to which the older Juniors belong, meets every Saturday at three-thirty in the Parish House; the other three meet every Monday at the same hour in different rooms of the Parish House. The text used is, "Building the City."

The eleventh annual report of the Junior Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary is just out, and shows a very favorable report for the diocese. Our own branch is congratulating itself upon standing fifth among the branches in the diocese in the amount it has raised towards the apportionment and upon standing first in the box list. The boys of the Church School, who gave us valuable financial help in sending the boxes, must have a share in this showing.

Good Friday

As another Good Friday draws near it may be fitting to remind our readers of the resolution adopted by the last General Convention of the Church as follows: "Resolved, that we recognize with sympathy the inability of many Christian people to share in the age-long custom of setting apart Good Friday as a day of public and private devotion in commemoration of the sacrifice of our Lord. In view of this fact we call upon them at noon on that day to unite in at least a few minutes of special personal contemplation of Christ crucified."

Boy Scouts

The annual national convention of the Boy Scouts of America was held at Washington, D. C., February 11, 1915. After the regular business meeting in the New Willard, the President of the United States received the representatives in the East Room of the White House, where he delivered a short address of welcome and then presented seven Scouts with the "Eagle Badge," the highest rank in scouting. One scout received an honor medal for life-saving. Gordon Crouter, of our own Troop 67, was present as "orderly," accompanying J. W. Patton, Deputy Scout Commissioner.

The assemblage, including Crouter, had its picture taken on the steps of the Treasury Building.

In the evening the Philadelphians were the guests of the Washington Scouts at a big massed rally and exhibition at Convention Hall.

Church School

The article in the February PARISH NEWS, "How do your children give?" suggests a better understanding of the use of the duplex envelopes in the Church School. These envelopes are intended to teach individual responsibility for the current expenses of the Church in the Parish, and in the mission field; and to instil the importance of regularity in meeting this responsibility—that rain or shine, absent or present, expenses are to be met every Sunday.

To carry out the purpose of this system, the scholar should present, with the envelope for the day, all offerings (in their appointed envelopes) in which he or she is in arrears through absence.

The purpose of the duplex envelope should not be confused with that of special offerings for objects of a specific character. While the duplex envelope system makes provision for regular expenses, there is opportunity to exercise self-denial through Lent by the use of the Mite Box. That the distinct character in the two methods of giving may not be lost sight of, the scholars should not put all their offerings in the Lenten Mite Boxes, but continue the use of the duplex envelopes. Parents could do much to fix these principles in their children's minds by seeing that the envelopes are used with absolute regularity.

Not a little work and some anxiety could be avoided if scholars, or their parents, would notify the teacher or some officer of the reason for absence. Don't wait for someone to inquire if you were ill or away from home, but send word promptly.

Fire extinguishers have been procured and located on the three floors of the Parish House at points where they may be readily found and used in case of emergency.

The Wednesday Evening Lenten Services in Grace Church

The text of the first of the Wednesday evening sermons preached by the Rev. James B. Halsey, rector of S. Timothy's Church, Roxborough, was the last verse of Psalm XIX, "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be alway acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer." While the central thought of the discourse was Devotion in Intercession, illustrated by the mediation of Abraham for the men of Gomorrah, great emphasis was laid upon acquiring qualities of heart and mind, through diligent meditation, that would give force and direction to our acts of intercession. Unless our meditations are robust; unless they show concentration, they become mere mental drifting; only flights of fancy.

In the second of Rev. Mr. Halsey's sermons, delivered February 24th, on the subject of Devotion in Well-doing, the text was from the ninth verse of the sixth chapter of S. Paul the Apostle to the Galatians: "And let us not be weary in well-doing."

In acquiring the faculty of doing well, much depends on matters of habit; habit in concentration; habit in work; habit in prayer. That which is at first difficult, becomes less difficult, so that well-doing persisted in becomes difficult not to do.

Notes

Sunday evenings in Lent the Organ Recitals will begin at 7.30 and Evening Prayer at 8.

Mrs. R. L. Hayes is conducting a Mission Study Class in Christ Church, Germantown, as well as in her own Parish.

The Rector is preaching a course of seven sermons in St. Timothy's Church, Roxborough, on Wednesday evenings of Lent in exchange with Mr. Halsey.

The Rector's addresses to children at the Friday afternoon Lenten services are on the following subjects:

1. How to command and how to obey.
2. How to affirm and how to deny.
3. How to grant and how to pray.
4. How to go and how to stay.
5. How to work and how to play.
6. How to be glad and how to be sorry.
7. How to hate and how to love.

There will be meetings of the canvassers, Sunday, March 7th, and Sunday, March 14th. The canvass will begin March 15th and be concluded Sunday, March 21st. Excellent results are anticipated.

To Duplex Envelope Subscribers

There is a misprint in the special envelope for Good Friday. It is dated April 21st instead of April 2d, and has, in consequence, been put out of its place. Please see that it is inserted before the envelope for the first Sunday in April, and that it is handed in as nearly as possible on the true date.

One Christmas envelope was received after February 1st. Such delays cause many extra book entries, as well as much explanatory letter-writing, all of which would be prevented by promptness on the subscribers' part.

These special envelopes are each for special offerings called for by the Canons of this Diocese. These go for special and most meritorious purposes, all of which need our prompt and liberal support.

J. W. BAYARD.

Lent

Welcome, dear feast of Lent; who loves not thee,
He loves not Temperance, or Authority,
  But is composed of passion.
The Scriptures bid us fast; the Church says, Now:
Give to thy Mother what thou wouldst allow
  To every Corporation.

The humble soul, composed of love and fear,
Begins at home, and lays the burden there,
  When doctrines disagree:
He says: In things which use hath justly got,
I am a scandal to the Church, and not
  The Church is so to me.

True Christians should be glad of an occasion
To use their temperance, seeking no evasion,
  When good is seasonable;
Unless Authority, which should increase
The obligation in us, make it less
  And Power itself disable.

Besides the cleanness of sweet abstinence,
Quick thoughts and motions at a small expense,
  A face not fearing light:
Whereas in fulness there are sluttish fumes,
Sour exhalations, and dishonest rheums,
  Revenging the delight.

Then those same pendent profits, which the spring
And Easter intimate, enlarge the thing
  And goodness of the deed.
Neither ought other men's abuse of Lent
Spoil the good use; lest by that argument
  We forfeit all our Creed.

'Tis true, we cannot reach Christ's fortieth day;
Yet to go part of that religious way
  Is better than to rest;
We cannot reach our Saviour's purity;
Yet are we bid, Be holy even as he.
  In both let's do our best.

Who goeth in the way which Christ hath gone,
Is much more sure to meet with him than one
  That traveleth by-ways.
Perhaps my God, though he be far before,
May turn, and take me by the hand, and more
  May strengthen my decays.

Yet, Lord, instruct us to improve our fast
By starving sin, and taking such repast
  As may our faults control:
That every man may revel at his door,
Not in his parlour; banqueting the poor
  And among those his soul.

—George Herbert.

The Lenten Offering number of The Spirit of Missions, usually known as the Children's Number, has appeared, and is one of the most attractive and interesting which has been put forth during all the fourteen years that this special edition has been published. It should have a large sale. The children of the Sunday schools are allowed to keep half of the proceeds of the sales on all new subscriptions which they take to go toward the Lenten Offering.

Easter Greetings

From the bottom of my heart I wish you all a joyous Easter. I hope that the little children will learn some bright lesson about Jesus' great victory, that the boys and girls will gain a stronger sense of pride in the name "Christian," and that the aged may see the western sky lighted up with the glorious hope of immortality.

I pray that the weak and weary may find power and rest in fuller participation in our Lord's risen Life, that those who have been fighting a losing battle may take fresh courage to turn and snatch victory from defeat, and that those who are sad may look up into the infinite joy of God and rejoice.

I have you all in mind as I think of the approach of Easter, not only you who are troubled, but you who are glad and strong and faithful, who have experienced in your lives "the power of His Resurrection." And I wish you all the joy of growth. May Easter bring you new life—that is, a better quality of life. I shall let a wiser and more spiritual pastor define what I mean by "a better quality of life." Fr. Congreave says:

"The sacrifice of Christ on the Cross showed Him to us as the Eternal Love. He rises from the grave with every faculty of His humanity perfected through death, in order to manifest Himself to us as the Eternal Life.

"The conqueror of death, He comes to be our Life, not in the sense of an infinite extension of the low kind of being ordinary experience makes us familiar with; but to become in each baptized man an eternal spring of a new life higher than we can conceive—the life of the Blessed Trinity; to become the source of all the virtues and beatitudes of God, and of perfected man, in every one of His members."

Very faithfully yours.

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Easter Services

Easter Even is the traditional time for baptisms. Parents who desire to have their children baptized are asked to bring them, with their sponsors, on that day, at the 4 o'clock service. Previous notice should be given to the Rector.

On Easter Day there will be three celebrations of the Holy Communion, at 6, 7.30 and 11. Morning Prayer will be said at 10.30, Evening Prayer and sermon at 8.

The Children's Easter Carol Service will be held in the church at 4 o'clock.

On Easter Day every communicant of the Church should make his communion at his home altar.

Easter Offering

For the second time in the history of Grace Church, the Easter offering will be devoted entirely to Missions. There is a special and urgent reason for this. The Board of Missions is asking each member of the Church to join in raising an Emergency Fund of $400,000 to meet the anticipated needs of the present year and to place our missionary work upon a safe footing. The request from the Board of Missions, addressed to every member of the Church, reads as follows:

1. Will you join us in prayer that we may have vision and faith, and may learn the joy and blessing of sacrifice? Deeper far than the need for money is the need for devout prayer in the Name of Our Lord.

2. Will you, in addition to your usual

missionary offerings, give at least ONE DAY'S INCOME?

3. If this is impossible, will you make an equivalent self-denial offering?

The members of the Board took the lead in contributing and gave $10,000. The employes at the Church Missions House and missionaries on furlough have voluntarily pledged one day's income.

This spirit has prompted the Rector, Wardens, Vestrymen and the members of the Laymen's Missionary Committee of our own parish to pledge to give on Easter Day at least one day's income.

The statement of the Board, together with a letter from the Rector, has been mailed to the parishioners. There is every prospect of a joyous and generous Easter offering.

Church School

A couple of Sundays ago a visitor from another Church School attended our session, quietly seated in one of the classes. In speaking of the school later, she said so many nice things that we cannot repeat them. We are properly pleased that she considered our scholars exceptionally orderly, attentive and respectful. The progress of the school in matters of this kind, as well as in studies, is a great joy to all of us. But we are not unmindful of many shortcomings, and are constantly striving for improvement. Suggestions from any source will always be appreciated.

Courage to face examinations is an admirable quality. On a recent Sunday it was openly announced that examinations would be held the following week. Did many of the scholars slink away to escape? Not at all. Examination day brought a record-breaking attendance, 109 in the Junior and Senior Departments, surpassing all records for that term. The majority of classes had every member present.

Plans are on foot to campaign for new scholars. We've got the room in the higher departments, and are ready for a larger work. Let every one co-operate to enlarge and strengthen our school.

Members of the congregation, especially parents, are cordially invited to visit the school. You will feel perfectly at ease. We want you to see what is being accomplished.

The prayer books and hymnals presented by the school to the Church are being put to use. They were badly needed. Fifty of each were presented.

Lads and Lassies in Drama

A benefit for the Social Service Work will be held on May 1st, 8 P. M., at Crusaders' Hall, Germantown Avenue, when "The Sniggles Family" and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will be given by a few young people of the Church School, assisted by Miss Dorothy Chanceller, under the direction of Mrs. A. Harris Insinger.

The story of "Mrs. Wiggs" is taken directly from Mrs. Alice Rice's own book of that name, and the conversation throughout is reproduced as accurately as possible.

Those in charge hope that all who can will lend their aid in making the play a financial success. Tickets of admission, 25 cents. Cakes and candies will be on sale.

Woman's Auxiliary

LEPER HOSPITAL

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild was fortunate in having such interesting speakers last month. On Wednesday morning, March 3d, Miss Elizabeth Gilpin spoke of the work being done to help the lepers at the Hospital of the Resurrection of Hope, in Kumamoto, South Japan, founded fourteen years ago, and maintained through the efforts of Miss Biddell, to bring hope, both physically and spiritually, to those who in all countries and in all ages have been almost universally considered beyond the pale of hope. It has for its objects the care of the body, the making of a real home for the individual, and, above all, the raising of the spirit of life in Christ. It is in this place that a group of more than fifty lepers are to be found, of whom it may be said that they are really and truly happy, in spite of their awful disease and its inevitable consequences of separating them from everything that usually makes life of value.

Miss Gilpin asks if we will send a Christmas box to these poor people. She lays great stress upon the fact that, like all Japanese, they love the beautiful, especially colors of soft tone; also, anything not Japanese, as they are particularly pleased with American gifts.

Surely we can each bring some little gift, and in the Guild Room on Wednesday mornings wool will be given to those who care to make mufflers and scarfs.

This box must leave here May 26th, and any articles left at the Parish House for this purpose please mark, "For the lepers."

WORK AMONG SLAVIC PEOPLES

The Rev. Edward M. Frank, Rector of the Church of the Advent, Fifth and Callowhill Streets, held us spellbound on the morning of March 17th, telling us of his work among the foreigners. In that neighborhood few Americans are left, and those are of the lowest type. But there are many Slavs, Roumanians, Servians and Russians. Many of these are Christian people, but poor. There are many unable to read in any language, but they are honest and good fundamentally. They love worship, and they love the Church. They want their traditional forms of religion, and they want to pray their own prayers. They are afraid of Protestants. They do not understand us, and we do not understand them. Mr. Frank says: "They can be reached, and will become as one people some day, but first we must learn the good things they give us, as well as what we give them. We must minister to the different people as we find them, and without prejudice.

HOME BASE OF MISSIONS

Possibly this is a fitting place to add the words of our own Rector when he spoke to the members of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild on Tuesday, March 16th:

"Don't be disheartened by those who say the home base of Missions is demoralized by the war. Such is not the case while America is intact and England is breaking past records in missionary support. Do you realize that these two countries alone supply more than four-fifths of the financial support of non-

Roman missionary work throughout the world?

"But the home base of Missions can never be demoralized, for the home base of Missions is in Heaven. These so-called Christian lands are only outposts. God is the ultimate home base of Missions. Perhaps Mission study is too often directed to the circumference instead of the center of the Kingdom.

"When you grow weary of the vision of the thousand million people who do not know God, refresh your soul by the vision of God, who gave His Son for the thousand million people. Most of all, we need a realization of the Fact of God."

Two Important April Services

The Spring Missionary Service for the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held in Calvary Church, Germantown, Manheim Street and Pulaski Avenue, on Wednesday, April 14th, at 10.30 A. M. The Rev. Hugh L. Burleson, D.D., Editorial Secretary of the Board of Missions, will make an address on Domestic Missions, to which object the offering will be devoted.

This annual service, arranged by the Presidents' Association, is supposed to take precedence of all Auxiliary meetings, for, with twelve parishes to be considered, it would be impossible to select a date which would not conflict with some meeting.

The service in 1914 was poorly attended. We will say frankly that we were very much ashamed to have summoned the Rev. Arthur W. Sherman from New York to address so small a congregation, supposed to be representative of this large section of the city. Will not every Churchwoman feel a personal responsibility this year to be present to welcome Dr. Burleson?

The members of the Association have expressed the earnest wish that the clergy should attend these annual services.

The Eleventh Annual Service, with the Presentation of the United Offering of the Woman's Auxiliary, has been appointed for Thursday, April 29th, at 10 A. M., in the Church of the Incarnation, Broad and Jefferson Streets. The Bishop of the Diocese will be the celebrant, and the Rev. N. V. P. Levis the preacher. This is a wonderfully inspiring service, modeled as nearly as possible after the triennial service. It is not just for the Treasurers that they may present their parish offerings. Nor should it be confined to the active members of the Auxiliary. It is the blessed privilege of every Churchwoman in the diocese to have a share in it. Will you not keep the morning of April 29th free from engagements, that you may be present? Indeed, it seems that this year, more than ever before, every woman must be drawn irresistibly to this great Eucharistic Service of Presentation. As she thinks of the hundreds and thousands of women whose loved ones have fallen on the battlefields of Europe, should she not pour out her very soul in thanksgiving to God that her own dear ones have not been taken from her, and that she has such wonderful opportunities for service? What time or place more fitting than that of the presentation of our United Thank Offering?

Organized Charity

The Society for Organizing Charity is planning to establish advisory councils in different parts of the city. In the Twenty-second Ward a council of twenty-one representative men and women will be appointed to act in co-operation with the Central Board as friendly counselors. They will be able to bring sectional problems to the notice of the society and so facilitate their settlement. Furthermore, they will keep themselves informed regarding the principles and methods of modern charity and help to educate the community along these lines.

Grace Church will be represented on this council by Mr. Thomas H. Ball. We rejoice at every new evidence of the growing spirit of co-operation between the Church and the charitable agencies of the city.

Lord John Russell once made a famous retort to Sir Francis Burdett, saying, "The honorable member talks of the cant of patriotism, but there is something worse than the cant of patriotism and that is the recant of patriotism."

Our Every Member Canvas

Grace Church held an every member canvass for offerings through the duplex envelopes on Sunday afternoon, March 21st. Twenty-five men engaged in the enterprise and concluded it within four hours.

For several weeks previous, the Laymen's Missionary Committee, headed by the Rector's Warden, Chairman, made careful preparations. Volunteer canvassers were enlisted, conferences were held, and a personal letter, followed up by a reminder card, was distributed. Inasmuch as this letter was intended to interest those not at the time systematic contributors, only a limited circulation was given it. The letter is reproduced here for the information of the parish at large, including any who by chance may have been overlooked:

March 12, 1915.

To the Members and Friends of Grace Church:

AN IDEAL

The Rector, Wardens and Vestry of Grace Church, seconded by a large committee of laymen, wish to set before the whole congregation an ideal:

Every parishioner a regular contributor to the Church.

"Every parishioner" is a much more inclusive term than every communicant.

By "Contributor to the Church" we mean Contributor to Missions as well as to Parish Expenses.

We feel assured that the realization of this ideal will result in great benefit not only to the Church, but also to the contributors.

THE FORMER CANVASS

The convass conducted one year ago brought us much nearer to this ideal, increasing the number of regular contributors by one hundred and the amount regularly given for the Church by about two thousand dollars.

THE PRESENT CANVASS

There is a double reason for repeating the canvass this year.

First, because we have not yet realized our ideal. There are, in addition to the two hundred persons now regularly contributing to the Church, some two hundred more who should be doing so.

Second, because there is pressing need of increased income both for our own Parish work and for Missions.

THE PARISH

The growing work of Grace Church requires a growing income. There must be steady advance if the splendid opportunities now confronting us are to be embraced.

MISSIONS

No doubt all are aware of the present emergency in the Mission fields, suddenly deprived of normal support by the war. What could stir us more than the heroic spirit in which the American Church has accepted the challenge? This spirit is nowhere more evident than in our own Province, which has resolved, upon motion by the Bishop of Pennsylvania, to call upon the parishes to double their offerings for the present year.

THE BUDGET

Last year we set out to secure a budget of nine thousand dollars, and we succeeded. This year we shall need at least ten thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars. Shall we raise it?

The following is a careful estimate of the budget for 1915-16:

Salaries	$6,000.00
Variable yearly charges, including repairs	2,250.00
Diocesan Missions and Assessments	500.00
General Missions	2,000.00
	$10,750.00

We hope to realize this larger income by an increase in the number of contributors, rather than by increased contributions.

YOUR SHARE

We cannot reach our ideal unless you help. Will you please decide what your rightful share is to be? Fill out the enclosed pledge card, seal the envelope and present it to the visitor when he calls. Remember it is no shame to give a small amount. The only shame is to give nothing at all. The amount of your pledge will be known only to the Rector and the Accounting Warden.

THE CALL

The canvasser will call upon you personally Sunday, March 21st. Will you be good enough to stay home that afternoon? In any case, please have the pledge ready for him. Owing to the number of calls to be made, they will be necessarily brief.

With every confidence in your interest and generous response,

Very faithfully yours,

ALLEN F. HORTON,
Director of the Canvass.

A. L. E. CROUTER,
Chairman Missionary Committee.

The routes assigned the canvassers often took them into unfamiliar parts of the parish, and many interesting experiences occurred. They were greatly impressed with the extreme cordiality with which they were received. The people, who had been requested to remain at home that Sunday afternoon, in the majority of cases did so, greatly facilitating the work of the visitors. The request made that the pledges be in sealed envelopes, and ready for delivery, was cheerfully acceded to, so that the call took on more the complexion of a social visit for the formation of acquaintance than merely for the solicitation of funds.

The canvassers returned to the church at 7 o'clock and reported. At Evensong the Rector was able to announce that up to date pledges had been renewed to the amount of $3,917, and new pledges had been secured amounting to $823.20, making a total amount pledged through the duplex envelopes $4,740.20. Of this, $3,012.30 is for current expenses, and $1,727.90 for Missions.

The every member canvass of 1915 has done us good in more ways than the one of providing increased income. Efforts like this serve to knit the people together in common cause.

The Rector remarked upon the fact that the amount pledged for Missions is in excess of our apportionment, which is as it should be. It is to be remembered, in comparing the amount pledged with the budget mentioned in the letter above, that the Church does not depend wholly upon the duplex envelope contributions, the pew rents affording a substantial foundation of support.

Wednesday Evening Services

In a discourse on the evening of March 3d, upon Devotion in Hearing, continuing the series of meditations begun Ash Wednesday, and taking his text from the Tenth Chapter of S. Luke's Gospel, verses 38-42, Rev. James B. Halsey, Rector of S. Timothy's Church, Roxborough, pointed out in detail the greater importance of Mary's hearing the Master than of Martha's service in providing His meat and drink and lodging. From this the deduction was logical that too much concern is given to the round of business and social matters in our lives, to the exclusion of things of far greater importance.

Meditation, contemplation, listening to counsel, hearing of sound teaching, are of vastly more importance than to become absorbed even in executive details of parish work exclusively.

The meditation for the evening of March 10th was upon "Devotion in Believing." Since the last visit of our Lord to the home of those He loved in Bethany, a great sorrow has fallen upon it. Lazarus, the brother, is sick. The sisters send to the Master to tell Him, doubtless in the belief that He can bring relief. Our Lord delayed the journey to Bethany till after the death of Lazarus, "to the intent that ye may believe." And even when He was come to them the sisters, while believing that He could have saved the life of their brother, let their belief in the might of God stop there. Then, to show that no limitation must be placed upon His power, Jesus called on the Father in prayer, "that they may believe that Thou hast sent Me," and Lazarus was raised from the dead.

The meditation for the evening of March 17th was upon "Devotion in Giving," and the references from Holy Scripture were from S. John, XII, and from S. Mark, XIV. Again the lesson concerns the family at Bethany, and Christ commends extraordinary gifts; here is recorded Mary's use of the box of precious ointment. The tithe was the duty gift; the thank offering was over and above that, and in devotion was given lavishly.

We should cultivate the spirit of Mary. "Freely ye have received; freely give."

Social Service

Our Social Service Committee was invited to attend a meeting at the home of Miss Pancoast, East Johnson Street, on Monday afternoon, March 21st, for the purpose of hearing a talk by Miss Libby, Superintendent of Districts of the Society for Organizing Charity, on the subject of Friendly Visiting. The gathering was composed of representatives from various churches in Germantown which are interested and active in charitable work.

Miss Libby explained in a simple, direct way just what friendly visiting means, and offered helpful advice and many valuable hints. She emphasized the value of continuous visiting, pointing out the impossibility of accomplishing anything in two or three visits. Most beginners are too zealous, and expect to exercise their influence for good before it has been gained. A visitor should work with only two or three families at most, calling generally about once a week, getting acquainted and learning that people the world over are very much the same. The only difference is that some have not the same equipment and have fewer advantages than others.

The introduction, or reason for calling, can be given by the Superintendent of the local S. O. C. office, who is always anxious for more friendly visitors, for there are many families to call upon where true friendship is sure to find a welcome.

The question of relief, and the proper way to give it, was briefly discussed. Miss Libby declared that friendly visiting should not stand for giving; gifts stand in the way of real friendship. Avoid being looked upon as a pocketbook. Give more of self. Giving satisfies the longing in the donor to do something, and is the easiest way of expressing that longing; but if repressed, that inward, impelling something will surely take place in another action. Dr. Cabot defines friendship as "a going together hand in hand toward the goal of a richer and fuller life." Miss Libby gave her hearers these suggestions as a few of the concrete things to do.

Get acquainted with all the family, especially the father. Learn if he is earning all he can. Can you do anything to help increase his wages?

Have the children an opportunity to work when they reach the age of fourteen? Do they know about the Boys' Clubs, the Girls' Clubs, etc., and how to join? How are the children getting on in school? What is the general condition of the health of the family? Is the baby properly fed, and does the mother know how to prepare its food as she should? Will she take the children to a dispensary if necessary?

Are the housing conditions right? If not, report to the Housing Commission, if they can be improved. How is the ventilation in the sleeping rooms? Can simple things be suggested, such as placing a piece of cheese cloth in the window of the room where no air had been admitted heretofore?

What are the recreations of the family? Should the idea be maintained that the mother must stay at home continuously, with no recreation except the gossip of the father over the supper table, or that of the neighbors on a hurried trip to the grocery store?

Learn to know if the family has access to a public library, and knows how to use it; the same of public baths, parks, playgrounds, and so forth. Can any member of the family take advantage of the summer vacation trips or summer camps for boys? Does the family go anywhere together, or does the father spend his evenings in the nearest saloon?

Learn the children's games and teach those they do not know. What saving is being made? What insurance is kept up; whether in good companies and at reasonable rates? Would the use of the savings fund be a better plan?

Is the family in touch with a Church? If there is no question of proselyting, accompany them to the Church.

When the Friendly Visitor is away from home it is always advisable to write to the families one calls upon, as such attentions are often more appreciated and beneficial than one would suppose. Never forget that the poor are interested in the family and affairs of a visitor, and, above all, remember what the Church stands for, and that the part the Friendly Visitor has in the work is the culture of the family life through old-time friendliness.

Boy Scouts

Troop 67 celebrated its first birthday on Monday evening, March 8th. The Scouts had long been preparing for this event, as it had been previously announced that a number of contests were to be held in general scouting, reflecting the knowledge and efficiency gained in a year. The exercises selected were knot-tying, nature study, first aid, signaling, bugling and inspection. The Scouts as a whole displayed a surprising degree of aptitude in all these branches, and it was amazing with what enthusiasm they entered the contests. Mr. J. W. Patton, of headquarters, acted as judge, with Scout Edward Jefferson, Jr., assisting.

The results were as follows:

Inspection—Won by Nesbitt, Eagle Patrol; second, Morris, Eagle Patrol; third, Y. Crouter, Panther Patrol.

Knots—Won by Martling, Beaver Patrol; second, Hansell, Panther Patrol; third, Rowe, Beaver Patrol.

Bugling—Won by Rowe, Beaver Patrol; second, Owens, Beaver Patrol; third, Y. Crouter, Panther Patrol.

First Aid—Won by Rowe, Beaver Patrol; second, Martling, Beaver Patrol; tie for third place, Kennedy, Bear Patrol; Y. Crouter, Panther Patrol.

Nature Study—Won by Hansell, Panther Patrol; second, Hardy, Panther Patrol; third, Cridland, Panther Patrol.

Signaling—Won by Hansell, Panther Patrol; second, G. Crouter, Eagle Patrol; third, Jefferson, Eagle Patrol.

Scout John Hansell having scored the greatest number of points, was awarded the prize for all-around scouting, and the Beaver Patrol having scored the greatest number of points, won the trophy, a patrol flag offered for this event.

Looking back over the year just passed, the work in connection with Troop 67 has been a source of much gratification to those connected with it. The loyalty and devotion of the Scouts to their leaders, their perseverance in carrying out the tasks assigned them, and their eagerness to excel in all Scout activities, makes it a real pleasure to be in intimate touch with them, and only those who have shared in this peculiar pleasure realize the joy and compensation of it.

Notes

There is a misprint in the special envelope for Good Friday. It is dated April 21st instead of April 2d, and has, in consequence, been put out of its place. Please see that it is inserted before the envelope for the first Sunday in April, and that it is handed in as nearly as possible on the true date.

On the evening of Passion Sunday the choir rendered the Mottett Gallia, by Gounod. The solo work was well done by Gelston Hardy. The accompaniment by piano and organ was most effective.

The setting was Choral Evensong, which, together with the organ recital preceding, made a rare musical evening.

The following appears in the current number of the S. Luke's Evangelist:

"Mrs. Ralph H. North, the Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering, gave a most interesting lecture on Tuesday evening, March 16th, in the Parish House. There were present representatives from the parishes of Germantown and Mount Airy. The attendance was large, numbering about one hundred and eighty. Mrs. North's lecture gave a comprehensive résumé of the work accomplished in the Mission Field through the agency of the United Offering, ranging from the year 1888 to the present time."

A stated meeting of the Junior Auxiliary will be held on Monday, April 5th, at 3 o'clock. The Lenten offerings will be turned in at that time.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

A benefit for the Social Service Work will be held on May 1st, 8 P. M., at Crusaders' Hall, Germantown Avenue, when "The Sniggles Family" and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will be given by a few young people of the Church School, assisted by Miss Dorothy Chanceller, under the direction of Mrs. A. Harris Insinger.

Those in charge hope that all who can will lend their aid in making the play a financial success. Tickets of admission, 25 cents. Cakes and candies will be on sale.

On Saturday afternoon, May 15th, the Older Girls' Mission Study Class, with the Upper Senior Girls of the Church School, will hold a Cake and Candy Sale in the Parish House from 3 o'clock to 5. Sun Wu will be taking orders for his laundry, and there will be other attractions. The proceeds of the sale will go towards the One Day's Income Fund. Please remember the date—May 15th.

NOTES

The Rev. George Fitch Breed, D.D., leaves early this month for an extended trip to the Pacific Coast. We shall miss him from the Chancel. Dr. Breed rendered valuable assistance to the Rector during Passiontide and Easter.

The Rev. Arnold H. Hord has left for a visit in Virginia.

Cards may be found in the Church on which new-comers may indicate their desire to be identified with the Parish, to receive envelopes for regular contributions, to receive a call from the Rector, etc.

The Rector is already making up the List of Confirmation Candidates for the Bishop's visit next November.

The Social Service Committee will be glad to hear from anyone who can spare a used crex or rag rug. Any size from 3 ft. x 6 ft. to 6 ft. x 9 ft. will answer the purpose. The rug would make a needy family more comfortable.

At the Easter Monday election, the following Vestrymen were re-elected to serve for three years: Messrs. R. H. North, S. M. Meehan and T. H. Ball. Mr. F. T. McGuire was elected to succeed Mr. Francis I. Gowen, now removed from the Parish.

Rector's Letter

My Dear Parishioners:

I am going to ask the Editor to consign the Rector's Letter I sent him a few days ago to his spacious waste basket, and instead to publish this letter of appreciation.

I claim the right to speak my mind as frankly in approval of your virtues as in disapproval of your sins. I am not going to describe an ideal condition in order to incite you to it. My intention is one of greater simplicity and sincerity than that. I speak of things as they are.

Grace Church is a parish to rejoice a pastor's heart—and you deserve to know it. I hope I shall not be too personal, as I attempt to mention a few of the reasons why this is so.

Perhaps the thing uppermost in my mind is that nearest at hand. Today you entertained the Convocation of Germantown. You were glad to do it. You planned it and carried it out as merrily as though it were a lark and as dexterously and artfully as though it were a military maneuver.

But this is only one of a long train of things which fill my heart with gratitude as I sit resting in my study tonight. I like the spirit with which you celebrated the great Easter Festival—the will with which you presented on the altar that day so generous an offering for Missions. I remember Good Friday, and beyond, the forty days Lent. Day after day you were there in the Church as though you loved it. The singers were always in their places. It was a pleasure to read the offices daily—I wish we had them the year round. Then I appreciate the earnest work of the Mission Study Classes and their devoted leaders. The spiritual life in Grace Church is more vigorous because of them.

As I think of the general life of the Parish, I declare I am unable to say to which group I turn with a keener sense of appreciation—the men, the women or the children.

The men have responded admirably to every call. Their time, money and talents have been at the disposal of the Church. They have planned conscientiously for the temporal and spiritual welfare of the Parish. They have conducted Every-Member Canvasses. They have taught in the Church School. They have led organizations for men and boys. They are to be seen in their places in Church Sunday mornings—some at the Church doors, some in the pews, some in the chancel.

You cannot imagine what a source of inspiration it has been to me to meet every Monday night this past winter that splendid body of young men who compose the Young Churchman's Association.

But I must not use up all my adjectives on the men—for then how shall I speak of the superior devotion of the women? One reason why the women of this Parish have accomplished such excellent results, is because they are keenest about the most important things. Instead of dissipating their energies upon side issues, they keep steadily in mind the vital things—prayer, worship, missions, teaching the Faith to the young, friendly visiting and wise charity. I am constantly impressed, not only by their devotion, but by their wisdom and ability.

The children have a full share of their Rector's thanks. They are doing their part so well in many ways. I know how many hours of practice are necessary to make the music of our services beautiful. The Church School could not keep up the present standard without faithful study. Our offerings for Missions could not be so large but for the sacrifices of the children. The successes of the Boy Scouts have been a stimulus to the whole Parish.

But I see I cannot mention all the things that cheer my heart tonight. My letter is already too long. Most of all I am grateful for the spirit of harmony throughout the Parish. There is no contention among us, "except it be that noble contention, or rather emulation, who best can serve and who best agree."

On Easter morning, as I was about to go into Church for the late Service, the Bishop called me up to say he rejoiced to think that Grace Church was going to give an Easter offering for Missions. It meant a great deal to us to know that even with the care of all the Churches upon him our Bishop was mindful of us that day. To me it was very suggestive. It helped me to realize that the Great Bishop and Shepherd of our Souls is not unmindful of our labor of love.

Affectionately yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Easter Even

The untimely blizzard interfered with the attendance at the Easter Even Services.

All will be interested to learn of what transpired in the Church while the storm raged. Holy Baptism was administered to an adult. Wax candles to be used as Eucharistic Lights were blessed.

A silver ciborium was set apart for sacred uses. The ciborium is a form of paten in which the Bread is consecrated and administered to the people. But the ciborium is shaped somewhat like the chalice and has greater capacity than a paten.

The inscription on the ciborium is as follows:

Gustate et videte. Panis enim est qui de coelo descendit et dat vitam mundo.

"Taste and see. For the Bread of God is that which cometh down from Heaven and giveth life unto the world."

Around the base is inscribed:

In Memoriam Wilbur Fisk Miller, 1900.

Two new windows were then dedicated. The single panel window in the Epistle side of the Sanctuary represents the Supper at Emmaus. The subject of the double transept window is the Annunciation.

Both windows are truly beautiful and represent the best English workmanship. They were made by the London firm—Heaton, Butler and Bayne.

The inscription on the Annunciation window is as follows:

In Memory of Caroline Martin Roberts, wife of George Fitch Breed, D.D.
May 4th, 1914.

A funeral pall and bier were then blessed, after which there was a short Service of Prayer for the faithful departed.

The services of the Great Sabbath closed with Evening Prayer.

How Grace Church Rose to the Emergency Fund

It was stated in the last issue of the PARISH NEWS that the Easter offering this year would be devoted to the Emergency Fund for Missions. The article concluded with these words: "There is every prospect of a joyous and generous Easter Offering." And so it proved to be. There seems to be a general feeling throughout the Parish that Easter was the brighter for that offering—devoted not to our own needs but to the greater and more urgent needs of the Mission fields of the Church.

Here in brief is the story of our Easter offering:

Just as the Every-Member Canvass was being made the Rector received the statement from the Board of Missions showing the immediate need of an emergency fund of $400,000, and appealing to the members of the Church to give at least one day's income as a special gift, over and above all regular contributions to Missions.

We had just provided amply for our Apportionment for Missions by the regular weekly contributions. Perhaps we were tempted to measure our responsibility by the Apportionment.

But we were already aware of the need for unusual sacrifices this year through the messages from our own Provincial and Diocesan officers. The appeal from the Board was clear and stirring. The example set by the members and officers of the Board, the employees at the Church Missions House, and the Missionaries on furlough in pledging themselves to give one day's income, suggested a like action on the part of the leaders in the Parish.

The members of the Laymen's Missionary Committee took the initiative, pledging themselves to give and proposing to the Vestry that the Easter offering be devoted to the Emergency Fund. The Vestry heartily approved of this and in turn pledged themselves to give.

The Rector addressed a meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, asking their cooperation.

The Mission Study Classes emphasized the need.

The statement of the Board of Missions, together with a letter from the Rector, was sent to the parishioners.

A public appeal was made to the congregation on Palm Sunday by the Rector's Warden, who is also Chairman of the Laymen's Missionary Committee.

So it came about that the people of Grace Church were fully informed and deeply interested in the present need for an Emergency Fund and ready when Easter Day came to make a cheerful offering.

The amount was $1,130, which is high-water mark for our Easter offerings.

Incidentally a good precedent has been established—the devotion of the Easter offering to Missions.

Our Apportionment

In the April issue of the PARISH NEWS last year, the Accounting Warden stated that up to the date of publication, the aggregate of all offerings applicable to the apportionment was $385.78; thus leaving over $1,000 to be raised in order to complete the apportionment before September 1st.

In marked contrast we are able to announce in the corresponding issue today that the aggregate of all offerings to date applicable to the apportionment is $2,540.54, which is $960.54 in excess of our apportionment.

The remark is frequently made that our increased gifts to Missions will result in the increase of our apportionment. This is not the case. The share which each Parish is asked to take in the Diocesan Apportionment is based upon the analyzed or net income of the Parish. This is not affected by the gifts for Missions. Nevertheless we expect and welcome a growth in our apportionment as the Parish enlarges her budget and giving power.

Annual Appointments

At the Easter meeting of the Vestry the following appointments were made by the Rector:

Rector's Warden, Dr. A. L. E. Crouter.

STANDING COMMITTEES

Buildings and Grounds—Messrs. C. H. Landenberger, R. H. North and W. F. Fell.

Finance—Messrs. R. H. North, A. L. E. Crouter, J. W. Bayard, F. M. Dunn and W. F. Fell.

The Rector also appointed the following Vestrymen to act as Chairmen of the Sub-Committees on the Dedication Festival next Fall:

Workers' Conference—Dr. A. L. E. Crouter.

Parish Endowment Fund—Mr. J. W. Bayard.

Men's Dinner—Mr. F. T. McGuire.

Reception—Mr. C. H. Landenberger.

Gifts and Memorials—Mr. George J. Lincoln.

Publicity—Mr. T. H. Ball.

Children's Day—Mr. S. M. Meehan.

Mr. J. W. Bayard was re-elected Accounting Warden and Mr. F. M. Dunn Secretary of the Vestry.

The following delegates to the Diocesan Convention were elected: Dr. A. L. E. Crouter, Mr. J. W. Bayard and Mr. William F. Fell.

Wednesday Evening Lenten Services

The columns of the April number of this paper were closed before the last two Lenten discourses were delivered by Rev. James B. Halsey, Rector of S. Timothy's, Roxborough. These Meditations continued during the Wednesday evenings of Lent, and were most interesting and instructive.

That for the evening of March 24th was upon "Devotion in Self Surrender," and pointed as a supreme example to the sublime faith of The Blessed Virgin Mary when the angel Gabriel announced to her that she was supernaturally to become the mother of the Son of God. We, looking back in the light of the event, see her gloriously vindicated. But she, looking forward, could see only shame, disgrace and ruin. She surrendered herself in faith when she could not understand. A quotation from the words of S. Anselm was striking in this connection: "I do not seek to understand that I may believe, but I believe that I may understand."

In closing the series of Meditations on Wednesday evening, March 31st, Mr. Halsey gave a graphic summary of the topics of his preceding discourses, and drew attention to "Devotion in Suffering." Referring to Chapter XIX of S. John's Gospel, where the closing scenes of the crucifixion are depicted, the prophecy of S. Simeon was recalled: "A sword shall pierce through thy soul also." Out of suffering comes intuition,—faith to endure and see light through the darkness. Sorrow is the sharpener of vision.

To see Him in glory, we must stand by the cross and endure the suffering.

During these Meditations, the speaker frequently repeated a remarkable utterance of Canon Liddon: "The true object of the Reason is the Incomprehensible; His Revelation of Himself is that of the Memory; the Imagination was meant to gaze in perpetual fascination on His surpassing Beauty; and His Holy Law is the one correlative of the human Will."

Organ Recital

We are greatly indebted to Mr. Maxwell McMichael for his excellent work at the organ. The recital on Wednesday evening April 21st was much enjoyed. The program included Marche heroique de Jeanne d'Arc, by Dubois; Second Sonata, Op. 50, by Guilmant; Arcadian Idyll, by Lemare; Prelude and Fugue in G, by Mendelssohn-Bartholdy; also short selections from Dvorak, Brahms and Dethier.

Master Gelston Hardy sang two soprano solos, "O Divine Redeemer," by Gounod, and "O for the Wings of a Dove," by Mendelssohn-Bartholdy. He sang with his usual clearness and precision.

We look forward to the time when we can furnish the organist with a better instrument. One of the pressing needs of Grace Church is a new organ.

The Church School

At the Easter Festival of the Church School, the honor rolls for the second term's work were read. The banner awarded each term to the class having the highest average scholarship was won by the Eighth Grade boys, taught by Mr. Robert MacDonald, Jr. The Sixth boys were a close second, with the Fourth and Seventh Girls only a fraction below them. Next year we hope to have another banner for the class holding the record for attendance.

Bibles or Prayer Books were awarded to the following members of the School who had brought new scholars:

May Wilson, E. Martyn George, Marshall Rahn, Esther Nonneman, Gordon Yates, Mildred Simons, Helen Doelp, Elbert Tompkins.

It would appear from the following letter that the General Secretary of the General Board of Religious Education is still keeping his eye on Grace Church School:

NEW YORK, April 1, 1915.

REV. THOS. S. CLINE,
Gowen and Ardleigh Streets,
Mt. Airy, Pa.

My Dear Mr. Cline:

I want to thank you for something you have put on page 52 of your last PARISH NEWS. That paragraph beginning "Courage to face examinations," is the thing I have been looking for for some time.

You probably have seen my principle as stated on page 24 of the "Children's Challenge." This statement has been challenged again and again in Conferences, and while I could speak from my own experience, I lacked the testimony of another.

I am carefully filing your statement and shall use it.

Faithfully yours,

WILLIAM E. GARDNER.

Social Service

The Child Labor Association has asked all interested persons to write our representatives at Harrisburg, urging their cooperation in regard to the law regulating the length of a working day for children in Pennsylvania. The following was received in reply to such a letter from the Social Service Committee of Grace Church:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
Harrisburg

ELIZABETH R. MEEHAN,
Mt. Airy, Pa.

My Good Friend:

I deeply appreciate your thoughtful kindness in writing me under recent date, in regard to one of the most vital problems that we have before us today.

I am intensely anxious that some constructive legislation for the benefit of the working children of this Commonwealth shall pass this session of the Legislature, and I sincerely trust that I may have your help in every possible way in securing such sane and progressive laws.

You can count on my efforts toward this end.

Sincerely yours,

MARTIN G. BRUMBAUGH.

The Pennsylvania Child Labor Calendar shows that since 1824 measures have at frequent intervals been introduced in the Pennsylvania Legislature asking for a modification of the hours of child labor as well as a higher standard of educational and physical fitness.

The earliest recorded bill was introduced in 1824, "to inquire into the expediency of requiring manufacturers to provide education for children employed by them under twelve years of age." No action was taken.

In 1838 a bill failed which recommended a ten-year age limit for factory work.

The first legislation came when, in 1848, a petition bearing 3,500 names was presented, praying for a ten-hour law. It is recorded that the opposition argued that "this act would drive Philadelphia factories to Camden."

But the calendar is long and too depressing to continue further. It is a cause for great gratitude that through all these years the Pennsylvania Child Labor Association, as well as the Consumers' League, have worked early and late and secured wonderfully ameliorative legislation for the children of the Keystone State.

There are at the present time in Pennsylvania, 11,214 girls and boys working in various branches of the textile industry, and seven times this number employed in the various other industries of the State. Agriculture, apprentices to various trades, coal mines and collieries, glass factories, textile trades, blast furnaces and mills, messengers, office boys, and clerks. In some cases the law permits little boys to work "throughout the night." Pennsylvania employs a greater number of children between the ages of fourteen and sixteen than any other State in the country.

"The one all-pervasive argument, not confined to any industry or any group, is the simple statement: 'The wages of these children are needed at home.' The poverty excuse for child-labor is coexistent with the first efforts at child-labor reform, and has run throughout its history. With increasing clearness, and from official and non-official sources, through the years, has light been cast on this dark side of the child-labor problem. While no complete presentation of the facts thus revealed is possible here, this we know: that, after the frequently suppositious cases of poverty have been counted out, there does remain a group, where, in fact, the wages of the children seem necessary to maintain family life. But the problem of this group is not in any sense met by the meager earnings of the fourteen-year-old child; it is a problem to be solved intelligently by far different, constructive methods, whether it be through workmen's compensation, mothers' pensions, or other measures yet to be devised.

"Placing the burden of family support under modern industrial conditions on an unprepared child may partially solve the immediate problem; but it usually creates a still graver one to be settled sooner or later by the community through criminal court, tuberculosis sanatorium, workhouse, or asylum for the insane."

The present Governor of Pennsylvania, who for years came in contact in the public schools of Philadelphia with the very boys and girls whom Pennsylvania has so long neglected by its inadequate child labor laws, has stated as his conviction that "no child under sixteen years of age should work in industry."

It is believed that this champion of children's rights will do his part to see that the children of Pennsylvania, permitted to work by a public opinion less advanced than his own, shall be safeguarded by protective legislation. The future is full of hope and the fight will be greatly strengthened if every citizen of this Commonwealth will bear in mind the two great necessities in the amendment of the child labor laws of this State—a reduction of the working hours, and the strengthening of the certificate requirements,—so that he or she may speak for them, and, when the opportunity offers, work for them.

The Convocation of Germantown

The day for the Convocation proved ideal, fair and warm. The Church and Parish House never looked more attractive. Not only brilliant forsythia and daffodils, but roses in profusion adorned every room.

The celebrant at the Holy Eucharist was the Rev. Jacob LeRoy, Dean of the Convocation, assisted by Rev. Stewart P. Keeling, Rector of S. Peter's Church, Germantown, and the Rector of Grace Church. The preacher was the Rev. Gilbert E. Pember, Rector of St. Michael's Church, Germantown. The choir was in attendance and a representative congregation was present.

Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock to about 125 guests. These included not only the clergy and delegates from the forty or more Parishes and Missions of the Convocation, but also the members of the Woman's Aid to the Convocation, and the United Offering Treasurers of the Diocese.

This last group were the guests of the Diocesan Treasurer, Mrs. Ralph H. North. Their table was tastefully and ingeniously decorated with blue box place cards and centerpiece.

The Bishop of the Diocese was present at the luncheon and remained for the afternoon session of the Convocation.

At 2.30 the sessions of the Convocation and Woman's Aid began simultaneously—the men in the Parish Hall, the women on the lawn.

Many of the delegates who saw Grace Church for the first time were filled with admiration for its beauty. The whole day's program was a marked success.

Our guests were sincere in their praises of Grace Church hospitality.

The Entertainment Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild—under the able chairmanship of Mrs. William C. Burk—deserve great credit for the day's success.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

As the Annual Meeting is always an interesting one, hope is felt for a large attendance on Tuesday, May 11th, at 3 o'clock. There will be an exhibition of the work of the Auxiliary, the articles for the Missionary boxes to be sent to Rosebud, South Dakota, and to Cape Mount, Africa. Only a portion of the work resulting from the "Sample Tea" can be shown, as most of the orders have been filled. The Auxiliary has about $110 to its credit on account of these orders.

On Wednesday, March 31st, Deaconess Sabine, who was Principal for many years of the Girls' School in Anvik, Alaska, spoke of the wonderful changes among the Indians there. How the underground cabins that used to house fifteen and twenty families, have now but one family in each. Even sewing machines are seen in some homes, which shows the progress made there. Twenty years ago these people had never seen a white woman. The women did not know how to keep their families clean and healthy, and Deaconess Sabine used to offer a lump of sugar to every child who could show her clean hands. Now, these people are throwing away the old superstitions, especially the practices of the "Medicine-Man," and in one Missionary Calendar we read of the slow, painstaking labor of years of the Chaplain there, the Rev. Mr. Chapman, to reduce the native language to writing, to teach himself to speak it, and to train translators. Now, and for years, these Indians have come to him for advice, and they hear the service read in their own tongue. It is interesting to know that this Mission was the first to be benefited by the United Offering.

Grace Church was well represented at the Missionary Service for the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary in Calvary Church, on April 14th. The address of the Rev. Hugh L. Burleson, D.D., was most helpful to all.

Bishop Rhinelander opened with prayer the meeting of the Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown, which was held informally on the lawn of our own beautiful Grace Church, on Tuesday, April 20th. Reports were read by Deaconess Camp and Deaconess Pew. Miss Rumney appealed for help for S. Barnabas Mission. The increase in the colored population in the 22d Ward alone has been ten per cent. in five years. There are at present 5,279 colored people in this, our own Ward,—one colored person to every thirteen white people. S. Barnabas is the only Mission for these people in this Ward. "What are we doing as a Church?" was the question. The Society of Friends have wonderful Sunday Schools, and many of the colored children go there. They are doing much for them; but S. Barnabas needs a Deaconess or a worker, and it seems very hard to get such a helper.

On April 21st, Miss Conway, a Medical Missionary in Miss Ridgely's School, Cape Mount, Africa, told of the work being done by the three women in that Mission, the only white women in Liberia. Their work is mostly with the Vise Tribe, and they treat between 8,000 and 9,000 people every year.

The girls in the Mission School are quick to learn and are especially neat. They are kept busy and happy.

We who have the conveniences of a city rarely realize, until a speaker comes to us, what privations many of these Missionaries have, and how isolated they are.

Surely, those who make the world better by their lives are those whom God loves and whom He will reward.

Missionary Conference

In an address at one of our Missionary Conferences last month, the Rev. Dr. Hugh Latimer Burleson said he was glad to be a missionary secretary, in spite of the perplexities of the office. The problems of the foreign field were not touched upon, but we were given a glimpse of the embarrassments that are a matter of daily occurrence at the executive meetings of the General Board. For example, the Domestic Missionary Bishops are invited to submit their budgets, and when these estimates are analyzed the pruning process must at once be prosecuted. Expenses for starting some little mission, a real opportunity, must be disallowed in favor of some other work of greater importance relatively. There is so much to be done, and so little to do with. Even as it is, hundreds of thousands of dollars are appropriated; promises are made to outlying fields of financial support, without any substance of a balance in the treasury. Still, with rigid economy and piecing out here and there, the most pressing demands are met some way or another, not without, however, the missionary bishops appearing unexpectedly on begging expeditions for something they must have that the General Board cannot supply.

Doctor Burleson touched upon the race problems in Missions. He reminded us that as the white man had absorbed about all of his red brother's material possessions, the very least we can do is to provide something for the good of the Indian's soul. We were informed that out of the population of the United States (approximately one hundred millions) every tenth person is colored. In old slavery days an able-bodied field hand was quoted at, say, fifteen hundred dollars; we are now appropriating one hundred thousand dollars annually for colored missions, about one cent per individual! The great need of missionary work among the mountaineers of the Appalachian Range, and the great and growing opportunities for work among the immigrants were made very plain. Doctor Burleson paid a high tribute to those zealously working in the interests of the United Offering.

The Junior Auxiliary

A stated meeting of the Junior Auxiliary was held on Monday, April 12th, at 3 o'clock. Upon the resignation of the Vice-President and of the Secretary, the following girls named were elected to fill the vacancies: Miss E. Martyn George, Vice-President; Miss Katherine Baldy, Secretary. The money earned during Lent was turned in and amounted to $40, —a substantial increase over last year's returns. A box has been sent to Mr. Hoar at Point Hope, Alaska, valued at $37.75.

The Mystery Play entitled "The Little Pilgrims and The Book Beloved," by Marie E. J. Hobart, was produced very tastefully on the evening of April 23d by the members of the Junior Auxiliary and the Mission Study Classes. Some twenty-eight persons were in the cast, and the artistic presentation gave evidence of most thorough preparation and rehearsal.

A silver offering, realizing a substantial sum, was collected, and devoted to The Emergency Fund for General Missions.

The Dean of Quebec

Not long ago we had the pleasure of listening to a sermon in Grace Church by the Rev. Canon Richmond Shreve, D.D., D.C.L. of Sherbrooke, Canada, who was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Ralph L. Hayes, of this Parish.

On April 16th, Canon Shreve was "instituted, inducted and installed as Rector of the Parish of Quebec and Dean of the Cathedral Church of the Holy Trinity, in the Diocese of Quebec." The preacher was the Ven. A. J. Balfour, Archdeacon of Quebec.

We rejoice in Dean Shreve's preferment, not only because of our high regard for Mrs. Hayes, who has an active share in our Parish life, but also because of our admiration for the Dean. We shall follow his career with keen interest.

Pews and Sittings

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

What Was Needed

In a letter to the editor of a New York newspaper, discussing the startling methods of Mr. Sunday, the correspondent relates that an English Bishop wrote to one of his clergy: "I am coming down next month to hold a quiet day in your parish." The clergyman wrote in reply: "We shall be glad to have you, my lord, but what we need in this parish is not a quiet day, but an earthquake."

Booker T. Washington said, "I won't let any man drag me down by making me hate him."

The Rector's Letter

My Dear Parishioners:

I rejoice to announce that the Bishop will make an all-day visitation on the Sunday of the octave of All Saints—November 7th. This will be a fitting climax for our Dedication Festival. But my chief reason for speaking of it now, is to call your attention to the Confirmation Class then to be presented. Already the list is being made, and I desire to know as soon as may be, the names of all who wish to be enrolled as candidates. I wish to make the preparation something more personal and varied than the conventional series of lectures.

I call upon the whole parish, now in advance to consider earnestly what that Confirmation Class ought to mean to this parish. First, it ought to mean that the boys and girls of proper age should enter into their heritage as communicants of the Church; Second, it ought to mean that many who have hitherto been only "adherents" should take a definite stand as staunch and loyal churchmen; Third, it should bring about the spiritual integrity of many families now divided in their allegiance.

Let us set resolutely before us the ideal of a strong parish, composed—not of isolated individuals or of fragments of families—but of whole families solidly united in religious faith and practice, and rejoicing to worship together before the same altar.

Think of the effect of our "unhappy divisions" upon the next generation.

We know our duty in this matter—let us do it.

Yours faithfully,
Thomas S. Cline.

The United Offering

The Eleventh Annual Service with the presentation of the United Offering was held in the Church of the Incarnation on Thursday, April 29th. The Bishop of the Diocese was the Celebrant and the Rector—the Rev. N. V. P. Levis—the preacher. Taking as his text the words—"For the love of Christ constraineth us," Mr. Levis spoke of the love and sacrifice of our lives as springing from the love of Christ in our hearts, finding expression in the earnest desire to share with others the blessings and privileges which we so richly enjoy.

To be Christian, or Christ-like, one must be Missionary. Mr. Levis emphasized the United Offering as one of the most beautiful channels for the Missionary giving of prayer, life and money; also the fact that it unites in a wonderful way, the givers and their gifts—both large and small.

The amount of the semi-annual offering presented was $7,860.18.

Grace Church has contributed for the year 1914–15, $442.33 (from 73 contributors), making a total of $647.06, so far for the tri-ennial offering of 1916. We are now rapidly approaching the last year. Shall we present, as our share, at St. Louis in October, 1916, an amount which shall help substantially to make up an offering really worthy of Pennsylvania? We can easily accomplish this if every woman will do her part, giving gladly of her substance as the Lord hath prospered her.

We have, at the present time, on our Grace Church list of United Offering contributors, about 107 names. This number represents some who have recently became contributors and will make their first offerings in October.

During the summer and fall, we should add at least 25 names to this list. Will you be one?

What is our United Offering?

"The sign that we privileged Christian women bound together in this enterprise of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, understand our privileges. Our causes for thankfulness are un-numbered: life, air, food and shelter; home, family and friends; learning and skill and opportunity to work; our country, our Church, our faith in Christ who can make even pain and loss and sorrow bind us closer to Him."

Diocesan Missions

The Budget adopted by the Diocesan Convention includes in the general amount for which contributions are asked from all parishes, all missionary work in or out of the diocese under diocesan control. For many branches of this missionary work, such as that among the deaf, the blind, the colored race and the various groups of immigrants settled in the diocese, we have been making special donations in addition to our apportionment for general diocesan missions. Now, they are all grouped in one. The effect of this is greatly to increase the amount apportioned by Convocation, under the supervision of the Board of Missions, to each parish. But in very few cases is the amount asked from any parish much more than the amount of its former apportionment, plus the amount it has been actually giving for the other objects now newly included in the budget. For this parish, for instance, the amount asked is increased from $230 to $450. But, we gave for these objects last year $460, and as far back as 1911–12, we gave $440, so that we are not really called upon, as we might very properly be, for any new sacrifices.

This is a prosperous and growing parish, and we should see to it that its growth is symmetrical; that there is at least as much increase in what it gives for others as in what it expends on itself.

The Church School

At the Festival Service of the Church School in the Church, Whitsunday afternoon, Holy Baptism was administered to several children.

The public catechism revealed how thoroughly the members of the upper School have mastered the Grace Church Catechism, —a new feature this year.

The children have learned to look forward to these Festival Services on the great days of the Church year.

Old precedents have been over-turned in Grace Church School, since the Christmas holidays, attendance at the sessions of the school have increased instead of decreasing. The scholars manifest an interest in the lessons, and do learn, as is evidenced by the Mid-Lent examinations when two-thirds of the members of the junior and senior classes attained averages of eighty and over.

The Trinity examinations will be held on the Second Sunday after Trinity, June 13. Every scholar will strive to be present; there will be no shirking. The last examination brought out the largest attendance of the term. Sunday, June 20th, will be Commencement Day when the averages, promotions and graduations will be announced.

A summer vacation school for Sunday School teachers and all workers will be conducted at South Bethlehem, Penna., June 27 to July 3.

A helpful Conference on Sunday School work was held at Valley Forge, May 11. Our Rector was on the program, giving an account of the organization and working methods of Grace Church School.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The annual meeting of The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild was held in the Parish House, Tuesday, May 11th, at 3 p.m., with thirty-five members in attendance. The President, Mrs. W. H. George was in the chair.

Reports of officers and chairmen of Committees were read and accepted. The resignation of the Secretary, Mrs. E. W. Jenkins, was read and accepted.

An election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Wm. H. George; Vice-President, Mrs. T. S. Cline; Secretary, Mrs. Wm. C. Burk; Treasurer, Mrs. A. L. E. Crouter; Treasurer of the United Offering, Mrs. R. H. North. The members of the Executive Committee were re-elected.

The year has been a full one and an ever-increasing interest is shown in the work of the association.

A financial statement for the year 1914-1915 follows:

Junior Branch

Miss Hobart's delightful Mystery Play, "The Little Pilgrims and the Book Beloved," was given in the Parish House by the "Juniors" on the evening of April 23. The generous applause and a substantial silver offering for missions, attested the appreciation of the audience.

The cast of characters included some thirty members of the Junior Branch, and children of the Church School. For the instructive and well presented entertainment, the thanks of the people of the parish are due those who worked so hard in its preparation. The entire affair was under the leadership of Mrs. William H. George.

The members of Miss Bayard's Mission Study Class, and some girls of the Church School, held a cake and candy sale on May 15, realizing $12 which is to be forwarded for the "One Day's Income Fund."

Eleanor Matlack won the first prize for the best examination paper in the diocese, in the Mission Study Course, and Katherine Chrisman had honorable mention.

Caroline Crouter and Margaret Matlack are leaving for college this year; they will be very greatly missed for they have helped so much to make the Junior work successful.

The last meeting has been held for this season, making the twentieth since October; the average attendance has been sixteen. A financial statement follows:

Nation-Wide Preaching Mission

At the last General Convention the following resolutions were adopted:

"Whereas, Our age calls in no uncertain way for a revival of the prophetic ministry, and a re-emphasis upon the certain and unchanging words of eternal truth that pertain to salvation; and,

"Whereas, A new accent needs to be placed upon the essential solidarity as well as the broad catholicity of a Church that witnesses to and seeks to promote faith and order; therefore be it

"Resolved, The House of Bishops concurring, that this Church in General Convention assembled registers its desire and will to undertake a preaching mission of nation-wide proportions, that in its scope shall be inclusive of the Church at large, and whose sole purpose and aim shall be the salvation of men through Him, whose Name is above every name.

The Commission having the matter in charge has decided upon the first two weeks of next Advent as the opportune time for this nation-wide Preaching Mission. The call to preparation is already before the Church. It arouses our evangelical zeal and stirs in us great hope and expectancy. The movement is timely. The need is painfully clear.

Bishop Brent on Social Service

In the third of a series of signed editorials in The Churchman, the Bishop of the Philippines says:

"There is a tendency in the Church to create issues and to start a quarrel between two parts of a whole. As Phillips Brooks once said 'Humanity advances in the same way that a man walks—by always losing his balance and always regaining it.' The worship-aspect and the social-service aspect of the Church's life are the two legs of the same body, each functioning so as to bring about a balanced progress.

"The flaw is that, with that curious devotion to one part as against another part of the common whole, which characterizes man, we seldom find both of these necessary and supplementary phases in the same parish.

"If the only way to prevent religion from fading into a haze of super-mysticism, incapable of reaching mankind, is to fling it hard against the great social, national and international problems of the day, the only way to save social service from declining into a mechanical force, incapable of lifting men into the diginity and liberty of son-ship in God, is to Christ (I do not say Christianize) it.

"After all, the keynote of the religion of Christ is perpetually sounded in His God-chosen, God-revealing, name Jesus, who came to save His people from their sins. That is the whole."

Letters of Transfer

A few Sundays ago the Rector asked all confirmed persons residing within the parish and attending Grace Church, who have no present active connection with any other parish, to obtain letters of transfer, and be regularly enrolled as members of the parish. He said he found a large number of persons, many of whom are new comers in Mount Airy, who have practically no parochial connection, and pointed out that such a situation was not conducive to the faithful performance of religious duties, nor to the full enjoyment of Christian fellowship.

Within an hour after this public request of the Rector, the first response came. A number of persons have already obtained letters of transfer—among them one who had attended Grace Church for over thirty years. Others have indicated their intention of attending to this important matter.

What a gain it would be all around if communicants moving into new communities would promptly identify themselves with the parish Church, and enter heartily and sympathetically into its life, work and worship.

The Church does not count them strangers, but members of the household of Faith.

The Canon of the Church regarding letters of transfer is as follows: "A communicant in good standing, removing from one parish to another, shall be entitled to receive and shall obtain from the rector of the parish of his or her last residence a certificate stating that he or she is duly enrolled as a communicant in the parish from which he or she desires to be transferred, and the Rector of the parish to which such communicant may remove shall enroll him or her as a communicant when such certificate is presented."

Thanks from the Board of Missions

"RESOLVED: That the Board of Missions having learned at its meeting May 12, 1915, that the gifts to the Emergency Fund from 2800 individuals and about 400 congregations had already reached $125,000 of the $400,000 asked for, sends its hearty thanks to all who have so promptly and generously made their offerings. The Board is very grateful for the splendid spirit and loyalty with which these people of the Church have responded to the suggestion that the present emergency shall be met by giving, in addition to all usual missionary offerings, at least One Day's Income or Wage. The Board asks all who have not yet given, to do so without delay in order that the full amount of $400,000 may be speedily secured.

Unanimously and enthusiastically adopted."

On May 28th receipts up to $161,000 were reported, of which Pennsylvania has contributed $18,809. The only diocese which has given more than Pennsylvania is New York with $26,429.

Processions

I wonder how many of us understand and appreciate the significance and right use of a religious procession. Does the word suggest anything more to us than a convenient and dignified mode of bringing the choir into the chancel before the service?

But the entrance of the choir into the Church is not, properly speaking, a procession at all. In fact, our American custom of a triumphant entry of the choir with hymn singing is not in keeping with the ancient and more general usage of the Church. Nor does it harmonize with the penitential opening of the service. But, we have a right to our American usage, and we would greatly miss this initial joyous note in our worship.

The procession, however, is quite another thing. It is not merely the entrance of the choir, nor an aimless walk around the church. The procession is a distinct, significant act of worship. It starts from the chancel, and proceeding around the Church, ends before the altar. It is full of meaning and solemnity. The venerable custom of marking the Great Feasts by processions before the Holy Eucharist is being restored to more general use now-a-days.

To give us richer background for the appreciation of processions, a study of the Bible and Christian usages would be helpful. We recall the encircling of Jericho (Josh. 6); the bringing of the Ark into Jerusalem, by David (II Sam. 6); and the Prosession of Palms (Matt. 21).

In the Christian Church the earliest form of procession was the singing of Litanies. The Litany of the Prayer Book was written to be sung in procession. We cannot forget that when King Ethelbert gave permission to S. Augustine and his forty companions to enter Canterbury in 597, "they entered the city in procession, chanting Litanies and displaying a silver cross with a picture of the Saviour."

The Processional Litany sung in Grace Church on Whitsunday is a translation of the ancient Latin hymn Veni Creator Spiritus, ascribed by common tradition to S. Ambrose. It has been used in the Ordination Service since the eleventh century. This version has been enshrined in the ordinal of our Prayer Book since 1549. The shorter version with which we are more familiar (Come Holy Ghost Our Souls Inspire) was not added until 1662, and is thought to have been written by Dryden.

This delightful old Pentecostal Hymn, so appropriate a preparation for the "Receive ye the Holy Ghost" of the ordinal, is equally fitting as a preparation for the Whitsunday Eucharist.

The following stanza took on new meaning in view of the present world situation.

"Of strife and of dissension
Dissolve, O Lord, the bands,
And knit the knots of peace and love
Throughout all Christian lands."

IN MEMORIAM

We mourn the loss of our friend and neighbor, the Reverend Joseph Lyons Miller, who died at his home on Gowen Avenue, May 8th. Mr. Miller spent most of the years of his ministry in his native city, Philadelphia. He was assistant to the Rev. Phillips Brooks and Dr. McVicar in Holy Trinity Church, and later after a rectorship of six years in Woonsocket, R. I., he returned as assistant to the Rev. Samuel McConnell in St. Stephen's Church. He was still serving as assistant in St. Stephen's Church under Dr. Carl Grammer at the time of his death.

During most of this time Mr. Miller has been a resident of Mount Airy, and has endeared himself to the hearts of the people of the community.

Boy Scouts

On the seventh of May, the first class Scouts of troop 67 set out on the finest trip they have taken since its organization. The party included George Jefferson, Edward Jefferson, John Hansell, Exton Guckes, Stanley Thornton, Gowen Hood, Robert Nesbitt and Gordon Crouter. Mr. Robert Mac Donald, scout-master of troop 67, and Mr. W. S. Cowing, chief scout-executive of Philadelphia, were in charge.

We went by train to Brown's Mills, which was to be the starting point of our trip, arriving at six o'clock Friday evening, and spent the night at the hotel, known as "Brown's Mills Inn in-the-Pines."

The next morning we started down the stream for Mount Holly in canoes.

The reader will get some idea of the winding course of the stream from the fact that from Brown's Mills to Mount Holly, as the crow flies, is twelve miles, while by water it is thirty-two miles. In one or two places it was necessary to cut our way through the over-hanging brush, although in others, the stream was fifteen to twenty yards wide.

The first day, we covered nearly twenty miles, stopping for lunch and a swim. About half past four we pitched our tents on a fine camping site, and took another swim. One boy thought he would not go in swimming just then, and was making a landing when, purposely, of course, (?) he rolled out of his canoe which also took a swim down the creek, but was soon captured.

Before turning in we had a camp-fire story which would be well worth while recounting if space would permit. It was well we took along a tent for it rained heavily most of the night.

The next morning after a breakfast fit for a king, we packed our belongings in the canoes, and made ready for a start on our last lap.

At church time we sang some hymns, and had a talk by Mr. Cowing before starting down the creek. On the way we saw a lot of big turtles, and captured some smaller ones. After stopping for a light lunch, we pushed on to Mount Holly, which we made at about four o'clock. There we were welcomed back to civilization by Mr. and Mrs. Guckes. The trip home was uneventful and we arrived tired, but all agreeing that Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Cowing had given us our most delightful Scout experience.

A Scout.

Notes

A woman of this parish, very much in need of work, wishes to do washing and ironing. Mrs. R. N. Hall, 31 Gowen Ave., will give full information on request.

The PARISH NEWS takes no vacation. It is published every month throughout the year. Wherever you spend the summer months keep in your thoughts and prayers, the home Church. Be sure and leave us your address that you may hear from us—month by month.

The conference for Church work at Cambridge, Mass., will be held during the period June 24, to July 8, 1915.

It is open to everyone, and is intended for training and instruction in the spirit and method of service for the Church. Information may be had of Miss Marian DeC. Ward, 415 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

(The Church News for May has an extended notice of this Conference).

The Rev. C. George Currie, D.D. of Chestnut Hill preached in Grace Church recently.

The Communicants Guild held their annual meeting Wednesday evening, May 26, and attended the Holy Communion in a body, Trinity Sunday at 7.30.

Forty more persons made their Communion on Whitsunday this year than on last Whitsunday.

Mrs. Ralph L. Hayes, the Missionary Educational Secretary of the Parish, has been invited to address the leaders in Mission study, in Quebec, Canada, setting forth the plan and spirit of the Mission study work in this Diocese.

"A nation that is not great in reverence and gratitude cannot endure," said the Governor of our Commonwealth, in his noble Memorial Day Proclamation. The whole of the document was read to the congregation at Morning Prayer, May 30.

Solemn silence was kept by the kneeling congregation from 12 noon, to 12.05 while the Church bell was tolled in honor of the heroic dead of the nation.

There was something unusually stirring in the singing of the National Hymn which followed:

"Protect us by Thy might, Great God, our King."

Brotherhood of St. Andrew

The spring meeting of the Philadelphia local Assembly, Brotherhood of St. Andrew, will be held in St. Peter's Church, Germantown, Saturday afternoon and evening, June 5. All men are welcome to attend. The annual Convention of the Brotherhood at large will be held in San Francisco, August 24–29. This Convention is of interest to every layman of the Church, whether a Brotherhood man or not. Plan to include it in your vacation.

The Young Churchman's Association

On Monday evening, May 31, the Rector concluded his course of talks on Friendship and delivered a final charge to the men.

Mr. W. W. Roper addressed the meeting on the bearing of International Law upon the Lusitania affair.

The Association will attend Evensong in a body Sunday, June 6, and hold their final session for the season the following night.

There will be special musical and social features.

Pews and Sittings

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Social Service

We gave an account in a recent issue of the united action of the ministers of the Mount Airy Churches requesting the Board of Recreation to equip and open a Public Playground in the vicinity of the Curtin School.

We take pleasure in announcing that this request has been granted and the playground will be open this coming summer. The Social Service Committee of Grace Church took the initiative in this matter.

Mrs. A. Harris Insinger and her associates are to be heartily congratulated upon the pleasing results of their efforts in producing a dramatic entertainment last month in the interest of Social Service. Crusader's Hall was well-filled with an appreciative audience to see the two plays produced; first, "The Sniggles Family," and then "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." Over thirty of our young people took part and displayed creditable talent.

High praise and our profound gratitude must be accorded Miss Dorothy Chandler for her characterization of Mrs. Wiggs, and for her help in the entertainment.

Refreshments were on sale, and altogether the proceeds netted $75.10.

Some Parish Ideals

A "confidential talk" to the members of the Communicants Guild at their annual meeting, Wednesday evening, May 26.

(A number of the members being prevented from attendance at the meeting, it was requested by those present that the Rector's remarks be published.)

This Embertide is the tenth anniversary of my admission to Holy Orders in the Church, and I have been thinking of the pastorial responsibility set forth in the Bishop's charge in the ordinal. "Wherefore consider with yourselves the end of the ministry toward the children of God, toward the Spouse and Body of Christ; and see that ye never cease your labor, your care and diligence, until ye have done all that lieth in you, according to your bounden duty, to bring all such as are or shall be committed to your charge, unto that agreement in the faith and knowledge of God, that there be no place left among you, either for error in religion or for viciousness in life."

As I speak of four great ideals for the parish I trust you will recognize that they are not mine, but God's. And after I shall have finished perhaps you will tell me that they are also yours. Then, we can resolve to work together more unitedly for their realization.

First, Grace Church must be a spiritual church. Of course,—but remember there is a difference in Churches in this regard. All are supposed to be spiritual but there is a great difference of emphasis. Some churches are holier than others. They do not leave us cold. They speak home to our souls of the holiness of God and fire us with a longing for holiness. How can we help to realize this ideal? Chiefly by the right use of the Holy Eucharist. This most worshipful service of our Lord's real presence subdues our hearts, and makes us bow down before God's altar crying, "Holy, Holy, Holy."

I want you to understand why the Holy Eucharist is given such prominence, and is offered frequently in Grace Church. It is our greatest means of grace. But the mere frequency of our Eucharists will not avail. We must grow in our understanding and love of this great sacrament. Our daily life must become deeply Eucharistic.

Secondly, we must make Grace Church an educational Church. All of us know of parishes which are destined to continue in weakness because they fail to train up a strong body of well informed Christian people. Grace Church must be a school of good learning, grounding her children in the Christian Faith, training them in the art of Christian living, acquainting them with the Holy Scriptures—the history, traditions and pious customs of the Church. We must work together to keep the Church School strong and efficient. We must develop the educational side of every parish organization. We must have high standards of training for Confirmation. We must all be students all our days. How else can we come "unto that agreement in the faith and knowledge of God" which should mark our "ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ?"

Thirdly, we must have a care that Grace Church be in the fullest sense a Missionary Church. We must avoid smug parochialism. We are a part of a great whole. Herein lies our strength and glory. We shall find our chief enjoyment in helping others. We shall want to do our duty in all directions—to the poor of our community, to the enterprises of the Diocese, to the Domestic and Foreign Missions of the Church. What inspiring traditions and precedents are ours in this intensely Missionary parish! Do you realize that we are giving away for good works of one kind or another outside of our own parish this year considerably over five thousand dollars?

By a Missionary parish I mean a generous big-hearted parish. You will always find such a parish genuinely evangelical. There will be unmistakable signs of cordiality. Christianity should give to Churches as to persons the quality of winsomeness.

Lastly, we must make Grace Church stand for Comprehensive Churchmanship. You know I am very keen on this point. I believe there are positive elements of indispensible value in each of the three great schools of thought in the Church. The sacramental richness of the high churchman, the intellectual freedom of the broad churchman and the evangelical spirit of the low churchman are not mutually distructive as sometimes it appears. They are complementary.

There may be room for extreme Churches in the denser parts of large cities, where people can select according to their highly specialized tastes. But, ours is a community Church and must never be distinctively high nor low. We must be open minded, tolerant and sincerely hospitable to whatever things are lovely and of good report. Personal prejudices must be held in abeyance. We must be free and unhampered in our worship, faith and practice. The parish is a microcosm wherein is reflected all the richness of the Holy Church throughout all the world. We are the heirs of the ages. All things are ours. Our Churchmanship, like our patriotism must have the cosmopolitan stamp.

Now, if these ideals commend themselves strongly to your conscience, rally to the standard of the parish with the crusaders cry, "God wills it."

Our Church School

The Commencement of our Church School, which is featured in this number of the Parish News, was not without significance. To be sure there were no graduates but there were promotions, recognition of merit and evidences of work well done. After all, the best feature of any Commencement is the opportunity it affords for the expression of thought and aspiration on the part of the scholars. The two papers which appear in this issue are indications of the quality of work done in one course this past year.

Speaking of Commencements, Presbyter Ignotus says with his usual spice "I cannot refrain from recording a protest against the all-too-prevailing tendency to substitute addresses by any guests, however distinguished, for demonstrations of what the scholars themselves can do. I had rather hear a 17-year old boy reconstruct society according to his own flaming ideals than listen to any big gun that ever thundered eloquence intrusive on that occasion. I had rather share some girl-graduate's opinions about literature, crude as they may seem, than be fobbed off with orchestral numbers rendered by paid and uninterested musicians."

Perhaps in later Commencements we shall be able to give greater demonstrations of work accomplished in the school. This much can safely be said about the past year's work—it has been a year of earnest and faithful effort on the part of teachers and scholars. The standard of scholarship has been raised and the tone of the school improved.

Commencement

The Commencement exercises of the School on Sunday, June 20th, established a delightful precedent and formed an appropriate climax for the year's work.

Like the Cross and Flag Service on Rally Day last fall, there was a note of patriotism which harmonized well with the religious spirit of the occasion.

The National flag which hangs in the chancel was for the first time carried in procession—along with the Cross and banners.

An English ivy was planted in front of the parish house by the children about to be promoted from the Primary to the Junior department. Mr. Meehan, Superintendent of the School, introduced this ceremony with appropriate remarks about the relation of our Church to the mother Church of England.

Classes were formally promoted from the Kindergarten and Primary Departments, the Honor Rolls for the term, and also for the year were read and the banner assigned to the class of highest rank.

Two excellent papers were read by scholars of the Senior Department. Miss Marion Haldeman told the story of Thomas À Becket, and Mr. Dimmick Baldy's subject was "The Magna Charta." Both papers were based upon the study of Church history during the year.

The singing of,

"Our Father's God to Thee Author of Liberty."

followed naturally upon the reading of the paper on the "Charter of English Liberties." The service out under the trees was unique and attractive. The Rector and Superintendent in vestments occupied the platform; the vested choir led by the cornet and organ insured good music.

Following the outdoor exercises the procession, singing "The Church's One Foundation," moved into the church where the School attended Evensong. At the close a space of silence was observed for prayers for the School, its teachers, officers and scholars. The Rally Day in the Fall was announced as the first Sunday in October.

A Children's Letter

My Dear Children:—

When you are told of the brave deeds of your great grandfather, doesn't it stir your blood? If any thought could add a cubit to a boy's stature, I imagine it would be the thought of a noble ancestry. Lord Macaulay said "A people which takes no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by remote descendants." It is good for us to remember, as another "Glorious Fourth" comes round, that we are all sons of the Revolution. Do you know I think it is an excellent idea to have Independence Day come on a Sunday once in a while. It gives us a better chance to think over quietly what it is all about. It was a very brave thing those men did in Congress assembled one summer day in 1776, when they dared to adopt a resolution saying "that these United Colonies are and of right ought to be free and independent States and that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown." That declaration of absolution was a challenge to the most powerful empire then in the world. It was the American edition of the Magna Charta. But it took five years of conflict and endurance to make it sure. It was in those fiery days that the mettle of our fathers was tested. We must remember how fine they were. It will make us taller and stronger.

It is perfectly right too, that as churchmen we should rejoice in the fact that so many of the illustrious leaders in those great days were communicants of our Church. We do not say they were true and brave because they were churchmen, although it probably had more to do with it than we think. We do not say they were wiser or nobler than men of other communions who worked shoulder to shoulder with them. We simply feel a genuine family pride in them. We feel that they belong to us. They were molded by the same doctrines, prayers and churchly ways which are molding us. We are "knit together in one communion and fellowship."

Who were some of these churchmen whom the nation delights to honor? Richard Henry Lee, who offered the famous resolution; Benjamin Franklin, Thomas Jefferson and Robert Livingston, members of the committee which drew up the document; Caesar Rodney and John Morton whose deciding votes placed Delaware and Pennsylvania on the side of Independence; Benjamin Harrison who reported the resolution to Congress; John Nixon who first read it publicly and George Washington the Great. In fact 36 of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence were churchmen.

As we look at the flag in the Chancel on Independence Day let us thank God for the great deeds of our forefathers—patriots, statesmen, churchmen, and ask for strength to be their worthy successors.

Affectionately yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

How They Keep the Birthday of the Church

Charmingly located within the Diocese of Pennsylvania, is a Home which the writer loves to visit. Far from the busy rush of life and with its wonderful trees and the song of birds, it is indeed an ideal spot. Occasionally we may meet one of the dear ladies on Chestnut Street—(she does seem a bit out of place!) Others gather in the living-room, or at least on the spacious upper porches commanding an extensive view. A few are really shut-ins.

What keeps this family beautifully in touch with the activities of the women of the Church? It is the United Offering "blue-box." For twenty-five years its blessed "uniting" influence has been felt, making each one really "a part of the whole campaign." This has been under the leadership of one woman who has grown old in the service and is now almost blind. Still she is devoted to our United Offering and has been able to attend the services and business meetings.

Entering the room of one shut-in—so deaf that it is almost impossible to talk with her, we find the "blue-box" close at hand on her little table. As our eyes instinctively rest upon it, how her face lights up!

At Whitsuntide the birthday of the Church is kept. Thank Offerings—over and above the regular contributions made at the April Presentation Service—are sent to the Diocesan Treasurer. This was the happy thought of the Chaplain, who distributes cards attractively lettered,—the capitals in red—with the following words:

Though Time is ever on the wing
And we and ways divide;
There's pleasure in remembering
The Church at Whitsuntide.
A Penny for each Birthday,
Is asked for Missions wide;
O, the joy of thus recalling
Our Church at Whitsuntide.

Peace be within thy walls dear Home,—Haven of Rest!

Bishop Rowe

We are glad to be able to present to our readers a new and striking portrait of the Bishop of Alaska. His heroic life is a constant inspiration to the Church, as the following incident reported in the current number of the Living Church shows:

"A group of men in the smoking compartment of a Pullman car were discussing the shocking downfall of a Boston minister. The tide seemed to run all one way. They were business men, not idlers. For a time the injury done by one recreant minister seemed to be a crusher. His crime was made to discredit all preachers of righteousness. To listen was to feel the foundations of good citizenship crack and crumble.

"Suddenly a quiet man in the corner removed his cigar, laid down the paper he had been reading, and put his finger on a modestly printed news item. 'Hear this,' he said. 'It is in the same daily news. A hardy Bishop of Alaska reports that he has covered thousands of miles on snow-banks with only an Indian guide. Mercury seventy degrees below zero often—generally fifty degrees below. This clergyman is physician to the sick Indians; he is dentist; he is adviser; he marries them and buries their dead. He begins and ends all with the teachings of the Christian religion. Often he walks hundreds of miles on one trip. Often on his sledges he takes provisions to the starving, solitary miner's hut.'

" 'That's the kind that evens up!' broke in one young man. Every man echoed the statement. In a moment the whole sentiment, that was slumping in social ruin, was changed. Men smiled as if in real relief.

"Perhaps the worthy Bishop, in the words of the Parish Messenger, will be comforted to know that his heroic story, on the same page of the day's history with noisome treason to all virtue, is like the 'salt of the earth.' It cures putrescence. He had no idea, no forecast, that the noble and sweet music of his Christian life was to be sounded in this great city on this precise day. But something always happens to prove that the virtue of mankind increases. There are countless martyrs now, as of old. There is no man living who has no day-star—none who has not, somewhere, sometime, seen the face of a human being that was so illuminated by goodness that it is an infallible proof of all things that are good and true.' "

Social Service

The approach of the hot weather has brought before the workers of the Social Service Committee the necessity of providing the opportunity and means for a vacation for many under its care. There are several families where the father is irresponsible and the mother has worked hard all winter battling against sickness and inadequate support, and it is proposed to have them enjoy farm life for one week each, through the agency of the Childrens' Country Week Association. Let us hope that they will enter into the plan with more than apathetic interest, so that much may be done to strengthen both their souls and bodies through this change of environment.

A story is told of a group of the Hull House workers, who took a large number of Kindergarten children to a park to spend the day. Long before it was time to return they had a lot of very tired and sleepy children on their hands; they were so sleepy that getting them home become a very troublesome task. When lo! as they were again in the city streets, they were suddenly galvanized into life as a patrol wagon rattled by the omnibus, and their heads popped out of the windows to learn whether it was "a man or a woman." Just because from their very beginning the most enticing and exciting experiences which they had had, had been connected with such displays of crime.

During the past few months the Committee has enjoyed the interchange of visits with the Rector's Aid, doing similar work in St. Michael's Parish, Germantown. Through this Committee the opportunity has been offered of sharing, at very small expense, a three room bungalow on the Jersey coast, for part of a month. The cottage is situated in a small fishing village where "berries can be had for the picking and fish for the catching." It is hoped to have a tired mother in constant watch over a very deficient child, occupy the place for two weeks.

Other plans for fresh air work are full of promise.

The Magna Charta

On June 15th, 700 years ago, the meadow of Runnymeade, a place not far from Windsor, was the scene of an event which every loyal Englishman looks back upon as one of the most vital events in English history—namely, the signing of the Magna Charta.

In order to appreciate the significance of this charter it would be well to consider a few of the most important events which led to its adoption.

King John who was at that time the reigning monarch had brought upon himself, by his folly, much trouble, and upon his country much disgrace. The Archbishop of Canterbury, having died, it was necessary to choose a successor. The right of choice lay with the monks of Canterbury. Some of these chose one man; others, acting under an order from the King, elected one of the King's favorites. This state of affairs could not continue very long, and an appeal was made to the Pope to settle the question. Instead of considering these two men, the Pope set aside both of them and caused an English Cardinal, named Stephen Langton, a man of high character, to be made Archbishop instead.

For the six years following affairs were in such serious condition in England that the Pope laid the country under an Interdict, that is, he ordered churches to be closed, would not permit services to be held, and even went so far as to forbid burial services. The Pope hoped that by so doing, he could also compel King John to recognize his choice of Archbishop and restore to the monks their former standing. But this did not annoy King John, since the people alone suffered from it. Not until he heard that the Pope had ordered King Phillip of France to take his kingdom from him, did he give way. He, then allowed Langton, who had not previously dared to come into England, to return; gave even his kingdom to the Pope, and did homage to him; things disgraceful for any English King to do.

Meanwhile the barons were growing more and more weary of John's rule, due to the heavy taxes laid upon them. At length, at a council held in London, Stephen Langton brought out and read to the clergy and barons, the charter of Henry I, in which that King had promised to rule England according to English law. The barons then solemnly took an oath that they would compel John to rule according to this Code.

The Great Charter, or the "Charter of Liberties," as it is commonly called by English writers, is, as this later name signifies, a constitutional instrument executed by King John of England, guaranteeing to his people certain rights and privileges. Our word charter shows that the Latin charta, which meant simply paper, was now for the first time used in the sense of a legal instrument much as the word "paper" is used now-a-days. However, it was more commonly used then to signify the written evidence of grants of land, from which it came to mean the records of all grants from feudal superiors to their subordinates. The Great Charter is of this description, but it is from the sovereign to the people.

Now, how did this Great Charter make Englishmen free? First, it settled what the rights of the people were, and showed that there were certain things which the Kings of England must not do. Second, it stood for freemen in future ages to refer to, whenever a King was inclined to be tyrannical, there was the Great Charter for the people to appeal to. It was confirmed many times by succeeding Kings, and upon it, other charters of liberty were based.

It laid down the rule that the King could not demand money from his people without the consent of the Council of the Realm. It stated that no free man should be imprisoned, or banished, or deprived of his goods until he had been judged by his equals according to the law of the land. The tools of the laborers, the goods of the merchants, were as carefully guarded as the wealth of the barons.

"To none will we sell or deny or delay right or justice," are famous words of the Charter. In substance, it secured liberty and justice to all, high and low, rich and poor.

When Frederick I. of Germany asked the cities if they had not sworn to the conditions of peace, they replied, "Yes, but not that we would observe them."

Thomas À Becket

Thomas À Becket, a young man well educated in London and Paris, had for three years been in his father's business at Cheapside. However, by his learning and aptitude, he came to the attention of the Archbishop of Canterbury, who made him a deacon; provided him with several benefices, and recommended him to the young King, Henry II. Henry at once liked him, treated him familiarly, and soon made him his Chancellor.

At the time he became Chancellor, Becket was only thirty years old, very young to occupy such a responsible position. As Chancellor, he is described as "handsome, cultivated, gay and cheerful, fond of, and skillful in all sports, magnificent in tastes, and prodigal in encouraging them." He gave great dinners, entertained nobility, and lived as one of the most trusted ministers of the king ought to live.

Although, for the King's sake, this magnificence was indulged, the gay young Chancellor's life was pure. He fed on plain fare when he was not officially entertaining, and always, even under his costly robes, wore sackcloth.

Becket was liberal in his alms to the poor, always had a ready ear for their appeals, and was lavish when representing his sovereign.

Becket educated the King's son and though he fought at the head of a command when the King fought in France, was ever loyal to his Church, and never forgot he was among her clergy.

When the Archbishopric of Canterbury fell vacant in 1162, by the death of Theobald, Henry proposed to bestow that important office upon Becket. Becket, however, disapproved, saying that if the King did that, the King would soon hate him, for Henry assumed an authority in Church affairs which Becket would never consent to. He was finally forced, however, to accept the position.

Henry thought Becket, as Archbishop, would be a statesman; but instead, he developed into the strongest kind of an ecclesiastic. He was at once ordained priest, and soon after consecrated Bishop. His secretary later went to Rome to bring the pall which Becket received from the altar of Canterbury Cathedral after the manner of Anselm.

Immediately, his whole manner of living changed. No longer Chancellor, he indulged in none of the accessories of that office. He became strictly ascetic, and devoted himself to the duties of a Bishop's office.

King Henry, counting on the support of the new Archbishop, soon began his reforms by summoning a council at Westminister. Here many proposals were submitted for adoption. Among them was one which provided that a clergyman who committed a crime should be punished in the same manner as a layman. This, though it seems very reasonable to us, was regarded as an innovation amounting almost to revolution in Becket's day; and, contrary to the King's anticipation, Becket vehemently opposed the proposal.

The Bishops were easily influenced by the opinion of the Archbishops, who claimed that, however desirable such a system was, it had never been tried, and the clergy should not be sacrificed to the notions of the King, no matter how plausible such notions might be. The more firmly the Bishops upheld Becket, the more enraged Henry became against him.

Both the King and Becket sent ambassadors to the Pope, who, as in the case of Anselm, temporized—agreeing with both sides, giving ambiguous replies to questions, advising the Archbishop to stand by his rights, yet cautioning him against breaking with the King.

The struggle finally ended in the Council of Clarendon, where laws, called "constitutions" were read, and to them Becket assented. Later, however, when they were submitted to him for the Archbishop's seal he flatly refused. Thereupon King Henry left the Council in great anger, and sent messages to the assembled Bishops, threatening them with loss of revenue, and even bodily harm should they persist in opposition to his plans. Nothing was done at that time, however.

The quarrel between the King and Archbishop now waxed hot. Becket did penance for ever having consented to the Clarendon Constitutions. The King threatened him everything, but the Archbishop would not submit.

Henry accused Becket of maladministration as Chancellor, and Becket, appealing to the Pope, declined to be called to account in the King's court.

At last, afraid of his life, Becket fled to the continent, where, for six years he lived in exile. Then, being reinstated by the Pope, he returned to England, and was joyfully received by the people.

His first act was to excommunicate the Archbishop of York, and the Bishops of London and Salisbury for usurping his office during his absence.

These men appealed to the King, who was in France, and in a passion severely blamed his courtiers, saying that they had done nothing to "rid him of the man." Taking his words to mean that he wished Becket to die, four of his knights set out for England and on the steps of the altar of St. Benedict, in the north transcept in the Canterbury Cathedral, murdered the Archbishop.

Unresisting, Becket exclaimed as he was struck, "In the name of Christ, and for the defense of the Church, I am ready to die!"

The murder of Thomas A Becket was resented all over the world. Blood spots still show where he fell, and the steps are worn deeply by the knees of thousands of pilgrims.

At the east end of the Cathedral today stands a beautiful chapel containing the shrine of Becket.

It's good to have money, and the things that money can buy; but it's good, too, to check up once in a while and make sure you haven't lost the things that money can't buy.—Lorimer.

The Observer

Social Service presents many problems—hard nuts to crack. For example, take the matter of "the presence of money." Does not the cash in hand from the Saturday night pay envelope present a most formidable temptation to extravagence? To buy expensive food and clothing—perhaps to buy drink? Such a temptation would be resisted during the middle of the week.

Let the students of Social Service devise ways and means to provide a system that will appeal to the wage earner, by which his earnings are paid into a fiduciary agency which creates a temptation to save! Answers to this problem are asked in all sincerity by the Editor of the PARISH NEWS.

Notes

The Rector has been appointed a member of the Diocesan Commission on church work among the deaf.

Dr. W. E. Gardner, Secretary of the General Board of Religious Education, visited Mount Airy recently to talk over the Church School Curriculum with the Principal and Rector.

The Rev. Dr. Breed is expected to be home within a few days, after a two months trip to the Pacific Coast.

We shall gladly send the PARISH NEWS to your summer address, if you will drop us a postal card with particulars.

Heaton, Butler and Bayne, of London, have made a beautiful set of designs for the windows of Grace Church, in accordance with the scheme of subjects adopted by the Vestry. They are open to inspection at any time at the Rectory.

The hour of the morning service has been changed from eleven o'clock to half past ten o'clock, during the Summer months.

The Rector is ready to administer the rite of Holy Baptism any Sunday or other Holy Day upon request

The Young Churchman's Association will hold no regular meetings until October.

Grace Church is represented by two delegates at the Cambridge Conference for Church Workers.

A volunteer Choir will lead the singing during the month of August. The Rector will be in charge until the middle of August.

Dr. Westcott at Westminster was learned and abstruse.

Canon Liddon, then at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, opened his window one day and the fog blew in. "Oh," said he, "Westminster is again at work."

The First Sunday in the Month—7.30, Holy Communion; 10, Morning Prayer; 10.30, Holy Communion; 5, Evening Prayer.

Other Sundays—7.30, Holy Communion; 10.30, Morning Prayer; 5, Evening Prayer.

Week Days—Wednesdays, at 9.30, Holy Communion; Fridays, at 5, Litany and Intercession (to be continued during the war).

Holy Days—Holy Communion at 7.30.

NOTES

The altar has been beautifully adorned with flowers during July.

A safe, the gift of Mr. Frank V. Chambers, has been placed in the Sacristy.

Mr. Hagenbaugh, for thirty years past, Sexton of Grace Church, celebrated his eighty-second birthday recently. He is now enjoying a two weeks holiday.

The Rector will leave for Quebec, Can., on August 16th, where he will take duty at the Cathedral for a fortnight, during the absence of the Dean. He will return to Mt. Airy the latter part of September.

The Rev. Dr. Breed will officiate in Grace Church, during the absence of the Rector.

The services on the Feast of the Transfiguration, August 6th, will be as follows:

7:30 A. M. Holy Communion
9:00 A. M. Morning Prayer
5:00 P. M. Evening Prayer and Address
(Special Intercessions.)

The date for the next Confirmation in Grace Church is Sunday, November 7th.

All candidates for Confirmation are requested to send in their names to the Rector before August 15th.

In the first year of the reorganized Church School, a very attractive banner was made by the Woman's Auxiliary, the materials being donated by one of the interested ladies. This has been regularly awarded each term to the class having the best record for work accomplished. A second banner could well be used. It would be very gratifying if some persons would interest themselves in producing it this Summer or in early Fall, in time to be awarded at the Advent examination period.

One of the principles taught by the Church School is regularity in Christian giving. While the school has a Summer rest from its round of studies, the expenses of the Church and of her great missionary activities go on, and these must be met. Let every scholar be loyal to this principle of continuous support. The weekly envelopes are in the possession of each, and may be deposited on the plate when the offerings are received as usual on Sundays.

No doubt many children are longing for the time to come when the Church School will open again. Meanwhile, they should not fail to attend Church every Sunday. Children naturally love the Church service. God bless them!

The Rector's Letter

There is a sweet mystery about the little rhyme I heard a child saying to the full moon this evening:

"I see the moon,
The moon sees me,
The moon sees those I'd love to see;
God bless the moon,
God bless me,
God bless those I'd love to see."

The moon serves the imagination as a shining bond of union with dear ones far away. Or, rather, the moon suggests a greater thought—the comforting thought of God, in whom we are all one.

I like to think of all Christian altars as mystically one. There are not really many altars, any more than there are many moons. They are simply many aspects of the One Heavenly Altar, where our glorified Lord ever presents the One Perfect Sacrifice.

During these months of scattering, we may miss seeing one another—but our fellowship is unbroken. Can it ever be broken? Is it not an eternal fellowship? All this must have been in the mind of a parishioner who wrote recently from Portland, Maine:

"Sunday, I was one of the many at the Eucharistic service in S. Luke's Cathedral. In the evening, I attended S. Stephen's. It was good to be at both services, and my enjoyment of the 'blest tie that binds' only brought me nearer to my own parish Church at home."

May I close with a quotation from wistful, sweet-souled Forbes Robertson?

"Life is a circle whose centre is God. Each of us is unconnected with his neighbor, but connected with the centre from whom he comes. The nearer the centre, the nearer we get to each other. When we get to the centre, we really become united to each other. To die is to get a step nearer the centre. The closer we are connected with the centre, the nearer we are to those whom we call dead. Our communion with them is spiritual, because 'God is spirit' and they are in Him.

"But the spiritual is not the unsubstantial, the nebulous, the gaseous; it is the personal—to my mind, the awful—reality. The more truly we understand persons, the more we shall find they are spirits."

Faithfully yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

The Transfiguration

There is no Feast in our Calendar which does not hold in store, for the thoughtful, a spiritual message of importance.

Let us take time to hear the voice of the Church on all holy days. What do we learn from the Transfiguration?

Bishop Westcott said, "The Transfiguration is the revelation of the potential spirituality of the earthly life in its highest outward form. In it, the present and the past are seen in a fellowship of glory, and the future in its great features lies open for consideration. Such an event, distinct in its teaching from the Resurrection, yet closely akin to it, calls for more religious recognition than it receives. It is able, if we enter into its meaning, to bring vividly before us the reality of a communion of the living and the dead.

"Here, the Lord, as the Son of Man, gives the measure of the capacity of humanity, and shows that to which He leads those who are united to Him."

There is food for thought surely! Or one might find a starting point for a meditation in any one of the following suggestions, as to the purpose of the Transfiguration:

"It links the Incarnation on to the Old Dispensation; it justifies our Lord's own argument for the Resurrection, in S. Matthew 22: 32; it creates a presupposition in favor of belief that the present material conditions of humanity are capable of transformation in response to the necessities of existence in a higher order; it draws the veil of sense on one side for a brief instant, and shows us the 'heavenlies' as S. Paul phrases it, not far off in some new universe but all about us; it gives new depth of meaning to the doctrine of the Communion of Saints! Nor is this all. How many there are among us who still cry with Tennyson—

'Red of the Dawn!
Is it turning to a fainter red? So be it, but when shall we lay
The ghost of the brute that is walking and haunting us yet, and be free?
In a hundred, a thousand winters? Oh! what will our children be,
The men of a hundred thousand, a million summers away?'

"And, when we strain our ears for an answer, we may find in the Transfiguration one more, and by no means the least important, of the whispers which come to us out of the Unseen, bidding us 'hope on, hope ever'."

Prayer for Peace

On Sunday, August 9, 1914, the Rector asked the question "What is the truly Christian attitude toward the present European War?" His answer was summed up in three words: penitence, sympathy and hopefulness. All these motives drive Christians to their knees in prayer.

Accordingly, it was announced that there would be a Special Service of Litany and Intercession, at five o'clock every Friday so long as the war should last.

This has been faithfully done throughout this sad and tragic year. As we come to the anniversary of the declaration of war, let us make fresh resolve to give ourselves more earnestly to prayer.

O God, who art the author of peace and lover of concord, direct the course of this world in accordance with Thy will, take away whatsoever hinders the nations from unity and concord, prosper all counsels which make for the restoration of a rightful and abiding peace, and do Thou, O God, who makest wars to cease, bring again in thine own time the blessing of peace to all nations; for the sake of Him who is the Prince of Peace, Thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

What Is Confirmation?

Confirmation is the completion of Baptism. It "increases and multiplies"—i. e., strengthens and confirms Baptismal grace. It is the ordained channel which conveys to the Baptized the "seven-fold"—i. e., complete—gift of the Holy Ghost which was initially received in Baptism.

It is also a Sacrament of Admittance. It admits the Baptized to Holy Communion. Two rubrics teach this.

"It is expedient," says the rubric after an adult Baptism, "that every person thus Baptized should be confirmed by the Bishop so soon after his Baptism as conveniently may be; that so he may be admitted to the Holy Communion."

"And there shall none be admitted to Holy Communion," adds the rubric after Confirmation, "until such time as he be confirmed, or be ready and desirous to be confirmed."

In speaking of the necessity of Confirmation to complete Baptism, Dean Hodges says:

"It is because of this ancient and even scriptural character of Confirmation that we require it in the Episcopal Church. Every Christian society which admits to its membership those who enter in infancy by Baptism has a further service by which it admits them to the Holy Communion.

"But this is not only our prescribed manner of approach to the sacrament; it has such sanctions in the past that we say to those who wish to be enrolled among us, but who have not been Confirmed, 'Here is an experience into which you have not entered. We cast no doubt upon your membership in the Church—that was effected by your Baptism; but here is a service, whereby according to immemorial tradition, the rite of Baptism is completed; not the sacrament of Baptism that requires only the water and the words, but the ancient rite. We are not contented with a letter of transfer only. We ask you to come to receive the benediction of the Bishop, as your formal welcome and admission to our branch of the Church.'

"The head of our religious organization is the Bishop. He is the president of our Society. Nobody may be received into full membership among us without being formally presented to the Bishop and received by him."

To turn from new wine to old, here is a choice summary of the matter from an ancient Homily of the Church of England: "In Baptism, the Christian was born again spiritually, to live; in Confirmation, he is made bold to fight. There he received remission of sin; here he receiveth increase of grace. In Baptism, he was chosen to be God's son; in Confirmation, God shall give him His Holy Spirit to perfect him. In Baptism, he was called and chosen to be one of God's soldiers, and had his white coat of innocency given him and also his badge, which was the red cross set upon his forehead; in Confirmation, he is encouraged to fight and to take the armour of God put upon him, which be able to bear off the fiery darts of the devil."

Of course, if one desires an older vintage still, one may refer to Acts 8: 14-17, or Acts 19: 1-6.

Playground

The most notable achievement of the Social Service Committee, in the first year of its work, has been the influence that has been brought to bear, through the co-operation of the Mt. Airy Ministers, upon the Board of Education of the city, which has led to the opening of the playground in the yard of the Curtin School. The worker writes as follows:

"The yard is a very beautiful, shady place—ideal for children in these hot summer days. We have swings, giant stride, horizontal bars and a sand bin. This being the initial month, we are not as fully equipped as we would wish to be. A sliding board for the younger children and a see-saw are much to be desired. So far, the average daily attendance for the month of July has been one hundred and sixty. The children have entered into the sports so whole-heartedly that I am sure the good influence should be far reaching. The parents appear to be very appreciative. The manual work, for lack of material, is not very extensive. We hoped to teach basketry, chair-caning and hammock-making, which may be accomplished later."

This encouraging account of the first effort toward supervised play, in a very congested district of Grace Church Parish, ends with a cordial invitation to have "interested friends" visit the Playground on any day but Sunday, from nine to five o'clock.

Vacation War Relief Work

The prayer of sympathy leads naturally to the helpful deed. Among the faithful intercessors of the Parish has arisen a new effort toward relief. It appears that many of the Military, Emergency and Field Hospitals are without even the barest necessities for caring for wounded men. Surgeons and nurses are appealing from every country in the war zone for surgical dressings.

In response to this urgent appeal, the Surgical Dressings Committee has been organized in New York. They ask for widespread co-operation for the gathering of 5,000,000 surgical dressings at once. These can be made out of old linen or cotton pieces. A piece of goods only 5 x 7 inches will make a dressing for some poor wounded lad at the front. Sheets, pillow cases, table cloths, napkins, towels, etc., will be most acceptable. Materials should be clean and carefully folded. The sterilizing is to be done by the Health Department of the City of New York, before the supplies are shipped to the war zone.

A group of women in the Parish are at work preparing some supplies. Specimens of the various kinds of dressings are on exhibition in the Parish House. Any who desire to co-operate in this merciful work may get full information from Mrs. Henry S. Lowber, White Oak, Vernon Road, Mt. Airy.

Those who wish to send contributions directly to headquarters may address: Mrs. Mary Hatch Willard, Chairman, 39 West 38th Street, New York City.

Bishop Greer has sent out a circular letter asking the help of New York church people in this work.

O Merciful God, whose blessed Son went about doing good, uphold with Thy strength and grace those who do service to the wounded, the sick and the dying. Grant to the ministers of Thy gospel faithfulness and love, to the physicians and surgeons wisdom and skill, to nurses sympathy and patience, and we beseech Thee protect them in all dangers, anxieties and labors, through the same Thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Baby Saving

What is Being Done to Lower Infant Mortality

People are beginning to realize more and more how hard the hot weather is on babies in the poorer sections of the city.

There are several different organizations in Philadelphia devoting all their time and energy to Baby Saving, and they are doing splendid work.

At the present time, in the Court-Yard of the City Hall, there is a Baby Saving Exhibition. Anyone can visit it, and can see what is being done. At different times, Baby Saving Shows and Lectures have been given in various parts of the city.

There are forty nurses, working for the Department of Health, who are trying to cut down infant mortality. These nurses visit the mothers in their homes, and teach them how to care for their babies. They show them the importance of keeping the child clean and cool, and how to feed it properly and regularly.

If the baby seems healthy and well nourished, only an occasional visit is paid, to show the mother she can have advice when she needs it. But generally the nurse has her hands full trying to educate the mother, and helping her in every way she can. Mothers are taught that fresh air, regular feeding, pure water, sleep and frequent bathing are the most important things for babies. The clothing should be light, loose, soft and clean. Flies, mosquitoes, dogs and cats should be kept away from the babies. The fly is one of the most dangerous insects known. One of the things taught is to "Swat the fly."

A milk formula may be obtained from the physician or hospital, and the nurse will show the mother how to prepare it.

They are also being taught how to make home-made refrigerators out of wooden boxes and two tin cans, one placed inside the other, with some saw-dust.

There is also a Little Mother's League which is teaching girls how to take care of their younger brothers and sisters. These Baby Saving Classes are being conducted every week in recreation centres, schools, playgrounds and hospitals throughout the city.

Baby Farms are being rigidly inspected. Recently, nine children were found sleeping in five cribs. The straw mattresses were without sheets, and the beds and children were overrun with vermin. Adults were found sleeping with children at the foot of their beds. In most of the homes, the babies were ragged and dirty, playing in dark, ill-smelling, unventilated rooms. In one crib, two babies were found with a log between them, to keep them from rolling on each other.

Large iron bulletin boards are also being placed in different parts of the city, giving seasonable information relating to health problems.

The writer knows a woman who is doing such splendid work in her neighborhood. Each week she has a Baby Saving Clinic, where the babies are weighed and looked after under the direction of a physician. One evening a week she gives cooking lessons to the mothers. She also has a bungalow, in New Jersey, where she invites the mothers and their babies to be her guests for a week during the hot weather. Too much cannot be said in praise of one who does such splendid work among the poor of her neighborhood.

Of course, hundreds of babies have not been reached yet, but more and more is being done each year to lower infant mortality.

An Apology

May I apologize sincerely to the members of the Junior Auxiliary for an omission in my article on the United Offering, in the June number of the PARISH NEWS?

The amount of $442.33 was given as the Grace Church United Offering total for the year 1914–5. I should have included $5.00 received from the Junior Auxiliary in July, 1914, making the correct total $447.33.

While regretting exceedingly the carelessness which makes this apology necessary, I am glad that it will emphasize the fact that our Juniors have a share in the Thank Offering of the women of the Church; that, in spite of (may I not rather say, because of) all their good work for Missions, they do not forget to recognize as an organization the "thankful" part which it is our great privilege to offer. We women often feel that it is really impossible to adequately express our gratitude for all the blessings and opportunities of our Christian womanhood. How infinitely greater must be the joy and thanksgiving of the Junior with all of life to live! What wonderful possibilities for service are hers!

In this connection, I would publicly acknowledge $5—just received from the Junior Auxiliary for 1915–6.

Castine, Me., July 19th.

MARY C. S. NORTH.
U. O. Treasurer.

Off for Japan

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mellor Smith (Mrs. Smith was Miss Margaret E. Hall) who were recently married in Grace Church, have started for Japan, via San Francisco.

Mr. Smith will receive a regular appointment, under the Board of Missions, to academic work in the Fall. Meanwhile, he will work under the direction of the Rt. Rev. Dr. Tucker, Bishop of Kyoto.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will spend a time at Karuizawa, the Summer resort of Missionaries, where they will become acquainted, and Mrs. Smith will begin the study of the language.

The prayers and good wishes of the Congregation will follow them. We shall enjoy hearing something of their work for the Church, occasionally. The Junior Auxiliary members will be especially interested in messages from their former president.

Boy Scouts at Treasure Island

On July 15th, the Boy Scouts, eighteen strong, left the headquarters at the Church for Treasure Island on the Delaware, 25 miles above Trenton. The journey to camp was very trying as the day was very hot, but we all arrived tired but happy early in the afternoon.

It did not take us long to get adjusted to camp routine, and after the first day we found taps did not blow early enough, and reveille seemed to ring across the island ere the echo of taps had died away.

It was a great source of gratification to notice the manner in which our boys endeavored to take part in all the scouting activities. While we were there, two aquatic meets were held and our troop won both, notwithstanding that they had to compete against all the other troops on the island.

There was a noticeable change in our activities this year as compared with last. Last year, the week was spent chiefly in recreation, but this year most of the boys devoted their spare time to studying, preparing and taking examinations in Scoutcraft such as First Aid, Red Cross Life Saving, Swimming, Signalling, Cooking, Nature Study, etc., and two of our Scouts were awarded their T. I. S. (Treasure Island Scout) for earning 100 points in their various activities.

"Troop 67" is now two years old, and most of the boys who started with us are rapidly approaching manhood, and shortly will be entering business or college life, and new and younger boys will fill their places. The leader will long remember their loyalty and splendid endeavor to make the troop a success, and we trust and are sure the work has at least taught them to fight the battle of life squarely and honorably. We shall always be ready with the Scout acclaim as they excell in their various activities such as we were in the grand days at Treasure Island, when they met their fellow-scouts in battle royal and never cried "enough brother, enough."

"BE PREPARED"*

By George Bodine

While still a boy I went afield
And met the merry birds of spring;
I climbed atop the mountain crest,
Where beauty smiles on everything.

I went to school and learned from books
The lives men lived long, long ago,
And marveled in the science class
At what they called a dynamo.

And then I came to realize
The sacrifice of cash and men,
The nation freely gives for boys
To make them into manly men.

I went to college from the school;
I never failed to go to church.
I found a man without his God
Is like a bird without a perch.

And then I started in to work,
And saved what little cash I could,
Until the thought occurred to me,
Has all this done me any good?

Why lead a life, an upright life,
Ever toiling toward the truth,
Keeping all the little vows
That go along with virtuous youth?

Why keep straight? To play my part,
My part of all that went before,
My part of all that's still to be,
To add my share to Virtue's store.

That I am not to be ashamed
Or feel Remorse's hateful sting,
When the boy that I have been
Comes to buy his wedding ring.

And so what men have sacrificed,
And all that I can add beside,
Shall crown the gift I have to bring,
When I come to kiss my bride.

*These verses were composed upon reading the eleventh Scout law and are respectfully dedicated to Troop 67, Philadelphia Boy Scouts of America.

Brotherhood Convention

It would be great to be one of a thousand Churchmen to break bread together in remembrance of the Man Christ Jesus. The approaching National Convention of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew, in Los Angeles, will attract not only members of the Brotherhood, but Churchmen of every rank throughout the nation. Twelve Bishops, a large company of Clergy, and a multitude of Laymen, representing nearly every Diocese and Missionary District in the United States and Western Canada, plan to attend.

The dates are August 25th–29th; the place, the new Bible Institute Building, just completed at an expense of $1,200,000, in Los Angeles.

This will be the thirtieth National Brotherhood Convention, but only the second such National meeting ever held in the Church west of the Rocky Mountains; the first being the General Convention held in San Francisco, in 1901.

Is there any man in the Parish who will be in California the latter part of August? If so, Grace Chapter of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew would be grateful if he would, even in a casual way, represent the Chapter by his presence at some of the general meetings. All Churchmen are welcome to the sessions. It is a splendid opportunity to hear many of the most brilliant speakers on live subjects. Please notify the Director or Secretary.

CONVENTION PRAYER

Almighty God, to Whom belong all the issues of life, illumine, we pray Thee, our hearts and minds with Thy Holy Spirit, so that in and through us, in the coming Convention of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew, at Los Angeles, the Gospel of Thy Son Jesus Christ may be effectively preached to men who need its inspiration and help.

Deepen, we pray Thee, within each one of us, the sense of Thy Presence and Power, and may the consciousness that Thou art dwelling within him give to each member of the Order courage and hope in his work for Thee. All of which we ask for Jesus' sake. Amen.

Reminiscences of Cambridge Conference

JUNE 24—JULY 8

A little pause in ordinary days
A brief withdrawal from the busy ways
In which our feet must go. A space to find
Refreshment for the soul, food for the mind,
New knowledge gained from those who gladly give
Not knowledge only, but themselves in truth
To vivify the spoken word; to live
One household, men and women, age and youth
From homes the whole wide continent apart,
Of interests manifold, yet one in heart
As those that love their Lord; each giving of his store
Experience, inspiration; gaining more
Than e'er he gives. The morning as is meet,
Is ushered in with sacrifice of praise
And blest Communion; midday prayer ascends
For all Christ's world; and so in ordered ways
The day is given to Him, and evening ends
With cares and joys of day laid at His feet.
Grant to us, Lord, to whom Thou giv'st to share
This life of work and friendliness and prayer,
Thy grace and strength, and send us forth again
To make Thee known more truly unto men.

M. E. T.

From the busy hum of Boston into the heart of peaceful Cambridge in 15 minutes! Through the subway to Harvard Square, then a short walk and we had passed Old Christ Church. On a little further and we were in the shelter of the Church Seminary, the home of the Cambridge Conference.

The numbers registered far exceeded those of other years. The high water mark hitherto being 100. Before the Conference closed about 300 had registered, 100 of those coming in for the second week. Pennsylvania went down 50 strong! During the first week, we represented one-fourth of the entire number. The common expression, on meeting us, was, "Oh, you are one of the 50!"

Cambridge itself is attractive—still fragrant with memories of Longfellow. Cambridge people are charming, and the Conference will live forever in the memory of many who were there, as the happiest and most blessed two weeks of their lives. Unstinted praise is due the committee for planning and carrying out such a remarkable undertaking. The grateful thanks of every member goes out to Bishops Perry, of Rhode Island, and Parker, of New Hampshire, for the joy and happiness which pervaded the atmosphere wherever they were. Father Huntington, O.H.C., calm and dignified, proved a pillar of strength to many a perplexed and harrassed mind, seeking counsel and advise. The spirit of joy and peace was felt all through the Conference.

"Don't eat too many kinds of pie!" was Bishop Parker's warning on the first Friday; and indeed the advice was necessary. What to study and what to omit was a hard question for most of us. So many and such tempting subjects spread out before us.

Dean Hodges with his inimitable and fascinating study of Old Testament history; the Mission Study classes; Miss Tillotson, a normal training class; Dean Barleson, taking as his subject, "The Church and the Nation," and using as a background the "Conquest of the Continent"—that, by the way, will be our book for next winter—the Board of Missions having decided not to have a new one this year, but to review one of the former ones.

Mrs. Pilsbury led a class on "Japan Advancing;" Bishop Parker and Mrs. Pancoast being active and interested members of the class. Miss Grace Crosby, of New York, took for her subject "The Missionary Life of Christ," and led one of the largest classes at the Conference.

In the second week came our own Dr. Jefferys with a "message" for Cambridge, which none could deny. Intending to have a class of 16 in the morning, he found the door could not be closed against the stream of people requesting admission. The outcome was three classes each day, the total number in all three being over 80. And to each one of us, those six sessions came home as an experience, a revelation, a blessing which, for all time, we will give thanks.

Those interested in Sunday School work received wonderful aid from Dr. Boynton, of the General Theological Seminary, and Dr. Gardner, of New York. English Reformation Theology was ably handled by Dean Hart, Custodian of our Prayer Book. Bishop Rhinelander, always and forever a representative Bishop, dealt with the "Christian Character as Related to the Christian Creed," with strong, logical and convincing clearness.

Father Officer, O.H.C., in the absence of Prof. Tyson, filled in, at short notice, the first hour of the second week. Gifted with remarkable artistic ability and rare sympathy, in an exquisitely, beautiful way, he built up that ladder of the Christian Faith based upon the first chapter of II S. Peter, verses 5 to 8.

The public meetings of the Conference held many attractions, chief among them Dr. W. H. Van Allen's, "Evening with the Minor Poets." His exquisite reading of Alfred Noyes' "Come Down to Kew in Lilac Time," preceeded only a few days Father Officer's rendering of the poem, set to music and sung by himself in a beautiful rich baritone. Two delightful evenings!

"The Clergy Pension Fund," by Bishop Lawrence, proved to be intensely interesting. Mrs. Pancoast and her travel pictures, as usual, brought forth a storm of applause and—a goodly contribution for S. Luke's Hospital, Tokio.

Classes in Social Service, Junior Auxiliary and United Offering work were all largely attended.

The Conference on Church Unity was pronounced "wonderful." Rev. R. Calkins, a Congregationalist, and Father Huntington, O.H.C., holding a large audience in close attention. The Conference closed on Thursday night with the Missionary Meeting, which Father Huntington called not a closing, but a broadening out, and after the Holy Eucharist on Friday morning came the "Farewells," and the going out into the world again, with new grace and strength. E. S. H.

May everyone who comes within this house
Be stronger, richer, better, happier the longer
He remain.
Counting life more worth the living,
Friendship more than worth the giving.
Then again
Remembering gladly how he dwelt here,
Treasuring what he thought and felt here,
When he parts
May he leave sweet thoughts behind him,
Memories that e'er will bind him

Some tell us we are unwise to teach children things which they do not appreciate and enjoy, but Ruskin bears witness out of his own experience to the contrary. He says: "It is strange that of all the pieces of the Bible which my mother taught me, that which cost me most to learn, and which was to my child's mind chiefly repulsive—the 119th Psalm—has now become of all the most precious to me, in its overflowing and glorious passion of love for the law of God."

The First Sunday in the Month—7.30, Holy Communion; 10, Morning Prayer; 10.30, Holy Communion; 5, Evening Prayer.

Other Sundays—7.30, Holy Communion; 10.30, Morning Prayer; 5, Evening Prayer.

Week Days—Wednesdays, at 9.30, Holy Communion; Fridays, at 5, Litany and Intercession (to be continued during the war).

Holy Days—Holy Communion at 7.30.

NOTES

We shall welcome the return of the Choir this month. Their absence during August saves us from the tendency to take them as a matter of course. We really do appreciate their leadership in singing the praises of God. They are such a help. But what a mistake to keep silence and let the Choir have a monopoly of the chants and hymns.

Together we must swell God's praises.

The Emergency Fund has passed the three hundred thousand dollar mark ($306,000.00), and continues to grow daily.

Individual contributions still come in from Grace Church parishioners. Our share thus far is $1,177.10. Who will make it $1,200.00?

"The Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions is not a select body of a few women in each parish, whose time and tastes lead them to join together to do some missionary work. It is as leaven that leaveneth the whole—an influence reaching to the woman who sits in the pew behind you and the pew in front. It is a body resting not until all are interested and brought into that organization to which they really belong by virtue of their baptism—the great Missionary Society of the Church."—Dr. Burleson.

The date of the next Confirmation in Grace Church is Sunday, November 7th.

All candidates for Confirmation are requested to send in their names to the Rector before October 1st.

The Right Rev. Arthur S. Lloyd D.D., president of the Board of Missions, has accepted an invitation to be the speaker at the Missionary Service in Grace Church, on the Wednesday evening of our Dedication, Festival Week (November 3d).

The Right Rev. Dr. Rhinelander, Bishop of Pennsylvania, will make an all-day Visitation to Grace Church, Sunday, November 7th, the final day of our Dedication Festival.

The Bishop will preside at a Parish Conference, Saturday evening, be the celebrant and preacher at our Annual Corporate Communion, Sunday morning, address the children in the afternoon, and administer the apostalic rite of Confirmation in the evening.

November 7th promises to be a red-letter day in our Calendar.

CHURCH SCHOOL RALLY DAY

The exact date for the Rally of the Church School has finally been fixed for Sunday, September 26th, at 9:30 o'clock.

Every teacher, officer and scholar should plan to be present.

That day will initiate, we trust, the banner year for the Church School.

Several new courses are to be offered. Interesting features are being planned. Greater things will be possible next year than any previous year.

The Support of Religious Education

We all admit now that the support of her missionary work is a responsibility resting upon the whole Church, and we feel that the apportionment plan is fair and proper.

No conscientious Churchman is contented until he is assured that his parish and his diocese have both met their missionary apportionment.

But what of Religious Education? Is the duty of providing for education a secondary obligation? Does it deserve any more than Missions to be left to spasmodic giving?

The General Convention has entrusted to the General Board of Religious Education "weighty responsibility for promoting the cause of Church Education in the home, in the parish, in schools, in colleges, and in seminaries." Diocesan Boards have been provided to co-operate with the General Board. Gradually a splendid organization is being perfected. But how is it all to be supported?

The best system, no doubt, is the apportionment plan, that the burden may be shared equally. By canon, the General Board is authorized "to apportion the amount of its budget to the several dioceses," and has in fact made such an apportionment. But with what result? Let us judge by the response from the two most important dioceses.

In 1914, New York was asked for $6,666.00, and sent in $702.67.

Pennsylvania's share should have been $3,948.00. We forwarded to headquarters the sum of $864.00, of which $500.00 was contributed by one woman.

At the last Diocesan Convention, a resolution, presented by Mr. George Wharton Pepper, embodied in the preamble the essential facts, and

"Resolved (1) That the Convention, while unable at present to appropriate funds to meet this obligation, nevertheless approves the extension of the apportionment method to cover the field of educational enterprise.

"(2) That the work of the General Board is earnestly commended to the consideration of parishes and individuals, in the hope that they will make it possible for this Diocese to meet its apportionment for 1914."

This resolution was adopted.

I trust that Grace Church will make a liberal offering for this purpose in Advent, and that before long we may plan for just as regular contributions for Education as we now make for Missions.

Teacher Training

Two years ago the work of Teacher Training began in Grace Church. All teachers were asked to attend the weekly instructions. Two courses were given: The Catechism and Christian Doctrine by the Rector, and Child Study by Mrs. Crouter, Principal of the Church School.

Last year, two more courses were given under rather different conditions. These courses were planned for the training of future teachers, although a number of the active teachers attended. Mrs. Hayes conducted a course on the Prayer Book, and, later, Mrs. Crouter taught two classes a course on Church History.

Last year's plan will be continued during the coming season. The course on Church History, which covered very thoroughly the period of the early Church last year, will be resumed under the able leadership of Mrs. Crouter. The plan is to cover somewhat more rapidly the later history of the Church, and lead up to the study of the American Church in the Mission Study Classes during Lent. The Mission Study text-book this year is announced as "The Conquest of the Continent."

In this work of Teacher Training, we started with the intention of following rather closely the Standard Course of the General Board. We have become so absorbed in certain subjects that we have spent far more time upon them than the prescribed course provided. A great deal of original work has been done, and much enthusiasm has resulted. Perhaps it is better not to be circumscribed by the Standard Course. If we have erred, it has been on the side of thoroughness.

Missionary Calendar

One way in which our Diocese serves the Church at large is in the production of an excellent Missionary Calendar. The purpose of the Calendar is "to spread missionary knowledge, to arouse interest, to secure daily intercessory prayer, and to increase the consciousness of Christian fellowship."

Incidentally, it earns money for Missions. Between 1909 and 1915, some $2,725.00 were sent in to the Board as the net profit.

The Calendar for 1916 will be ready October 1st.

It opens with an article by the Bishop of Pennsylvania on "Thankfulness in Mission," and ends with one by Dr. W. H. Jefferys on "The Great Thanksgiving."

Grace Church persons will be interested in the week of April 3d, because prepared by one of our own number.

The price of the Calendar is 25 cents (and 5 cents for postage), and orders may be sent to Mrs. F. W. English, Church House, Philadelphia.

The Advent Preaching Mission

The following letter from the Bishop to the Rector of Grace Church, brings before us the plan which has been adopted for the Advent Mission in our diocese.

We plan to keep the congregation fully informed as more specific plans develop. This is something that concerns every parishioner.

Philadelphia, July 9, 1915.

Reverend and Dear Brother:—

The Clergy of the Diocese were called together on Tuesday, June 22d, to consider the recommendation of a Joint Commission of the General Convention in regard to a Nation-Wide Preaching Mission.

Acting on the resolution passed by the Clergy at this meeting, I have asked the following to serve on the Committee in general charge of the Preaching Mission in this Diocese next Advent: Rev. Messrs. G. G. Bartlett, J. T. Cole, J. B. Halsey, J. B. Harding, C. S. Hutchinson, D. D., A. J. P. McClure, H. M. Medary, G. L. Richardson, E. L. Sanford, F. M. Taitt, F. W. Tomkins, S. T. D., and H. B. Wright.

This Committee has met and organized with Dr. Tomkins as Chairman, and Mr McClure as Secretary and Treasurer.

Most of the actual work of preparation will be postponed until the autumn.

A Sub-Committee on Mission Preachers has been appointed composed, of the Rev. Messrs. Halsey, Hutchinson, Taitt and Tomkins, and charged with the duty of securing, at the earliest possible moment, the services of such men from outside the Diocese as may seem desirable to reinforce the appeal and power of the Mission. The assignment to local Churches of these outside preachers will, of course, be made only after consultation with the Parish Clergy.

Meanwhile I would remind you that the success of this Mission will depend upon the readiness of each one of our Clergy to give himself, and to lead his people, to earnest prayer for God's direction and blessing, and to willing co-operation in all necessary preparations, to the end that the opportunity before us may be fully realized and turned to good account for the permanent up-building of God's Kingdom.

I enclose a prayer for the Mission, which, at the request of the Clergy, I have authorized for use throughout the Diocese in connection with the Mission. With the earnest prayer that we may be guided, strengthened and closely knit together by the Holy Spirit in our solemn undertaking,

Faithfully yours,

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop of Pennsylvania.

PRAYERS FOR THE
"PREACHING MISSION IN THE DIOCESE"

For the blessing of the work:

O Lord Jesus Christ, the Great Shepherd of the sheep, Who seekest those that are gone astray, bindest up those that are broken, and healest those that are sick; Bless, we beseech Thee, the effort to be made in this Diocese to convert souls unto Thee; open the deaf ears of the wanderers, that they may hear the words which belong unto their salvation; confirm the weak, give more grace to the faithful; and grant that those whom Thou dost raise to newness of life, may perservere unto the end; of Thy mercy, who livest and reignest with the Father and the Holy Spirit, one God, world without end. Amen.

For the preachers and other workers in the Mission:

Almighty and everlasting God, Who dost govern all things in heaven and earth, we commend to Thy fatherly care all whom Thou shalt call to take part in the work of the Preaching Mission in this Diocese. Watch over them, we beseech Thee, for good; defend them from all dangers both of body and soul; grant unto them the spirit of power, of love and of a sound mind, that by their labors Thy name may be glorified and Thy kingdom enlarged: through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Evangel

The Advent Preaching Mission calls for a revival of the prophetic ministry and re-emphasis upon the proclaiming of the Gospel. Without forceful preaching, morals deteriorate, the Sacraments fall into neglect, and the Church languishes. The following words of Ian McLaren's strike a true note:

"History bears witness to the fact that where the Evangel ceased, or fell into contempt, the Church grew weak and corrupt.

"When the Evangel asserted its ancient authority, the Church arose and put on her beautiful garments. No power in human experience has wrought such mighty works as the spoken word. It has beaten down impiety, taught righteousness, given freedom to the oppressed, and created nations.

"Before Knox, armed with this sword of God, hosts fled, and he reigned in the pulpit of St. Giles, as a king upon his throne.

"If you go into the roots of things, was not the American nation founded on brave wholesome speech?

"It is the prophet who has roused the race from ignoble sleep—has fired its imagination with lofty ideals—has nerved it for costly sacrifices—has led it to victory. It is the Prophet above all who, under Christ, has laid the foundations of the Church in every land—has restored her after periods of decay—has filled her with courage and hope. He is the teacher, comforter, fosterer, defender of his brethren, and, therefore, the chief office to which any man can be called is to declare the will of God—and, especially, the Evangel of Christ."

Prayers for Children

The other day a parishioner of Grace Church wrote to the Rector, saying,

"To-day at the Prayer for the President, it occurred to me that I would write out a few words adapted to present conditions of intercession for help and strength to our present executive in the difficult path he is compelled to walk, to hand to children for daily use. When I have spoken to one or two, I have found that it was their daily practice, and I was impressed. Then it occurred to me that you would do this.

"Sometime ago, after much doubt and delay as to the propriety of it, I wrote to President Wilson to give vent to my feelings of admiration of his state papers, mentioning the matter of daily prayers, and he answered through his secretary, as if it pleased him."

In reply, the Rector wrote the following which some children in the Parish may find useful.

O God of Mercy, hear us.
Hasten the day when wars shall cease
And nations live in righteous Peace
Through Jesus Christ, our Saviour.

Guide, we pray, our President
And leading men of State;
That they may champion the Right,
And work for Peace with all their Might;
O God, on Whom we wait.

Social Service

With the approach of a new season comes the added responsibility, in any form of activity, of having a clear and definite outlook, and a broad understanding of what is being done in similar fields, in order that the most good may be accomplished.

In the field of Social Service, the opportunities are so numerous that it is hard to know where the need is greatest and where limited facilities will best fit in. It is thought to be a very distinct gain, however, to the rank and file of the many social agencies at work, that the churches have so actively awakened and are lending their sympathetic and practical support.

Since the Church first co-operated in the problem of capital and labor, there has come through various stages and with increasing force the firm belief that she should know the condition of the community as well as the social, domestic and economic circumstances of the families and individuals therein. Only in this way can be met for correction the various social problems which are menacing society as well as the family and it's life.

One used to speak of charity under the heading of relief, which manifested itself in the form of money, food, coal, and other material necessities even to the building of special houses for the dispensing of soup alone. And now, instead of amelioration being the end in view, we have come to plan for entire reconstruction which is not alone a cure-all but a preventive against further distress. This should be the outlook for all Social Service Committees, not because it's the easiest nor the cheapest, for it never is; more often the undertaking is far heavier financially and calls for greater skill, but because it seems to be a more literal following of the Golden Rule.

This idea of reconstruction in Social Service is going on at a greater pace throughout the Church than many are aware, unless they are following the interesting columns on Social Service in the "Living Church." A member of the Social Service Committee, in Grace Church, recently went hurriedly over that department in that periodical for three months back, and there found an astonishing array of splendid undertakings, each in a different parish, and, curiously enough, seldom two parishes doing the same thing. It might be interesting to include here a rough list of some of the activities being carried on among different classes of people.

For men, there were described social centers, lunch rooms, roof gardens, libraries with lectures and debates on economic and social problems, sanitary and prison reform, hygiene, immigration, temperance, international peace, the observance of Sunday, also hospital care as well as home nursing.

For women, there are carried on neighborhood houses, lunch rooms, welfare work and instruction in home management, care of children and baby feeding, nursing. There are also conducted employment agencies for all classes of people and various kinds of hospital care.

For the young, play-grounds and clubs, savings deposits, vocational and educational advantages, as well as hygiene and social education.

In every case, friendly visiting has been an important factor.

It is reported by those competent to know that the outside world is applauding this interest on the part of the Church, and that in particular no class is being so touched by it as the working man, whose attitude has long been so critical. And, we are also assured that the present-day voices of government officials, labor union and corporation heads are loud in the praise of this intelligent love of our neighbor. It seems now, if Social Service shall have the loyal support of the churches and the assistance of the members thereof, that it is sure to be a certain help in bridging the gap that has so unfortunately existed between large numbers of employers and employees as well as those who are suffering under injustices very heavy to bear—and the Church.

The Missionary Year

In our October issue, we can publish the results of the year as regards Missionary Offerings. The year closes September 1st. The last report may guide us as to what to expect.

We hope all apportionments may be raised. If they are not, the "hardship falls upon the Church's Agents at the Front, the Standard Bearers of the Cross."

To August 1st this year, the receipts on the Apportionment proper are as follows:

From Parishes	$589,085.44
From Individuals	39,347.63
From Sunday Schools	180,491.87
From Woman's Auxiliary	98,271.28
From Junior Auxiliary	18,839.62
Total	$926,035.84

Compared with last year at the same date, these are increases.

In Parish Offerings	$8,111.43
In Sunday School Offerings	4,284.57
In Woman's Aux. Offerings	8,508.84
In Junior Aux. Offerings	180.60
Total Increase	$21,085.44
And one decrease in Individual Offerings	$19,203.58
Net Increase	$1,881.86

The Young Churchman's Association

The Executive Committee of the Young Churchman's Association will meet Tuesday evening, September 21st, to complete plans for the coming season.

Regular meetings will be resumed the first week in October. The Rector announces a course of instruction on "The Bible as a Whole." A number of the men have expressed a strong desire to become better acquainted with that much-neglected Book.

Prominent men will be invited to address the Association from time to time. The social feature which played so delightful a part in last year's program will be no less prominent during the coming season. The Association will enter upon its second year with the strong impetus of a successful year behind it. Such a body of loyal men is sure to be heard from in the future.

The Rector's Letter

The Deanery, Quebec, Canada

My Dear Parishioners:

If I am to address an epistle to you, in the October issue of the Parish News, I must write from Canada; although, I hope to see you face to face before its publication.

I have been greatly refreshed by my sojourn of more than a month in quaint old Quebec, where it has been my privilege to have a share in the Cathedral services, and to enjoy, from time to time, the fine hospitality of the Quebec people.

Living among these loyal subjects of King George has enabled me to feel, much more than before, the intensity of the present world crisis. I became conscious of this, first, upon reading in the vestibules of Churches, the Honor Rolls, which record the names of parishioners who are at the front, either as soldiers, nurses, or chaplains.

The impression deepened as I attended the daily Intercession Services, or caught a glimpse of some wounded men returned from the front. At Valcartier Camp, I saw thousands of men in training, ready to replace the losses abroad, and to keep the Canadian contingent up to the hundred thousand mark.

But these observations might have left me with a vague and remote realization of it all, were it not for the tone of every-day conversation. Everything appears against the dark background of the war. One meets, frequently, persons whose sons or brothers are among the missing. The detachment one encounters in the States is entirely gone. Those who speak have sacrificed, and stand ready for greater and greater sacrifice. They seem to be purified by the fire of patriotism.

When the second Canadian contingent was being recruited, the three sons of a widowed mother all enlisted. The youngest son was in a distant city, and it was not until a week after he had enlisted, that he learned his brothers had joined the battalion in their home city. He at once telegraphed his mother to say that if she wished him to withdraw, he would do so; for he did not think it right that his mother should be left alone. The message reached that mother on Sunday morning, just as she was about to leave the house to go to Church. She sat down, and wrote this reply to her son, "By all means go! Your King and Country need you. I want you to go and help." Then the mother went to Church and thanked God that she had boys to give when their help was needed.

I should like to be the one to call that mother's attention to an article in to-day's paper, reporting an address that Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British army, made a few days ago—perhaps in the hearing of her sons. He said, "I wish to express appreciation for the splendid manner in which, early in the year, when a Canadian infantry division suffered great losses, you volunteered to leave your homes, and come out here. Your record will go down as one of the most splendid of British history."

The Canadian Church has been deeply stirred. This I know, both from the testimony of men from the West and from my own observation. It is clearly indicated in the charge of the Primate of All Canada, delivered at the opening of the General Synod, now in session in Toronto. I must pass on to you some of his words:

"God is not permitting us to pass through this awful crisis in our Empire and in our Dominion, without some grave purpose. The agonies of Europe, the tragedies of this war that are desolating so many of our hearts and homes, it seems to me, are either the death pangs of a decadent civilization, or the birth throes of a better order of things for the world. I believe they are the latter. God is testing us, in this terrible war, that he may purify us as gold tried in the fire. Already, in the year that is gone, we have learned much. We have experienced, as never before, the beat and the throb of a mighty common purpose. In the unity and strength of that common purpose, we have found ourselves lifted up to new heights of life. We have grown wiser and more serious. This is no ordinary meeting of our Synod. No meeting, just now, can be such. As the Bishop of London remarked the other day, 'The cry which was raised at the beginning of the war, to keep the nation from excitement, Business as usual, has proved a most mischievous narcotic. The real cry should have been Nothing as usual, for there has never been such a day of God for a thousand years.' . . . .

"Certainly never in the history of the Anglican Communion, and perhaps, never in the history of Christendom has such an opportunity been given to the Church, and such a challenge thrown down to it. People on every hand are turning round and seeking after God, Whom they had lost out of their lives for years. People on every hand, as someone has expressed it, have discovered their souls.

"And they realize that nothing which the whole world has to offer, can compensate them for the loss of those souls. People are more sensitive than they have been for years to spiritual impressions, and, in many instances in fact, are hungering for religion and after righteousness.

"Others are on the eve of coming back to God, and are just waiting for a moving word and a stimulating touch of sympathy.

"The question is, will the Church adequately avail itself of all this abounding chance of winning souls, and of bringing back the lapsed and the indifferent? Will the Church itself be re-baptized with the Holy Ghost and with power? Will there come out of all this a Church born again, a freshly-quickened Church?"

My dear parishioners, I am drawing out this letter to unwonted length; but not without a serious purpose in mind. We must share the Archbishop's spirit, and welcome the Advent Mission as our special opportunity. We must pray earnestly, that while multitudes in other lands are being regenerated by this fire baptism, we may not remain still in our sins. God forbid that while the world is filled with blood and flame and heroism, we should be living selfishly and stupidly in a fool's paradise. We must not be caught in the petty stillness of eddies now, but rather by the mighty current of spiritual life, which is sweeping on—God only knows whither. But we trust that beyond the rapids lie the tranquil seas of a new order.

"Now unto Him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us; unto Him, be the glory in the Church, and in Christ Jesus, throughout all ages, world without end. Amen."

Very faithfully yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Confirmation

The Bishop of Pennsylvania will administer the rite of Confirmation in Grace Church, Sunday evening, November 7th.

Any persons desiring Confirmation, who have not already been enrolled as members of the Class, should communicate with the Rector at the earliest possible time.

The prayers of the whole congregation are requested for the candidates.

The Dedication Festival

According to our custom, All Saints' Day and the octave following, will be observed as our Annual Dedication Festival.

The special observances will begin with the Holy Eucharist, on All Saints' Day, Monday, November 1st.

There will be a Parish Reception, Tuesday evening, and a Men's Dinner, Thursday evening.

The Missionary Service, Wednesday evening, will be addressed by Bishop Lloyd, President of the Board of Missions.

The Conference of Parish Workers will be held on Saturday evening, and the Diocesan will attend.

The climax of the Festival will be Sunday, November 7th, when the Bishop of Pennsylvania will make an all-day visitation. He will be the preacher and celebrant at the Annual Corporate Communion at eleven o'clock, and administer Confirmation at eight o'clock.

The children will have their party on Saturday, and their Festival Service, Sunday afternoon. Nor will the Bishop overlook them.

All parishioners are requested to reserve, as much as possible, the first week in November for these events.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

To the women of the Parish, October means the beginning of the winter activities in the Auxiliary and Guild.

Many have been looking forward to this time with eagerness and pleasure, and with the hope that this year, numbers of women who have heretofore neglected the opportunities to share in the work, may awaken to their responsibilities and join, heart and soul, in all that lies before us.

There are two important dates to be remembered during the month: October 6th, the time of the Executive Committee meeting, at 10 o'clock in the morning; and October 12th, the stated meeting of the Auxiliary, at 3 P. M.

Let us begin the year well by attending these meetings, to get in touch with the plans for the coming season; then add earnestness, enthusiasm, prayer, and a determination to do our part, and so help to make this the fullest, richest year in the history of the Association.

To anyone who is unable to attend the Wednesday meetings, yet feels that she would like to do her share, we will gladly send sewing to be done at home; and there are few who cannot help by contributing second-hand clothing and shoes, which are so badly needed—for the demand is always greater than the supply, and we hope to send away many more barrels this year than ever before.

The summer has not been an idle one, as those can testify who attended a very pleasant tea held at Mrs. Jenkins', on Friday, September 3rd. A box, valued at $93.50, was packed that day for the lepers in the hospital, at Kumamoto, South Japan. Last year, Miss Riddell, the head of the hospital, spoke at one of the meetings of the Auxiliary. Mrs. A. J. Dallas Dixon, who has charge of forwarding the boxes to Miss Riddell, wrote a very enthusiastic letter about the articles sent from Grace Church.

In August, Mrs. Clement D. Brown, of Oxford, Miss., paid a short visit to Mt. Airy, and was delighted with Grace Church and its surroundings. Mrs. Brown is the wife of the missionary to whom our domestic box was sent last year, and she spoke of their great pleasure in the box; saying they had never received a nicer one.

In this number of the PARISH NEWS will be found a list of the delegates of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, and the delegates to the Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown. All delegates are expected to be present when possible, and all the members of the Parish who feel an interest in missions are cordially invited. Too much cannot be said in favor of attending these meetings—to hear and learn something of the magnitude of the undertakings in the various missionary fields. The meetings are a liberal education, and cannot fail to arouse interest in the most apathetic listener. Our delegates will be glad to have accompany them any who feel a hesitation about going alone.

Junior Branch

After all the vacations are over, and thoughts turn to school, let each girl of Grace Church remember that the vacation for the Junior Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary is also at an end; and work for the year will begin on Monday, October 4th, at 3 o'clock. There is so much to be done that each one must make it a point to let nothing interfere with being present on the first and third Monday of every month. Several new plans are to be talked over, as this must be the greatest year of service for the Master that the Juniors have ever had.

With the issue of the October PARISH NEWS, we shall have entered the last year of the present Triennium, the beginning of which was marked by the meeting of the General Convention of 1913, and the Triennial Service of the Woman's Auxiliary, with the presentation of its United Offering. There has never been as wonderful a service of the Auxiliary as that held on October 9, 1913, at the Cathedral of S. John the Divine, in New York. The great Cathedral was crowded to overflowing, and the inspiration of the service will ever remain with those who were privileged to share in it. The amount of the offering presented was $306,000. Over and over again one heard the remark, "What a splendid offering!" But was it really large when we consider that it covered a period of three years, and that it was supposed to represent the Thank Offering of the women of the whole Church? And how it suffers in comparison with the six weeks' Lenten Offering of the children of the Church!

As we look forward to another triennial service, at Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, in October, 1916, what a vision is ours of the possibility of an offering which shall adequately express our thankfulness, and, at the same time, provide a very much larger asset for the Board of Missions. The United Offering is a Thank Offering. Therefore, let us count our mercies, and be thankful. Has there ever been greater cause for this? As women of America, in these troublous times; as women of the Church, especially of Grace Church Parish, and as individual Christian women, can we ever really express our gratitude? At least, we can try; and, if it means much sacrifice, that will but make the gift more precious. Shall we offer of that which costs us nothing?

The Rector has appointed Mrs. Robert J. Thompson, 124 W. Mt. Pleasant Avenue, as Assistant Treasurer of the United Offering for Grace Church. Mrs. Thompson is taking up her duties with joy and enthusiasm. We assure her of our hearty good wishes and of our loyal support in the work which she has undertaken. We believe that this appointment marks a new era for the United Offering in our Parish.

We have now a clearer vision of every woman a contributor, the realization of the "ideal;" but to actually attain this, we must have the co-operation of all. Let us try to accomplish it before the triennial service of 1916.

M. C. S. N.

Castine, Me., September 18, 1915.

Missionary Education

In the spring of this year, the Bishop of Pennsylvania appointed an Extension Committee for Missionary Educational Work.

The Committee is composed of men and women, seniors and juniors, about twelve in number; all mission-study leaders, and all having taken some diocesan work. This Committee will form the first mission-study class for the year, and will meet in October twice a week for three weeks. Immediately after these meetings, will follow the regular normal classes beginning in November, and held at the Church House, under the direction of Mrs. Pilsbry, Diocesan Educational Secretary.

The subject will be "The Church's Mission to the Nation," and the text-book, "The Conquest of the Continent," by Dean Burleson.

The Missionary Educational Secretary, of Grace Parish, Mt. Airy, has had the honor to be appointed a member of the Committee.

The Surgical Dressing's Committee, in New York, acknowledge most gratefully the "well-made" articles sent by the ladies of Grace Church, Mt. Airy. The shipment consisted of:

Fracture Pads	6
Absorbent Pads	36
Flannel Binders	48
Slings	6
Drains	66
Gauze Packings	36
T. Binders	12
Rolled Bandages	48
Flat Dressings	156
Wipes (14 packages of 6 dozen each)	14

The Parish List

We publish, in this issue of the PARISH NEWS, the Communicant List of Grace Church, and also a list of Confirmed Persons residing in the Parish, or attending this Church. Those in the second list may be Communicants of the Church, but not definitely affiliated with this Parish.

These lists are tentative. There may be several inaccuracies. Our object, in printing them, is to give full opportunity for the correction of all errors and omissions. We earnestly request the co-operation of all in bringing the Parish Roll to perfection.

The Kindergarten

The coaches will call for any children throughout the Parish, for the Kindergarten Class each Sunday morning, if notice is sent to Mrs. R. N. Hall, 31 Gowen Avenue, or to any of the members of the Kindergarten Canvass Committee: Mrs. A. Harris Insinger, Mrs. S. Mendelson Meehan, Mrs. F. T. McGuire, Mrs. A. C. Brand, Miss G. L. Bender, Mrs. A. F. Horton, Mrs. H. M. Brown, Mrs. J. C. Robb, Mrs. C. B. Hansell, Mrs. H. G. Goodall, or Mrs. C. S. Pease.

Arrangements have been made for another canvass of the Parish, by the Committee to secure new members for the Class. The Committee will be grateful for any assistance in this work.

Addresses at Evensong

Beginning October 10th, the Rector will give a series of short addresses at Evensong, Sunday afternoons, on "The Inner History of the Church." These glimpses of the Church's life, at interesting periods, will be related to the course, being studied by several classes in the Church School, entitled "God Speaking Through the Church."

The subjects during October will be as follows:

Oct. 10.—The First Christian Church.

Oct. 17.—The First Council.

Oct. 24.—The Nicene Council.

Oct. 31.—The Early Saints.

The Rag Rug Committee

The Rag Rug Committee will be very glad of more material to carry on their work. Please bear this in mind, and send any pieces you may have of colored cotton or light-weight woolen goods to the Parish House. Orders for rugs of any size desired will very gladly be filled.

A Comparison

It is interesting sometimes to look back over the old files of the PARISH NEWS, and measure present attainments by past ideals. For instance, in October, 1913, there appeared an article about missionary giving which rejoiced over the fact that Grace Church had met her apportionment.

The comment which followed, we quote: "Of the $1,648.31 from Grace Church, $605.00 was contributed by the Woman's Auxiliary, $442.93 by the Sunday School, and $600.38 by the rest of us Of course, we are delighted to have Grace Church on the Honor Roll.

"But, men, aren't the women of this Parish outdoing us? It looks as though the time was ripe for our Local Missionary Committee of Men, and for a vigorous every-member canvass."

Two years has not yet expired since those words were written, but what a change! The Laymen's Committee has begun its work. The every-member canvass has again proved its value. No longer do the women bear the heavy end of the apportionment. Compare with the above figures the following, reported a few days ago from the Church Missions' House:

Of the $2,971.57 from Grace Church, $52.00 was contributed by the Woman's Auxiliary, $400.86 by the Church School, and $2,518.71 by the Parish. Of course, this includes $1,177.10 toward the Emergency Fund.

Let no one get the impression that the Woman's Auxiliary is doing less than before. A glance at their annual statement, in the June issue of the PARISH NEWS, showing the expenditure of $2,257.17 (including boxes) will correct any such idea. They have worked with a new sense of freedom, and turned their attention to many special appeals.

The significant fact is, that the responsibility for the raising of the apportionment has been shifted from the women to the men. That is where it belongs.

The Rector's Letter

My Dear Parishioners:

I commend to your thought and prayer two coming events of unusual moment in our parish life, the Dedication Festival, November 1st to 7th, and the Advent Preaching Mission, December 5th to 12th.

The first should prepare for the second. The first is intensive—the second extensive. The first should strengthen the faithful, the second should convert the faithless. The first is our mobilization—the second our campaign. From first to last let us seek earnestly for the guidance and power of the Holy Spirit.

As another Dedication Festival draws near, may I extend to you all my loving greetings and say even as S. Paul said to the Christians of Thessalonica, "We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers; remembering without ceasing your work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, in the sight of God and our Father; knowing, brethren beloved, your election of God."

Faithfully yours,

Thomas S. Cline.

Parish Festival

The custom of observing an annual parish festival, lasting a whole week, either as a Patronal or Dedication Festival, seems to be spreading in this Diocese. When we initiated the custom in Grace Church two years ago, we were not without precedent, following the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont.

This year, we learn of three neighboring parishes which have adopted a similar plan: All Saints, Norristown; S. Luke's and S. Michael's, Germantown. There may be others which have not come to our attention.

This seems to indicate a new emphasis upon the right sort of parochialism. Such festivals strengthen the bonds of unity in the parish and focus attention upon home duties.

Perhaps there is a tendency among the clergy and laity to run about too much. What we need, after all, is the quiet parochial life with its mutual love and co-operation. Our festival, coming as it does in the Fall of the year, serves as a rallying point for all our parish forces and gives a strong impetus to our season's work.

The following Committee of the Vestry is in charge of arrangements:

Endowment Fund

Some time ago, an observant clergyman said to the writer: "Your parish should do well for the next forty or fifty years," intimating that after that time, this parish would repeat the history of so many suburban parishes and become engulfed in the slowly spreading flood of dense urban population.

This seems incredible to us; but no one, who has made a study of the history of our parishes during the great growth of our city population, in such centers as New York or Chicago or Philadelphia since 1850, can fail to realize that this prophecy may be fully borne out by facts. As the parish boundaries become more densely inhabited, its old supporters, or their children, are tempted to move to more open country, and a new and perhaps alien population takes their place.

Two courses are then left to the parish organization. It may sell its plant and try to follow its supporters; or it may remain and try to do its duty by the newcomers. The latter, we are glad to say, has been the course most generally adopted by parishes of our Communion. In this they are true to the ideal of a National Church, which will not, except of necessity, abandon any part of its nation-wide territory nor shirk any part of its nation-wide duty.

But how is it to forestall this necessity? We have set our beacon on a hill. How can we make sure that its light shall continue to shine out clear and inspiring upon a naughty world? Of course, no Church can flourish except as it continues to be an uplifting influence in its community, but means must be forthcoming. The laborers are worthy of their hire; and the hire must be at hand. Here is the function of an Endowment Fund. It enables us, out of our abundance, to provide for the lean years to come; to show, by our works, our conviction that our Church has a mission to all sorts and conditions of men and that it should stand in its chosen place to live out that mission; not merely to drag out a weak and struggling existence, but vigorously and aggressively, to bring the life from above to all within the reach of its influence.

Such an Endowment Fund has been started for Grace Church. The plan adopted has been most successfully worked out elsewhere. The principal of the fund is put in trust and cannot be touched. To this is to be added, from time to time, the income and any gifts and bequests for the purpose, until the principal aggregates $10,000. Then the income from that sum becomes available for parish purposes, and the accumulation of another fund of $10,000 is begun. The Trustee is The Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities.

Any bequest made by Will for this purpose should be in substantially the following language:—

> "I give, devise and bequeath to the Trustee of the Endowment Fund of Grace Church, Mount Airy, to be held upon the conditions and for the purposes of said Trust, the sum of .....Dollars."

By a resolution of the Vestry, the Sunday which falls within our annual Parish Festival, is to be made the day when a special offering is taken for that purpose. Accordingly, the offering on Sunday, November 7th, will be for our Parish Endowment Fund and it is hoped that it will be a liberal one.

Tenth Anniversary

A happy occasion took place in the parish house recently. The women of the parish surprised the Rector and Mrs. Cline with a "Kitchen Shower" in honor of the tenth anniversary of their marriage.

Their entrance was greeted by a wedding march and some clever and original poems. They were then introduced to a magic well, from which they extracted a wonderful number and variety of kitchen utensils. Apparently the tenth anniversary is no longer regarded as a "tin wedding," for aluminum was the predominating ware.

The surprise and pleasure of Mr. and Mrs. Cline could not be concealed. Many were the pleasant and humorous speeches. Refreshments were served and all seemed to feel that it was an unusually delightful affair.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Any one, dropping into the Guild room of a Wednesday morning, will find a busy, interested group of women, working away at whatever is at hand, each bent upon getting something done; for it is in full swing—the box work of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Mr. Darling is one of two missionaries in the South Platte district of a diocese that covers nearly one hundred miles square of territory, and contains several missions, varying in their number of communicants from twelve to as many as seventy-five. This year he has felt encouraged by an increased interest and attendance and by larger confirmation classes.

THE BISHOP OF PENNSYLVANIA

The one now being prepared is to go to De Witt, Nebraska, to the Rev. J. E. Darling, his wife and three children, and it is a pleasure to see the attractive new articles being finished for it. Some nice contributions have been made, but a new suit, gown and surplice for Mr. Darling is still needed.

The Bishop had asked that a box be sent to this missionary, for the stipend is lower than usual this year; so low indeed, that the purchase of clothing cannot even be thought of.

The domestic box is not all, however, it is only one part of the work to be done, for we must not forget the colored, the Indians, those close around us and those in other lands, so all volunteers will be cordially welcomed and will find plenty to do.

Do not forget that the demand upon us for second-hand clothing is practically unlimited. You have something that you can spare. Look it up.

The Advent Preaching Mission

We believe the Holy Spirit that presided in the Council of the blessed Apostles in the holy city long ago, still guides in the assemblies of the Church. We have every reason to believe that it was in accordance with the divine leading that the General Convention passed in October, 1913, the following resolution, which is the basis of the Nation-wide Preaching Mission.

> "Whereas our age calls in no uncertain way for a revival of the prophetic Ministry and re-emphasis upon certain and unchanging words of eternal truth that pertains to salvation and
> "Whereas, a new accent needs to be placed upon the essential solidarity, as well as the broad Catholicity of a Church, that witnesses to and seeks to promote Faith and Order:
> "RESOLVED, the House of Bishops concurring, that this Church in General Convention assembled, registers its desire and will to undertake a preaching Mission of Nation-wide proportions, that in its scope, shall be inclusive of the Church at large, and the sole purpose and aim of which shall be the salvation of men through Him, whose name is above every name."

The Diocese

In accordance with this resolution, the Bishop of the Diocese appointed the following committee of which the Rev. Dr. Tomkins is the Chairman. Rev. Messrs. Bartlett, Cole, Halsey, Hutchinson, McClure, Medary, G. L. Richardson, Pember, Sanford, Taitt, Tomkins, C. E. Townsend, J. W. Walker, Walenta and H. B. Wright.

This Committee was organized on the 26th of June, 1915, and the Bishop appointed sub-committees:— On Preachers; Rev. Dr. Tomkins, Chairman. On Ways and Means; Rev. H. M. Medary. On Devotional Preparation, Rev. G. L. Richardson, Chairman. On Publicity, Rev. J. T. Cole, Chairman.

The first work of the Committee was the adoption of prayers for the Mission and the fixing of a date, the first two weeks in Advent. A letter was also addressed to all the Clergy of the Diocese, informing them with respect to the Mission, and asking their co-operation.

The Committee met again on September 27th, when the names of those consenting to preach during the Mission were listed. At present, the number is 44, including all the members of the Committee, and in addition from this Diocese, the Bishop and the Rev. Messrs. Clay, Caley, Moorehouse, Cline, Gilbert, Green, Currier, Chapman, Van Meter, Steinmetz, Osgood, Booth and Logan.

The preachers from without the Diocese are the Rev. Messrs. Purves of Ohio, Bryan of Easton, Pa., Pomeroy of New Jersey, Bull of Massachusetts, Silver of New York, Baer of Newark, N. J., Freeman and Johnson of Minnesota, Reiland of New York, Godolphin of Chicago, Wood of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, Bishop McCormick of Michigan and the Rev. Wm. Wilkinson, New York City.

The Committee on Devotional Preparations reported the preparation of a leaflet and asked for the sympathy and co-operation of Church Societies. At their suggestion, the Bishop agreed to hold a Retreat for the Mission Preachers and other Clergy. The time fixed for this is from Thanksgiving night to the next Saturday morning inclusive, and it will be held at St. Martin's-in-the-Field. Provision will be made to entertain the Clergy and others connected with the Mission, at the Chestnut Hill Academy.

The Committee on Ways and Means arranged all the Churches of the Diocese in various groups, leaving to each group and individual Clergy to determine the Preachers and the days and hours of the Preaching Mission within the appointed limits.

Our Group

The Chestnut Hill—Mount Airy group includes S. Paul's, S. Martin's-in-the-Field and Grace Church.

The Rectors of these parishes met at once to consider the best plan of co-operation. It was decided to hold the Mission eight days in each parish as follows:

Nov. 21st. to 28th, S. Paul's.
Nov. 28th to Dec. 5th, S. Martin's.
Dec. 5th to 12th, Grace Church.

This will allow for co-operation between the three neighboring parishes.

It is hoped that many will attend the services in the co-operating parishes as well as in their own. It will give opportunity for the clergy to work together. A common body of literature will serve for the three Missions.

The clergy of our group have sent to the Central Committee a choice of Mission preachers and await their reply. Meanwhile, the urgent thing to consider, is the preparation of the parish for the Mission.

The first and obvious duty of all—individually and collectively, is earnest prayer.

The following recommendations should meet with a hearty response:

1. Let each parishioner pray daily for the mission.
2. Let every family remember it in family worship.
3. Let every organization of the Parish devote a part of every meeting to prayer for the Mission.

There will be special services of prayer and preparation for the Mission as follows:

1. After Evening Prayer, Sunday afternoons, beginning November 14th.
2. Tuesday Evenings, from 8 to 8.30 beginning November 9th.
3. Friday afternoons, from 5 to 5.30.

There will also be special prayers used at the regular services.

A group of parish committees, to take charge of the various arrangements in preparation for the Mission, will soon be appointed by the Rector.

A card and a folder, setting forth appropriate prayers for the Mission, have been published, and can be obtained upon request at the Church.

Prayer for the Mission

O LORD JESUS CHRIST, the great Shepherd of the sheep, Who seekest those that are gone astray, bindest up those that are broken, and healest those that are sick; Bless, we beseech Thee, the effort to be made in this Diocese to convert souls unto Thee; open the deaf ears of the wanderers, that they may hear the words which belong unto their salvation; confirm the weak, give more grace to the faithful; and grant that those whom Thou dost raise to newness of life, may persevere unto the end: of Thy mercy, who livest and reignest with the Father and the Holy Spirit, one God, world without end. Amen.

For the Preachers and Other Workers in the Mission

ALMIGHTY AND EVERLASTING GOD, Who dost govern all things in heaven and earth, we commend to Thy fatherly care all whom Thou shalt call to take part in the work of the Preaching Mission in this Diocese. Watch over them, we beseech Thee, for good; defend them from all dangers, both of body and soul; grant unto them the spirit of power, of love and of a sound mind, that by their labors Thy name may be glorified and Thy kingdom enlarged: through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For the Spirit of Unity

O LORD JESUS CHRIST, Who saidst unto Thine Apostles, Peace, I leave with you, My peace, I give unto you: Regard not our sins, but the faith of Thy Church, and grant us that peace and unity which is agreeable to Thy will; Who livest and reignest God forever and ever. Amen.

Junior Branch

The Juniors have held two well attended meetings and the work for Deaconess Mitchell in Virginia is well under way. On Monday, November 1st, a stated meeting will be held in the Parish House at three o'clock, to be followed by a supper and a "Stunt Party" in the evening. Every Junior should join in helping to make the first event of Festival Week a success.

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Church School

Rally Day, September 26th, brought out the Church School in force. Ninety-four per cent. of the scholars enrolled last year reported for work. This remarkable showing speaks for itself.

October 3d, our first session for regular work, brought promotions all along the line. Two classes of boys and one of girls were advanced from the Primary to the Junior Department. Their places were filled in the Primary room by the promotion of 18 children from the kindergarten. On October 25, new scholars entered the kindergarten. These, with the new members admitted to the Primary and Junior classes, make 32 new registrations. As no classes were graduated last year, we find our quarters in the Parish House uncomfortably crowded. The Primary department work in particular is sadly hampered by lack of space and equipment.

The Junior classes are entering upon new courses of study which promise great interest and profit. These courses cover the five years of the department and are being used in the school experimentally under the direction of the General Board of Religious Education. The course covers the whole development of the Holy Catholic Church—from its beginnings in the wanderings of Abraham down to the present time. Its growth is followed through the Old Testament and Gospel records during the first, second and third year's study. A year later, Church history brings us from the day of Pentecost down to here and now, in Grace Church Parish.

The fifth year of the course gives a view of the present day work of our branch of the Church throughout the world.

The teachers using these courses expect great help from the conferences of Philadelphia teachers engaged in this experimental work, which will be held in this city during the Winter.

Social Service

We are hearing much this year on the subject of "Rights," and there is still more which could be said.

To those who hold faith in the inalienable right of the child to play, in the various forms and possibilities of play, has come the gratifying knowledge that such right was granted to the little men and women near Grace Church this past summer. As heretofore announced, our Social Service Committee took the initiative in the matter, after the suggestion was made, in the earliest weeks of its existence, to include playgrounds in the program of work for this year. As a result, the Board of Education placed the usual equipment in the school yard of the Curtin School Building, at Phil Ellena and Musgrave Streets. It was in operation during the months of July and August.

One was rewarded in making a visit to the Playground during the second week of August, by finding the place an undoubted success. From three directions, children were coming on the run; alone and in groups of two or three. Also the ubiquitous "Little Mother" was to be seen pushing a wee one along to enjoy the shade of the big trees in the school yard.

On that particular day, the Directress, Miss Sullivan, said the attendance was not large, though the grounds apparently were covered with kiddies of all ages and sizes. A small self-appointed assistant cheerfully volunteered to make a count, and, after encircling the crowd, returned to say there were ninety-nine that afternoon—a number below the average.

In one corner, a vociferous crowd of boys was playing base-ball, under a coach from the Board of Education. Swings were going at full capacity; the always-popular sand-box could have displayed a "standing-room-only" sign; and the May-pole, the appliance most in demand, afforded rigorous exercise to a number of little girls waiting in line for their turns to take the short run and high jump over a rope that one child held for that purpose.

Miss Sullivan declared, with emphasis, that the children, as a class, were superior to those generally found in school playgrounds. They were invariably obedient, and seemed to respect the apparatus, in that no damage was done to the objects placed there for their use. Such is not always the case.

Great enthusiasm was shown over the "industrial hour," which ends both morning and afternoon sessions. Children begin their inquiries as to the time, long before they are summoned to make baskets, weave paper or cord mats, and the other occupations given them at this time. A display of the work caused an interested crowd of youngsters to assemble—proud in their boasts of what they could do. The limited supply of raffia, for basket work, caused a cessation of that interesting task two weeks before the playground closed for the season. The importation of this material has been stopped by the war. It was particularly deplorable in this instance, that the Board of Education could no longer obtain it, as the children's enjoyment of the work was very apparent.

The need for this summer Playground has been shown by its popularity, now that it is an established fact. Just what side-issues it will develop next year, or later on, remains to be seen. That there are possibilities in the way of independent personal effort, as well as co-operation with the Boards at City Hall, is certain. A close observation of the children visiting the Playground, would enable us to meet the demands of this particular neighborhood. The beneficial results which they receive there, will, no doubt, aid them a year or two hence; and, at least, give them some idea of the useful knowledge they are obtaining from this source. We can be assured that there are many, many children who had a good time this summer, and many mothers who enjoyed an hour or two of quiet rest at home in consequence.

An improvement, in the way of cement replacing the brick paving of the yard, is promised for next year. The lack of see-saws and sliding-boards was keenly felt, and they still remain objects much to be desired by both the instructors and the always-enthusiastic kiddies.

Here is what one of the early settlers in one of the school gardens has to say:

E. A. P.

The School Garden

What is now the school garden was once a dump on Nippon street. When I first came to this garden it was nothing but a big pice of land filled with paper and other things that go with things that go into a dump. I always helped to tend to it. My number of my Plot is 16 I howed and raked it all the time. We had to take all the stones out of it. We cultivated it and we have in our garden we have radishes, cold Robia, Tomatoes, peppers, Zenia. We had our pictures takin when we were howing.

Your loving friend,

DOROTHY JONES.

Church School Notes

On the 20th Sunday after Trinity, out of 13 classes in the Senior and Junior Departments, five of the boys and three of the girls had perfect attendance. This year the upper school is provided, with a chart, which will show, week to week by means of curved lines, variations in attendance, punctuality and offerings.

The scholars are making a fine record for punctuality. Recently, in two departments, numbering 121, only four were late—and the school makes a practice of opening on time.

The offer made last year to give a Bible to every scholar bringing in a new pupil is renewed for this year. Some have already earned this reward this term. The books are presented on festival occasions.

It is the wish of the school that the children should possess their own Prayer Books and Hymnals, and take them regularly to school and Church. Parents would do well to remember this when deciding on anniversary gifts.

A new series of duplex envelopes will be distributed to the scholars in the Senior and Junior Departments for use commencing October 31st. Last year, by this means, the children (including the Primary and Kindergarten Departments) gave for missions $467.89, and for the expenses of the church $158.10. A total of $625.99. This is a generous offering in itself, but the great benefit lies in teaching the child the habit of regularity in giving.

Mr. Albert C. Brand, formerly secretary of the school, is now on the teaching staff with seventh grade boys. Mr. Francis Murphy, whose return to Mount Airy we welcome, has accepted the post of secretary so ably filled by his predecessor.

Children's Day in the Dedication Festival week, will be celebrated Saturday, November 6th. A play for the entertainment of the children and parents is being prepared under the direction of Miss Haldeman. Should the day be clear, a large photograph of the school will be taken on the lawn. It is hoped to arrange for a tree-planting, thus permanently marking the day.

The attendance of children at the Church services is not noticably large. No doubt there is the feeling that the session of the school is long enough for one morning. However, the Rector has made it known that young scholars, having attended the school period, may withdraw just before the sermon, which would not make the whole time very great. As the devotional services in the school are very short, that part of the Church service is complementary and attendance on the part of the children should be encouraged. It is expected the parents will co-operate in bringing this about.

A Corporate Communion of teachers and officers was celebrated on Rally Day at 7.30 A. M. It was a most fitting act for the commencement of our Fall term.

Memorials

Let us not forget our custom of making gifts to the Church at Festival time.

Does not a glance over the long lists of names published in the October Parish News of those directly or indirectly connected with Grace Church offer a suggestion? Are there not many who might wish to place, in their parish church, some memorial of their beloved dead, or, by joining together, arrange to place in the church something to make the House of God more beautiful?

Anyone, so inclined, may communicate with the Rector, or write George J. Lincoln, Chairman of the Committee of Presentation, 115 East Mt. Pleasant Ave., Mt. Airy, Philadelphia.

Note of Thanks

Mrs. Cline and myself wish to express our hearty appreciation of the kindly thought which prompted the many useful gifts from the ladies of the Parish in honor of the tenth anniversary of our marriage. May our friendship, like the gifts, be of the "ever-wear" quality.

We regret to learn that the Bishop Suffragan was unable, during his Summer's rest, to regain his strength. His physician has advised him not to return to work, till after a further period of rest. This will mean his absence from the Diocese for the next two months. During the interval, Bishop Van Buren, late of Porto Rico, will assist the Bishop in the work of the Diocese.

The Rag Rug Committee need more material to carry on their work. Bear this in mind, please, and send any pieces you may have of colored cotton or light-weight woolen goods to the Parish House. Orders for rugs, of any size desired, will be filled at exceptionally low prices.

The Advent Preaching Mission

MOTTO: "Christ the Light of the World."

Under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, the American Church, in General Convention assembled, has issued a clarion call for a Nation-wide Preaching Mission during the first two weeks of Advent.

The Diocese of Pennsylvania has responded with enthusiasm and organized all Parishes into groups. Grace Church is grouped with S. Martin's and S. Paul's, Chestnut Hill. The distances are so great, however, that separate Missions will be conducted in each of these Parishes.

The following is the program of the Mission in Grace Church:

PROGRAM

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 4, 8 P. M.—Opening Service.
Preparation for the Holy Communion.

SUNDAY, DECEMBER 5

7.30 A. M.—Holy Communion.

Letters from the Missioner and the Rector

To the Communicants of Grace Church:

At the invitation of your Rector I am to come to your Church to hold the Mission Services which your Diocese is planning to hold in most of its Parishes in Advent. Our Mission at Grace Church begins Saturday evening, December 4th, and ends Saturday morning, December 11th.

A Mission is a serious effort on the part of the Church to bring to God those who are living without Him in the world; to bring to repentance those who are living in sin; to bring back to the Sacraments those who have fallen away; to bring all to a deeper, truer, fuller relationship to Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. We have need of it. Will you come?

It is a great effort, demanding the help of all; it is a spiritual effort, demanding the prayers of all. Will you not take part in it?

I ask you to pray in your private prayers for God's blessing on the Mission to yourself and your families—your friends and neighbors.

Pray earnestly, and come regularly when the Mission begins. Will you not make it a real engagement, this week from December 4th to December 11th—a time when you will gladly come into the House of the Lord day after day?

And try to bring others. Make the Mission known. Try to bring some one of your friends, whose salvation may be your joy, as the fruit of your prayers, your personal love and care. And pray that I may have God's blessing also.

Yours faithfully in our Lord,

H. P. Bull, S. S. J. E.

My Dear Parishioners:

I address you as members of the Body of Christ and, therefore, as Soldiers of the Cross. Make ready for battle. What is the Church? "The Church is the body of soldiers, enlisted, equipped, and provisioned by Christ for service under Him, at home and abroad in His campaign against evil, who will share His victory if they are faithful." This message of our Bishop, spoken at the great service of our Parish Festival when we dedicated ourselves anew to God in our Corporate Communion, is still ringing in our ears.

We have been divinely equipped and provisioned for the campaign which is before us—the Advent Mission. We have our orders from above; we must carry them out with unhesitating obedience and military precision. From now on the Mission is paramount. All our energies must bend to this one end. There is work for every parish organization to do, and in this work every communicant has a part to play. In addition to the meetings of the various organizations there will be a general rally of communicants every Friday night, to which you are invited.

If ever we had need of hearty co-operation, now is the time. Our Lord is leading us on to greater conquests. If we are faithful we shall share His victory.

Fiathfully yours,

Thomas S. Cline.

The Dedication Festival

A complete record of all that was said and done during the Dedication Festival would fill a fair sized volume. If it were possible to preserve such a record it would be highly prized by us all for it was indeed a notable week. But all we can attempt in this meagre sheet is a brief summary.

The Festival began with the early Eucharist on All Saints' Day and ended with the Confirmation Service the following Sunday evening. At the late celebration on All Saints' Day, the members of the parish who have departed this life during the year, were commemorated by name.

The one purely social event of the week was the reception Tuesday evening which afforded a most delightful opportunity for all to become more acquainted.

The Missionary Service, Wednesday evening, with the Rt. Rev. President of the Board of Missions as preacher enlarged our horizon and showed us the true relation between our parochial life and the world-wide mission of the Church. It was pleasant to have two new Germantown Rectors to assist in the service.

There is something strikingly cumulative about these annual festivals. They gather volume and strength by repetition. This was noticeable in the Men's Dinner, Thursday evening, which broke all records. Dr. John F. McCloskey told some thrilling things about the work of the American Ambulance in France. Mr. Walter S. Cowing, Boy Scout Commissioner of Philadelphia, told many stories of outdoor life no less thrilling. Mr. Clinton Rogers Woodruff speaking on "Loyalty" stirred every man present with his forceful eloquence.

Friday evening brought a rare spiritual treat. The Rev. Fr. Bull, S.S.J.E., of Boston, conducted an informal service of preparation for the Holy Communion. As Fr. Bull is coming soon to preach a Mission in Grace Church, this served as a preliminary visit and gave an opportunity for a meeting of Communicants to plan the work of preparation.

Saturday afternoon the scholars of the Church School planted an historic elm in the churchyard. It is a shoot of an ancient elm which stands near the Monument of the Three Martyrs in Oxford, England. Later they enjoyed two short plays by local talent. They were entitled "Everyday Fairies" and "The Death of Bad Grammar."

One of the most impressive features of the week was the Conference of Parish Workers Saturday evening. The Bishop was present and appreciated such an opportunity to see spread out as in panorama all the present activities of the parish. He won all hearts when he suggested that as he was not at present connected with any parish he was tempted to become a communicant of Grace Church.

Sunday proved a great climax to a great week. At the late service the Bishop was celebrant, assisted by Dr. Breed and the Rector. It was the Annual Corporate Communion of the Parish. The offering, which was devoted to the Parish Endowment Fund amounted to $180.00. The Bishop preached a memorable sermon.

The speaker at the Church School Service in the afternoon was the Bishop of Idaho. He expressed the wish that he too might have an historic elm in his Cathedral close. The Superintendent of Grace Church School promptly arranged that his wish should be granted.

The Confirmation Service in the evening was a beautiful and impressive ending for a week of rich and varied blessings. Much credit is due to all who worked so faithfully to make the Dedication Festival a success. It is good to belong to such a parish and we owe an infinite debt of gratitude to God from whom all blessings flow.

During the Dedication Festival, two gifts to the Parish were announced—a set of silver alms basins and a pair of brass vases for the altar.

Seabury Commemoration

On Sunday, November 14th, the Rector called attention to the fact that it was the Anniversary of the Consecration of Bishop Seabury as the first Bishop of the Episcopal Church in America. In an historical sermon he recounted the romantic story of Dr. Seabury's quest and pointed out the debt we owe to those loyal men of Connecticut who had the faith and courage to provide for the completeness and continuance of the Church under the altered form of civil government.

He spoke gratefully also of the good turn the Scottish Church did us, quoting the words with which Bishop Seabury was welcomed home, "Wherever the American Episcopal Church shall be mentioned in the world may this good deed which the Scottish Church has done for us be spoken of for a memorial of her."

Bishop Seabury played a major part in those critical days. To his influence we owe some of the best features of our Book of Common Prayer. He worked to keep the Apostles' Creed in tact and retain the Nicene Creed in the Prayer Book.

It was through his influence that the House of Bishops was organized as a separate house. He was a great churchman. He believed with Coleridge that "A Christianity without a Church exercising spiritual authority is vanity and dissolution." To him the Church was not "An aggregation of persons agreeing in certain doctrines and practices," but it was "The Body of Christ, perpetuated in accordance with the laws of its organism."

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Cook tells us that civilization never stands still; it moves either forward or backward, and it would seem that the same might be said of the Woman's Auxiliary of Grace Church; but fortunately, although sometimes slow, the movement so far has been steadily forward.

The report read at the Conference of Parish Workers showed an increase and a branching out in all lines of woman's work in the past year and this gives inspiration for greater effort and enthusiasm in carrying out the plans for 1915-16.

Already one barrel of the clothing for the Rev. J. E. Darling and his family has been sent, and Mrs. Darling has written telling of their pleasure in receiving it.

On Wednesday, December 1st, at the all-day meeting of the Auxiliary, the remaining articles will be packed. These will be on view in the Guild room that morning, and everybody is invited to come and inspect them.

Two very interesting speakers have been present this month: Miss Whittaker, from Mexico and Mrs. Thomas, of S. Luke's, Germantown, who is in charge of the Bishop's Bricks Fund. The Bishop's Bricks Fund was started in response to a desire on the part of Bishop Rhinelander for co-operative unity in the diocese. The money is given by parishes throughout the whole diocese and is used to build new churches in districts where they are most needed. Mrs. Thomas was the speaker at the first all-day meeting of the Auxiliary, and remained for the informal luncheon which was served by the Entertainment Committee. She spoke of her enjoyment of the day, and of the large and interesting meeting. There were forty members present.

Miss Whittaker is in charge of the House of the Holy Name, Mexico City, where she carries on neighborhood work, teaching pure religion and welcoming everybody.

The revolution and the resultant starving condition of the people have given the Church a wonderful opportunity for it has opened new lines of work in many directions. Archdeacon Mellin and Miss Whittaker are busy day and night ministering to the sick and dying. The Archdeacon is the only Episcopal clergyman in Mexico City and the outlying districts. Cannot a priest be found to share the work with him, and money be sent to help carry it on?

We at home, many of us, give for missions only the few pennies that can easily be spared, and yet find it a burden. Bishop Lloyd told us that it was an insult to say, "We've got to give money," when we should be thanking God for the opportunity to help in the spread of His Kingdom.

Mrs. Cowell has been visiting in Mount Airy and attended the parish reception and one of the Wednesday meetings of the Auxiliary. Mrs. Cowell was a former member of Grace Church and very active in the work. She is always welcome.

Junior Branch

The accepted theory is that any function that is postponed loses a great deal of the original interest; but such is not always the case, for the postponed meeting of the "Juniors" was held on Monday, November 15th, with plenty of enthusiasm and several new members present who received a hearty welcome. Sewing was in order until four o'clock when the usual service was held, followed by a business meeting at which the question of providing the Christmas baskets for the needy was discussed. It was a great pleasure to have an old member, Miss Beatrice Nuneviller, with us and we were thrilled with the account of her work among the poor little children in the Episcopal Hospital who are suffering with tuberculosis, and the prospects of her duties as a nurse in Alaska. We wish her every success in her work.

A box of Christmas toys for the Indians at Rosebud, North Dakota, valued at $10.00 was packed and shipped.

At six o'clock a party of thirty-eight sat down to a delicious supper served by the committee in charge; the only regrets were that the Rector was not present, being unavoidably detained, and that many of the older girls were absent. Soon after supper different girls did stunts which, judging from the peals of laughter, were hugely enjoyed by all. Surely some of the costumes and makeups were fearfully and wonderfully made. Our frolics are over now until Spring. In the meantime we have plenty of work planned to accomplish and we need the help of every girl in the parish. Won't every girl remember that there is a meeting every first and third Monday in every month from three to six o'clock? Come to the Parish House and you will see a busy, happy party, and also will keep in touch with everything we are doing.

Now, there are three things to remember: First, we want picture post cards, Christmas cards, valentines, etc., to send to the children in the Episcopal Hospital, for they love to look at them. Second, bring any second-hand clothing: shoes, hats, sweaters, coats, dresses, hair ribbons, etc., to the next meeting on December 6th, as we are sending a box to the poor people in Kensington. Third, a cake and candy sale will be held in the Parish House at four o'clock on Wednesday, December 1st, the proceeds to be used in buying provisions for the Christmas baskets. Please donate something to sell, come yourself, and bring your friends.

The Bishop's Day

The month of October was marked by three of "The Bishop's Days," which are becoming a distinctive feature of the interparochial life of the diocese.

In order of date, the first "Day" (actually the first in that locality) was held on October 8th at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont, for the churches on the Main Line and vicinity. Twelve parishes were represented. There was a large congregation at the opening service. A celebration at 10.30, with a sermon by the Bishop from the words, "Even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you." The fact that we are witnesses and the importance of witnessing were strongly emphasized. Especially in these terrible days, we, as individuals and as a Church, are called imperatively to this service.

There were the intercessions, luncheon, and the afternoon conference with Mrs. J. Nicholas Mitchell as the speaker on "The Power of United Prayer." The Bishop suggested our consideration of the "fruitfulness," the "need," and the "neglect" of united prayer. He then opened and conducted the Question Box, which is proving so helpful to all the workers.

On October 20th we gathered at S. Peter's Church, Germantown, for the fourth of our Germantown and Chestnut Hill Bishop's Days. We might repeat the same story of a large attendance and enthusiastic interest, not forgetting to mention the ever generous hospitality of the women of S. Peter's Parish. The Bishop spoke most forcefully at the morning service, taking as his text the opening words of the Epistle for the week, with special emphasis upon "Redeeming the time because the days are evil" and "Understanding what the Will of God is." With the exception of short addresses by Miss Whittaker, of Mexico City, and Mr. McKinley in behalf of the work under Archdeacon Neve in the Mountains of Virginia, the afternoon was devoted to questions answered by the Bishop.

The last Bishop's Day was that at S. John's Church, Norristown, on October 29th, it being the first in that Convocation. Nineteen parishes and missions answered to the roll call, the Bishop remarking: "It is the best yet." That might certainly have been said of his own sermon at the morning service (the same preached at Grace Church on our Festival Sunday) from the words, "Put on the whole armour of God." We cannot too frequently repeat the Bishop's wonderful definition of the Church, "A body of soldiers enlisted (in Baptism), equipped (in Confirmation), provisioned (in Holy Communion), by Christ Himself, for service under Him, at home and abroad, in His campaign against evil, who will share His victory if they are faithful." At the afternoon conference, Mrs. John Markoe, the new President of the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, made her first official address, selecting as her topic, "The Use of the Imagination in Woman's Auxiliary Work." The subject of the United Offering was then presented by the Diocesan Treasurer. The Question Box, as usual, brought to a close a day ideal as to weather, good fellowship, and, best of all, real spiritual helpfulness and uplift.

The offerings at the Bishop's Day services are always at the Bishop's discretion, and for two years they have been added to the Diocesan Fund for Church Extension.

It is interesting to note, in conclusion, that Presidents' Associations or Societies, similar to that organized in 1913 for the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary, have been formed for the churches of the Main Line and of the Convocation of Norristown. All this gives promise of active co-operation on the part of church women in several parts of the diocese, which will surely widen our vision and tend to keep us from the narrowing influence of parochialism.

Christmas

CHRISTMAS EVE.

The Carol Service for the scholars of the Church School will be held in the Church at four o'clock on Christmas eve. In addition to the carol singing there will be special music. The gifts will be distributed at this time.

On the Sunday after Christmas the Church School will meet as usual at 9.30 and there will be no afternoon Festival Service.

CHRISTMAS DAY

The Feast of the Holy Nativity will be marked by three celebrations of the Holy Communion: At 6, 7.30 and 11. Morning Prayer will be said at 10.30. There will be no evening service.

Christmas Stockings

"Are we going to have any Christmas Stockings this year, Deaconess?" This question, Deaconess Camp of S. Ambrose Church, Howard and Ontario Streets, says she is already being asked by many little children who live in that neighborhood. "You know," the deaconess said, "we never had before such splendidly filled stockings as you sent from Grace Church!"

This notice is an early reminder that the Christmas Stockings contributed by the boys and girls of the Church School are to be brought to the School on Sunday, December 19th.

We surely do not want to disappoint one of those little children. "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

The Church Periodical Club

Again comes the call for books, magazines, leaflets, tracts, pictures and old and new postal cards. Will not the parishioners of Grace Church continue the good work they did last year for the C. P. C., and let this year of 1915 and 1916 be a banner year?

The Librarian wishes to thank all her contributing members, the donors of weekly and monthly magazines, books and pictures and postal cards to the Club.

A Traveling Library is soon to be sent out from Grace Church. Can you not spare a book of poetry, a good novel, a school reader, a child's history, a book of fairy stories, or perhaps an old set of Dickens from your well-filled libraries to send to those who have nothing to read? Advent, 1915. M. W. B.

The Altar Guild

The First Sunday in Advent will bring to many of our communicants the annual envelope from the Flower Fund. Will not each one who receives this reminder enclose some contribution to supply the flowers for the Altar during the winter months? Any gift will be most gratefully received by the committee in charge.

Deaconess House

The members of Grace Church Parish are invited to attend the Teas given at the Deaconess House, 708 Spruce Street, on the third Tuesday in each month.

It is a great pleasure to meet Deaconesses Carter and Clark, who are in charge of our Training School, as well as the splendid young women who are fitting themselves for work in the Master's vineyard.

Grace Church is represented by Miss Beatrice Nuneviller, who, having finished her two years in the Training School, has added a full hospital course.

Miss Nuneviller has recently suffered the loss of part of a finger, due to blood poisoning contracted from a patient. Her sweetness and bravery have greatly endeared her to the other nurses in the hospital, and she has organized a Bible Study class among them. Forty were enrolled at the first meeting.

The following lectures, open without charge to non-residents of the Deaconess House, might be of interest to some of our readers. They are given every week:

Mondays, 10 to 11 A. M.

Catholic Epistles, . . . Rev. Francis M. Tait.

Tuesdays, 10 to 11 A. M.

The Prayer Book,
Rev. L. M. Robinson, D.D.

Note of Thanks

I am sure I speak for the Parish when I say that we are grateful to the distinguished visitors who added so much to the inspiration of our Dedication Festival. May I take this opportunity also to express my thanks and appreciation to those who helped to make the Festival so marked a success—and this includes a large proportion of the Parish. The Committees were so efficient that I was relieved of all anxiety. It was from first to last a pleasant and profitable experience.

Gratefully yours,
THOMAS S. CLINE.

Former Clergy

An interesting series of photographs has recently been hung in the Parish House. They are the pictures of seven of the former Clergy of this parish. They present striking contrasts. Among the sombre Geneva gowns of former days appears a cope and mitre. The wearer of the Episcopal robes was the Rt. Rev. Charles Reuben Hale, D.D., LL.D., Bishop of Cairo, and Bishop Coadjutor of Springfield. All of which goes to show that we ought not to overlook the interesting features of our own parish history. These parish traditions should be cherished and perpetuated.

These photographs were collected, enlarged, framed and presented by the members of the Social Service Committee and will be greatly appreciated.

The Cowley Fathers

The Society of Mission Priests of S. John the Evangelist, to which our Missioner belongs, was founded at Cowley, in England, in 1865, and established in this country in 1872. The society is formed for the mutual assistance of its members in striving after Christian perfection, by obedience to our Lord's Counsels, and for the advancement of God's glory by such mission work as God in His providence may suggest.

The "Cowley Fathers," as they are called, have their headquarters for work in this country in Boston. Though comparatively few in numbers, the influence of these godly men has spread like leaven over a wide area. Among the leaders they have trained for the American Church are the Bishops of Vermont, Springfield, the Philippines and the late Bishop of Fond du Lac.

The Rev. Henry Power Bull, commonly called "Father Bull"—as the custom is with members of religious communities—was at one time the Superior of the Order in America. He is a man of wide experience and high reputation as a Missioner.

The grouping of the classes of the Junior Department of the Church School around tables is an improvement. The change was rendered necessary by the constant use of note books.

Notes

At the close of the Board of Missions' fiscal year the following most interesting facts were brought to light:

The Apportionment has been fully paid.

More parishes completed their apportionment this year than last to the number of 425.

The Emergency Fund of $400,000 was more than fully realized.

For the first time in eighteen years the Board closed the year with balance on hand.

In disbursing funds of over two millions of dollars, the administration of the Board's business cost but two and one-half per cent and the expense of making the work known four and four-tenths per cent.

Architect's plans are being drawn up for a tower for the Parish House and other much needed alterations. We are all eager to see them and hear more of the fine plans of the Vestry for improvements. Meanwhile let us be saving up.

There is a real hunger for fuller instruction among the people of Grace Church. Many speak with regret about the lack of thorough grounding in early years. The course of afternoon instructions by Fr. Bull during the Mission will prove a great opportunity. Let us embrace it.

The Preaching Mission will be constructive. Try to attend every one of the evening services. The instruction in each service will be related to what goes before and you cannot afford to miss any part of it.

Bear in mind that the Preaching Mission is not a local movement affecting Grace Parish alone, but a part of a Nation-Wide Preaching Mission to be conducted during this season of Advent from coast to coast in these United States. This is the first time that any Communion of the Church has ever planned such an extensive campaign to bring the Gospel Message to people of the land. It is particularly appropriate that this great Preaching Mission should be in the midst of the present upheaval in the world's affairs; for the Great War is bringing vast numbers of people to a more earnest state of mind and a feeling that the Christian religion has played too small a part in the world's affairs.

The Church School Service on Christmas eve will be a new departure. It will be one of the brightest and most beautiful features of Christmastide. Parents should see to it that no child misses it. Nor should they miss it themselves.

The Communicants' Guild

Thirteen new members were received at the meeting of the Communicants' Guild on Wednesday evening, November 24th. The total enrollment is now 86, all of whom have been presented for Confirmation by the present Rector. Six of these have moved away from Mt. Airy. Mr. John Glass Kaufman was elected President of the Guild. Miss E. M. Steel continues as Secretary.

There was a service of preparation for the Corporate Communion of the Guild on Advent Sunday. The newly confirmed made their first Communion at that time. This Guild promises some day to be a strong force in the Parish.

A Crisis and An Opportunity

Europe has called her sons to arms—the Church of the living God in America is calling her sons to a mighty campaign for the souls of men and the increase of righteousness throughout the nations. If ever the searching words of the Apostle Paul, "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel," had a peculiar significance and import, it is the present time. Crises not only develop men, they develop and reaffirm fundamental principles. A crisis of incomprehensible proportions and incalculable issues is upon the world, there is a clarion call heard round the globe, "Watchman, what of the night?" and woe be to watchman and city if the watchman slumbers. The very foundations themselves seem for the time to be shifting and the old order changeth.

Where is the seer who can lift the curtain and give us visions of the morrow? Upon what basis is society, restless society with all that it comprehends, to be reorganized and reconstituted?

Mighty forces are contending for supremacy; even the faithful are asking with imprisoned John the great question: "Art Thou He that should come, or do we look for another?"

For decades past there has been a growing world-restlessness. It has manifested itself in every place and under every condition of life: it has almost seemed to portend that day when men's hearts fail them for fear and for looking for those things which are coming on the earth. Is it the dawn of that greater day when all mankind shall see the "Son of man coming in the clouds of heaven"? Are we nearing the higher fulfillment of His promise when

> "The glory of the Lord shall cover the earth
> As the waters cover the sea"?

Of that day the Master admonishes us, "No man knoweth," but if ever it behooved the servants of the Lord to be ready for the advance of His Kingdom, it is now. A great hour has struck and a world-crisis ushers in the Church's opportunity-time.

In all humility, let us realize our conspicuous deficiencies as well as our acknowledged limitations. This is no time for conceit or arrogance; it is a time for deep humility, exhaustive self-examination, and a true conversion. "Behold, what manner of buildings and what stones are here," will not save us from the condemnation of Him who declared to a conceited age and people, "There shall not be left one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down." Buildings and mechanisms, valuable as they are, must be transfigured by the revealed presence of Him who is "greater than the temple." There must come a mighty revival of His power, and that revival must proceed through the ancient channels of His Church.

If out of the world's disorder is to be heard the clear voice of the prophet, challenging it for its sins and calling it to "behold, the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world," the Church must revive immediately its prophetic ministry. A glorified altar must have as its essential complement an exalted pulpit. The proclamation of the gospel of Christ must be a chief concern of the ministry.

NOTES

Philadelphia is to entertain the House of Bishops this month. A special meeting has been called for the 12th and 13th. Fifty-eight are required for a quorum. It is to be hoped that Grace Church people will have the pleasure of entertaining some of these distinguished visitors.

On Holy Innocents' Day, a Children's Eucharist was celebrated after the manner of the Mission Services. Dr. Breed was Celebrant and the Rector interpreted the service and led the hymn, singing at the Litany desk.

In connection with the City Mission, there is an Altar Guild, which, not only cares for the Chapels of the Society, but provides equipment for altars in poor missions and institutions in the Diocese. Among other things, they are working to provide a Mortuary Chapel at Old S. Paul's Church, on Third Street below Walnut, the headquarters of the City Mission, for the use of the City poor who die in lodgings.

Active membership in this organization requires the payment of one dollar a year; associates pay two dollars annually; life membership is twenty-five dollars. Those who care to join may communicate with Miss C. D. Belt, "The Warwick," Philadelphia.

The request has been made that the early celebrations of the Holy Communion, on Saints' Days, which fall on week days, be changed from 7.30 to 7 o'clock. This would enable men, who go to their work at an early hour to attend. Please note this change in the schedule of services.

The Rector's Letter

Closely interwoven with the story of the Holy Nativity, is the legend of the Wise Men. Let it remind us of the vital connection between the Fact of the Incarnation and Missions. God's great Christmas Gift to us makes us debtors' to the world.

The Epiphany story is big with missionary prophecy. It foretells the universal reign of the newborn King. The offerings of gold, frankincense and myrrh, picture forth the glorious allegiance of the nations, bringing their wealth, adoration and sacrifice at His feet.

Between that picture and the realization of the fact, lies the long conquest of the world in which we are now engaged. That conquest is the supreme work of the Church, and beyond doubt, the most thrilling and romantic thing in our lives. The rays of the Star of Bethlehem can add luster and beauty to any commonplace thing. For instance:

$y = .1795206\ \sqrt{x^2 + 2400000} - 278.112$, in which $x =$ the basis or net income of the parish, and $y =$ the parochial share.

At first sight, this formula appears, to put it mildly—uninteresting. But, when we learn that it is an indication of the care and skill used in computing our share in the apportionment for Missions, we are duly impressed.

We have unwavering faith that all is fair, even though we are asked for $1,709.70 this year, as against $1,580.70 last year. As a matter of fact, we have gotten beyond thinking much about the apportionment, except, perhaps, as our low water mark. We desire the spread of Christ's Kingdom, and we are ready to do all in our power to help it on.

Last year, under the stimulus of the Emergency Appeal, we gave $2,971.57 for Missions. It was a revelation to us regarding our power of sacrifice. What shall we do this year? Shall we keep the standard high? Certainly, we are more convinced than ever that the world needs, and needs desperately, the knowledge of Jesus Christ. May God give us the right spirit in our Missionary giving.

I bespeak, from every parishoner, unwavering loyalty to the Board of Missions during the coming year.

Faithfully yours,

Thomas S. Cline.

Christmas Fund

According to our custom, the Christmas offering this year was devoted to the Diocesan "Christmas Fund" for the benefit of Disabled Clergy and Widows and Children of Deceased Clergy.

The new plan for the Clergy Pension Fund, which is now before the Church, cannot, in any case, be put into operation this year; meanwhile, it is important that the existing agencies be maintained in their full strength.

The Trustees of the Christmas Fund are obligated to pay out to some fifty beneficiaries the sum of $14,500 for the current year. The income which the Fund receives from the investments amounts to about $6,500 annually. This leaves in the neighborhood of $8,000 to be received from the offerings taken in the Parishes on Christmas Day. Last year this amount was fully met. We trust it will not fail this year.

Epiphany

What is the meaning of the Epiphany? The word, being Greek, naturally turns our thoughts to the East, where the observance took its rise. The word is translated in our Prayer Book as Manifestation. At first, in the early Greek Church, this feast combined several of our Lord's manifestations of His power on earth; namely, His Nativity, His Baptism and His self-revelation as a miracle worker at the wedding feast in Cana of Galilee. But, in the Western Church, the particular manifestation of Christ celebrated was that to the Wise Men.

This finally came to be the case in the East as well, so that since mediæval times Epiphany has stood for the manifestation of the newborn King by means of a star to the kings of the eastern nations. The lesson it teaches is that Christ is the Saviour of all mankind, and not of the Jews only.

Throughout the Epiphany season runs the idea of the manifestation of Christ's power. We have been prepared through Advent to receive the Christmas teachings that the "Word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

We have pondered the Mystery—the Holy Babe, born of the Virgin—so divine, yet so human. Now through Epiphany season we meditate upon the earthly life of our Lord before we pass to Passiontide and the preparation for Easter. The first Sunday after Epiphany shows Christ as the guide to childhood; the second Sunday manifests Him in the social life; the third reveals the Great Physician; the fourth, the Ruler of Nature; the fifth, the Sower of good seed; and the last dwells upon the Epiphany of the future.

It only happens six times in a century that we have six Sundays after Epiphany.

Many feel that the time is ripe for another great Epiphany of Christ's power to the nations.

The Mission—A Retrospect

God, in His wisdom, does not always give us what we ask for. But we are content. We believe He knows our needs infinitely better than we do. We prayed for a Mission —God gave us a Retreat.

We went out into the highways and byways with our invitations, but those who came in, were, for the most part, communicants. Other things were conscientiously set aside and for six days we retired for meditation upon God's Word, self-examination and devotion. It was, indeed, a rare spiritual privilege. Day by day we were led on into the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven. As the eternal love of God became more luminous, our sins became more hideous and our penitence deepened. We became as children asking pardon. How sweet mercy seemed! Conscious of God's abundant grace, we made fresh resolutions. We felt ourselves united more closely in the fellowship of Christ's Body—the Church.

Our life in Grace Church will be purer and stronger for those services. Some were brought from doubt into clear faith; some were aroused from their neglect and indifference; some forsook their sins, and were brought into newness of life.

The children had their share in the joy and blessing of the Mission. Not only they, but also the adults who attended the eight o'clock Eucharists, gained a new insight into those Holy Mysteries.

We are grateful to the Missioner, who so faithfully, wisely and lovingly led us into a deeper knowledge and fear of God.

Church School Festival

Invitation cards were issued to all members of the Church School on Sunday before Christmas, inviting them to bring their parents and friends to the Festival Service on Christmas Eve. Apparently all who were not confined at home with grip were on hand. Shortly after four o'clock the Procession entered the Church, led by the vested choir and singing the great Christmas Hymn, Adeste Fideles. This was followed by Mendelssohn's "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." The scholars were laden with well-filled stockings, which they deposited at the foot of the tree as they passed. These stockings were sent to S. Ambrose's Mission in Kensington for distribution among the children there at the Christmas party on Holy Innocents' Day. When the whole School had assembled, the keynote of the service was sounded in the opening sentence: "Behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day, in the City of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord."

In a brief address, the Rector welcomed everybody and explained the purpose of the service. The first carol to be sung was the old English, "God Rest You, Merry Gentlemen."

The story of the Holy Nativity was read from the Gospel according to S. Luke, and the beautiful hymn of the Virgin Mother, the Magnificat, was sung to a simple chant.

Everything takes on new significance at such a service. The recital of the Creed which followed seemed written for the occasion. The children responded as if eager to declare their faith in the Virgin-born Redeemer. Then followed the Christmas collects.

The Christmas lesson of the blessedness of giving was brought out quaintly in the carol, "Good King Wenceslas." The King and page were impersonated by a choir man and choir boy—the whole school joining in the chorus parts.

The Rector then brought home to the children the spiritual appeal of the sweet story of Jesus' humble birth. He urged that all heart-doors stand open to welcome the Saviour. He quoted the following words from a carol of Martin Luther's:

> Were earth a thousand times as fair,
> Beset with gold and jewels rare,
> She yet were far too poor to be
> A narrow cradle, Lord, for Thee.
> Ah, dearest Jesus, Holy Child!
> Make Thee a bed, soft, undefiled,
> Within my heart, that it may be
> A quiet chamber kept for Thee.

Then as the Rector knelt in the center of the Church, the congregation also kneeling, all united in an act of thanksgiving to God for His great Christmas Gift—an act of adoration to the Son of Mary, an act of humility and welcome to Jesus. The lights in the Church slowly grew dimmer, until the Church was in comparative darkness. Quietly all sang the most sacred of the carols, "Silent Night." During the singing, the tree, which was decorated entirely in silver, took on new radiance as the colored lights twinkled through the branches.

The choir sang an anthem, "O Happy Shepherds," as the Church grew light again. The whole school then impersonated the Shepherds, and made a pilgrimage to the Manger Scene. As the procession moved around the Church, they sang carols, "Blessed Night When Bethlehem's Plain" and "We Three Kings of Orient Are."

The creche had been beautifully arranged, and presented at once a realistic and devotional picture of the scene of the Nativity. The children were fascinated and loth to pass on.

At a given signal, the presents were quietly and quickly handed the children of the Primary and Kindergarten departments. The final carol, "The First Nowel," served as a Recessional. Boxes of candy were handed to each on passing out of the Church.

We have told of this Service in full, partly because it was somewhat different from our former observances, and partly because it shows how faithfully the Church tried to stress in her Christmas festivity the religious meaning of the great and joyous Feast.

Acknowledgment

The emergency has been triumphantly met. The $400,000 asked for by your Board of Missions has been given—and $31,000 more. The Church's work has been saved from serious injury. Unselfish service, generous giving and earnest prayer have made the year 1915 one of the most notable in our history.

For all you have done in loyalty to our Lord and His cause, your Board of Missions has instructed us to send you its grateful thanks.

On August 31st the Emergency Fund amounted to $366,211.08. The gifts received since September 1st have lifted the Fund to the splendid total of $431,000.

Every cent given for the Emergency Fund has been or will be used directly in the work. All expenses of collecting the Fund have been provided for by the income of a legacy left to the Board of Missions by the late George C. Thomas for just such a purpose.

We are profoundly thankful to Almighty God that in a year of depression and uncertainty the spirit of self-sacrifice, of high "adventure for God" and of ready willingness to co-operate with your Board of Missions in meeting its responsibilities has been so splendidly manifested. You have given to the Board a new and compelling incentive to more efficient work as the servant of the Church.

The response to the Emergency Fund has emboldened your Board of Missions to take action it has long desired to take. At its meeting on October 26th it was unanimously decided that the first $50,000 received during this fiscal year 1915-16 in undesignated legacies should be devoted to the purchase of land and the erection of buildings in the domestic field in the United States. This amount will therefore not be available, as heretofore, to meet the appropriations.

As we enter upon this new year, we ask your continued prayers and help. Many people have suggested that the plan of a personal gift of at least one day's income or wage, in addition to all usual missionary offerings, should be made a regular part of our missionary giving.

Indeed, unless this is done it may be impossible for your Board of Missions to meet the obligations of the present year. The budget has been kept down to the lowest possible amount. Some additions to meet urgent needs arising during the year will be inevitable.

The Board believes that the Church has recorded its conviction that not timid hesitation, and still less retreat, but courageous advance, should be the present policy.

WHAT SHALL THE CHURCH TRUMPET?

The whole world confronts a new epoch in human history. All nations stand at the parting of the ways, where two great paths diverge. One leads to the age-long bondage to material things, the other to the freedom of the world. The heart of mankind is uncovered in suffering. The hopes of centuries look down the highways of despair. Broken millions of fellow men are asking whether America has found the way that leads to the happiness and freedom of the world.

What answer shall America give, and what call shall this Church trumpet through our land today?

Shall we answer, "Our money is our might."

Or, shall we blow this message to all the family of God: "There is a faith that conquers despair; a love that vanquishes hate; a peace that passeth knowledge; a divine person in Christ Jesus, whose law is love, and whose life is perfect freedom."

God waits for our answer.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The year 1915 drew to a close showing an encouraging amount of work accomplished by the Woman's Auxiliary during the Fall, the total in money being about one hundred dollars in excess of that last year at the same time.

The domestic missionary boxes sent were valued at $378.46, and contained an assortment of new clothing of all kinds, viz: sheets, towels, table linen, etc.

Barrels of second-hand clothing to the value of $118.20 were sent to Mr. Arkin, for his work at S. George's Mission, in the Kensington and Richmond districts of Philadelphia.

For the colored people, barrels of clothing went to Miss Edrington in Virginia, and new outing flannel slips to The House of the Holy Child, this city's only home for colored children. Together, these reached a value of $72.

Work for the Indians will begin early in 1916, and it may be well to ask now if anyone in the parish has a shawl in good condition that she will give for this purpose, for no box for the Indians is complete without a shawl.

Sewing for Foreign Missions will also soon be started.

During the month of December Archdeacon Demby attended one of the meetings of the Auxiliary and told of his work among the negro people near Memphis, Tennessee. The Archdeacon is head of the Hoffman St. Mary's Industrial School for Girls, and aroused deep sympathy by his account of a fifteen years' struggle with such difficulties as half finished and partly burned buildings, inadequate water supply, and an allowance of three hundred dollars a year for expenses—expenses including teachers' salaries, school supplies, food, heat—everything.

Twenty-five dollars was pledged for the Archdeacon, and individual contributions asked for.

The subject of Mission Study classes was brought forward by Mrs. Hayes, who made an appeal for volunteers for class leaders, and urged the women to consider carefully whether they can afford to miss the benefits of mission study. She said no other instrument, except prayer, was so strong a factor in the spread of Christ's Kingdom. A morning class, an afternoon and an evening class will be started in Grace Church, and surely one of this number will be found convenient for the busiest woman in the Parish to attend.

At the first sewing meeting of the Auxiliary in January Miss Rumney will speak of the work among the negro people, particularly of S. Barnabas' Mission in Germantown, and it is hoped that many will hear the talk, as there is a decided lack of interest in the negro problem, which must be overcome.

At the conference of the Woman's Auxiliary early this Fall Mrs. Hodge, President of the Freedman's Committee, asked that every Christian and patriotic woman free her heart from prejudice against the negro race and promise to read during the year at least one of the following books:

"In Black and White."

"The Negro Problem"—Booker T. Washington.

"Studies in the American Race Problem"—Stone.

Handbook—Colored Work.

Let us start the new year with good resolutions—resolutions not lightly made, nor carelessly broken—to do more and better work than ever before; to work not for our own pleasure in it, nor simply from a sense of duty, but, as Father Bull told us, "To the glory of God."

Mrs. George Biller, Jr., the wife of the late Bishop of South Dakota, will make an address to the Woman's Auxiliary at S. Michael's Church, High Street, Germantown, Friday Morning, February 4th, at 11.15. A cordial invitation to this meeting is extended to the members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Grace Church.

Junior Branch Woman's Auxiliary

Another month has passed quickly, it seems, and much good work has been accomplished at the two meetings, as the attendance has improved. Early in December there was a cake and candy sale to secure funds to purchase provisions for Christmas baskets; the amount raised was $20.00. We will be able to bring Christmas joy to four families in the Parish.

At the last meeting a barrel of second-hand clothing, $60.00 in value, was sent to S. George's Mission in Kensington. Postal cards and woolen caps, for use among the immigrants in Philadelphia, were provided. The expressive letters of thanks, acknowledging the receipt of all the boxes and packages, are incentives to further effort.

The dates of the meetings for January are Mondays, the 3rd and 17th, at three o'clock. The annual meeting occurs on the 3rd, when elections of officers for the ensuing year will be in order. On the 17th we are to have the pleasure of having Miss Hopwood tell us of her work in China.

Two Poems

The following poems recently quoted from the pulpit of Grace Church are printed by request:

CHRIST IN FLANDERS

(Reprinted from the Spectator)

We had forgotten You—or very nearly—
You did not seem to touch us very nearly—
  Of course, we thought about You now and then;
Especially, in any time of trouble—
We knew that You were good in time of trouble—
  But we are very ordinary men.

And there were always other things to think of—
There's lots of things a man has got to think of—
  His work—his home—his pleasure, and his wife;
And so we only thought of You on Sunday—
Sometimes, perhaps, not even on a Sunday—
  Because there's always lots to fill one's life.

And, all the while, in street, or lane, or byway—
In country lane, in city street or byway—
  You walked among us, and we did not see
Your Feet were bleeding as You walked our pavements—
How did we miss Your Footprints on our pavements—
  Can there be other folk as blind as we?

Now, we remember; over here in Flanders—
(It isn't strange to think of You in Flanders)—
  This hideous warfare seems to make things clear.
We never thought about You much in England—
But now that we are far away from England—
  We have no doubts—we know that You are here.

You helped us pass the jest along the trenches—
Where, in cold blood, we waited in the trenches—
  You touched its ribaldry, and made it fine.
You stood beside us in our pain and weakness—
  Somehow it seems to help us not to whine.

We think about You kneeling in the Garden—
Ah! God! the agony of that dread Garden—
  We know You prayed for us upon the Cross.
If anything could make us glad to bear it—
'Twould be the knowledge that You willed to bear it—
  Pain—Death—the uttermost of human loss.

Though we forgot You—You will not forget us—
We feel so sure that You will not forget us—
  But stay with us until this dream is past.
And so we ask for courage, strength and pardon—
Especially, I think, we ask for pardon—
  And that You'll stand beside us to the last.

THE TRUMPET

Thy trumpet lies in the dust.
The wind is weary, the light is dead. Ah, the evil day!
Come fighters, carrying your flags, and singers,
Come pilgrims,hurrying on your journey! your songs!
The trumpet lies in the dust, waiting for us.

I was on my way to the temple with my evening offerings,
Seeking for the haven of rest, after the day's dusty toil;
Hoping my hurts would be healed, and the stains on my garments washed white,
When I found Thy trumpet lying in the dust.

Has it not been time for me to light my lamp?
Has my evening not come to bring me sleep?
O thou blood red rose, where have my poppies faded?
I was certain my wanderings were over and my debts all paid,
When suddenly, I came upon Thy trumpet lying in the dust.

Strike my drowsy heart with the spell of Thy youth
Let my joy in life blaze up in fire,
Let the shafts of awakening fly, piercing the heart of night, and a thrill of dread shake the palsied blindness,
I have come to raise Thy trumpet from the dust.
Sleep is no more for me—my walk shall be among showers of arrows.
Some shall run out of their houses and come to my side—some shall weep
Some in their beds shall toss and groan in dire dreams;
For to-night shall Thy trumpet be sounded.

From Thee I had asked peace only to find shame,
Now I stand before Thee, help me to don my armour!
Let the hard blows of trouble strike fire into my life,
Let my heart beat in pain—beating the drum of Thy victory.
My hands shall be utterly empty to take up Thy trumpet.

TAGORE.

Social Service Commission

The Joint Commission on Social Service was appointed by the General Convention in 1910. The following was the resolution:

"It shall be the duty of this Commission to study and report upon social and industrial conditions; to co-ordinate the activities of the various organizations existing in the Church in the interest of social service; to co-operate with similar bodies in other communions; encourage sympathetic relations between capital and labor; and to deal according to their discretion with these and kindred matters."

Until this time all interest and action on the part of the Episcopal Church had been purely unofficial. There had been organized, in 1887, "The Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor," popularly called "C. A. I. L.," which is said to have been the first organization of social Christianity in this country. But in the various older social conflicts the Church was, and even is to-day, far outstripped by the social activities of the various denominations, especially the Baptist and Presbyterian, who do a far more reaching and efficient work.

Since the appointment of the Joint Commission, acting under the authority of the Church, a successful attempt has been made to co-ordinate the widely scattered activities, and to plan a definite program for future work. The word "joint" in the title of the Commission means that the membership is drawn from the two houses in the General Convention, the House of Bishops and the House of Deputies.

As has already been stated, the C. A. I. L. was the Church's first, although unofficial, effort in the field of social service. This organization came into existence through the zeal of Bishops Potter and Huntington, and, although intended to be national in its scope, the efforts were largely confined to another city, and resulted in various measures for the benefit of the working people. The story is vividly told in Miss Keyser's book entitled, "Bishop Potter, the People's Friend."

In 1891 came another unofficial organization, called the "Christian Social Union," modeled after an English organization of that name. Its object was, primarily, to push the idea of social service largely by the circulation of literature on social reform. At first the Union was affiliated with the C. A. I. L., but later the Union directed its activities toward the organization of Diocesan Social Service Commissions.

Through the agitation of C. A. I. L. and the C. S. U. was due the creation, in 1901, of the Joint Commission on Capital and Labor, and in 1910 the Joint Commission on Social Service. In 1911 the Christian Social Union disbanded and turned over its work to the Joint Commission of the Church.

Social service commissions have sprung up in several dioceses, Long Island heading the list. The work of these commissions is earnest and valuable, and the description in detail would represent the steps that led to the creation of the present Joint Commission on Social Service. In 1910 the Joint Commission on Capital and Labor was merged with this commission.

For the first year the Commission was dependent on volunteer effort, but since 1911, Rev. F. M. Crouch has given his time as Field Secretary, with offices in the Church Missions' House in New York. He has traveled thousands of miles in the interest of the work. It will be remembered that over a year ago he preached in Grace Church.

The attempt has been made by the commission to seek new methods and unexplored regions in preference to duplicating the work of the other denominations, which has been largely through investigation and agitation. Accordingly the work has been divided into parishes, dioceses and departments, the usual three-fold division of the Episcopal Church.

As this article is intended to explain the work, and the history of the Joint Commission, it will be sufficient to explain that the commission works, as far as the parishes are concerned, entirely through the dioceses.

Besides the field work of the executive secretary, there have been issued thousands of pamphlets and leaflets, for the demand has been very heavy, the work of publicity being extended by articles in the church press and other channels. Plans, in connection with the General Convention, arranging for a traveling exhibit and a correspondence course, conferences, and the inspection of civic and educational institutions in New York and elsewhere in cooperation with the other communions, have been arranged, thus, aiming toward a general enlightenment of the Church's people on the various social problems. There is being conducted a study, the object being a closer unification of the three great works of the Church, Missions, Religious Education and Social Service.

In trying to write, in a few words, of this aggressive commission, one finds oneself in a perfect network of reports and plans, too numerous to describe. The reports on the industrial problem, and the rural problem, are well worth reading, and may be had for the asking.

Where does the money come from? So far the commission has raised its own funds.

The commission has only begun. The problem is barely touched. One thing is certain, that as good as these efforts are, it is not in social amelioration, but in social reconstruction, that we may better the unfortunate social conditions of today—in the words of one of the able social service reports:

"Social service cannot be conceived as a paternalistic effort on the part of the favored for the benefit of the less favored, but as a fraternalistic, common endeavor toward the achievement of human brotherhood and equality of opportunity for self-development, physical, mental and spiritual.

To this new crusade is summoned every member of the Christian Church, who would not be faithless to his high calling."

Religious Education at the Provincial Synod

At the recent Synod of the Province of Washington, held in the city of Richmond, Va., the following resolutions, presented by the Commission on Religious Education, were adopted:

"Resolved: That this Synod pledges to the General Board its positive and unfailing co-operation, sympathy with its aims, and a recognition of the vast difficulties of its problems."

"Resolved: That this Synod earnestly requests all Diocesan organizations for Religious Education to co-operate fully with the Provincial organization."

"Resolved: That this Synod urgently asks every minister of this Province engaged in pastoral work to endeavor to make provision for the systematic training of his teachers."

"Resolved: That this Synod calls upon every clergyman and Sunday School superintendent in the Province to attend and spare no effort to secure a large representation of his Sunday School workers at one or other of the Provincial summer schools."

"Resolved: That this Synod earnestly commends the observance of 'Education Week' throughout the Province annually."

"Resolved: That this Synod deplores the lamentable decrease in the number of candidates for Holy Orders in this Province and calls upon our Bishops and Clergy strongly to present to the young men of the Church the opportunities of the ministry as a vocation in life."

"Resolved: That this Synod approves the foundation of a Sunday School Extension Society in this Province."

"Resolved: That it be recommended to the Diocesan authorities that one of the most important missionary opportunities and one of the most fundamental missionary duties is to provide for the religious care of our Church students in our schools and colleges and that the use of missionary funds for this purpose is not only proper, but should be one of the first liens on such funds as one of the most distinctly missionary works that the Diocese can do."

Notes

On Advent Sunday the Rector suggested as a motto for the people of Grace Church during the coming year:

"WALK IN THE LIGHT
AS HE IS IN THE LIGHT."

The following excerpt from a letter to the Rector is one of many expressions of appreciation of the Children's Eucharistic Services held during the Mission:

"Every day last week my little girls attended the Children's Eucharist in connection with the Mission. It meant for them getting up at six-thirty and breakfasting at seven, in order to make a train that would get them down in time—save, of course, on Saturday, when the service was half an hour later. They were much interested. Each evening they told me the text on which Fr. Bull based his talk, and also gave me an outline of what he had said. In addition to being interested, I am sure they derived a benefit from the services, and, as they grow older, will look back upon this Mission as one of their earliest spiritual experiences."

CHURCH SCHOOL NOTES

The Church School makes a new record. On the Third Sunday after Trinity the attendance in the Upper School was 127—reaching the highest point this term. There were but 11 absent. This is a remarkable record, one that clearly evidences the interest of the scholars.

Mr. John Miller, who has served the School as Associate Treasurer for some time, has moved away from the Parish. We shall miss him greatly. His thorough care of the work, and his deep interest, have been most gratifying to his fellow-officers. Mr. Hepworth has consented to fill the position resigned by Mr. Miller, and a continuance of the latter's good work is thereby assured. We are glad to welcome Mr. Hepworth.

We look for a banner attendance on Septuagesima Sunday, February 20th, because that is the time appointed for the mid-year examinations. It is a matter of honor among the scholars not to pull down the class average by absence on examination day. There is a wholesome rivalry among classes for the banner. There was never so much evidence of earnest work in the Church School as during this present half year.

The following scholars were awarded Bibles for bringing new scholars to the Church School: Samuel Bartle, June Y. Crouter, George Jefferson, Joseph McCauley, Sarah Thompson. Helen Doelp, having previously received a Bible, was awarded a Prayer Book and Hymnal.

The scholars take great delight in bringing new members. New scholars must attend at least three Sundays before they qualify as members of the School. No attempt is made to bring children already connected with some other Sunday School.

Children who are attending some other Sunday School at a different hour in the day are not encouraged to attend Grace Church School.

At a recent meeting of the Officers and Teachers of the Church School, Mr. Davis' class was appointed as a Committee to make suggestions as to bronze, silver and gold pins to be awarded scholars who complete assigned memory work. At the same time Mr. MacDonald's class was assigned the task of preparing Honor Rolls to be hung upon the walls of the Parish House.

The Rector's Letter

I don't altogether enjoy this custom of writing a little pastoral every month. It is so hard to select a topic. If I could just write about twenty things instead of one it would be pleasanter. After all, why be so laconic? Why not write about everything under the sun?

I trust we are about over the period of strain and depression, resulting from the prevalence of sickness in the Parish. Who can say what lessons God has taught us by His fatherly discipline, or what skill in the gentle art of caring for others, has been acquired?

All things considered, the Church attendance has been good—but not uniformly good. There is the early celebration Sundays and Holy days—have we appreciated the spiritual privilege it offers? Will not those who have found rich blessing in these early services bear witness to the fact among those who do not attend?

I am not surprised to see Sunday Evensong, so long neglected, now coming to its own. The increasing number of young people who are now learning to love that service will never tire of it. It is an inspiration to the Rector to see them there.

The topics announced for this service may have a controversial, or even sensational sound to ultra-conservative ears. But the wise will encourage the Rector in plain speaking. It is of course much easier to preach platitudes.

I trust that our Epiphany studies of the non-Christian religions have strengthened our conviction that Christianity is the religion for the world, and must prevail. Then let us give ourselves with firmer motive, and larger purpose, to the cause of Missions.

I have been thinking that Epiphany should be more clearly marked as the Missionary season of the year. That is where our Mission study courses belong instead of Lent. Incidentally, it would prepare for more intelligent and generous Lenten offerings.

Lent is the season for intensive spiritual exercises—it is the greatest opportunity of the year. I am planning to avoid outside engagements, and to devote all my energies to the Parish. I hope you feel, as I certainly do, that Lent is a time for consecutive teaching and meditation, rather than a succession of disconnected sermons by visiting clergymen. Last year's plan of a series of addresses by a neighboring priest seemed helpful.

This coming season, the Rev. John H. Chapman, of S. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, will preach a course on the Wednesday evenings of Lent. I shall expect you all to do your conscientious part in making Lent a great spiritual success.

Two organizations of the Parish show unmistakable signs of renewed energy—the Communicants' Guild and the Young Churchman's Association. Both are very near to the Rector's heart.

I am very anxious that all those whom I have presented to the Bishop for Confirmation shall prove faithful. I want the Church to mean more and more to them as time goes on. Therefore, it is important that they keep in touch with each other, and with their Rector. The Communicants' Guild is a pastoral agency to conserve the results of Confirmation and build up gradually a strong body of loyal communicants. May I make an earnest request here, that all members of the Guild make it a special point to respond without fail to any summons coming from the officers of the Guild. There will not be many events during the year, and each event will have its peculiar importance.

The last meeting of the Young Churchman's Association confronted me with the finest challenge to Christian leadership, which I have faced since my ordination. With its next meeting it will enter upon a new chapter in its career. Hitherto it has been a rather loose organization—little more than a Men's Bible Class. In the future it will be a closely knit society, with strict requirements for membership, and high standards of work and conduct. Such an organization could not be undertaken without the foundation of mutual confidence, which has been laid during the past year's work, in the Association. Men of Grace Church, do not wait to be asked to enter this Society. Make it your concern at once.

I have just received a letter from the Executive Committee of the Woman's Auxiliary, containing the good news that provision has been made for the temporary assistance of a parish worker. I am sure this will mean a step forward in the efficiency of the Parish, and will give me greater opportunity for pastoral work. All thanks to the women!

Yours faithfully,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

The Bishop on the Fundamentals

The Bishop of Pennsylvania has arduous duties in the administration of the affairs of a great diocese, but he is more than an efficient executive. He is a great spiritual leader—a veritable Pastor pastorum. As a teacher of the Faith, he is a constant stimulus both to clergy and laity.

This is the true work of a Bishop. In the Consecration Service the Presiding Bishop asks:

"Will you faithfully exercise yourself in the Holy Scriptures, and call upon God by prayer for the true understanding of the same; so that you may be able by them to teach and exhort with wholesome Doctrine, and to withstand and convince the gainsayers?"

The Bishop answers, "I will do so by the help of God."

Again the Presiding Bishop asks:

"Are you ready with all faithful diligence, to banish and drive away from the Church all erroneous and strange doctrines contrary to God's Word; and both privately and openly to call upon and encourage others to the same?"

Answer. " I am ready, the Lord being my helper."

In accordance with these solemn obligations, our Bishop feels that there is at this time pressing need of a clear and convincing "declaration of those things which are most surely believed among us."

He has, therefore, planned to make the following series of addresses during the weeks immediately before Lent:

I. The Incarnation
Thursday, February 17th, 4 P. M., S.Mary's Church,West Philadelphia, Locust Street, above Thirty-ninth Street.

II. The Church
Thursday, February 24th, 4 P. M., Calvary Church, Germantown, Manheim Street and Pulaski Avenue.

III. The Sacraments
Thursday, March 2nd, 8.15 P. M., S. Simeon's Church, Philadelphia, Lehigh Avenue and Ninth Street.

IV. The Ministry
Monday, March 6th, 11.30 A. M., S. James' Church, Philadelphia, Walnut and Twenty-second Streets.

Although these addresses will be delivered in churches in different sections of the city, they will form a connected series. An earnest invitation to attend these addresses is extended to all people. They promise to be a memorable series.

Social Service

Pursuant to the call of the Secretary of the Social Service Committee, a meeting to arouse interest, and the co-operation of the community in the use of the Registration Bureau, was held in the Parish House on Monday, January 24th.

The object of this bureau is to effectually prevent confusion in matters of charity, and to avoid duplicating benefactions; sifting out professional mendicants and giving intelligent help to the worthy poor.

The gathering was quite undenominational, as among those present beside our own people, were Roman Catholics, Presbyterians and Lutherans. There were also in attendance a number of representatives from various relief organizations.

Dr. Crouter presided, as always, most acceptably.

The principal speaker of the evening was Robert R. P. Bradford, Esq., of "The Lighthouse," Kensington. Rev. A. J. Arkin Rector of S. George's Church, Richmond, made a short but most interesting address. Among others who addressed the meeting were Rev. C. E. Eder of S. Martin's, Miss Porter of the Society of Organized Charity, Mr. Sewall, Dr. Fetterman and the Rector of Grace Church.

It was explained that the Registration Bureau is a common clearing house for charitable enterprises through which applicants for help may be identified by the various relief organizations, and work at cross purposes be avoided.

It seems that there are some fifteen hundred relief associations in Philadelphia of various kinds, and the use of the Bureau is spreading among them; let it be hoped that all in time may take advantage of the great assistance that the Bureau affords, for, through the manifold agencies it reaches, the most complicated cases of family trouble can be diagnosed and relieved. Great stress was laid by the speakers on unnecessary duplication of gifts of provisions by associations and individuals not working in harmony; one instance being cited of a family having been given sixteen baskets of food last Christmas from about as many independent sources. This failure to make intelligent distribution could be avoided by making use of the Registration Bureau. Mr. John Solenberger at headquarters, Fifteenth and Lombard Streets, Philadelphia, will gladly furnish any information desired.

Sunday Evensong

A new interest has been awakened in the Sunday afternoon services during the past month. The attendance has more than doubled. The Communicants' Guild and the Young Churchman's Association have been largely represented.

One Sunday the whole congregation remained for a rehearsal of the congregational parts of the Choral Service, including the Psalter, conducted by the Rector. On other Sundays the service has been followed by an organ recital.

The Rector is taking up a series of "Timely Questions"—selecting them from a number which have been suggested by the members of the congregation.

Those already discussed have been, "Is the Episcopal Church a Growing Church?" "Is it Wrong to Play Golf on Sunday?" "How in the World Can We Keep Sweet?" "What Stand Should a Churchman Take on the Temperance Question?"

The topics announced for the Sundays of February are as follows:

Feb. 6.—"Is the Episcopal Church Catholic or Protestant?"

Feb. 13.—"What Does the Church Teach About the Confessional?"

Feb. 20.—"Can the Nation Be Expected to Act on Christian Principles?"

Feb. 27.—"In What Sense is the Bible Inspired?"

The service is at four o'clock Sunday afternoon. It is hoped the interest in this beautiful service will continue to grow, and that many who have not yet done so, will form the habit of regular attendance.

Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The oft-repeated statement that missions are not a part of Christian religion, but the very foundation of Christianity, apparently makes little impression upon the minds of the great majority of people. Why can we not all realize the importance of missions? Probably because we know so little about the subject that our interest has never been aroused, yet there are opportunities all around us, in our diocese, in our city, and right in our own parish, that are being constantly neglected. Scarcely a week passes that there is not some missionary in Philadelphia who comes to us directly from his field of work (be it near or far) and gives real facts regarding it that are quite as thrilling as any fiction to be found on our library shelves. The difference being that this is fact, not fiction.

Several interesting speakers have been present at the Auxiliary meetings in Grace Church this season, yet comparatively few members of the congregation have heard them. These missionaries are, in most cases, supposed to be taking a much-needed rest from their labors, yet they spend their holiday traveling from place to place making a splendid effort to arouse and enlighten the people, in the hope that some may be made to see their duty and their opportunity to help in carrying out the command to "preach the Gospel to all Nations." Should we not do our part by attending the meetings and hearing the messages? Do we not owe it to ourselves (as well as those to whom our example means much), to open our hearts and minds to such influence?

February 2nd, at an all-day meeting of the Auxiliary, Mrs. North will speak of the United Offering, a subject that is always of interest to women; and on February 16th Mrs Hughson will tell us of her work at Grace Hospital, Morganton, North Carolina.

Women of neighboring parishes have been invited to be present on these two dates, and it is hoped that the Guild Room will be full on both occasions.

On February 4th there will be an opportunity to join with S. Michael's Church, Germantown, in the meeting to be held there for Mrs. Biller, of South Dakota. Let us make a real effort to go and hear this address, though it cost some personal inconvenience.

It is hoped that the plan now being tried, of having one speaker for two or more congregations, may promote united effort.

Members of the Kindergarten Department of the Church School are rejoicing in the possession of a new piano which has been so greatly needed; the spirit and success of that work being so dependent upon the music.

It was decided to use the money from the Birthday Box to pay for the piano, as it would be likely to interest the children of the Church School particularly.

The "Guild Birthday Fund" was established as a permanent fund at the Quarterly Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild in April, 1899.

"It was the intention of the Guild that every man, woman and child in the Parish should become interested in this fund, and be regular contributors thereto, by giving each year, on his or her birthday, an amount in cents representing the age of the contributor.

"By vote, the contents of the box, when opened at the Quarterly Meeting of the Guild, were to be transferred to the Mortgage Fund as long as there remained any indebtedness on the Rectory. The mortgage was discharged in December, 1901, and from April, 1899, to that date, $108.96 had been realized from the Birthday Box and applied toward the mortgage indebtedness." Since that time considerable sums have been collected with little hardship to anyone, and the amounts have been appropriated only by vote of the Guild.

The Birthday Box has been the means of interesting and educating the children of the Church School, teaching them to give systematically, and to give as well as receive on their birthdays.

At the stated meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild, held January 11th, 1916, the subject of providing a parish helper for the Rector was discussed. It was decided that the women of Grace Church should assume this responsibility, and a vote was taken that a Committee of Ways and Means be appointed to formulate plans for providing the salary for such a helper.

Few of us realize how much time is taken up with work that could be done by a secretary, and so afford the Rector freedom to minister to his Parish.

The co-operation of every woman in Grace Church is needed in this undertaking, and it is safe to predict that no one will be found unwilling to do her best, no matter what that may be.

Junior Branch Woman's Auxiliary

The last two meetings have been full of interest, and we regret that so many members, owing to illness and various other causes, have not been able to be present. The Stated Meeting was held on January 3rd, when the officers were elected for the coming year. The list is printed elsewhere in this issue. An amendment to the constitution was proposed, and other important business transacted.

At the close of the business meeting, Miss Gertrude Ely, as Diocesan Chairman, spoke about the work for the Junior Branch, making it quite clear that we are all working for one cause, though widely separated. She asked each member to work without ceasing until every girl in the Parish became an active Junior.

On January 18th Miss Hopwood gave a most thrilling and pathetic account of the life of little girls in China, and how hopelessly empty their lives are until they are told that Christ loves them. One little girl, when looking at a picture of Christ blessing little children asked, "Does He love little Chinese girls?"

Miss Hopwood said, "Yes," but the child could hardly believe it was true; having been so cruelly treated and scorned all her life.

Now, every girl is eager to do something to help these little sisters across the wide sea, for it has made each one realize how blessed the girls in America are, in having known Christ's love always.

There is much discussion about having the meetings weekly, instead of twice a month. As this subject is to be brought up on February 7th to be voted on, a full attendance at the meeting is desired.

The Church Periodical Club

The librarian of the Church Periodical Club is now sending out an urgent call for books for traveling libraries and for money to pay for the book-case, freight charges, etc. Will you not help in this great uplifting missionary work?

The children of the Church School are sending a traveling library to their less fortunate friends in North Carolina. The book-case is made and just waiting to be filled before it starts on its first missionary journey.

Archdeacon Demby of Tennessee has asked for a library for his school for colored girls at S. Mary's, Keeling. Will you not help to send him one? He spoke lately at the Woman's Auxiliary, and won all hearts by his urgent plea.

Do not forget that boxes and barrels of magazines and books are sent away all the time from the Parish House as soon as they are filled. Do not wait until the spring house cleaning time. Today is your opportunity.

Grateful letters have been received from Virginia; North Carolina; and Pontiac, Michigan, thanking every one who has sent new Christmas and picture cards, or made over the old ones.

"The box of pretty cards came safely. How good of you to remember us in this nice way, for besides all the white people who want them so much, the darkies come all the time asking for 'Postum' cards and pictures.

"I am going to give some of our books, that have been loaned all around us, to a school a few miles up the Tennessee River. They are trying to get books for a library for all the neighborhood to read. The work of the Church Periodical Club is wonderful. It brings hope and cheer to many. When I read of the many who are blessed by its ministrations, I always say, 'God bless the women who make the Church Periodical Club-work possible.' "

Communicants' Guild

The Communicants' Guild founded November 7, 1913, has grown in numbers. Its membership is nearing the hundred mark. This growth, coupled with the spreading field of the Guild's activity made more permanent organization necessary. On January 14, 1916, this was effected by the adoption of By-Laws. It is essential for every Guild member to acquaint himself or herself with these By-Laws. The provision as to associate membership is one of general interest to all communicants of Grace Church. The By-Laws are printed immediately following this article.

To the newly created office of Vice-President, H. Dimmick Baldy was elected.

The By-Laws provide also for an Executive Committee on which each Confirmation Class is represented. The representatives are:

1st Class (of May 18, 1913)
Yale Crouter
2nd Class (of May 31, 1914)
Frederick T. McGuire
3rd Class (of February 14, 1915)
Hilson H. Whyte
4th Class (of November 7, 1915)
Walter A. Hepworth

The Communicants' Guild also decided to make attendance at Evening Prayer on Sunday part of its Guild activity. Guild members are requested to sit in a body. Seats are reserved for the Guild. The thought is that the Guild members should acquaint themselves thoroughly with the beautiful Evening Prayer Service.

BY-LAWS OF COMMUNICANTS' GUILD OF GRACE CHURCH

Adopted January 14, 1916

I. NAME.

1. The name of this organization shall be Communicants' Guild of Grace Church.

Vincent de Paul

In our charitable work we have dealings occasionally with an organization of the Roman Communion, known as the Society of S. Vincent de Paul. A short account of the man after whom it is named, may prove interesting and stimulating.

When Vincent, the farmer's son from Landes, was ordained priest in Toulouse, in 1600, who could have predicted his wonderful career? He was a priest and more than a priest. He was a prophet and more than a prophet. He passed through many experiences and earned many titles; captured by Turkish pirates; sold as a slave; almoner to Kings and Queens; tutor to the children of an illustrious French family; preacher of missions to the peasants; founder of great institutions, hospitals, seminaries and charity organizations.

Vincent de Paul was a pioneer in modern charity. He organized the first conference of charity for the assistance of the poor. He was the friend and helper of the convicts in France's galleys. He took sick and ulcerated prisoners from damp dungeons and heavy chains, and put them in clean, white beds in hospitals. Is it any wonder they learned to love this royal almoner?

He preached the Gospel to the poor. He loved the peasants, and went everywhere preaching missions. To multiply his power he organized a society of priests known as "The Congregation of the Priests of the Mission," and vowed to the evangelization of the country people.

He was a great teacher of the clergy. He began by conducting retreats for them. The time of these retreats was gradually extended from ten days to three years. They developed into Theological Seminaries.

Vincent de Paul was at one time director of eleven of these seminaries, and his congregation was in charge of some sixty-two in France alone.

The spiritual value of these retreats was so great that they were conducted for laymen as well as clergy. It is estimated that during the last twenty-five years of Vincent's life, there came regularly to these retreats 800 persons yearly—in all some 20,000. They worked wonders in infusing a Christian spirit among the masses.

Vincent was zealous for good works. Out of his intense religious faith sprang his many works of charity. The thirty-years' war had brought the horrors and scourges which war always draws in its train. Vincent de Paul organized whole armies of men and women for helpful effort. He established the Daughters of Charity, a community devoted to the relief of the poor. He organized the Ladies of Charity, who volunteered to nurse and care for the thousands of poor in his hospitals. He built homes for neglected children, the helpless aged and incurables. He sheltered 40,000 poor in an asylum, where they would be given useful work. He opened economic kitchens. No labor was too arduous, no danger too great, if he could help the poor or serve the cause of the Church.

His zeal and charity extended their influence beyond the boundaries of France. He sent his mission preachers abroad, to Ireland, Scotland, the Hebrides, Poland and Madagascar. They liberated the slaves of Barbary. The common people heard them gladly. Vincent de Paul was a man filled with the Holy Ghost. His passion for souls knew no limit. When he died, the poor of Paris lost their best friend, and humanity one of its noblest benefactors.

The Apportionments

On the organization page will be found the figures of the apportionments for Grace Church, Mt. Airy, for 1915-1916, together with a statement of the amounts paid on these accounts, and those yet to be paid.

These amounts, we must remember, are only our minimum shares of the sum necessary to be raised to carry on the missionary work of the Church. If any of the parishes do not contribute their full share, there will be a deficiency, unless others, more fortunately situated, give more than is asked of them.

May we look upon it as our privilege, as it is our duty, to give of our abundance much more than we are asked, to aid in bringing the light of the Gospel to our brethren who sit in darkness and for whom, as well as for us, Christ died.

Churchmen's Conference

A Churchmen's Conference will be held in the Parish House of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Twentieth Street, below Walnut Street, on Lincoln's Birthday, Saturday, February 12th. The Bishop of Pennsylvania will preside.

The sessions will open at 3.00 P. M. Supper will be served at 6.00 P. M. The general theme of the Conference will be "Problems for Solution by the Church." The educational problems will be presented by the Rev. W. E. Gardner, D.D.; the missionary problems by the Rev. Wm. H. Milton, D.D.; the Social Service problems by the Rev. Augustine Elmendorf, and the problems of work among men and boys by Mr. Walter A. Wood and Dr. John Wilkinson.

The similar Conference held on Lincoln's Birthday last year proved a marked success. It is hoped a number of men from Grace Church will attend.

Church School Notes

Announcement was made to the School on Sunday, January 30th, regarding awards for achievement in memory work. Those scholars who recite the Church Catechism perfectly to the Rector will be allowed to wear the official School pin in bronze.

When the scholar learns in addition to the Catechism certain prescribed things, including the canticles of Morning and Evening Prayer, selected passages of Holy Scripture, hymns and collects, he will be allowed to exchange his bronze pin for a silver pin.

Again when a more advanced course of memory work is completed, the silver pin may be exchanged for a gold pin.

These pins will be of a special design made for Grace Church School, and it will be regarded as a mark of distinction to be entitled to wear one. The importance of this memory work cannot easily be overestimated. These sacred treasures stored in the mind at the proper age will be retained throughout life and prove of untold value in times of need.

During Epiphany Season the Rector preached a series of Missionary Sermons on the general theme, "Christianity and the World Religions." He took up in turn Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, Mohammedanism and Christianity. Against this dark and variegated background of superstition, idolatry, pantheism, atheism and agnosticism, Christianity stood out with its own peculiar and unique glory as the final and perfect revelation of God and the one hope of mankind.

In her report to the Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown, Deaconess Camp of S. Ambrose Mission, Kensington, spoke of the Christmas stockings from Grace Church School, as follows:

"The crowning feature of the Christmas party was the stockings from Grace Church, Mt. Airy. One hundred and fifty-four Christmas stockings so generously filled—and it meant so much to them that the name of each child was on his or her stocking."

A number came up afterward and asked if she knew what was in the stocking, and whether that was all intended for them. "Surely," the Deaconess would say, "there is your name right on it."

The first meeting of the Germantown Branch, for the purpose of organizing and conference, will be held at S. Peter's Church, Germantown, Harvey and Wayne Avenue, on Wednesday, February 9th.

The Rector's Letter

If you have among the unread books you received for Christmas a little purple volume entitled "The Archbishop's Test," do read it before Lent. Of course the idea of eliminating organization from the Church is absurd. You can't have the functions without organs to perform them. The Church is a Body as well as a Spirit. But the book sounds a note which needs to resound in our souls.

"Thought is of infinitely greater importance than action; and prayer, the highest thought of all, is the one thing that counts."

During Lent it is thought, rather than action, that receives our primary care. A busy Lent is a misspent Lent. It matters little whether we are busy about Church affairs or worldly affairs. Unless we leave plenty of room for sustained thought and prayer, our hectic labors will count for little. We can accomplish nothing apart from God. We must wait until He commands and empowers us. Then when He does command, we shall be ready to obey without excuse or evasion. In obedience, we shall find our true peace.

Oh how much we need in these times of hysteria in Church and Nation, the green pastures and still waters of prayer! What else can relieve the stress and strain of modern life? What else can restore our souls?

Lent is very personal. We hear a great deal now-a-days about "corporate righteousness," but Lent speaks to every individual man about "personal holiness." Nor is this a selfish ideal. Personal holiness is the secret of all mighty works. Would we convert the world, then our most potent means is personal holiness. Barnabas was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith, and much people was added unto the Lord.

Would we defend the Church against present day attacks from within as well as without? Our best weapon is personal holiness. If we were more spiritual we could show men that in the Church lies all help, comfort and pardon. The same principle holds in civic and national affairs. The great need of to-day is for spiritual mindedness. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.

The door of Grace Church is open. Special services are appointed for each of the forty days. Frequent the House of Prayer and carry the spirit of quietness and order into your daily life.

Faithfully yours,
Thomas S. Cline.

High and Low

The Church Catholic is High and Low

High when she says those great absolving words,
  High when she speaks to bless a man forgiven,
High in her faith, her works, but higher yet,
  Ecclesia—this is the gate of heaven.

Low in her penitence and humble love,
  Low in her prayers for pardon she must bend,
Lowly and meek in spirit, as was Christ
  The lowly and the contrite sinner's friend.

Then say not 'tis too High, our Holy Church,
  Much higher yet toward perfection steer,
Say not it is too low, for lower still
  She yet must bend in penitential prayer.

As all alike we use these sacred prayers,
  As with one voice we praise Him here below,
So is our Church an undivided whole,
  Not two, but one; she being High is Low.

Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Week after week, as the attendance is counted at the Wednesday morning meetings of the Auxiliary, the number stands at 25. There is very little variation, and why is this so? Interesting speakers have been present all through the year, cordial invitations have been sent many times, yet Wednesday morning finds the same women gathered for sewing—only now and then is there a new face among them.

Is it not a pity that the work for the missionary boxes should always be done by the same few, faithful ones? No, not a pity that the few should be faithful, but that the faithful should be so few.

Will not Lent bring that tiresome 25 up to 40 or 50? Surely that season belongs to God and the Church, and there is great help for us all in thus working together and becoming acquainted with the far-away people for whom our stitches are taken. Best of all, it gives at least one common interest in the parish. After having discussed the shade of Louis Greenwood's muffler and the style of little Joanna's new dresses together, it is impossible to go into church Sunday morning feeling that the woman in the next pew is an utter stranger to us and belongs to some different world.

The Lenten sewing will be for the girls in Bethany School, Cape Mount, Africa; for the little colored child in the House of the Holy Name, Philadelphia; and for the Indians. The Sample Tea will surely bring a deluge of orders to the Rug Committee and to those in charge of the aprons, for these two items are always popular. Both rugs and aprons will wear out in time so that there is a continual demand for them.

Women of Grace Church, the work is waiting for you—plenty of it. Will you not come and help?

United Offering Notes

The Spring Missionary Service for the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held in Grace Church on April 5th, at 10.30 A. M. This is one of the services arranged by the Presidents' Association, and, in the triennial year, it is always in the interest of the United Offering. There will be Holy Communion and a sermon by the Rev. George Lynde Richardson, of S. Mary's Church, West Philadelphia. The offering will be for the United Offering.

In 1910 our Annual Service with the Presentation of the United Offering was at S. Mary's, and we have heard it spoken of as one of the most beautiful we have ever had. The Rector was the preacher on that occasion, and we feel that we are very fortunate in securing Mr. Richardson for our Spring Service. Will not all the women of Grace Church be really enthusiastic about this event and make it known as widely as possible? Let us for once see our Church filled with the women of our own Parish and of the Convocation of Germantown. We also look for a good representation from other parts of the diocese.

The United Offering Service (mentioned above) is the mid-week "event" of a Special Week of Prayer (authorized by the Bishop) for the gifts of life and of means. There are topics for each day suggested by the daily readings for that week on the United Offering (page 18) of the Church Missionary Calendar.

The Week of Prayer is a part of the plan adopted late in 1915, by which we now have the half hour every Saturday, from 11.30 to 12 o'clock noon, set apart as a time for prayer for "the gift of life" and "the gift of means." Several groups of women in different parts of the diocese are meeting at that time every Saturday, and very many women are observing the half hour in their own homes. We wish that every Churchwoman might become a part of this plan, even if she can only repeat our United Offering prayer thoughtfully and earnestly on Saturday at the time for mid-day intercessions.

Is there any woman in Grace Church—a contributor to the United Offering—who has not a prayer card? This question is prompted by the discovery constantly of women throughout the diocese who have been contributing, say two or three years, but "did not know that there was a prayer."

Prayer Cards and the List of Topics for the Week of Prayer may be had from Mrs. Robert J. Thompson, 124 West Mt. Pleasant Avenue.

Concerning Mission Study

How many people in Grace Church realize what a mission study class means, or know what it aims to accomplish? Will the many readers of the PARISH NEWS seriously consider this short statement:

Classes are forming now for their Lenten work. If there are any parishoners, men or women, desirous of entering a class, whom the Missionary Secretary has not reached, will they communicate with her at once?

There will be an evening class, for men and women, meeting in the Parish House on Tuesdays (if that night is found to be convenient) at eight o'clock. The first meeting for organization will be held on Monday, March 6th, at 8 P. M. Leader, Mrs. R. L. Hayes.

The afternoon class for women will be held on Monday, at 3 P. M., beginning March 6th. Leader, Mrs. Sidney M. Harrison.

The first text-book is always the Bible; next, a book suggested by the Board of Missions, supplemented by any books of reference which may illuminate the course and make it more interesting.

The book we are to study this year is Dean Burleson's, "The Conquest of the Continent," and we shall trace briefly the history of the Church and the Nation. Probably, never in the history of this country has there been, or will there come, a more opportune time for the people of our blessed communion to consider the serious problems which to-day confront the Church and the Nation. We are churchmen and churchwomen; members of His Body, and therefore members one of another. Is that fact nothing to us, now in this day of temptation when destructive criticism is rife? Does every member of the Catholic Church glow with a burning zeal and with an intense longing to show his or her love and loyalty to the Mother Church? Then we should! "Love God with your mind," and what does that mean, but to study about Him and for Him?

We are American citizens! "Is the national flag an ornament, or a symbol, ranking next to the Cross and the Sacraments?" Surely it means to us a challenge; a personal call, and therefore we reverence our flag!

Come into the Mission Study Class and give your co-operation and fellowship, that through these channels we may better understand the meaning of our citizenship in the Church and in the Nation.

Fair Linen

There is always such hearty response made to any suggestion of a "want" in this Parish that the Altar Guild ventures to suggest that there is need for several articles in that department. The best "Fair Linen" used only for High Feasts, is about to give way to the ravages of time. Someone may wish to present a new one. The cost would be in the neighborhood of Twenty-five Dollars. Smaller articles of linen are also needed, and if you have remnants of fine, real narrow lace, not less than eighteen inches in length, it will be useful and we would like to have whatever you can spare. For further particulars please address, Mrs. H.S. Lowber, Mt. Airy.

The Church and Industry

If one may judge from the point of view of such books as the "Call of the Carpenter," and "The Inside of the Cup," in spite of one's opinion of them, it is evident that the world at large is looking to the Church, if it cannot take action, to at least create an atmosphere and a sentiment distinctly Christian, regarding the problems that surround industry. The term "industry" seems almost too general when one realizes what a wide field for study is opened by its use. It includes the questions of child labor, women in industry, the wage system, hours, morals, the safe-guarding of life, accident compensation and sickness insurance, sanitation, Saturday half-holiday, and no Sunday work.

It is to these problems that the present-day voices, largely the non-church-going population in the working world, demand that if Christian people wish to free themselves from maintaining a class Church they must open their ears to the cause for which the Church should stand.

The right to live and work, not as one class serving another, but each regarding one's neighbor as oneself is the ideal, for the law for the Christian is fellowship.

If we will look into one phase of the industrial situation we may catch a glimpse of how far the modern wage system fosters this fellowship. The wage system became dehumanized by the introduction of machinery. In the earlier times wages were paid from master to man, and the relation was intensely personal. This is still the situation in small shops, but the huge factories and mills where thousands of men and women are employed, are not owned by one man, but by the stockholders who know little of the business outside of the annual report. The Board of Directors control the business and the conditions of labor, the wages, and even the speed of the machinery, are regulated by "the market," and as the product must be marketed at least cost, it is obvious that automatically the wages are lowered and the speed of work increased. It may readily be seen that instead of fellowship, suspicion is bred and havoc made the well being of both soul and body of the worker. The statistics from the Bureau of Labor show that one-half of the adult male population of this country receives less than five hundred dollars a year; one-tenth receives a living wage, that is, enough to support a wife and three children in decency.

The uncertainty of these livelihoods is appalling. In some industries the work is seasonal and the men are idle several months in a year, then there may come strikes, improved machinery, and other commercial changes as well as tariff revisions, when in a moment thousands are idle. And all this happens in a country where wealth is piled up with incredible swiftness! To such a situation, public and private charity is entirely inadequate. No wonder then, that so often when inquiring of Mrs. Jones how she is getting on, the reply is, "Very well, ma'am, my husband has a steady job!" "Getting on" means the opportunity to work every day in the week. The illustration might be multiplied. There is the fight for the abolition of Child Labor, which law has passed in some states, but we are told that to-day in the South, children as young as five years of age are working in the canning factories on day and night shifts.

At the General Convention of 1901 the Church received the first report from the Standing Committee on the "Relations of Capital and Labor," and since then the Social Service Commission has been studying the situation from all points of view. One splendid statement is worth quoting:

"It is patent that the time has come when the Church must face this issue; if she is to stand as a Church of humanity, she can no longer afford to ignore the demand or the challenge of the wage-earners. This is no mere question of organized or unorganized labor, of open or closed shop, of wages and conditions of employment. It is a question of the attitude of the christian people represented in the Church toward the problems of the toilers in our cities, towns and villages. If the Church is not to fail in her duty to mankind, she must demand justice for wage earners, and so much reorganization of society and industry as to insure that justice."

Easter Offering

The memory of last year's Easter Offering for Missions should be kept fresh in the minds of Grace Church people.

When the Emergency Appeal from the Board of Missions reached us last Lent we decided at once to depart from our usual custom and devote the Easter Offering entirely to Missions.

This decision was made in spite of two facts: first, that ample provision had already been made for the apportionment for Missions by an Every-Member Canvass, and second, that there was a deficit of several hundred dollars in our parish expense budget.

The result was an enthusiastic Easter Offering of $1,130—the largest we have ever made. This brought our parish offerings for Missions for the year up to $2,743.07, which was $1,162.37 in excess of our apportionment.

In commenting upon the achievement the Parish News of last May remarks: "Incidentally a good precedent has been established—the devotion of the Easter Offering to Missions." That good precedent is to be followed this year. The situation confronting us is not unlike that of last year. As the statement elsewhere in this issue shows, we are in a fair way to meet our Missionary apportionment by the regular weekly contributions.

There is again a call from the Board of Missions for the raising of a "One Day's Income Fund" over and above the usual Missionary offerings.

There is also a deficit—the same deficit carried over from last year—in our current expenses. Yes, one might go on to mention pressing needs at home which call for large expenditure in the near future—but the good precedent of 1915 must be heartily followed.

The appeal from the Board of Missions is just as important this year as last. Then our gifts to the Emergency Fund helped to free our Missionary work from a long-standing deficit. Now the call comes to every member of the Church to join in the happier task of maintaining and extending the work. The 2,800 men and women who represent us in the Mission field, are rightly relying upon us to sustain them by our prayers and gifts. Thousands of sick folk in hospitals and other thousands of young people in our Mission Schools depend upon our help.

If there are indications from some quarters that missionary funds will be withheld on account of present controversy, it is all the more urgent that we enlarge our gifts.

Last year about 400 congregations more than completed their apportionments for the first time, and 1915 will go down to history as the year when first the apportionment for the whole Church was completed.

The year which set a new standard for the Church also established a new standard for Grace Church. We shall never again be content with meeting our apportionment. "The strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak." Let us be numbered among the strong who by their bountiful gifts insure the work of the Church against the failures of those who cannot meet their apportionments.

Let us pledge ourselves to more earnest prayer for the Church's world-wide work and for the Missionaries who represent us.

Let us place on the altar of Grace Church on Easter Day an offering which shall represent at least "One Day's Income" for each and every parishioner.

Let us make it a real thank offering for God's mercies and blessings to us.

To Contributors

In order to bring out the Parish News on or before the first of the month, it is necessary to have all copy in the hands of the printer by the 20th of the month previous.

Will all contributors kindly make an effort to conform to this requirement by sending their papers to the Rector or the Editor in good season?

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

There are two things which I should like to bring to the notice of the women of Grace Church this month.

The first is the fund for Mrs. Biller, which was started over a month ago to help complete the plans of her husband, the late Bishop of South Dakota.

Oh, if everyone could have heard Mrs. Biller present her plea at the meeting at S. Michael's Church, Germantown, to which we were all invited! Surely there would have been a hearty and generous response, if only through sympathy and admiration of her splendid courage in undertaking such a work.

Putting her sorrow and personal loss entirely in the background, with a brave heart she started East bent upon raising the money necessary to carry out those plans. Can you imagine what it must mean to go from city to city, from parish to parish, telling over and over again of the Bishop's dearest wishes, all his hopes for the future and his carefully thought-out projects? In listening to her talk one could realize what an ordeal it was and what self-control was needed to carry her through the undertaking.

Her hope is that all funds shall be completed, all deficits made up, and some money left for the new Bishop who will take charge, so that he will not have to leave again in three months to beg for support for his work. So much time has to be spent in this way by our Missionary Bishops when it could be better used right in their dioceses.

One word more: Last year Grace Church gave one hundred and four dollars to Bishop Biller for some urgent need; can we not do as much, and more, for the woman—his wife?

The other subject in my mind is that of second-hand clothing, which is closely associated with March days and spring housecleaning. Will you not all look carefully over the articles you mean to discard and see what you have that can be repaired? Second-hand clothing fills many and varied needs and we want all that we can get of it. The demand is always greater than the supply, but it would be such a help if the torn places were patched, the button-holes mended and lost buttons replaced, hair ribbons washed and ironed and shoes half-soled or patched. This would make your donation a valuable gift instead of a way of getting rid of useless litter.

All Missionary work is meant to uplift, and this we hope to do, in a small way, for those people to whom our boxes go. We cannot do it, though, by sending to them soiled and torn clothing or shoes in such bad condition that it is extravagant to pay freight on them. The articles we send can be made to teach helpful lessons in neatness, cleanliness and self-respect.

Grace Church School Term Report

The mid-year examinations of the Church School were held on Septuagesima Sunday. On the following Sunday the Honor Rolls for the term were announced as printed below:

Honor Roll for Scholarship

(Scholars who attained the rank of "Excellent")

Joseph McCauley	Elizabeth Dolman
Rupert DeMoll	Agnes Lamb
John Butterworth	Casper Bartle
John Coburn	Warner Haldeman
Cheston Weiler	Laurence Whyte
Pauline DeMoll	E. Martyn George
Hannah Kaufman	Eleanor Matlack
Elizabeth Burton	Katherine Baldy
Katherine Matlack	Anna Katharine Bournonville
Heber Hood	Mary Burton
Frederick McGuire	Evelyn Hardy
Bertram Rebmann	Adelaide Sheble
Mary Burd	Elizabeth Sheble

Sarah E. Thompson

Honor Roll for Church School Attendance

(Perfect attendance for the whole term)

Ella McCready	J. Yale Crouter
Evelyn Hardy	Cheston Weiler
Adelaide Sheble	Gordon Crouter

Stanley L. Thornton

(Scholars absent but once)

Joseph McCauley	Elizabeth Sheble
H. R. Rebmann	Sarah E. Thompson
Casper Bartle	S. L. Bartle
Margaret Wilkinson	Charlotte Wilkinson

Honor Roll for Church Attendance

(Present every Sunday)

Philip A. Cline	Dorothy Shelmire
Raymond McFarland	Katherine Baldy
John Baldy	Evelyn Hardy
Albert L. E. Crouter	Adelaide Sheble
Heber T. Hood	Elizabeth Sheble
Fred T. McGuire	Sarah E. Thompson
Casper Bartle	Mary Houston
F. W. Butterworth	J. Yale Crouter
Curtis Crolius, Jr.	George S. Jefferson
June Y. Crouter	Robert M. Cridland
E. Martyn George	Gelston Hardy
Eleanor Matlack	Stanley L. Thornton
Sarah Meehan	Charlotte Wilkinson

Ada Insinger

It is to be noted that the above Honor Rolls are for a long term, including twenty-one Sundays, and therefore reflect all the more credit upon those who have attained high rank.

Great interest attaches to the awarding of the Banner to the class having attained the highest rank during the previous term. The successful class to whom the Banner was presented, on Sexagesima Sunday, was the Eighth Grade Girls, Mrs. George Parkman, teacher, their general average being 87.2.

The class to receive honorable mention was the Seventh Grade Boys, Mr. Albert C. Brand, teacher, with an average of 85.

The Principal of the School reported a very high grade of work among all the classes. The following items may be of general interest:

The enrollment of the Junior Department of Grace Church School, at the opening of the year in September, 1914, was 99. The enrollment at the opening of the year in October, 1915, was 112. At the end of the term, February 20th, the number had increased to 121.

The offerings during the term were as follows:

For Missions	$62.57
For Parish Expenses	68.82
Offering of the Primary Department	49.13
Offerings of the Kindergarten Department	16.40
Special Offerings	27.19
Reimbursements	.40
Making a total of	$224.51

Junior Branch Woman's Auxiliary

During Lent, three Mission Study Classes are being held each week, with twenty-five Juniors enrolled. Eight girls are "Going around the World with Jack and Janet," and, for the time being, have assumed their names: four Jacks and four Janets. When they return from their journey—sometime in May—they will give everyone an opportunity to share their pleasures with them, as they will have an "illustrated talk."

Sewing meetings are held on Mondays, and soon a box of attractive blue and white skirts will be sent to Deaconess Mitchell in Virginia, which will gladden the hearts of some little mountain girls.

Week of Prayer for the Churchwomen of the Diocese of Pennsylvania

Authorized by the Bishop

April 2 to 8, 1916

(The topics are suggested by the daily readings of the United Offering page (18) of The Church Missionary Calendar.)

APRIL 2, SUNDAY—For the spirit of thanksgiving. "What shall I render unto the Lord for all His benefits toward me?" . . . "I will offer to Thee the sacrifice of thanksgiving." . . . Ps. 116 : 12 and 17.

APRIL 3, MONDAY—For the drawing together of all Churchwomen ("however remote and isolated") "into the life, love and devotion of the whole" body, through our "most effective agency," the United Offering.

APRIL 4, TUESDAY—For the "deepening of the sense of stewardship."

APRIL 5, WEDNESDAY — For the Women Workers. (112 in the domestic and 70 in the foreign field, supported by the United Offering, 68 in the domestic and 49 in the foreign, supported from the general funds of the Board of Missions.)

APRIL 5, WEDNESDAY, 10.30 A. M.—At Grace Church, Gowen Avenue, Mount Airy, Special United Offering Service, under the auspices of the Presidents' Association of the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary. Preacher, The Rev. George Lynde Richardson, of S. Mary's Church, West Philadelphia. The offering will be for the United Offering. The women of the diocese are cordially invited to attend this service.

APRIL 6, THURSDAY—For a deeper realization of the "personal" and the "sacramental" nature of the United Offering.

APRIL 7, FRIDAY—For "the gift of means," that it may so increase that the Board of Missions may be relieved from the care of all of the women workers.

APRIL 8, SATURDAY—For "the gift of life." (Men and Women.) (Observe especially the Saturday half-hour for prayer, 11.30 to 12 o'clock noon.)

A Snow-Hike

A short time ago the First Class Scouts of Troop No. 67 of the Boy Scouts were called up on the telephone on a snowy afternoon to notify them of a hike. The party consisted of seven or eight boys and Mr. MacDonald.

You will remember the afternoon. It was the day when everyone awoke to realize that his yard and pavement were more suited to skating than walking. About noon the snow had begun in earnest, and was rapidly covering the ice. The air was crisp and cold, just suited for walking.

Our course lay to the Fairmount Park entrance opposite the Mount Airy car station. We crossed over Carr's dam at Lake Surprise, and started down the right bank of the stream. The trees were wonderful. They were covered with heavy ice on every twig and branch, and the snow piled in little ridges on top made a magnificent landscape of the finest tracery, against the gray sky. The trees were bent so low with the unusual weight, that many were curved completely over; their tops hanging down across our path. In order to make a path we had to push aside the creaking boughs that swung heavily back in place, after we had passed.

Tramping along this way we reached Mr. Woodward's place. We looked across the valley of clear untrodden whiteness toward Roxborough, but the view was entirely obscured by the mass of twirling flakes.

Now for the fun! We started full speed down the hill into the valley, and woe to the poor fellow who fell at the head of the shouting crowd, for he collected the whole mass on top of himself and arose to find his neck and sleeves full of snow. This happened often enough, for it is hard to keep a footing on ice hidden by snow.

Running, falling and laughing this way, we came to Devil's Pool, and crossed over the bridge. All along the Wissahickon great icicles hung down from the snow-covered rocks beside the path. The scenery would have greatly impressed us, undoubtedly, but we didn't stop long enough to look at that. The main thing was to stand on your feet as much of the time as possible.

We followed along the creek northward until we came to Rex Avenue and the well-known sign which reads, "To Teddyuscung." There was some debate whether we should go up, but finally we decided to try. I never did anything so much like Alpine climbing as on this trip. After the first flight of steps the path is steep and rocky. It was slow work trying to grasp icy rocks and keep from losing all we had gained. We scaled the steep somehow, and saw once more the imposing stone Indian, looking for his love who jumped to her death below.

If coming up was fun, going down must have been better. I don't seem to remember much about it except a mass of sliding comrades, for if one went the rest must fall, too, and bump—bump—bump. It was absolutely no use to stand up or try to stop yourself; we had to take the chute like men. Some tried walking down the flight of stone steps at the foot, but I think by far the best way on such frozen days is to fold your overcoat under you and sit down on the top step. The rest will be done for you!

We walked up Rex Avenue to Seminole and hurried through the falling snow to St. Martin's station and through the Park to the main street. We saw people on sleds behind autos, wagons and boys in large numbers hitched onto street cars, for navigation is easy in such weather—if the motive power is well shod.

By this time darkness had begun to settle and make the swirling snow a blur. It was deeper now and getting much colder, so we were ready at any time for a good hot supper and a warm bed.

We parted at the main street for our respective homes. It certainly was fun, to make a toboggan out of yourself, and I would do it again at any time, but for those who can't walk on their head and hands the best thing is to sit by the fire and growl "abominable weather."

GELSTON HARDY, 1916.

Father Bull Honored

Grace Church people cannot fail to take a deep interest in the election of Father Bull as Superior General of the Society of S. John the Evangelist. Perhaps it was not generally known in the parish that while he was preaching the mission here he received the announcement of what was to him personally a great bereavement and to the Society an inestimable loss, the death of Father Maxwell, the Superior General.

Speaking in Cowley, Oxford, the Sunday after his death, Father Puller said of him: "I have known him intimately ever since he came here as a Postulant, and I have always admired him as a model of what a Christian gentleman, a Priest, and a Religious ought to be. He always seemed to me to be an ideal Superior; so firm whenever he felt that some principle was at stake; so free from pride and obstinacy, so ready to modify his own view if some better view was suggested, when it was a question of expediency and of details." At the close of his beautiful sermon he said, "May our Lord grant to our Society that when the time for election comes, a wise and holy successor shall be chosen who shall carry on the work of our Father and of his two beloved predecessors to the sanctification of souls and the edifying of the Church, and to His own greater glory."

That "wise and holy successor" has been chosen and we whose privilege it was to sit under his instruction for a season, wish him God-speed as he leaves America to assume his large responsibilities nor shall we forget to pray for him.

Father Bull writes in a recent letter "You may have seen in the Living Church that I am called back to England to take Father Maxwell's place. It would have been a great pleasure some day to have seen some of your good warm-hearted people at Grace Church again, but it will, I suppose, be a long time, if ever. I sail soon after Easter."

"Gallia"

At the afternoon service at four o'clock on Palm Sunday, April 16th, the choir will sing Gounod's motet, "Gallia." This large anthem was written expressly for the opening of the International Exhibition of 1871.

Charles Gounod may not be classed among the musical geniuses of the first rank, but in sacred music he rises to heights of greatness.

"Gallia" purposes to be a lament and reproach to Jerusalem for having fallen from her high estate and ends with a prayer to turn again to God.

Gounod chose the words of the motet from Holy Scripture. He uses Jerusalem in a symbolic sense to represent God's people. It is the indifference and unfaithfulness of humanity which he has in mind. "Gallia" has a message for our times.

The work is written for soprano solo, chorus, orchestra and organ.

The Week of Prayer

The following suggestions and information, as to the observance of the Week of Prayer at Grace Church, may be helpful:

It is recommended that as many women as possible begin the week with the early Celebration (7.30) on Sunday, April 2d.

Some of us are planning to go to the church at 4.30 every day (Friday at 4 o'clock) for a half-hour of silent prayer, meditation or reading before the afternoon service. The Rector will be present to open the first meeting (in the transept) on Monday,—to speak a few words of counsel, and to make suggestions of subjects for prayer or meditation, and he will also have short addresses, at the 5 o'clock services, on the assigned topics. The daily topic gives us one for united prayer, but many others will suggest themselves. Especially the work in, and the needs of, our own parish should be remembered.

While no woman is compelled, or even urged, to be present for this "fellowship of silence," many will undoubtedly avail themselves of the blessed privilege to make this week one of very real helpfulness. Who knows how far-reaching may be its influence!

We must not forget the Saturday half-hour from 11.30 to 12 o'clock, with its Prayer Groups in every Convocation, and many women praying in their own homes; or the mid-week service on Wednesday, April 5th, at 10.30 A. M. Everything points to a good attendance from different parts of the diocese. The women of Grace Church will surely come out in full force to welcome the visitors, that together we may fill our church as never before, and have the inspiration which numbers always give.

The Presentation Service

The Twelfth Annual Service, with the Presentation of the United Offering, will be held at Old S. Peter's Church, Third and Pine Streets, on Thursday, April 27th, at 10.30 A. M. The Bishop will be the celebrant, and the Rector, the Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, D.D., the preacher.

This is a service for every woman, and not simply for the treasurers of the United Offering.

On the same day, at 3 P. M., there will be a conference of the Woman's Auxiliary in the Assembly Room of the Church House, Twelfth and Walnut Streets.

A Missionary Prayer

O, Lord Jesus Christ, Who dost ask of us the more, the more Thou lovest us; we thank Thee that today Thou art calling Thy Church to greater sacrifice for the Kingdom of Heaven's sake. Grant that we all, adding to the little we have given, this little more, may rise up as one man to pour our gifts at Thy feet; that so all that is needed for the Missions of the Church may speedily be given, to Thy honour and glory, Amen.

The Duplex Envelope System

The Duplex Envelope System has formed a most important part of our parish finance during the last two years. The practice in systematic giving, both for our own parish needs and for the missionary enterprises of the Church at large, has been a most valuable training for each one of us, and the funds thus given have rendered it possible for us to meet without difficulty the Missionary apportionment and to carry on the regular work of the parish without recourse to special appeals.

During each of these years a complete every-member canvass was made of the parish. This year no such canvass has been undertaken, because the pledges given last year by their terms are to continue in force until changed by the person making them. It is planned, however, to send pledge cards to all who have been added to the parish list during the past year, so that they, too, may be able to join the ranks of systematic givers during the coming year.

The Church's fiscal year begins May 1st and the new sets of envelopes will be distributed during the latter part of April. The list of subscribers must soon be made up. Notices of any changes—and we hope they will all be increases—in subscriptions should, therefore, be sent promptly to the Accounting Warden, Mr. J. W. Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown.

On two occasions recently the congregation at the afternoon service has remained for a rehearsal of the congregational parts of the service under the leadership of the Rector. At the last rehearsal the Gregorian chants, to be sung during Lent, were rehearsed. In this way the congregation is becoming more familiar with the choral service, and the people are thus enabled to join more heartily in the responses.

The Board of Missions

281 Fourth Avenue, New York.

TO EACH MEMBER OF THE CHURCH:

For the first time in eight years the Church's work is free from the discouragement of a deficit.

This is so because of the gifts to the Emergency Fund in 1915.

Your Board of Missions now asks your co-operation in meeting the needs of 1916.

Here are the facts:

The 2,800 men and women whom the Church has sent to the fields at home and abroad are telling the Great Message in Mission congregations, in hospitals and dispensaries, in schools and colleges throughout the world. They are as noble men and women as have ever gone to such work. We must sustain them.

Last year the Church not only maintained its work, but removed every incumbrance. With no debt to burden us this year, we shall maintain our work and set it forward as much as possible.

In 1915 the apportionment for the whole Church was completed for the first time, only because the usual parochial offerings were supplemented by extra personal and congregational gifts through the Emergency Fund.

What we have done once we can surely do again.

The Church must not meet in General Convention next October with a new deficit.

We must pay this year's bills this year.

The accompanying statement shows that to accomplish this, personal and parochial gifts will be required, as the Board of Missions has deemed it best not to increase the apportionment.

Many people have urged that the "One Day's Income" plan, in addition to all usual Missionary offerings, should be a feature of our Missionary giving. The Board recognizes the force of these requests, and now asks you to unite in making your offerings to a "One Day's Income Fund," in addition to the usual apportionment offerings.

1. Will you join us in prayer for the Church's world-wide work and for the men and women who are serving as our representatives? Will you do this especially whenever you come to the Holy Communion?

2. Will you, in addition to your usual Missionary offerings, give not later than July 1, 1916, at least One Day's Income—or wage?

3. If this is impracticable, will you make an equivalent self-denial offering?

The members and officers of the Board count it their privilege to do this and have already pledged their personal gifts to the Fund.

All offerings for the "One Day's Income Fund" will count upon the apportionment of your parish and diocese unless you request otherwise.

Whatever is given in excess of the amount needed to meet the obligations of the year, will be used for the repair and strengthening of our equipment and in answering some of the urgent calls for help.

Last year's notable Emergency Fund of $432,000 is an indication of what the Church can do. But we must not rest upon the record of the past, however good. God is ever calling His people from the success of yesterday to the new task of today and the triumph of tomorrow.

DANIEL S. TUTTLE,
Presiding Bishop.
ARTHUR S. LLOYD,
President Board of Missions.
EDWIN S. LINES,
Chairman One Day's Income Committee.

Spring Fete

The Women's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown is to have a Fête on March 24th, at the residence of Mrs. George Woodward of Chestnut Hill, for the benefit of the Convocation, especially for S. George's, Port Richmond and the Country Centre Mission. Every churchwoman in Chestnut Hill, Mt. Airy, Germantown, Kensington and Bucks County is asked to help make this Fête a success. There will be a sale of useful and fancy articles, amusements for the children, refreshments and supper. Contributions are requested from every parish and mission.

Further information may be received from the Chairman, Miss Mary L. Graham, Chestnut Hill, Pa.

Easter Flowers

The Altar Guild sends out a plea for gifts of money or for potted plants for the Easter decorations. We must not fail to make the altar beautiful to greet our Risen Lord.

Downingtown Industrial and Agricultural School for Negro Youth

DOWNINGTOWN, Pa., March 9, 1916.

MY DEAR FRIEND:

On Tuesday, November 16th, a fire destroyed our barn, stable and wagon house. We lost all of our winter crops, including our supply of corn, hay, straw, oats, wheat, rye, onions, beans, etc. We also lost nearly all of our farming implements. Total loss between $10,000 and $11,000.

On Friday, January 21st, another fire, more disastrous than the former one, occurred at our school. Our Pennsylvania Hall, the pride of the institution, was completely destroyed.

This building, 55 by 88 feet and four stories high, served as dormitory for boys; our recitation rooms; the office; the library; the trades' rooms for our boys and girls and our Domestic Science Department. We sustained in this a loss of $34,000.

We have remaining: Founders' Hall, which is used as the girls' dormitory; teachers' building and dining room; also our laundry building, the second floor of which is used as dormitory for smaller boys; and several farm buildings.

We had to send home 60 boys and young men, leaving us an enrollment of only 83.

The Committee of Management met upon the school grounds, February 17, 1916, and ordered that steps should be taken to solicit funds to rebuild our barn, install ample water supply and to rebuild our Pennsylvania Hall. We are making an appeal to our friends for sympathy and help. We shall thank you for any contribution you may render in this time of our need.

Thanking you in advance, I am

Yours,

WM. A. CREDITT,
President.

The Rev. George F. Breed, D.D., after a visit of more than a month in Atlantic City, has returned to Mt. Airy and assisted at the services in Grace Church on Quinquagesima Sunday.

Our Choirmaster, Mr. West, had charge of the Boy Choirs which participated in the Mahler's Symphony, and a number of the members of Grace Church Choir were among the singers.

A beautiful set of silver Alms Basins, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Ball, are now in use.

Church Periodical Club

Most sincere thanks are due to those who by their contributions have made it possible to send two Travelling Libraries from Grace Church. Our books will be marked and numbered and ready to go out by the first of April.

The Children's Library, from the members of the Church School, is to start on its journey South to The Rev. Lewis Taylor Stovall, North Carolina, where the children are begging for books.

The other library, from other members of the parish, goes to Archdeacon Demby, Industrial Schools, Keeling, Tenn.

Surely everyone who has taken part in this great Missionary work will receive a blessing, from the oldest to the "Primary" children, who have given new and delightful story books as their share.

Any donations to defray the expenses of the book cases, freight, etc., of these Travelling Libraries, which will amount to about $35, will be most gratefully received.

The Librarian is also ready to receive any new or made-over Easter cards, to be sent to the missions and hospitals. These should be in hand not later than April 1st.

Social Service Notes

At a recent meeting of the Social Service Committee, the Rev. E. S. Lane, Secretary of the Social Service Commission of the Diocese, gave an interesting outline of the work of the Commission. He spoke of the Parochial Social Service Committees as the real front and firing line of Social Service work. Mr. Lane is desirous of seeing such a Committee in every parish.

At present Grace Church is the only one in this diocese. In Chicago 36 churches have Social Service Committees.

Mr. Lane explained the functions to the Committee in the study of Social Problems and efforts towards their solution. Among the problems which they have taken up are the following: Social Work among the Negro; Local Option; The Housing Bill; Child Labor Law; Marriage and Divorce; Vocational Training; Moving Pictures; Boarding and Rooming for Girls of the City.

A Social Service Department has been established in the Church House, at Twelfth and Walnut Streets, where it is hoped there will soon be a well equipped library.

Church School Notes

On Quinquagesima Sunday 300 copies of the Lenten Offering number of the Spirit of Missions were distributed among the scholars of the Church School, in order that they might sell them and thus swell the amount of their Lenten offering. Apparently the children are having great success in the sale of these magazines, and some are already requesting a second supply.

Among the interesting features of this number is an article of the History of the Church in Pennsylvania, which is well worth preserving.

The children are also ready to take new subscriptions to the Spirit of Missions, and it is earnestly to be hoped that many parishioners will subscribe. The Spirit of Missions has the reputation of being the best Missionary magazine published.

Miss Martyn George was the first scholar to win the privilege of wearing the bronze school pin by a perfect recitation of the Church Catechism to the Rector. Others are about ready to qualify.

The pins have been ordered and will be ready for use any time now.

On the second Sunday after Lent the Rector asks the scholars in the advanced grades who are not confirmed to be ready to enroll in a class for instruction.

Pennsylvania State College

The Church's effort to minister to the students of State College, Pennsylvania, was described clearly and concisely to the Sunday morning congregation the second Sunday in Lent by the Rev. Edward M. Frear, Priest-in-charge of S. Andrew's Church. He showed how truly strategic is this work of moral and spiritual preparedness. Among the 3,625 students of Pennsylvania State College are some 150 churchmen. The work of ministering to them was begun by Mr. Frear in 1911.

Already the basement of a fine chapel and the rectory have been completed. Much constructive work remains to be done. There is no local parish to support and complete this student work. It obviously needs contributions from outside. Gifts may be sent to Prof. G. G. Pond, State College, Pa.

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

At the suggestion of the Sunday School Association, and with the hearty endorsement of the Provincial Board of Religious Education, the Diocese of Pennsylvania has been divided into a number of districts for the formation of branches of the Sunday School Association. Nineteen parishes and mission stations in the vicinity of Germantown have united in the formation of a branch, to be known as the Germantown Branch of the Sunday School Association of the Diocese of Pennsylvania. Every rector, teacher and officer in our Sunday Schools in that district are by virtue of their office, members of the Germantown Branch.

The Rev. John H. Chapman, Rector of S. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, is now preaching a course of fine sermons at the mid-week services—Wednesday evenings. In exchange the Rector of Grace Church is preaching a course at S. Paul's Church.

The three hours' meditation on Good Friday will be conducted by the Rev. Frederic C. Lauderburn, Vicar of S. Stephen's Church, Boston.

Notes

The Rev. Frederic Gardiner, D.D., assisted at the late service on Easter Day. It was a pleasure to see him in the sanctuary of Grace Church again.

The Rector conducted the Three Hours' Devotion and preached in the evening of Good Friday in S. Stephen's Church, Boston.

At his last rehearsal in Grace Church the members of the choir presented Mr. West with a handsome mahogany clock as a token of their esteem and appreciation.

In order to bring out the Parish News on or before the first of the month, it is necessary to have all copy in the hands of the printer by the 20th of the month previous.

Will all contributors kindly make an effort to conform to this requirement by sending their papers to the Rector or the Editor in good season?

Many persons in the parish are deeply grateful for the helpfulness of the Three Hours' Devotion on Good Friday. We were indeed fortunate to have the Rev. Mr. Lauderburn of Boston to interpret the Cross to us at that time. The children's service on the same day was one of unusual interest and tenderness. Mr. Lauderburn won a great place in the children's hearts at once. We hope he will visit us again.

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

We regret to announce that after fair trial, it has been found inexpedient to undertake the Shakespeare celebration in Mount Airy this Spring.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to those who have shown their interest and willingness to help.

The Committee

The Rev. John H. Chapman preached a series of sermons in Grace Church during Lent upon the following topics:

The Moral Battle

1. The Reality of the Foe.
2. The Opportunity in Temptation.
3. The Fundamental Temptation.
4. The Goal.

Mr. Chapman's sermons were most helpful and greatly appreciated by the people.

Does God Rule?

Let us think this Eastertide of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ as the vindication of God's rule. "Can you still believe that God rules the world?" asked a friend the other day in speaking of the present state of warfare and distress. "Yes" I said, "I have not forgotten that Jesus Christ rose from the dead." Of course he did not see the connection at once. But there is a connection. That was the test case of history. Jesus had lived a life of perfect obedience to God and loving service to men. As the Messiah, He had accepted death as a necessary price for the coming Kingdom. Cherishing the hope of some startling vindication, like Elijah's fire sign to the priests of Baal, He gave Himself to the cross.

"Art thou the Christ the Son of the Blessed?" He was asked as He stood before the High Priest, mocked, deserted, helpless, marked down for death.

"I am," He confidently replied, "and ye shall see the Son of Man sitting on the right hand of power and coming in the clouds of heaven." He expected to be vindicated by God.

But a few hours later, hanging on the cross He uttered the cry, "My God! My God! why hast Thou forsaken me?"

Suppose that had been the end!

Suppose God had failed to vindicate that Man who alone in the history of our race, solely and single heartedly lived and worked and gave all for the love of God and Man!

Suppose He had perished there, mocked by His enemies, deserted by His friends, forsaken by God!

Suppose there had been no sequel!

Well, then I should have no solid ground of faith on which to stand. I could not then say confidently that God rules. But there was a sequel. Though God allowed Jesus the Good, the True, to die—yet He raised Him up the third day and revealed by many infallible proofs that He Who was dead was alive again. God has exalted Him to His own right hand. Jesus is vindicated and by the same token, God's righteous rule is vindicated.

By this great revelation I seem to know that God still rules and that eventually all righteousness will be vindicated. It is good to remember this in the dark day.

You and I know down deep in our hearts that God does rule and that God is absolutely good. But there come times when faith is low and it seems that heaven is blind to human misery and dumb to human cries. At such moments we realize with a shudder something of the darkness which fills the hearts of unbelievers. Then is the time to recall Easter and the fact of our Lord's Resurrection.

Spoils of Battle

Sermon Preached in Grace Church, April 5th, by the Rev. G. L. Richardson.

Out of the spoils won in battles did they dedicate to maintain the house of the Lord. I Chronicles, 26:27.

One's first thought is that this is an example of ethical blindness, such as we often find in the lower morality of Old Testament times. We know what battles were in those days. They are bad enough now; but when David and his warriors went out to fight, they spared no one. A captured city was ravaged and plundered, all food taken, all inhabitants massacred or carried into slavery. One wonders how it was possible, even then, for men who believed in God to bring back plunder from such awful scenes and proceed to dedicate it for the support of the house of the Lord.

Yet, after all, something of the same ethical blindness is found in every generation. It persists today. The charge has been made against the Church in our own time that we are willing to take from the oppressed and dedicate it to maintain the house of the Lord; or at any rate, that we ask no questions where the money comes from, or how obtained. A social worker recently told a story of a block of houses which was condemned as unsanitary and unfit for human habitation. The death rate there was higher than anywhere else in the neighborhood, and a baby's funeral from that block happened oftener than from any other block in the district. An investigation showed that the houses were owned by a woman who was a prominent and zealous Church member and worker. When she was asked to repair the houses, she said she could not possibly do so, because she had pledged the entire income for the support of a foreign missionary. Here again we find the same lack of moral perspective that David and his warriors showed, when, "out of the spoils won in battles, they dedicated to maintain the house of the Lord."

But you will have said already that there is another point of view to take; the point of view of David's time. Perhaps it never occurred to them that there was anything incongruous in using the loot of captured towns for the Lord's house. But we know that it did appeal to them strongly that they must give to God that which cost them something. This was undoubtedly in their minds. They gave the spoil of battles, because they had risked life to get it, perhaps shed their own blood to get it. Horrible as war is, it has this splendid and inspiring side. One can hate it ever so much, and still be thrilled by the spectacle of devotion and self-sacrifice which it always produces. Think today of the multitudes of men risking lives, giving the best they have, for a cause, even though it be a mistaken cause, and you see one of the finest things of which humanity is capable. These are not exceptional men, but our flesh and blood, who have laid down, one the pen, another the carpenter's hammer, another the salesman's yardstick—who have said goodbye to wife and child, or to mother, or to sweetheart, and have gone out to die for something greater than themselves. Here is a true principle, here is what David and his men thought about. "I give to God that which I have risked life to gain and shed my blood to bring away." It is a true principle, and if we lift it up into the region of spiritual things it gives us the very principle that we need most to emphasize when we think about the support of the Church's work.

Often we think of that support as if it were nothing but a financial question. It is, fundamentally a moral and spiritual question. Not that one would fall into the error of speaking of money as a material thing—money is always a symbol, it represents power. As our Bishop has said, "It has a sacramental character." You hold a dollar in your hand, and what you hold is simply so much stored-up power. You can do what you will with it. You may buy poison enough to destroy the population of a village, or you may buy milk enough to keep a starving baby alive for a week. A dollar in a drunkard's pocket may be a weight that drags him down still further into the depth of degradation. A dollar in the hand of a lover of his fellowmen may be the instrument of some act of kindness which saves a soul from despair. So money is not a material thing; but sometimes the giving of it is materialized. We talk of "supporting Missions" as though it were a matter of apportionment, dividing up our shares, you to give so much, I to give so much, and everyone careful to give no more than the Committee requires. But that is a false perspective. How shall the work of the Church be maintained? Just as it was in David's time, out of the spoil won in battle, out of spiritual victories, victories over self-indulgence and self-seeking victories over a hard materialism; victories of vision and sympathy and understanding, of consecration of self to God. "Out of the spoils won in battles did they dedicate to maintain the house of the Lord."

The Lord's house then was the splendid temple that Solomon was building on Zion's height; but we think of it now—if we think of it rightly—as S. Peter thought of it when he said, "Ye also, as living stones, are built up a spiritual house." The Church building is only a symbol of the true Church built up in all lands, everywhere, out of lives won for Christ, lives which are often truly won in battles, and sometimes at the cost of blood. This great house which is being reared the wide world over of the lives of men, is the house of the Lord, "not made with hands, eternal," to which we are asked to dedicate, for its support, the fruit of spiritual victory, for in no other way can it be maintained.

Consider what the true principle is of Christian giving. I think perhaps we may derive it from three great utterances of our Lord Himself. The first is this: "If thou bring thy gift to the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way; first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." The principle there is plain: God can wait for my gift; God will refuse to receive my gift until it is given in the right spirit and obtained in the right way. God can afford to wait; I can not. Perhaps, if I delay, the opportunity may forever pass to be reconciled to my brother, and so to make my gift an acceptable gift. But what counts is that the gift I bring be a gift that is not tainted by some unworthy or unjust method of obtaining it, does not carry with it some dark memory of a brother injured in order that I might be enriched.

The second utterance is the well-known saying about the poor widow and her two mites. The rich men cast their gifts into the treasury; "but this poor widow," said the Lord, "hath cast in more than they all." This means not only that the amount matters little and the spirit is what makes the gift of value; it means also just what we have been urging all along, that the gift must be "spoil won in battle." That poor woman doubtless had her battle to fight before she brought her gift—a battle with selfishness, such as every one of us would have felt, and a battle with pride. How many a one of us hesitates to give because he can give so little! My five cents a week seems so trifling in comparison with another person's ten dollars, or fifty dollars, or hundred dollars! I have to fight my pride to make me willing to give in what seems so scanty and humiliating measure. No doubt this poor woman fought that fight, and perhaps she went away dissatisfied with herself, and never knew that the Lord of the hearts of men would take her and place her in the light of heaven's truth, to stand forever as an illustration to men of what true giving must be.

The third utterance is profounder still: "The Bread that I will give is My Flesh, which I will give for the life of the world." We interpret that of the Holy Communion; but the Holy Communion itself is an illustration of the principle of self-sacrifice, upon which the whole teaching of our Lord is based. We hear God's command to feed the hungry, and we say to the hungry, "Here is money, go and buy bread." But the cry of the hungry still goes up to God, because there is a need that we have not satisfied. No gift that does not carry with it something that makes for spiritual satisfaction and increase, is a gift given in the full spirit of Jesus Christ. Gold He had little to give; "though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor;" but He gave Himself. "The Bread that I will give is My Flesh."

You see the meaning, and you see how it fits in with the text—"Out of the spoils won in battles." It was because men felt that they were giving their very flesh, their life's blood, that it was a worthy gift to offer to God. The house of the Lord must be maintained by gifts that are not easily given, because they mean the gift of life.

Now, one last word that has to do especially with the purpose of this service. It is held in the interest of the United Offering; and that word "united" is significant. Battles were won in David's time occasionally by single champions. David went out to meet Goliath and won the battle with his single arm; but in our more complex days no battle can be won by any man single-handed. Great armies face each other, and that army which is best organized, that is to say, the most united, is the one to which the victory eventually comes. So then, in our especial effort here, we are dedicating, if it be truly a united offering, something that represents a genuine spiritual victory. A united offering, from the united womanhood of a united Church! What an inspiring thing that would be! Let us hope that this service may have some part in making the consummation of that vision possible, and that the offering may be indeed symbolic of the deeper consecration of life itself to the cause of Christ and His Kingdom.

George Alexander A. West

On Sunday, April 30, 1916, the connection of Mr. George Alexander A. West with Grace Church, as Choir-master, ceased; the Rector and Vestry having determined that it was desirable to have as Choir-master one who could also act as organist.

Those who remember the quality of our church music prior to January 1st, 1909, when Mr. West took charge, cannot fail to realize what a vast advance has been made under his training. But only those who have been associated with him in that work can have any real appreciation of the time, energy and ability which he devoted to it. By his contract, he was only obliged to attend two rehearsals a week, but, from the first, he has given three; thus adding one-half to the time he was bound to give to us. He has also given freely of his time to the special training of boys who showed capacity for solo work. But while frequently urging upon the Music Committee increased expenditure especially for men's voices, which he believed would result in the improvement of our music, he never suggested any increase in the very moderate fee he had originally agreed to accept for his own services.

His wide experience enabled him unerringly to make, for our use, from the highest and most devotional type of English Church music, selections most available for our small choir.

When the need of a new organ was first recognized, he prepared for us a specification which received the unqualified commendation of all the organ builders who estimated upon it.

He inspired the whole choir with a willingness to work, and with a deep interest in the proper rendering of what they were permitted to sing. His quick detection and unsparing criticism of mistakes in pitch or rhythm and slovenliness in method, kept every member of the choir continually on the alert. His patience with honest mistakes, his instant perception of shams, his absolute justice to all, and the high standard by which his conduct was ever guided, won the affection as well as the respect of everyone whom he taught; and their sense of loss at his departure cannot be adequately expressed in any words.

On behalf of the choir:

JAMES WILSON BAYARD

American Bible Society Centenary

In recognition of the centenary of the founding of the American Bible Society, the Lutheran Seminary purposes to have a small exhibit of Bible material in the Library of the institution May 8th to 10th.

May 7th will be observed by many Christian communions as Bible Sunday, as May 8th is the actual birthday of the American Society. In New York City, the headquarters of the Society, special exercises will be held in a room of the City Hall, where a "Ratification Meeting" of the founding of the American Bible Society was held May 13th, 1816. This room is in practically its original Colonial style and is the only room in the building which has not been altered.

It is the wish of the Society to call attention to some unique facts in the physical history of the Bible. It was the first book printed with movable types, and a copy of this edition recently sold for $50,000, the highest price ever paid for a single book. It is also the cheapest book, as a copy of the Gospels may be purchased for 1 cent, a Testament for 5 cents, and a Bible for 17 cents.

It is also the "best seller," and by far the largest product of the press. Since the founding of Bible Societies, over one hundred years ago, more than 400,000,000 copies of the Scriptures have been printed.

It has been translated into more than 700 languages and dialects, and many of these languages have been reduced to written form and provided with grammars in order that the Bible might be printed in them. In addition to our own and foreign languages in ordinary type, the Bible is issued in many languages in raised type for the use of the blind.

A curious indictment against the American Bible Society was recently made by a New York Rector, the Rev. Milo H. Gates, because it publishes only the canonical books. "The American Bible Society has stolen from the Bible 272 pages of the Bible of their ancestors. They have taken out of it passages of Scripture which would have made impossible the invention of such a movement as Christian Science."

Dr. Gates goes on to quote various passages of the Apocrypha commending physicians and medicines, claiming that Mrs. Eddy probably had never seen a complete Bible, and that the membership of the Christian Science sect comes from churches which have had what he calls, "The Fragmentary Bible."

The above-mentioned exhibit will be open Monday, May 8th, to Wednesday, May 10th, from 9 A.M. to 5 P.M., and from 7 to 9.30 P.M., in the Reading Room of the Library. In addition, on May 8th at 8 P.M., in the Auditorium of the Library, there will be an illustrated lecture on, "How we got our Bible," by the Rev. Dr. Offermann, Professor of the New Testament.

Dr. Offermann's lecture will be prefaced with a short talk on the Bible Society by Dean Jacobs, who has been a vice-president of the Pennsylvania branch for twenty-three years. This branch antedates the National Society by eight years, having been founded as a separate organization in 1808, but it is now practically a depository of the American Society. Many prominent churchmen have been among its active workers and officials.

The community of Mt. Airy is cordially invited to both exhibit and lecture.

Easter Offering

The Easter offering for Missions amounted to $702.98.

The Church School offering presented at the Festival Service Easter Day was $139.99. Thus Easter Day brought our parish offerings for missions up to $2211.78 thus far.

This is $502.08 in excess of our apportionment, but is as yet well below last year's standard which was $2743.07.

The motto of the Laymen's Missionary Committee suggests the rising tide—not the ebb. We have several months yet.

Spring Fete

The Women's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown is to have a Fête on May 24th, at the residence of Mrs. George Woodward of Chestnut Hill, for the benefit of the Convocation, especially for S. George's, Port Richmond and the Country Centre Mission. Every churchwoman in Chestnut Hill, Mt. Airy, Germantown, Kensington and Bucks County is asked to help make this Fête a success. There will be a sale of useful and fancy articles, amusements for the children, refreshments and supper. Contributions are requested from every parish and mission.

Further information may be received from the Chairman, Miss Mary L. Graham, Chestnut Hill, Pa.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The second Tuesday in May falls on the 9th of the month and is the date of the Annual Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary.

It is hoped that many women who have never attended the Auxiliary—and of course all of those who have—will be present this year. It is an opportunity to hear, in one afternoon, about the work of many months in the various organizations among the women of Grace Church, and to take part in the election of officers for the ensuing year. Are you not interested in knowing what is being done in your parish? Try this time to make a special effort to come and find out.

Perhaps everyone has heard of the fête to be given on May 24th, at Mrs. Woodward's place in Chestnut Hill, but it may be well to recall the date to mind.

It is under the auspices of the Convocation of Germantown and is to raise money for the use of that organization. Grace Church will have charge of the "Entertainments for Children" and a committee has been appointed to make this department as interesting and attractive as possible.

Donations of useful and fancy articles are also asked for and should be sent to the parish house any Wednesday morning plainly marked, "For the Fête."

Let us do all we can to make the affair a great success and a gratification to those who are working hard in its interests.

The Junior Branch

The postponed meeting of the Junior Branch will be held Monday, May 1st, at 3.30 o'clock.

On May 8th, at 4 o'clock a sale of articles from foreign countries will be held with some of the members in costume.

Sanctuary Lamp

A handsome Sanctuary lamp of gothic design, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. G. Harry Davis, was dedicated at the Easter-Even service.

It is hoped others will be donated, that the sanctuary may be enriched eventually by a full series of seven lamps.

The number seven was probably suggested originally by the passage in Rev. 4:5. The following prayer was used in the blessing of the lamp.

> Almighty God, Ruler of Heaven and Earth, Whose glory surpasses the brilliance of jasper, sardine and emerald, before Whose lofty throne there ever burn the Seven Lamps of Fire, which are the Seven Spirits of God, Bless and Sanctify we humbly beseech Thee this Lamp—for use in this sanctuary and accept the continuous worship, praise and adoration of Thy people who kneel before this altar to acknowledge Thee as Creator, Redeemer and Sanctifier.
> Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honor and power, for Thou hast created all things and for Thy pleasure they are and were created. Amen.

The Spring Missionary Service

The fourth annual Spring Missionary Service for the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary was held at Grace Church on Wednesday morning, April fifth. This being the triennial year, the service was in the interest of the United Offering.

The Rev. George Lynde Richardson, of S. Mary's Church, West Philadelphia, was the preacher. Mr. Richardson has been kind enough to dictate from memory a summary of his sermon, and we rejoice that thus it will reach many more women than were present at the service.

The attendance—about 160—was not as large as we had hoped for and expected, especially in a Week of Prayer; but, from all the spoken and written words as to the helpfulness and inspiration of the service, we are presuaded that it was quite worth while.

The presence of the organist and the boys of the choir gave added beauty to the service, and we wish to express to them our appreciation, as also to the Rector for making this feature possible.

The New Organist and Choir Master

Mr. Percy Chase Miller, A.M., A.A.G.O., who undertook his duties as Organist and Choirmaster of Grace Church the first of May, comes to us with excellent qualifications.

As an organist of marked ability, Mr. Miller has made a specialty of boy-choir training. He had the privilege of English Cathedral training under T. Tertuis Noble at York Minster. On his return from abroad Mr. Miller became organist and choirmaster at S. John's Church, Georgetown, D. C., remaining there until his return to Philadelphia. Recently, Mr. Miller has been assistant organist and choirmaster of S. James' Church, Philadelphia. Mr. Miller belongs to a well-known Philadelphia family, his father Mr. Leslie W. Miller, being the head of the School of Industrial Art in this city.

He is a University graduate (A.B. and A.M. of Harvard) and has had the privilege of excellent advantages in musical study both at home and abroad.

Grace Church is indeed fortunate to have procured the services of Mr. Miller and we bespeak for him a cordial welcome.

The Way

A group of eighteen men passed the First Gate and entered upon The Way on the evening of Mid-Lent Sunday. A second group of six men was admitted on the Sunday after Easter. Upon being asked the meaning of "The Way" these men reply that it is a course of training in Christian Religion. They call it "a form of spiritual preparedness."

When asked regarding the qualifications for membership, they say any man eighteen years old or over who is a man of good will, earnest desire and decision of character is eligible if duly recommended.

Memory Work

The scholars of Grace Church School who recite the Church Catechism perfectly are entitled to wear the school pin in bronze.

When, in addition to the Catechism, they have mastered the following things, they are entitled to wear the silver pin.

Venite	Te Deum
Benedictus	Magnificat
Nunc Dimittis	General Confession

Collects

Christmas	First Lent
Easter	Whitsunday
Ascension	Annunciation

Missions

Holy Scripture—The Beatitudes
Psalm 23

Hymns—412–544.

The requirements for the gold pin will be announced later. It is hoped many will soon qualify for these honors.

Mission Study

The Diocesan Educational Secretary referred to Grace Church the other day as the banner parish of the diocese in Mission Study.

Most parishes are content with one or two classes but Grace Church had five successful classes this year. Both of the adult classes had an average attendance of twelve during the whole Lenten season. One of them included men as well as women. The interest was held throughout and a devotional spirit pervaded the whole study.

The three junior classes were equally successful.

Much credit is due the teachers of these courses for their fine work and especially to Mrs. Hayes, the Educational Secretary of the parish.

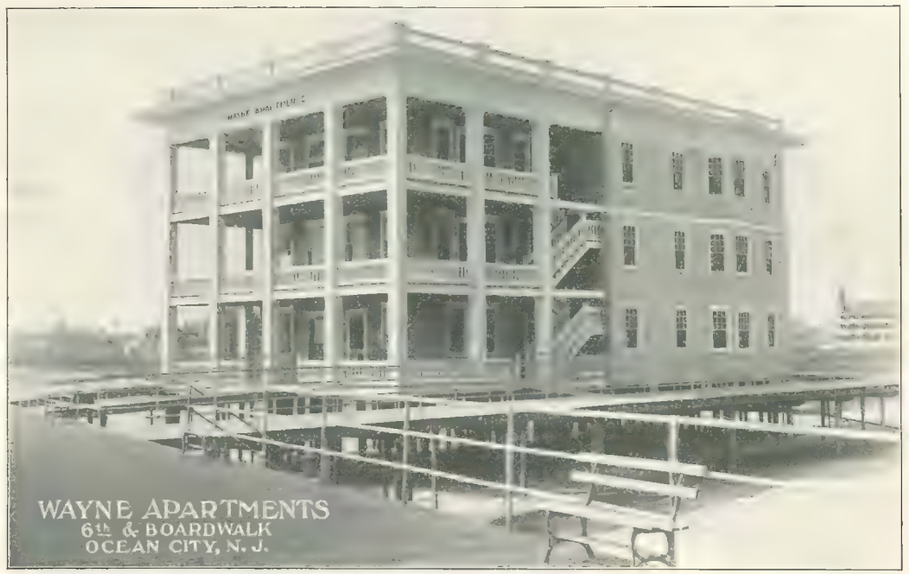
Another Farewell

For the past two years Mr. Maxwell McMichael has served Grace Church faithfully and well as organist.



His whole heart was in his work. He was never so happy as when at the organ.

His Sunday afternoon recitals gave evidence of his tireless devotion to his work and his musical ability. Mr. McMichael was as cheerful as he was indefatigable. He will be greatly missed, especially among the members of the choir. We wish him every success in his career.

Family Prayers

On Sunday morning, May 14th, the Rector's theme was "The Power of United Prayer," (S. Matt., 18:20). He made a serious appeal to all heads of families in the parish to institute in their homes the custom of daily family prayers. He was not unmindful of the difficulties involved but he maintained that whatever the cost, religion must be restored to its central place in our homes. This cannot be accomplished without the family altar.

The Rector asked that the matter be carefully considered during the next few weeks and that those families which were willing to begin on Whitsunday the custom of daily family worship, notify him.

On the following Sunday he announced that several families had indicated their intention to respond and some had already begun. It would be hard to over-estimate the good that would result if this practice should become the rule rather than the exception among us.

A New Organ

On the first Sunday in May the Rector announced by request of the Vestry, that the time had arrived for Grace Church to have a new organ. He did not know that one dollar had been pledged for the purpose but he was confident that it would meet a ready response. He asked that every organization, every family, every individual in the congregation plan to have a share in the raising of this fund. An organ worthy of Grace Church will cost some ten thousand dollars.

It was appropriate that this announcement be made at the first service at which the new organist officiated.

At the close of the service a pledge of fifty dollars started the fund. The following committee has taken charge of the enterprise: Messrs. Lincoln, Landenberger, Chrisman, Bayard, Ball, Davis and McGuire. If the interest and enthusiasm which has been expressed on every hand is any indication, this fund will grow rapidly. A clock has been placed in the vestibule which registers the amount pledged.

The Communicants' Guild

The time for the annual corporate communion of the Communicants' Guild is approaching.

The Guild will attend Holy Communion in a body at half after seven on Trinity Sunday.

The plan this year is for the Guild to assemble in the guild room at twenty minutes past seven. They will sit together in special pews reserved for them. There will be a short address. It is hoped that every member of the Guild will receive the Blessed Sacrament at that time. Other organizations make much of their corporate communions but to the Communicants' Guild, it is the great event of the year.

There will be a special service of preparation for Guild members in the Church on Friday, June 16th, at 7:30 p.m., after which the annual meeting will be held.

In order to bring out the Parish News on or before the first of the month, it is necessary to have all copy in the hands of the printer by the 20th of the month previous. Will all contributors kindly make an effort to conform to this requirement by sending their papers to the Rector or the Editor in good season?

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The annual meeting of The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild held on Tuesday afternoon, May 11th, was both interesting and instructive. As one after another of the committees reported, it was splendid to find always an increase over last year, the box work alone having advanced from $853.76 for 1914-'15 to $945.66 for 1915-'16. The grand total, which includes all branches of missionary work done by the women, is nearly $600 more than that of last year. In this diocese there are one hundred and three parishes, and Grace Church stands well up in the ranks, both in The United Offering and in other missionary work, whereas, in the matter of mission study classes, our parish is number one, with four leaders to its credit. In all directions reports were encouraging.

Three new pledges were decided upon for the coming year in addition to those already standing. Five dollars will be paid yearly to the House of Rest, Germantown, a home for old ladies; ten dollars to S. Barnabas', Germantown, for Miss Rumney's work among the colored people; and twenty dollars yearly for the work of the Diocesan Educational Secretary, Mrs. Pilsbry.

We must not stand still. If the policy of advancement held in the past is to be sustained next year, the goal must be placed farther beyond reach; the ideals must be raised still higher. Advancement and success come from a righteous dissatisfaction with things as they are, coupled with an earnest effort to improve them.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Wm. H. George; Vice-president, Mrs. Thos. S. Cline; Secretary, Mrs. Wm. C. Burk; Treasurer, Mrs. A. L. E. Crouter; Treasurer of the United Offering, Mrs. R. H. North. The members of the Executive Committee also remain as before and Mrs. Horace Fortescue was appointed Assistant to the Secretary.

Junior Branch

In spite of a high wind, which greatly interfered with the oriental decorations, a successful sale was held on the eighth of May, and a goodly sum raised for missions. The members of the Mission Study Class in gay colored costumes representing natives of the far East, added greatly to the scene.

The Rector awarded prizes of Junior pins for perfect attendance at all meetings for the year and announced the honor roll.

The United Offering

The Twelfth Annual Service with the Presentation of the United Offering was held, for the first time, at Old S. Peter's Church, Third and Pine Streets, on Thursday, April 27th. In spite of the absence of the Bishop, which was indeed a disappointment, it was really a most wonderful service, with the setting of the old and interesting church, the vested choir, the Easter lilies, and the inspiration of numbers, about 400 women being present, with an attendance of 110 at the Treasurer's meeting which followed the service.

The Rector, the Rev. Edward M. Jefferys, D. D., preached from the words found in S. Matthew, 15:28—"O woman, great is thy faith; be it unto thee even as thou wilt"—a sermon which, it is safe to say, went straight to the heart of every woman, and will long be remembered as one of the very best of our United Offering addresses. Oh, that the churchwomen of Pennsylvania might be able to attain to so great faith—the faith which stood the test of disappointment because of unanswered prayer, of disillusionment, of the attitude of the disciples, and was finally equal to the greatest test of all—the words of the Master Himself: "It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs!"

The offering presented at the service was the largest semi-annual offering ever made in this diocese. It amounted to $11,972.28, and has since increased to over $12,300. Our Grace Church share was $315.77, and it is the first time we have reached the $300 mark! It was an offering from 88 contributors on a list of 135. This total number of names on the books includes, however, all who have taken boxes since January first, and to whom notices were not mailed. Several of these new contributors were good enough to send voluntary offerings, and we wish to express our appreciation of their thoughtfulness.

It is earnestly hoped that every woman on the list will make an offering in September. There are two special reasons for this.

One is, that Grace Church may do her utmost in the final effort for Pennsylvania's share in the great triennial offering at St. Louis in October. The other is, that we may be able to carry out a plan for the support of one of our very own young women, who is expecting an appointment to Alaska. This will surely give added interest and impetus to the United Offering in Grace Church. Of course, the accomplishment of this plan means the co-operation of all, and, with that, success is assured.

"And must I be giving again and again?
'Oh, no,' said the Angel, piercing me through,
'Just give till the Master stops giving to you'."

Mission Study

The closing session of the Mission Study Classes was held in the assembly room of the Church House on Tuesday, May 2d. The Diocesan Missionary Secretary, Mrs. Pilsbry, opened the session and conducted it in the usual way with the Creed, Meditation and Prayer.

The report of the Junior work was given by Miss Hubbard and Miss Evans, showing that much thought and interest had been expended for and by the Junior workers. Then followed a sketch of the work among the men by Dr. Jefferys.

The Senior Mission Study work was summed up by Mrs. Pilsbry, showing a total of 925 members in Senior classes throughout the diocese. There were 79 in Normal Classes during the winter, 59 of which led Parish Classes. Grace Church, Mt. Airy, was especially mentioned. It is the banner parish of the diocese inasmuch as it has four Senior Leaders.

The special speakers of the day were Dr. Grey, the Educational Secretary of the Board of Missions, and Dr. Jefferys, Medical Missionary to Shanghai. Dr. Grey, whose subject was the Teaching Mission, said that he was strongly impressed with the principles of unity and organization as it exists in our mission study method. In these two things he felt bound to say that the Diocese of Pennsylvania surpassed all others. He emphasized the fact that the teaching of the Church had been neglected in the past, and that the reason of the indifference of the average man was that he had been brought up to be indifferent. History leaves out the existence of God; not denying Him, but ignoring Him. Progress is impossible without recognizing the existence of God and His Church.

When your boy is going to college, find out first if the Church of God is considered.

Dr. Grey is the author of "Latin America," our text book for next year's course. He calls it "The New World: The Other Half of America."

Dr. Jefferys' Subject was "The Preaching Mission," and he prefaced his remarks with the quotation: "The supreme hope of the world is the breaking forth of the Glory of the Son of God."

He referred to the Meditation for that session: the meeting of S. Philip and the Eunuch. That was a preaching mission without church bells, without an organ,—no choir; only a man with a need and a man with a message. The result of that preaching mission was Baptism.

The Church held a preaching mission during last Autumn, but it was a preaching mission to ourselves, in the same old way, to the same people, in the same seats. The subject was: "The Light of the World," but we kept the light well within the cloister of the church. Light means union with life, but we have sterilized ourselves so that there is no life left in us. A mission to be successful must be preached by the laity, outside the four walls of a building, uncloistered. It is the opportunity for us laymen as churchmen to bear witness to the light, so that men may see our good works and glorify God.

The Bishop's subject was, "The Praying Mission," which he illustrated by kneeling before the altar, and singing the Litany of the Church, accompanied by Fr. Ward of S. Elisabeth's. The meeting came to an end with the closing prayers, and the Bishop's benediction.

The offering altogether amounted to $409. Of this, $332 was put in the Bishop's hands to dispose of as he thought best. Just before the presentation of the alms, the Bishop handed Mrs. Pilsbry three books, for her work on Latin America, with a box of flowers; a slight token of appreciation from the members of the Pageant. It was only a remembrance, but an earnest prayer is in the hearts of all who work with her, that the Diocesan Secretary may be spared for many years to labor among us, "revealing to men and women through the Mission Classes, the meaning of the Faith."

It is with deep appreciation that we hear and accept the decision of the Bishop concerning the disposition of his gift:

"To be given to the Missionary Educational Work, an investment," he says, "which will yield rich returns."

We catch the vision with him, for through the upbuilding and strengthening of that work, is bound to come offerings of hands and hearts; of life and money for the establishing of The Kingdom throughout the Diocese.

The educational work of the diocese of Pennsylvania is increasing so rapidly that it is now necessary to provide for its proper handling. Because at present it has no financial support (excepting $50 from the Bishop), there is no room in which to meet and no assistant to relieve Mrs. Pilsbry of the clerical details which devolve on her.

There is needed $400 for a room as headquarters and $300 for the services of an assistant for a few hours each week. To provide this money the Bishop approves of the following plan and has appointed Mrs. George Woodward, Mrs. Frederick W. English, and Mrs. Ralph L. Hayes, (Chairman) as a committee to accomplish it. The Woman's Auxiliary in each parish is asked to pledge a certain amount yearly to the support of this great missionary work.

Although this enterprise is but a few weeks old, the outlook is very encouraging.

Vestry Elections

The results of election for Vestrymen and selection of officers and committees for the ensuing year are as follows: As stated, the meeting was held on Tuesday, May 2d. The Judges of Election, Messrs. Crouter and McGuire, certified to the unanimous election of the following Vestrymen:—

Messrs. E. V. Lansdale, J. W. Bayard, W. F. Fell and F. M. Dunn.

The Rector appointed Dr. A. L. E. Crouter, Rector's Warden.

Mr. J. W. Bayard was elected Accounting Warden.

Mr. F. M. Dunn was elected Secretary of the Vestry.

Mr. E. L. Hagenbaugh was appointed Sexton.

Messrs. McGuire and Dunn were appointed Auditing Committee.

As to standing Committees, the Rector re-appointed the same Committees as appeared in the last issue of the PARISH NEWS, excepting that Mr. E. V. Lansdale heads the Finance Committee, and Mr. W. F. Fell retired therefrom.

The Diocesan Convention

The annual Diocesan Convention was held at the Church of S. Luke and the Epiphany on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 9th and 10th. Those who put their faith in newspaper prophecies doubtless expected that a disruption of the Church was then to be looked for. Nothing of the sort occurred. The Convention was a most harmonious gathering. It never lost the devotional tone of the service of Holy Communion with which it opened. The new provisions for a preliminary or pre-convention ballot greatly reduced the time formerly wasted on elections. The very efficient Committee on the despatch of business, while it gave everyone his opportunity to be heard, prevented the duplication of motions and kept the Convention continuously employed. Everyone knew that his motion was due in regular course; he was on hand to present it and speak for it; and after adequate discussion, which was, in general, unusually clear, brief and to the point, the Convention acted intelligently and finally.

The most important piece of constructive legislation adopted was the Canon for carrying out the scheme of the Church Pension Fund. At the Convention of 1915, the principle of the scheme was approved, but the details necessary for carrying it into effect were left open in the hope that some arrangement could be made for working with our Diocesan Clergy Relief Fund, known as the Christmas Fund. The legal obstacles to any plan of this sort were found, however, to be insuperable at this time; so the Canon was passed, allowing the parochial assessment for the full amount required under the General Pension Fund's general scheme, without any deduction for the amount distributed to the same class of beneficiaries by the Christmas Fund. We were all so thoroughly informed in advance by the Committee in charge, of the merits of this General Fund, its necessity, and of the very moderate degree of justice which is now sought to be obtained through its labors, that we were ready to vote immediately after the Chairman of the Committee in charge had made his opening statement. The Canon was adopted as proposed by the Committee, without change.

A recommended form of Church Charter on which the Committee on Charters had been laboring for three years, was finally, with some changes, adopted. The old form was not in harmony with the legislation of this State. It is hoped that the form now approved will be found suited to the purposes of any parish seeking to be in union with the Convention.

The outstanding events of the Convention's history were not its legislative labors, but the powerful and illuminating charge of the Bishop of the Diocese on the subject of war and the Christian's attitude towards it, on Tuesday morning, and the Missionary session on Tuesday evening.

The Bishop's charge is, we understand, shortly to be published.

It was announced to the Convention that sums of money, aggregating $12,500 each, had been offered the Bishop for use in the erection of new church buildings for S. George's, Richmond, and Epiphany Church, Sherwood, provided that in each case the sum of $25,000 (estimated to be half the cost of completing each church according to the approved plans) was in hand in cash or pledges by June 1st. After the Bishop had announced what other pledges had been received, he stated that he hoped to be able to tell the priest in charge of each of these parishes, at the evening session, that the necessary amount had been made up. The full amount required for S. George's, Richmond, was pledged from the floor of the Convention in a very few minutes; and there seems to be very little doubt that the balance needed for Epiphany, Sherwood, will be forthcoming within the limited time.

At the evening session on Tuesday those who were present—unfortunately far fewer than there should have been—were rewarded with most interesting reports from the Rev. Mr. Arkin on his work at S. George's, Richmond; on Epiphany, Sherwood, from the Rev. Mr. Parker; on work among the colored people from the Rev. Mr. McDuffie, of S. Augustine's; and on the Country Centre Mission from the Rev. Mr. Chattin of Emmanuel, Quakertown. Only by hearing from such men can we get any true apprehension of the nature of the work that lies before this diocese, its difficulties and hardships on the one hand and its opportunities and rewards on the other. The speakers were all men of marked ability, hard workers in the fields from which they came to talk to us. They made the situation real to everyone who heard them; and the only regret of those who were there was that so many of their fellow members failed to appear.

The Convention was told of two other steps of great importance which are proposed to be taken. One is the taking over of the Church of the Ascension at Broad and South Streets as a diocesan church, to be known as S. Mary's and to be enlarged and beautified with Mrs. Watson's generous legacy. The other is the removal of the headquarters of the City Mission from Old S. Paul's Church to buildings to be erected on land adjoining the diocesan church and the bringing of that body into closer relations with the Convention through the appointment by the Convention of the members of its governing body. It is hoped that the details of these measures will be worked out in the near future and published; so that as in the case of the Clergy Pension Fund this year, the whole subject will have been thoroughly considered in advance and a substantial unanimity attained, as to the desirability not only of the end to be sought but also of the methods for that purpose.

The whole tone of the Convention was one of progress. From every side came reports of advance and of hopes for solid and steady growth in the future. We felt ourselves at an open door: and everyone seemed ready, as our Spanish brethren would put it, to "Go forth with God."

The Cambridge Conference

The Conference for Church Work in Cambridge, Massachusetts, will be held from June 23 to July 8, 1916. The headquarters, as in previous years will be at the Episcopal Theological School. Application for registration, or for further information may be made to Miss Marian De C. Ward, 415 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

The Right Rev. Charles H. Brent, Missionary Bishop of the Philippines; Dr. Samuel Hart, Dean of the Berkeley Divinity School; and Rev. Dr. Wm. T. Manning, Rector of Trinity Parish, New York City, will lecture during the first week.

Miss Tillotson, Educational Secretary, Church Missions House, New York; Miss Van Harlingen, Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Miss Sturgis, Boston; and Miss Corey, Educational Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary, Massachusetts, will lead Mission Study classes the first week.

Prof. Boynton, General Theological Seminary, New York; Miss Withers of Yonkers; and Dr. Elmendorf will lecture on Religious Education.

Deaconess Carroll, of Washington, will speak on the training of the Girl's Friendly.

The second week, Dr. McClenthen of Baltimore and the Rev. J. O. S. Huntington, O. H. C., will lecture.

Mrs. A. H. Pilsbry, Pennsylvania's Educational Secretary, will lead a Mission Study class.

Mrs. Sterling of Massachusetts and Miss Margaret Evans of Haverford, Pa., will teach the new Junior Course Book, written by the Rev. P. E. Osgood.

Bishop Roots of Hankow, will lecture on "China from the Inside."

Dr. Jefferys will lead a class on "Modern Discipleship."

Miss Barney of New Haven, Conn., and the Rev. Mr. Lewis of Burlington, N. J., will teach classes in Religious Education.

Miss Vida D. Scudder, Wellesley College, will lecture on "Social Christianity."

Bishop Perry of Rhode Island, will be the chaplain during the first week, and Dean Vernon of Portland, Maine, the second.

The Summer School for Church Music, held simultaneously, offers a most interesting program:

Practical Choir Training, by Mr. Madeley Richardson, N. A. Mus. Doc. Oxon.

History of Church Music—The Hymn tune, the carol, etc., by Mr. Richard Appel.

Plain Song, taught by Canon Douglas (it is hoped).

Application should be made to Mr. Richard Appel, 15 Hilliard St., Cambridge, Mass.

To the Parishioners of Grace Church, Mt. Airy:

For a long time many members of the parish have realized that to protect its existing property and to provide for its future development it was necessary that the Church should own the lot adjoining that property in the rear. This was brought home very vividly to the Vestry last winter, when we were considering plans for the enlargement of the Parish House. It was found that no adequate plan could be devised which did not extend quite a distance over that lot. Efforts have been several times made to purchase the lot, but without success. This spring, however, we learned that negotiations were on foot for the sale to a builder of all the unimproved land of which this lot forms a part, and that it was necessary for us, if we wished the lot for the Church, to act at once. We therefore renewed our inquiries in the matter and finally learned that the lowest price at which we could purchase the lot was $4,000. In view of its special value to the Church and of the danger that if it passed into other hands the price would be increased, we concluded it was to the best interest of the Church to purchase it. Settlement must be made in thirty days. We hope to have the whole amount in hand or promised within that time. For that purpose we ask that contributions or pledges for this purpose be sent to J. Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown.

The Rector's Letter

ANOTHER APPEAL FOR MONEY.

"When shall we have rest from these continuous requests for contributions?"

I'll tell you, my dear exasperated friend, when religion is dead and the church a memory.

You know perfectly well that you do not want these appeals silenced. They are indications of life, growth, expansion. We are preparing for a greater future. May God give us large vision and generosity.

Very soon after the new Organ Fund was started, the Vestry came to realize the urgency of the purchase of the land adjacent to the Church property. It became necessary, therefore, to follow one appeal with another. The new organ is urgent, but the securing of the land is more so. After we shall have raised the $4,000, we can concentrate with even greater enthusiasm upon the gradual accumulation of the $10,000.

The undertaking is great, but then the incentive is great. Let us calmly face the magnitude of our task, and then resolutely and prayerfully set to work.

I learned incidentally of one woman who had already accumulated a considerable sum for the new organ by baking cakes. I imagine they are superb cakes. I learned also of a man who, in one breath, cheerfully pledged $150 toward the land fund and $250 toward the organ fund. These two are not the only ones who have caught the idea either. When we all catch it, and gather our gifts, large and small, the deed will be done.

Let us never forget for Whom we work and give.

Faithfully yours in Him,

Thomas S. Cline.

Vacation Time

The Church knows no "Closed Season."

There is a Collect, Epistle and Gospel for every Sunday—even during the vacation period.

The good Churchman will always look up the Church when Sunday comes 'round, whether he be in the mountains or at the shore. If perchance there is no Church available he always has his Prayer Book handy.

"Summer is coming and religious life tends to be more slenderly in contact with the Church than during the working season. We are told on all sides that family prayers are not customary any longer, and likely this is true—however, much family life that is sound and sweet will always BE a prayer. Do not the above two facts somehow join hands in presenting a specific question to us: Can we not pledge ourselves to family prayers this summer?

"The need of this agreement while we are 'vacationing' or only relaxing from the tension and drive of the winter may not be obvious at first, but surely is there. We are given the summer to fill the reservoirs of power for the winter. Even recreation is re-creational! Shall we omit the filling of the reservoir of the spirit? The vision arises most alluringly of every family of this congregation, wherever it may be—at sea-shore, mountains or in home-surroundings still—kneeling some time every day, knowing that others are doing the same wherever they are—and praying for the life we all live as members one of another. If there could be an intercessory prayer agreement this summer between the families of this congregation to unite in real intercession for the work that lies ahead, we should find in the autumn that the reservoir of corporate power was so full that we need have no fears even in the face of the tremendous challenge of our work-to-be-done."

The Observer

I, the unobserved observer, admit that I am a long-faced individual, but fortunately I do occasionally glimpse the humorous side of things. It keeps me from taking myself and others too seriously.

I often wondered what was meant by "the imperviousness of the human mind," until a friend informed me the other day that Grace Church was getting "Romish." Upon being asked what he meant, he said a lamp had been hung in the sanctuary.

Now I do remember vaguely having seen lamps in Roman Catholic Churches, but only a few weeks ago I happened into S. Stephen's Church, and the Church of S. Luke and the Epiphany, and I distinctly recall that they both have sanctuary lamps.

Can it be that Romanism has claimed these strongholds?

Then I remembered another thing, and my appreciation of that phrase "the imperviousness of the human mind" grew by leaps and bounds.

I remembered seeing my friend who thought Grace Church was getting "Romish" sit Sunday after Sunday, apparently awake and attentive, while the Rector preached a Lenten Course of sermons on the Atonement, in which the keynote of the Protestant Reformation, "Justification by Faith," was clearly sounded and resounded. Suddenly the meaning of another puzzling phrase dawned upon me, "they strain at a gnat and swallow a camel."

Pews and Sittings

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Most women like to have some sort of fancy work on hand during the summer for afternoons on the porch, and it is almost a necessity when one is away, with little to do but rest and enjoy oneself. A great deal can be accomplished by using odd moments now and then. Would it not add zest and interest in the work if it were done with some special purpose?

Last summer, as many may remember, a number of the women of Grace Church prepared articles in this way for the lepers in Kumamoto, Japan.

Mrs. Dallas Dixon is in charge of the work, and sees to the forwarding of all boxes for these people.

From her letter last year, one would be led to believe that the box from Grace Church was quite the most attractive one she had received.

Although these articles are used for 'Xmas gifts, they have to be started on their journey early in September, for it's a long, long way to Japan and delays are usual.

The Committee would like to send another box this summer, and asks for contributions of pretty things of all kinds. Hair ribbons and handkerchiefs, neck fixings and knitted articles are all wanted. Any one desiring wool for knitting may obtain it from Mrs. E. W. Jenkins, 334 Gowen Avenue.

The Japanese are fond of white and dainty shades; strong, brilliant colors do not appeal to their sense of the beautiful.

Quantities of dressed dolls are particularly wanted, for they are eagerly welcomed by young and old alike, even the men showing a real affection for these poor substitutes for the children denied them by reason of their terrible affliction.

Is it not worth while to put odd moments to such good use? Let us hope for a box twice the size of the one sent last summer.

Every one will be interested to hear that the amount cleared at the fête on May 24th is approximately $2,400.

The Church School

A meeting of the officers and teachers of the Church School was held Wednesday evening, June 14th, in the Parish House.

Mrs. Crouter gave a report of the First Annual Meeting of the Germantown Branch of the Sunday-school Association, held in Christ Church recently. Under the leadership of Dr. Bradner, the new Christian Nurture Course, now being produced under the direction of the General Board of Religious Education, received a marked impetus. A number of Sunday-schools in Germantown plan to introduce this new and churchly system next year. Grace Church has been a pioneer in this movement.

Another important meeting was reported by the Rector.

The Diocesan Board of Religious Education has at last been aroused to enlarge the scope of its activities to include not only Sunday-school work, but the religious aspects of Collegiate, Theological and Secondary education. The Sunday-school Association which, because of its illustrious past, has hitherto overshadowed the newly-constituted Diocesan Board, now becomes one of five departments under that Board: namely, the Department of Parochial Education or Sunday-school Work. This is a tremendous step in the development of the Church's educational work in this Diocese. The fruits of it will soon appear.

Mr. Meehan spoke of the value and help to be obtained from the Summer Conference for Teachers, which is held each year at Bethlehem, Pennsylvania.

He also spoke of the importance of keeping the children in touch with the Church after the school is closed for the summer.

A vote was taken to the effect that the pupils should be instructed in the importance of regular giving throughout the year, not neglecting the summer months.

The money in the Missions side of their envelopes should be devoted to the Children's Ward of the Germantown Hospital —the sum to be presented at the rally in the fall. Pupils who attend Church during vacation may place their envelopes on the plate, but the amount will be counted in the offering at the rally.

Discussions followed regarding the kind of work to be provided for the upper seniors; changes in the opening and closing exercises; promotions and marking; and the necessity for numerous fire drills.

Decided opinion was expressed in favor of constant drilling in the Grace Church Catechism. This Catechism puts in concise form many things every Christian "ought to know and believe to his soul's health," and insures a certain amount of definite teaching for all. The request was made that it be printed, and put into the hands of scholars.

Rally Day has been fixed for Sunday, October first.

There will be a corporate Communion for the officers and teachers of the Church School on Sunday, October 8th, at 7:30 a. m.

The Church School Commencement

Although the commencement exercises could not be held in the Church close as planned, on account of the inclement weather, they were picturesque and unusual.

The national flag and school banner were carried in procession, as well as the Cross.

A platform at the head of the aisle, enabled the speakers to overlook the congregation.

After Evening Prayer, the Rector spoke briefly of the past year's work. The Superintendent then conducted the commencement exercises proper.

The following papers were read by scholars of the upper grades:

"The Father and Founder of Modern Missions," by Charlotte Wilkinson; "John Wesley," by Gordon Crouter; "The Oxford Movement," by H. Edward Jefferson; "The Establishment of the Church in America," by Stanley Thornton.

Two other papers were announced by title, their writers having left the city for the summer. They were "Savonarola," by Elizabeth Sheble, and "The Conversion of a Buddhist," by Helen McFillen.

These papers were upon subjects connected with the year's study in the Church School, and reflected great credit upon those who prepared them.

The following Honor Rolls were read:

One Way to Spend a Vacation

This is the way one woman spent a delightful portion of the month allotted to her recuperation and rejuvenation. She had been rather strenuous the early part of the month, as she planned to loaf and "invite her soul" and write letters at her last stopping-place, S. Mary's Convent at Peekskill, where she expected to restore both physical and spiritual tone. She attained the latter, she invited her soul and it came, but the letters were not written there, and she finally had to "pull up" and rest, so she would be fit to resume her daily labors.

The non-attainment of the looked-for rest was due to the many interesting things to see and do. The Sisters make a specialty of embroidery, exquisite in every detail, for vestments and such secular things as trousseaux and layettes, and they have a large business in Altar bread. The Sister in charge was most amiable about accepting help from awkward and ignorant, but willing volunteers, and the Altar bread room was a favorite place to spend a few hours.

The tiny Chapel in the Convent is a gem artistically, and the frescoing was done by one of the Sisters, who has also done much other Church beautifying. Think of being able to get behind the scenes where such things are done!

The Community of S. Mary, an American Order, as the Sisterhood of S. Margaret is an English one, owns about seventy acres at Peekskill, Mt. S. Gabriel, above the town and opposite the Highlands of the Hudson, a most beautiful location. One of those very "superior" New Yorkers once told the writer that Pennsylvania had nothing which could touch his River, and after spending a few days on it and by it, the loyal Philadelphian was reluctantly obliged to concede the point. The River and its attendant mountains were a never ending source of delight in sunshine or shadow (of which there was a good deal,) or by moonlight.

The Sisters conduct a girls' boarding-school, which is housed in a noble building, designed by Ralph Adams Cram, and located on the highest point of the grounds. In front of it is a lovely formal garden, while below the garden is a ravine left in much the condition of the "forest primeval," where one can be as completely lost as one pleases. One of the chief joys of the surroundings is the lack of cultivation in spots, great masses of rocks, undergrowth left to its own sweet will and paths looking delightfully wild and woodsy.

Summer guests are not housed in the Convent proper, but in the two buildings formerly used for the school, and are now residences for lay teachers. The houses are under the care of two Guest Sisters, ideal hostesses, who look after you if you want to be looked after and let you alone if you don't. You may wander where you will about the grounds, except in front of the Convent and in the vicinity of the Clergy House, and I'm perfectly sure that the most perfect view is to be obtained from that very spot.

The great Croton Dam, the head of New York City's water supply, is within a morning's motor ride, and there are beautiful drives in all directions. Then there is the wonderful River with all its historical interests. A nice little steamer leaves Peekskill early in the morning and makes the trip to Newburgh and return before supper. One passes West Point on the trip, but the steamer does not stop. Another of Cram's buildings, the famous Chapel at the military school, is a conspicuous object from the River.

But, after all, the distinguishing characteristic of S. Mary's is the spiritual one, which is what one needs on a vacation, and so frequently misses. You can attend services or not as you like, but there is abundant opportunity for as many as you can assimilate. The Community observes the canonical hours, beginning with Mass at 7 and closing with Compline. The church is open at all times for private devotion and meditation, and even in the Convent Chapel you are welcome if you go as a worshipper and not as a curious observer.

No matter what one's particular shade of churchmanship may be, it would be quite impossible to be uncomfortable at S. Mary's, and there were all shades or heights or depths gathered within its hospitable walls, from Associates of the Order to Presbyterians. Even the writer's most churchly friends were somewhat aghast at her decision to go to Peekskill, and still more so at her enthusiasm when she returned, but she is going again at the first opportunity.

The Oxford Movement

H. EDWARD JEFFERSON

It has been well said that no story in the whole history of our Church since the time of S. Augustine, A. D. 597, is so splendid as the story of the Oxford Movement. It is a story that has every sort of interest. It is exciting, romantic, chivalrous, like the stories of the Crusades. It has its humor as well as its tragedy, and the actors in it were among the most spiritual men who ever lived in England or America.

The story of the movement has this supreme attraction—to study it is to learn never to be afraid to take the unpopular side, never to despair of God's Church nor of His Truth. In the lives of the men whose honored names are interwoven inseparably with the record of this movement can be seen a beauty, a genius, a depth of spiritual power which are a reflection of the life of God. They were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and to read their history is a sure cure for discouragement regarding our Church, its present or its future.

In 1836 the Church of England was in a state of lethargy. Men seemed to have forgotten that the Church was a Divine Institution; Apostolic succession was almost denied; the Sacraments were underrated; the Holy Communion was seldom celebrated, and the form of worship was very loose. The State threatened to control the Church.

A few Churchmen at Oxford, including Keble, Newman and Pusey set themselves to remedy this condition and to revive Church loyalty. Oxford became the center of this new movement. Their cardinal doctrine was that the Church of England was a part of the visible Holy Catholic Church, and had unbroken connection with the primitive Church. They inculcated high views of the Sacraments and emphasized points of agreement with those branches of the Catholic Church which claimed Apostolic succession.

The party grew in numbers and influence in spite of the opposition of low and broad Churchmen, who declared their teaching tended toward Rome.

Their fears seemed justified, when in 1845 Newman and some of his friends actually joined the Roman Communion. But permanent injury to the movement was averted largely because of the leadership of the staunch Anglican Churchmen, Keble and Pusey. In fact, the movement had a very stimulating and beneficial effect upon the Anglican Church, restoring the dignity of worship, deepening the spirit of reverence and devotion, awakening the clergy to their divine commission, and arousing the people to greater zeal for the Church.

The Rancocas Trip of Troop 67

On Friday afternoon, May 5th, the first class Scouts of Troop 67, eleven strong, left Philadelphia for Brown's Mills.

Some went by train and others by motor, arriving at the Inn in time for a most enjoyable dinner. After a few scout games all turned in to be fresh for the morrow.

Saturday, May 6th, we were up bright and early and after packing our duffle bags and enjoying a hearty breakfast, we hiked three miles to New Lisbon where we found our canoes awaiting us along with our tents, and, last but not least, "Fritz," our cook with whom we had yet to get acquainted.

The business of getting our canoes safely packed and launched was soon accomplished, and then we were away on the swift current of the Rancocas for our two days' trip to Mt. Holly. The storms of the Spring had swollen the creek to an unusual degree, and sunken logs here and there made us all gasp with astonishment to see a canoe suddenly stop and appear to be about ready to turn turtle, but nothing of the kind happened.

The first stop for lunch was made without mishap, and right here is where we got acquainted with "Fritz," after partaking of the meal he quickly prepared; we are all pro-German as far as he is concerned. Then we took up our paddles and moved on to a point about five miles beyond where we found a splendid camping ground for the night. We erected our large tent here while the evening meal was being prepared. Afterward a large camp fire was built, and stories swapped till bedtime. Fritz brought down the house by a vivid description of his first visit to New York.

At six the next morning, we were up and had a plunge in the creek, and soon realized that May and July are two very different months for bathing! Unfortunately, it began to rain heavily, and we were forced to spend the morning in the tent.

After a splendid dinner, we packed up our duffle bags and pushed off for Mt. Holly. The Rancocas is very similar to our own Wissahickon, but it is deeper and wider and much more favorable to paddling. It was most difficult for one to realize, as we wound around in the labyrinths of the stream, and as our eye caught the amazing beauty and wildness of the scene, that we were not many miles from civilization. A quick turn in the channel, and a friendly homestead, would bring us back to realize that we were not so very far in the wilderness after all.

As we pulled out our canoes and lifted out our bags, the trip seemed all too soon over, and we wished it were just beginning.

Thus, 67 has a most pleasant memory to recall when its scouting days are over. Such appears to be the case for most of our lads. Three years ago the troop was formed and they all responded in a noble way to its ideals, and most of them have gotten something worth while out of it. It is a great shock to realize that they are boys no longer; the future beckons them, and they are hurrying forward in joyful anticipation to answer its call. They are through with scouting; it has served its purpose in their lives, but while the romance of it will fade away, they cannot lose its ideals and we believe that in the struggle of life they will fight better for having been First Class Scouts.

The Father and Founder of Modern Missions

CHARLOTTE WILKINSON.

The first Englishman to go as a missionary to a foreign people was William Carey. He was born in Northamptonshire on August 17th, 1761. As a boy, William Carey devoted himself entirely to the study of birds and flowers, going off by himself for days at a time. At fourteen he left his home and went to Dackleton, where he was apprenticed to a shoemaker. While making shoes, however, Mr. Carey decided that he would like to become a minister, so he started preparation for his life work. Finally, after hard study he was ordained, at the age of twenty-six, in a Baptist Church, at Moulton.

As a minister, Mr. Carey did not receive enough money to support his family, so he was obliged to open a cobbler's shop and return to his trade. The inside of this minister's shop was very different from any other shop of its kind. A great map hung on the wall in front of him. Directly beside him on his bench, was a large globe, made of leather scraps, with the outlines of the continents roughly scratched upon it. In front of the minister stood a stool, on which could be seen Hebrew, Greek and Latin books, which he diligently studied while his fingers were plying his trade.

There were two books, especially, which made a great impression upon Carey; the Bible and the Voyages of Captain Cook. From the latter he learned of strange lands and uncivilized people, who had never heard of Christ. Carey had a burning desire to go out to these people and teach them of the Saviour of the world. One time he mentioned his desire to a group of ministers, but they rebuked him, and one of them said, "When the Lord wants to convert the heathen He will do it without your help or mine." Not being discouraged by this rebuke, Mr. Carey wrote a pamphlet, in which he said it was the Church's duty to win the heathen to Christ. This pamphlet attracted so much attention that Mr. Carey was asked to preach before a group of ministers. He took his text from Isaiah 54: 2-3, having two divisions to his sermon; one, "Expect great things from God," and the other, "Attempt great things for God."

As a result of this sermon a few of the ministers formed a society and promised to help Carey spread the Gospel to foreign lands. At one of the meetings of this society, a surgeon, who had lived in India, told of India's great need for Christian workers. During his talk, he said: "There is a gold mine in India, but it seems almost as deep as the center of the earth. Who will venture to explore it?" Mr. Carey immediately replied, "I will go down, but remember, you must hold the ropes."

A few months after this meeting Mr. Carey and his family left for India. Mr. Carey would not accept any salary from the society in England, believing that a missionary should be self-supporting. For some time after his arrival in India, he was unsuccessful in securing a position, and as a result his family suffered for many months from hunger and sickness in the tiger swamps of Calcutta.

Finally, after many hardships, Mr. Carey secured a position in an indigo factory, where he worked for five years. While working in the factory he perfected himself in the languages of the country, set up a printing press and translated the New Testament into Bengali, one of the many dialects of India. On account of this translation, and because of his great learning, Mr. Carey soon became famous as a scholar. He was made Professor of Languages in the Government College at Calcutta, receiving $7,500 a year for his services. This great increase in his salary made it possible for him to more effectively carry on his mission work among the natives. Mr. Carey stayed in this position as professor for thirty years, and up until four years of his death. He took only $200 of his annual income for the support of his family, and gave all the rest for the publishing of Bibles and the building of Churches, schools and hospitals.

Mr. Carey's literary labors were enormous and invaluable. He translated the whole Bible into six different dialects and the New Testament into twenty-one different dialects of India.

Mr. Carey will not only be remembered as the man who translated the Bible for India, but as the man through whose influence two terrible customs of India were abolished. In 1801 he secured the passage of a law which prevented mothers from sacrificing their children by throwing them into the Ganges. In 1829, through his endeavors, a proclamation was issued, putting a stop to the burning of wives on the funeral pyres of their husbands.

At the age of 73, in the year 1834, Wm. Carey died in India, where he had worked for over forty years. As the first Englishman to go out as a missionary to a foreign land, he will always be remembered as the "Father and Founder of Modern Missions."

The foundation which Mr. Carey laid so well has been built upon by others, and the example which he set has been followed by many soldiers and servants of Christ since that time.

Hyphenated Churchmen

We have heard much about the hyphenated citizen lately, what of the hyphenated Churchman?

All who have been confirmed are not whole-hearted Churchmen. This divided loyalty is the real source of the Church's weakness.

An exchange paper speaks of the Churchman with a capital C. and draws the following contrasts, which are at least suggestive;

A Churchman is one who believes fully in the Church; a churchman believes in it a little. A Churchman belongs to her out of principle; a churchman, out of mere preference. A Churchman stands by the parish no matter who the Rector is; a mere churchman if he like the Rector. The Churchman is in his place at worship, stern circumstances alone preventing; a churchman, if weather, and convenience, or any one of a half-dozen other things be favorable. A Churchman kneels; a churchman only leans over.

Rector's Letter to the Children

My dear Friends:

I am going to tell you about the most thrilling experience I have had since I left Mt. Airy, a fortnight ago. That is saying a great deal, for I spent three days with the Scouts at the Thousand Islands, and you may be sure something thrilling was liable to happen there any minute. Then I came down the St. Lawrence, over the rapids, through beautiful scenery, to quaint old Quebec—all of which was indeed thrilling.

But I really think the most exciting moment was when I saw His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, ride onto the plateau at Valcartier Camp and receive the royal salute.

There was going to be a review of the troops, and they were drawn up in a straight line a mile long. General Wilson, the Camp Commandant, was issuing orders from the centre of the field. Officers were galloping here and there to see that all was in readiness.

There was a hush of expectancy, when suddenly the royal standard, the flag which is flown only when a member of the family of Kings is present, floated out in the breeze. As the Duke and his aides rode to the center of the field, the massed bands of the Camp played the familiar strains of "God Save the King."

The Duke, who was once Field Marshal of the British Army, and is now Governor-General of Canada, had come to Valcartier, the greatest of the military camps of the Dominion, to inspect the nature of the training that is being given to the men who are about to meet Britain's enemies at the front.

No one could fail to recognize in the Duke a great soldier. His inspection of the troops was very thorough. After he had passed up and down the long lines he took his stand by the flag, and the troops marched past, battalion after battalion. They were sturdy, bronzed, resolute men. They will keep up the high standard the Canadians have set at the front, I am sure.

Finally, the long line formed again and moved forward across the plain in one solid phalanx. Then came the royal salute again and cheers for the Commander and the Governor-General.

The next day it was my privilege to attend the farewell reception given to his Royal Highness, in the City Hall in Quebec, for he is soon to return to England.

In reply to the Mayor's address, he spoke his solemn adieu to Quebec. I know it was solemn, from the expression of his face, but as it was in French, I am afraid I missed some of it.

Is it any wonder the Canadians have been very proud of their Governor-General? It is not merely that he called Queen Victoria "mother" and King Edward "brother." It is not only that he is uncle to His present Majesty King George V, but they know his splendid devotion to the interests of the Empire for a half-century, and they are aware how closely he has identified himself with the interests of the people of Canada during the last five years.

I overheard him say that he would lose little time after his return to England in getting to the front, where he would thank the Canadian soldiers, as indeed the King has recently done, for their splendid work.

Faithfully yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

The Triennial Presentation of the United Offering

September, and our great triennial service only one month distant! On Thursday, October 12th (the second day of the Convention), there will gather, in Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, a representative body of Churchwomen from all over the world. The Cathedral has a seating capacity of only 1,000, half of which will be needed, and reserved, for the delegates from the Woman's Auxiliary and the Junior Department. Arrangements have been made for two overflow services. The early hour (8 A. M., as in Cincinnati in 1910) will doubtless make some difference in the attendance. However, women living in the suburbs of St. Louis have expressed their intention of "coming in to the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday evening," that they may be on hand in the early morning, and it goes without saying that every available place will be filled.

Why such deep interest in, and enthusiasm about, this particular service? You, who have attended it in the years gone by, may say: "Why ask such a foolish question?" But, dear friends, we must remember that all do not know, and that many do not care simply because they do not know. We must tell them over and over again, that this is the one service (and only once in three years) for all Churchwomen everywhere,—the great triennial presentation of their thank offering, the one great "united" service of consecration in the celebration of the Eucharist! We call it "The Presentation of the United Offering." Who can fathom the depths of meaning and of feeling for which that name stands? We realize so little all that it covers; yes, literally "covers," for it is hidden in the souls of the women who really understand what the United Offering is, and who have truly felt its inspiration. At the Cambridge Conference a member of the Program Committee expressed the opinion that "all of our woman's work should be carried on under the United Offering"—a sweeping statement, surely, and one to which the writer cannot subscribe, but it does go to show "which way the wind blows."

Shall we call to mind, at this time, one or two facts?

The United Offering is the only fund we have "from women, to women, for women." It comes "from" thankful women, goes "to" women who are giving their lives "for" other women, that they, too, may hear the good news and rejoice.

The United Offering is the only fund the Board of Missions actually has in hand before it is spent. It is, therefore, a fund very highly valued by the Board, relieving it in large measure from anxiety, as also the woman worker, who knows that, when her salary is due, it will be paid.

Now, what is our present aim? Our aim for the Diocese is, to present in St. Louis, on October 12th, at least $50,000, as over against $39,000 in 1913. Our aim for Grace Church, is to bring our triennial offering up to $1,500, that we may be able to provide the salary, for three years, of "one of our own girls" who expects to go to Alaska next year. Will you help in the accomplishment of these two aims? We shall need a few special gifts, and, above all, the interest and co-operation of every woman in the Parish. Even if you are not a regular contributor, do not miss the joy of a share in our great triennial thank offering. Notices of the Fall collection will go out, to the women of the Parish, about September 15th — earlier than usual, because it is the triennial year.

We must repeatedly call attention to the fact that, although we have had this United Offering fund for twenty-seven years, we are as yet able to support only about 180 of our 300 women workers. The Board is obliged to appropriate some $50,000 each year from general funds for this purpose. Surely the resources of the women of the Church are sufficient, not only for the training and support of all our workers but for the provision of a pension fund, which will be needed more and more with the passing of each triennial. What is required of us? Surely this: A keener sense of our stewardship.

"All things come of Thee, O Lord, and of Thine own have we given Thee."

IN MEMORIAM

When Allen F. Horton passed to his rest at his home in Mt. Airy, on Wednesday, the 16th of this month, Grace Church lost one of her most devoted members.

He was in all respects a genial and loyal Churchman, and unfailing in attendance at services to welcome new-comers.

His practical guidance as Chairman of the Every Member Canvass, produced results which placed the finances of the Parish upon a sound basis.

During a long and painful illness, his faith and Christian fortitude remained unshaken, and stand as shining examples to us who mourn his loss.

The deep and affectionate sympathy of every member of Grace Parish is extended to his wife and son in their bereavement.

Confirmation

During the last week in September the Rector will be pleased to talk with all persons desirous of Confirmation.

Throughout October and November Confirmation Preparation Lectures will be given Sunday afternoons, after Evening Prayer.

Group meetings and personal interviews will be arranged with the candidates in addition to these public lectures.

The Bishop-Suffragan will make a visitation to Grace Church at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of the Sunday next before Advent, November 26th.

Will the members of the congregation please bear this subject in mind at times of intercession?

The Observer

I can close my eyes and see a picture. Let me draw it for you:

It is of a large room on the ground floor in the rear of a church. There are high windows with brown Holland shades on three sides. The floor is covered with cocoa matting, and there are many long benches with reversible backs, like car seats. On one side is the door, and opposite is a foot-high platform and a desk.

Upon one of the side walls is a yellowed representation of Ceylon, and on the other a faded open scroll, said to depict the Andaman Islands.

These maps were associated in my child-mind with India's coral strand, Ceylon's spicy breezes, the fate of toothsome missionaries and a pleasing prospect of everything but vile man.

This was a Sunday-school room, as of course you have guessed, but maybe you have not thought of it as a recreation ground.

Sunday at home was a serious occasion fifty years ago. We were not only not to indulge in sports, but walking abroad, even, was discouraged. Both play and enlivening story books were barred. The hours from four in the afternoon to bedtime must have had more than sixty minutes apiece in them. The one bright spot in the day, at least for normally healthy boys, was the Sunday-school.

While under restraint in our day schools, for there we were marked for deportment as well as for lessons, and a poor card meant trouble at home, there was no limit to the things we could do from 9 to 10.30 o'clock on Sunday mornings, all the way from playing hooky, to making life a burden to "dear teacher."

A child who had the answer to questions in the lesson, was looked at in wonder. Teachers did not expect it. They sadly explained the lesson to deaf ears. We rejoiced in being noisy and otherwise troublesome; in sort of getting square for the oppressions of the week. Teaching was largely by incompetents, and any sort of discipline was unknown.

It has been reserved to me, during these later years, to see a CHURCH SCHOOL in operation in Grace Church, Mt. Airy. Believe me, it is a different thing from the spineless Sunday-school of my childhood. It is a graded school in the highest sense of the term, conducted under the direction of experts in instruction. Following frequent examinations, there are promotions for those who have proved progress. There is a definite scheme of religious education from the object lessons of the trundle-bedders, right up to graduation from the advanced classes.

Rally days, festivals, commencements fill the Church from season to season, and the students, large and small, are vitally interested in every stage of a systematic course of study and instruction that brings out educated Churchmen and Churchwomen.

The Apportionments

The new list of parochial shares in the apportionments for 1916-1917 has been published.

The apportionment for General Missions to the Diocese of Pennsylvania for the thirteen months from October 1st, 1916, to November 1st, 1917, has been fixed by the General Board of Missions at $143,704.

The amount of the Diocesan Missionary Budget for the current year (April 20th, 1916, to April 20th, 1917), as adopted by the Convention, is $36,300.

The Convention has ordered that the amount of $2,000 for Religious Education, and the amount of $600 for the work of the Social Service Commission of the Diocese, be apportioned among the parishes and missions in the same manner as the missionary apportionment.

The list showing the parochial shares includes 185 parishes and missions, with apportionments ranging from $0.04 to $8,621.76. Grace Church ranks high in the list, standing nineteenth from the top.

Our apportionments for the coming year are as follows:

General Missions	$1,874.15
Diocesan Missions	473.42
Religious Education	26.08
Social Service	7.82
Total	$2,381.47

Now that we have acquired the habit of regular giving for missions through the duplex envelopes, and in addition to this have established the custom of devoting our Easter Offering to missions, there will be no difficulty in meeting all these obligations. This past year we gave considerably more than the above total for General Missions alone.

During the coming year we have large enterprises of our own to push forward—the New Organ, the Land Fund and the Endowment Fund; but let us resolve that our missionary offerings shall not suffer because of these. If we do our duty abroad, God will prosper us at home.

Ruling of the Bishop

It has been thought expedient by the Bishop to direct that children under sixteen years of age be withheld from attendance upon the services of the Church until further notice, in view of the present danger of contagion.

Our Church school is not scheduled to open until October 1st, and a further announcement will be made in this connection.

67 Goes to the Thousand Islands

On August 1st our Boy Scouts left Mt. Airy in two automobiles for the best trip yet undertaken. We lunched at New Hope and proceeded to Tarrytown, where we boarded our train for Canada, thus avoiding New York City.

Early the following day we arrived at Cliff Cottage, beautifully situated on the banks of the St. Lawrence near Rockport, Canada.

The outdoor activities consist of fishing, swimming and boating.

Shortly after our arrival, we went on a three-day camping trip to Dog Lake, and later, various portions of Canada were visited in motor-boats. On one occasion the hydroplane races for the International Cup were witnessed, and with great interest.

The days pass all too quickly, and we cannot find words to express our gratitude properly to Mr. and Mrs. Bodine for placing their cottage and motor-boat at our disposal. Their efforts to make our visit pleasant are untiring. We also desire to make our acknowledgments to Messrs. Hansell and McGuire, who so kindly, by the use of their motor-cars, made it possible for us to avoid New York City on our outward journey.

The Box for Japan

Those who have been working this summer for the Lepers' Christmas Box, will be interested to know that it will be packed on Wednesday, September 6th, at 4 o'clock, at the residence of Mrs. E. Wheeler Jenkins, 334 Gowen Avenue, Mt. Airy.

Please send articles by that date, if not convenient to take them in person, for the box must be forwarded early in order to reach Japan by Christmas.

Any new dainty article will be appreciated, and it is hoped that the surprise and pleasure will be as great to both those who send, and to those who receive, as it was last year.

Confirmation

The first Sunday in October the Confirmation Class will organize. The last Sunday in November the Bishop Suffragan will make his visitation.

On each of the intervening Sundays (with the exception of November 5th, our Festival Sunday), the Rector will give a Confirmation Lecture in the Church immediately at the close of Evening Prayer (4.45 P. M.). These instructions will be open to all who care to attend. Some who are already communicants may desire fuller knowledge of the Church's teaching. Some who are in doubt about Confirmation may find the addresses helpful.

Parents and teachers should see that children of proper age are brought for instruction. Unconfirmed adults should ask themselves whether they are content longer to hold aloof from the full communion of the Church. Is Baptism complete without the gift of the Holy Spirit in the Laying on of Hands? Is it wise to try to live the Christian life, using only part of the means of grace which God has provided for us? Can any lover of Jesus Christ stay away permanently from that precious and holy intimacy—the Lord's Supper? Is not Confirmation the true and necessary preparation for that privilege?

Now is the time for families, which have heretofore been divided in religious life, to be united in their allegiance and worship, so that father, mother and children may come together to make their communions.

The season of preparation for the Episcopal Visitation should be a time of earnest prayer and witness bearing on the part of the communicants of the Church.

The Dedication Festival

The great outstanding event of the autumn from the parochial point of view is, of course, our Annual Dedication Festival.

As usual, the special observances this year will begin on All Saints' Day, November 1st, and spread over the octave following. The program will be somewhat altered and simplified. It is difficult for us to do justice to many great events within the compass of one week. The men will hold their dinner at some other time, thus leaving one social event during the week —the Parish Reception.

The Workers' Conference, which has, in past years, proved one of the most interesting and useful features of the Festival, will be enlarged in scope and will become a Parish Meeting for the whole congregation.

The relation of the Church to the community will be emphasized this year. With a view to a clearer appreciation of our environment, the Rev. Dr. Jacobs, Dean of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, has been invited to deliver a lecture on the history of Mount Airy.

The missionary speaker of the week will be the Rev. Fr. Staunton, of the Sagada Mission, Philippine Islands.

The Sunday of the octave, November 5th, will be the day for our Annual Corporate Communion and Thank Offering. The gifts on that occasion are devoted to our Parish Endowment Fund.

The Church School will have their Festival Service in the Church and there will be a party for the children as in former years.

The following is a tentative program of the Dedication Festival.

All Saints Day, Wednesday, November 1st:
- 7.00 A. M. Holy Communion.
- 10.30 A. M. Morning Prayer.
- 11.00 A. M. Holy Communion and Sermon.
- 8.00 P. M. Parish Reception.

Friday, November 3d:
- 8.00 P. M. Parish Meeting.

Saturday, November 4th:
- 3.00 P. M. Children's Party.

Sunday, November 5th:
- 7.30 A. M. Holy Communion.
- 10.30 A. M. Morning Prayer.

Additional Church Property

In May last, the Vestry, after very careful consideration, determined that to secure the future development of the parish, it was essential that the Church should acquire the lot immediately in the rear of its present property, 133 feet in depth along Ardleigh Street, and extending the entire width of the lot now owned. The question of the purchase of this lot had been before the Vestry for several years. That it was highly desirable that the Church should control it, was never doubted; but the price at which it was held seemed high and the danger that it would be sold without street improvements seemed small, so that nothing was done. Last winter its importance was brought very vividly before the Vestry in connection with the question of the remodeling and enlargement of the Parish House. It was then found that no enlargement in the least worth while could be designed which did not extend over part of this lot.

In April last, the Vestry was informed that negotiations were pending for the purchase of the entire piece of ground of which this lot forms a part, and that if the Church wished to secure this lot it must act at once. The owners declined to consider an offer for that part of the lot which would have been sufficient for the present needs of the Church, but offered some concession from the price at which they had been holding the whole lot. They also agreed to defer settlement until October and to allow part of the purchase price to remain upon ground rent and to be paid off in installments. The Vestry, however, wished, if possible, to avoid putting such an additional charge upon the income of the Church (which is never more than sufficient to meet its current expenses), and appealed by circular letter to the parishioners for the whole purchase price, $4,000. To September 24th the total amount of cash and pledges received has been only $696.60. It is earnestly hoped that all who intend to take part in this way, in securing adequate space for the development of the work of our parish, will promptly send word to the Accounting Warden so that the Vestry may know exactly what arrangement they will have to make. If once sold, the land cannot be obtained for nearly so low a price. The history of our parishes relates many instances of the cramping of their work through failure to see in time the possibilities of the future, and to prepare, while there is yet opportunity, for the full use of that future. No one who has the good of this parish at heart can wish that its name will be added to that list. Let each one of us do what he or she can to make sure that this parish will be counted among those that have the wisdom and the courage to grasp the opportunities God has given them.

Christian Nurture

It is highly desirable that the parents of the parish appreciate the character of the work which is being undertaken in our Church School. Every effort is being made to use the hour for religious training in such a way as to make the child a force in the Church's life. To this end the best methods and materials are sought. When we reorganized and graded our Church School three years ago, we were greatly handicapped for want of suitable graded courses. There were several systems of the interdenominational type, which were scholarly and well worked out. But their colorless and non-churchly doctrinal teaching rendered them useless in a Church School. We turned, therefore, to the New York Sunday School Commission series. It had the official sanction of thirty leading dioceses of the Church and was the best series the Church had produced at the time.

We soon found, however, that these lessons left much to be desired. We rejoiced, therefore, to learn that the General Board of Religious Education planned to develop a series of lessons, which should aim eventually to become the norm of Church training.

During the past two years they have been experimenting with the aid of many groups of Sunday School workers in various sections of the country. Last year a series of helps for teachers entitled "The Christian Nurture Series," was sent out from the Central Office of the General Board in multigraphed form and used in 700 different classes—among which were several of our own classes.

From the teachers and leaders of these classes came criticisms and suggestions. On the basis of these a series of manuals in printed form are appearing this autumn. These new courses promise to be a great improvement on anything we have had in the past. They are born from the practical experience of men and women engaged in Sunday School work. They are more perfectly adapted ω the successive stages of the child's development. They seek, not only to teach the Scripture and the Prayer Book, but to develop five lines of study and activity. These are suggested by the following terms: (1) Memory, (2) Scripture or History, (3) Church Loyalty, (4) Devotional Life, (5) Christian Service.

These courses, properly taught, ought to make of our boys and girls good Churchmen and good Churchwomen.

Two courses are provided for beginners, children of the age of 4 to 6. These furnish simple stories, pictures, and exercises for developing in the little child a recognition of God as his Heavenly Father. The next four courses aim to plant in the mind of the child the truths that are within the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and the Ten Commandments. By stories, pictures, and songs the pupil is made to realize that God is his Father, that He has given him certain commandments and that he should depend upon God for the grace and strength to fulfil those commandments. All the courses of the Beginners and Primary Department have the general title "Church Pathways," because they stand for paths in which the Church should lead little feet. The key-note of the Primary work is "to help the child to know and follow the leadings of God."

In the Junior period there is five years' work provided. The key-note of these years of instruction is "revelation, or the training of the child to listen to God when He speaks." The following five titles show clearly the motive of each course:

For pupils, age 10 to 11—"Hearing God Speak through the Christian Seasons."

For pupils, age 11 to 12—"Hearing God Speak through Church Worship and Membership."

For pupils, age 12 to 13—"Hearing God Speak through the Life of Our Lord."

For pupils, age 12 to 13—"Hearing God Speak through the Long Life of the Church."

For pupils, age 14 to 15—"Hearing God Speak through the Spread of the Church's Message."

For Senior pupils—"The Work of the Holy Spirit in the Church."

There is a development in these courses which corresponds to the natural development of the child. When he is about 9 or 10 years of age his interest centers in holidays and very appropriately his year's work comprises a study of the great feasts and fasts of the Church. With this preparation, in the next year he is taken to Church and taught the simple elements of worship in the various offices of the Church. When he is taken to the Holy Communion service the ideal is not so much that he shall have explained to him the mystery of the service as that he shall take part in the service in accordance with his ability, by saying a prayer peculiarly appropriate to the Holy Communion service when he enters the Church, by knowing how to find all the places of the service, by coming prepared with an offering, and by saying a prayer for those people whom he sees going forward to receive the Holy Communion.

In the same way in Morning and Evening Prayer he is taught, by simple stories from the Bible, the elements of penitence, praise, and prayer. Most of the prayers suggested in the course are formulated from phrases in the Catechism, thereby causing the child to use in his devotion those words, so full of meaning, that have for so many years defined the faith of the Church in simple phrases. On the basis of his worship he is taught his membership. Class by class the pupils are taken to the font and there they revive in imagination the scene of their infant baptism, and are taught the obligations that come from that event.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Our Bishop has given us the watchword for the coming year. With his wonderful faculty for using just the right word always, he has selected "Penitence," and is it not appropriate when we remember that our gifts and works are acceptable to God only when they are offered with a humble and penitent heart?

Penitence, the Bishop says, sets us square with things, it does away with false standards and foolish pride and puts us in a position to face anything that comes. If, then, we begin our Auxiliary work and go steadily through the coming months with this watchword always in mind, there will surely be finer, bigger things accomplished than ever before.

The meetings begin on the first Wednesday in October with Corporate Communion for the women at 9 o'clock. This will be followed by sewing from 9.30 to 4, with a light luncheon at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. North will speak to us at noon, and it is hoped that there will be a record-breaking attendance, for "Well begun is half done."

Once more comes the call for second-hand clothing, in good condition, and rags, —black, white, colored—for the rugs. Please remember that the Auxiliary is insatiable in regard to these two items, and do not throw away anything that can be used in the work. Packages may be sent to the Parish House at any time.

The Churchwoman at the General Convention of 1916

It would appear that the General Convention of 1916, to convene in St. Louis on Wednesday, October 11th, will afford the women in attendance the most wonderful privileges and opportunities along business, educational and devotional lines, to say nothing of the numerous social functions prompted by that hospitality for which the women of St. Louis have ever been famous.

The pre-Convention Quiet Hour will attune all hearts, while that which is to mark its close, should bestow a benediction to be taken to "the ends of the earth."

We note with much satisfaction the plan for fifteen study classes, not only those splendid classes on Missions, but several on Prayer: surely a devotional feature with a far-reaching influence which it is impossible to estimate.

The important service for Churchwomen (on the second day of the Convention) will be the Triennial Corporate Communion of the Woman's Auxiliary, with the presentation of the United Offering. This is our great service of thanksgiving and consecration. It is safe to say that Christ Church Cathedral will be thronged with women, probably from every diocese and missionary district, who will represent thousands of other women widely scattered. Nor will the importance of this service be confined to the women within and without the cathedral, for the offering then presented will mean a financial resource of immense value to the Board of Missions; a wonderful help to the missionary bishops in that it provides women workers; and, to the woman herself, the comfortable assurance that when her salary is due, it will be paid, and that back of her stands the great army of the women of the Church with their offerings and their prayers.

The special train, bringing delegates from New England, New York, Long Island and New Jersey, and with Philadelphia cars attached, leaves North Philadelphia at 11.56 A. M., on Monday, October 9th.

The delegates to Convention from the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, are: Mrs. John Markoe, President; Miss Elizabeth S. Carryl, Secretary; Mrs. H. A. Pilsbry, Educational Secretary; Mrs. Ralph H. North, Treasurer of the United Offering, and Miss Gertrude Ely, chairman of the Junior Department. Alternates: Mrs. Biddle, Miss Blakiston, Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Pancoast and Miss Hubbard.

The Democratic Note

I believe our Church life would be healthier if our Christianity were more democratic. There certainly is something inherently democratic in the nature of the Church. If we refer to Pentecost we catch the spirit of it. There may be a flavor of aristocracy about our dear Mother Church of England, but we of the American Church have a rugged heritage of democracy. The Protestant Episcopal Church was intended to be as democratic as the United States government was intended to be.

Many feel that this democracy has become obscured and practically suspended to an alarming extent. I have before me a communication signed by a number of presbyters of the diocese urging a reform in this matter. They call attention to the usual method of electing vestrymen without ascertaining the voice of the people. They claim that it would be possible in most parishes to have a real annual gathering of the congregation, provided the officials and leaders were determined to urge the people to attend and make them feel that their presence was actually desired.

The point is well taken. Such a meeting where the parishioners could not only hear reports of the various activities, but frankly and constructively discuss the concerns of the parish would make for health and progress.

The time for such a parish gathering is our Dedicational Festival Week. The meeting on Friday evening, November 3d, will sound clearly the democratic note. I hope it will be the beginning of a strong and persistent movement toward more democratic ideals and methods in our parish life.

T. S. C.

Our Program

In his editorial in the current number of the diocesan Church News the Bishop emphasizes the necessity of a program. He says that a program "makes progress intelligent and orderly and therefore, sure and permanent." The definite things he sets before us for accomplishment during the coming year are of such moment that we want to make sure they are brought to the attention of every parishioner.

They are as follows:

First: In regard to prayer, and particularly public worship.

1. All communicants to be in Church each Sunday. (Statistics show that nearly every one of our Churches—so many of them at present desolately empty—would be filled to overflowing by communicants alone.)

2. All communicants to receive the communion regularly at least once a month (at present the proportion of monthly communicants is about one in every four).

Second: With a view to our obligations to the Church at large.

1. Every congregation to give regular weekly offerings to the Church's missionary work.

2. Every congregation to pledge itself to the support of the new Church Pension Fund and to provide for it regularly on its budget expenses.

Third: In behalf of our diocesan work.

1. The Church Extension Fund to be materially increased. (At present about 200 subscribers give nearly $2,000 at each call. Before this year is over we should have 800 giving $8,000.)

2. The building funds of St. George's Church, Richmond, and of Epiphany

Church, Sherwood, to be completed. (This will mean $25,000 in the first case and $15,000 in the second, in order to raise each fund to the required $50,000.)

It is no less important that we have a program for our parish work during the coming season. Such a program is being prepared and will be presented at the parish meeting on Friday evening, November 3d. It is to be hoped that the program will so stimulate us to earnest coöperation that solid achievements may be assured.

The Sagada Mission

Apropos of Fr. Staunton's lecture to be given in Grace Church Parish House on Wednesday evening, November 8th, the following strong testimony of Bishop Brent's will interest you:

"The strongest centre in our Philippine Mission is that of S. Mary the Virgin, Sagada. We have now an unimpeded field. The Roman Catholic Mission has withdrawn from this community and taken down its buildings. Through the Christian spirit and wise methods of the Reverend J. A. Staunton, Jr., nothing but good will exists between the retiring priests and our own people.

"The most urgent need after workers themselves is an Upper School. If we can establish it, it will have an educational mission to the whole of the Mountain Province representing a population of approximately 400,000 people."

The offering on the occasion of Fr. Staunton's lecture will be designated for the work of the three Sisters of the Community of S. Mary's, Peekskill, who are to be added soon to the staff of the Sagada Mission.

Some of our parishioners who visited S. Mary's Convent this summer have aroused our interest in them. Bishop Brent says, "It makes us very happy to receive the Sisters into our missionary fellowship. Our Church, by canonical action, has given official recognition to the religious life as a distinct vocation.

"Those of us who are familiar with the conditions of the mission field recognize that there are phases of work which can be best done by men and women who have responded to this call. We not only congratulate ourselves but the community making this contribution."

This is a beautiful illustration of the "gift of life" of which we have heard frequently.

As we go to press, word comes from St. Louis that in twenty-five minutes after an address by Bishop Brent, before the Convention, some $25,000.00 was raised for the building of the high school for Igorotes at Sagada.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The first meeting of the Auxiliary left little to be desired, with bright, beautiful weather outside and a gathering of thirty-six women in the Guild room all ready for work.

Mrs. North was there for a short talk before leaving for St. Louis and the great Triennial Presentation Service. Mrs. North also read the noon-day prayers which were particularly appropriate and impressive.

There will be no meeting of the Auxiliary on November 1st on account of the services that day; the next all-day meeting will be held December 6th. An explanation seems necessary concerning the luncheons that are served on the first Wednesday of each month. These luncheons are very simple indeed, and are for the convenience of those who are able to stay for work in the afternoon. All expenses are to be taken from the treasury of the Auxiliary and everyone is welcome and most cordially invited.

The domestic box, for which sewing has already begun, will go to the Rev. Paul Roberts and family, Brookings, South Dakota. Mr. Roberts writes that many misunderstand the need of South Dakota because they associate it principally with the work among the Indians, which is much larger than that among the whites. The country, however, is developing, and the white population increasing because arid lands are being reclaimed through scientific agriculture, and the boys and girls who are receiving their training at the State College are bearing a large part in this advancement. The town of Brookings is not in itself an important one, except for the fact that in it is situated the South Dakota State College with over eleven hundred of the best young men and women from that extensive State. A great many of these young people have no Church affiliation, so that there is this splendid opportunity beside the regular duties of a missionary on the western prairies.

Mr. Roberts has a wife, a little girl three years old and twins who are younger, so the sewing this fall will surely be interesting.

Will you not all come and join in the work, especially you who are new in the parish and have not become acquainted? A very hearty welcome awaits you.

The Church School Opens

Though the eager boys and girls of the Kindergarten and Primary Departments are not yet permitted to assemble, the Upper School is in full swing.

The classes are manned by splendid teachers, several of them new in the service. The readiness of leading men and women in the parish to undertake the exacting duties of teaching is a fine indication. The pupils were ready after the prolonged vacation to settle down promptly to earnest work.

At a meeting of teachers and officers held recently, the Rector delivered a solemn charge regarding the spirit and method of the year's work.

Many interesting plans and suggestions were discussed. The progressive spirit of the school was evident. It is clear there is to be no standing still in this work.

The Church American

In the great sermon of the presiding Bishop at the opening of the Convention, he sounded the note of Americanism in our Church. The following are some of his ringing words:

"Then in that good time when an approaching unity seems somewhat to materialize, we want to offer to our fellow-Christians of other names round about us an American religion with an American flavor as our contribution.

"Are we presuming too much? We grant to the layman wide freedom of thought and opinion, only tying him down to the bond of faith in the simple verities of the Apostles' Creed. Is that not American?

"We give to laymen full participation in the deliberations of the Church and a voice and a vote in determining the results of such deliberations. Is that not American?

"We have dioceses corresponding to the States with their State sovereignties, and the General Convention corresponding to the Federal Government. Is that not American?

"We have a Church penetrating into all parts of the United States and its possessions. There is not a rood of ground over which the Stars and Stripes wave in sovereignty but that is under the care and guidance of a Bishop of our own. Is that not American?

"We are a United Church. We have no North, no South, no East, no West. There is no cleavage of separation on sectional lines of latitude or longitude, or for differences of race or color or class or taste. Is that not American?"

A purse is being gotten up to present to Miss Beatrice Nunneviller, a former member of Grace Church, who starts this winter to take up her missionary work in Alaska. Contributions of any amount are asked for, and will be most gratefully received. Let us make the gift a generous one.

The Way

The Travellers of The Way have resumed their meetings. It is announced that the First Gate will be thrown open Tuesday evening, October 24th. Men wishing to gain admission must not wait for invitations. It is not a thing the Travellers care to urge upon others. They want no man to enter without serious purpose.

"Any man of good will, earnest desire and decision of character who is eighteen years of age or older is eligible for membership."

There will be meetings of the Men of the Way, Tuesday evening, October 24th, and Monday evening, November 13th. The Second Gate will be opened for the first time Sunday evening, November 22d.

The Parish Reception

Everyone in the parish over sixteen years of age is most cordially invited to attend the reception which will be held on the evening of All Saints' Day, November 1st, in the Parish House at 8 o'clock.

No individual invitations are being issued.

Nothing exclusive about it.

Dress informal.

Musical program.

This reception has a clearly defined purpose. It is intended to afford the parishioners of Grace Church an opportunity to welcome socially the numerous Church people who have recently moved into the community.

The Church Periodical Club

The Librarian asks that anyone having picture cards, picture postals, new or old or religious pictures to give away will send them to the Parish House soon, so they can be forwarded to hospitals and mission schools before Christmas.

There are always the same requests for more magazines and books. Bibles are in demand. Many souls are longing for the reading matter you throw away.

M. W. BAYARD, Librarian C. P. C.

Temper of the Convention

We have reason to give thanks for the Christian temper of the utterances of the General Convention which have been reported to us thus far. We might have known that a generous and Christ-like spirit would prevail. Mark these characteristic words of the President of the House of Deputies:

"There is little we can do for the peace of the world. Nothing that we can say or do here can bring peace to those war-worn people of Europe. We can only pray God that He, in His own way, will restore peace to these afflicted nations. There is one thing that we can do here, and there is one thing, which, if we fail to do, the world will know, and that is the maintenance of the spirit of peace. There are questions of policy that divide us. There are great differences of opinion that must always be settled; that ought always to be settled in great living, growing organizations, but there is one thing that can be of help and that is carry on all our discussions, and to face all our issues, and to exert all the determination of this house in the spirit of mutual trust and mutual confidence, and be loyal to the one great Church of which we are members, which means just one thing—if we would have peace we must confer in the temper of peace."

We have been praying earnestly for weeks that our representatives at St. Louis be saved "from all error, ignorance, pride and prejudice," and that they might be directed, sanctified and governed in their work by the mighty power of the Holy Ghost. We have high hopes that our prayers are being answered when we read items like the following in the daily press:

"The Convention is filled with a pentecostal zeal for Missions which has banished differences between High, Low and Broad Church parties. The mighty reflex of the European war, which is felt everywhere throughout the deliberations, is sweeping away differences. The Panama incident, a question of policy with regard to sending delegates to a Missionary Conference in Latin America, seems to have been brushed aside. High and Low Church men are seen about the corridors of the hotels in fraternal meetings."

The United Offering

A letter received from Mrs. Ralph H. North, the untiring United Offering Treasurer for the Diocese of Pennsylvania, contains joyful news. It was written on the very day the offering was presented upon the golden alms basin in the Cathedral in St. Louis—one of the days of greatest interest to us of Grace Church Parish.

The total offering was $352,147.04, an increase of about $50,000.

Our diocesan offering, included in that amount, was $49,308.43, an increase of over $10,000, and that of our own parish, $1,642.18.

Two women have offered themselves for work in the missionary field.

These figures will be increased by the time Mrs. North returns to tell us of the wonderful Presentation Service, as offerings continue to come in, and it is hoped that the diocesan total may reach $50,000. While waiting for the final figures let us give praise and thanks to Him who put into our hearts the desire to give.

Choir Boys Wanted

There are at present several vacancies in the choir. Every boy in the parish over eight years of age who has not already done so should make application. In this way the best material could be selected. Every Church boy should be keen to help in the worship of the Church. Parents, realizing the value of the training to the boys and impelled also by a sense of duty to the Church, should make sure their boys offer themselves for this service. This is one of many ways in which the people of the parish can help to bring the music in Grace Church up to a high standard.

The Festival Test

Is cordiality a mark of Grace Church? Come to the Parish Reception, All Saints' Night, and see.

Is democracy a mark of Grace Church? Come to the Parish Meeting, on Friday evening, November 3d, and see.

Is gratitude strong among us? Look for evidence to the Thank Offering, on Festival Sunday, November 5th.

Are we, as a people, bound together loyally in devotion to our Lord? The Corporate Communion, on Festival Sunday, will be a test.

Are we interested in our own community? Look at the event booked for November 6th.

Are we keen for Missions? Note the final event of the Dedication Festival, November 8th.

The Box for Japan

The box, to which reference was made in THE PARISH NEWS for September, was forwarded duly. Its value was estimated at $103—even more than that of the box sent to Japan last year. The Auxiliary desires to express thanks most heartily for a very generous response to the appeal for those afflicted people in Kumamoto, Japan.

Mrs. A. J. D. Dixon, in charge of the Christmas boxes sent from Philadelphia for Miss Riddell's Hospital for Lepers, writes that "no box received by her comes up to the one sent by Grace Church, Mt. Airy. Such quantities of dainty and useful articles! And the dolls—well, women are still children when it comes to dolls!"

Special mention was made of one of our dear parishioners who has passed her eighty-third birthday, and of the beautiful handwork on the doll's garments.

Pews and Sittings

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Good News from St. Louis

The Treasurer of the Board of Missions announced at the pre-convention meeting of the Board held at St. Louis last week that the year's gifts for missions amounted to $1,535,041.35; that all appropriations for the year's work had been paid and that a balance of $26,400 remained in the treasury. The Church will receive this announcement with a thrill of joy and thanksgiving. It is a magnificent achievement. But a few weeks ago the Board was threatened with a deficit of a quarter-million dollars. It had been confidently predicted in some quarters that many contributions would be withheld as a rebuke to the Board for its course in the Panama matter. That these predictions were unworthy of the Church has now been emphatically demonstrated. The substantial part of our people are loyal to the Great Commission even though their judgments may differ as to the administrative policy of the Board of Missions. Nothing could better serve to fix the mind of General Convention upon the real tasks that are before it than this good news from the Missionary Treasurer, and nothing could do more to lift its deliberations to the high plane where the petty differences of men give place to the things of God.—The Churchman.

The Communicant List

We enclose with the present issue of the PARISH NEWS the Communicant List of Grace Church, together with a list of Confirmed Persons Residing in the Parish. It is our intention to publish these lists annually, not only that all parishioners may be furnished with information, but that we may, with your aid, make and keep the lists as accurate as possible. Please send us corrections at once, if you detect any.

The Observer

I am just a plain sort and I don't understand technical terms. One day I heard a clergyman condemning "smug parochialism." I didn't know just what he meant, but I felt that, whatever it was, it was awful, so vehemently did he despise it.

But I should like to raise my humble voice in favor of some sort of parochialism. I don't suppose we ought to think our own parish is the whole thing—and forget the great big needy world.

But is it necessary to neglect altogether our own little plat in our enthusiasm for Japanese gardens? I have as much delight as the next man in all we are doing for "the uttermost parts of the earth." But have we forgotten our New Organ Fund, our Land Purchase Fund, our Endowment Fund?

I heard last spring that we were to have a parish worker, and I happen to know how urgent that need is. Well, I may be wrong, but I have a feeling that there is something to be said for Parish enthusiasm. As grandmother used to say, "The light that shines farthest, shines brightest nearest home."

Notes

Mr. S. Mendelson Meehan and the Rector attended the Brotherhood of S. Andrew Convention in Cleveland recently.

Upon the resignation of Mr. Percy Chase Miller as Organist and Choirmaster, Mr. Maxwell McMichael has been chosen as his successor. Mr. McMichael, whose work is already well known to Grace Church people, will assume full charge of the music on November 1st.

The parish has a representative at the General Convention in the person of Mrs. Ralph H. North, Diocesan Treasurer of the United Offering. We have cause to be proud of Mrs. North's remarkable work during the past three years. It was in no small part due to her devotion and untiring efforts that $10,000 of the $50,000 gain in the Triennial Offering came from Pennsylvania.

The young women of the parish give evidence of newly awakened enthusiasm. They have organized a new branch of the Junior Auxiliary and are already hard at work. One cannot fail to see fine possibilities ahead.

Mr. MacDonald's announcement of his intended withdrawal as Scoutmaster and Church School teacher has brought consternation to many of the boys. It would be hard, indeed, to overstate the good he has accomplished during the three years of his leadership of the boys. Incidentally, Mr. MacDonald has had the time of his life.

The Church Pension Fund can certainly report progress to the General Convention. The following are among the great accomplishments of this Commission:

1. Unification of all the forces of the Church in an effort adequately to care for the clergy and their families in disability, old age or death.

2. Formal adoption of the pension system by all of the 68 Dioceses and 19 Missionary Districts.

3. Organization of Diocesan and District Committees, and hundreds of Parish Committees to conduct the National Campaign.

4. Raising of $3,000,000 towards the necessary $5,000,000 Reserve Fund.

With all the forces of the Church united in this common effort, it is confidently expected that the $2,000,000 required to complete the Fund will be raised before the Campaign closes, on February 28, 1917.

This means $15,000 a day until March 1st.

The Stenton Bible Class has resumed its weekly sessions. Last year they read the Acts of the Apostles. This year they are reading the Gospel according to St. Luke.

It has been the hope of the women of the parish, that by the end of this triennial, our United Offering would reach $1,500, the amount needed to support a United Offering worker in the field for three years. In consequence, great enthusiasm greeted the reading of Mrs. North's report at the stated meeting of the Auxiliary, when it was learned that the total sum from Grace Church was $1,642.18. Miss Nunneviller's salary is now assured, but as the severity of Alaskan winters necessitates an extra amount of warm clothing, the appropriateness of the purse naturally suggests itself.

Probably a good many people in Grace Church are unaware of the fact that there is a fund being raised for the salary of a Parish Secretary. The parish and its activities have grown to such an extent that it is absolutely necessary that the Rector should be relieved of the vast amount of clerical work which takes up so much of his valuable time.

About $600 a year will be required, and the women of the parish are anxious to raise the larger part of that sum themselves. Will you not all give the matter your serious consideration and communicate with Mrs. Charles McK. Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, in regard to it? Any sum, large or small, is most welcome.

Pledges already given are now due, and payments may be made to Mrs. A. L. E. Crouter, Treasurer of the Auxiliary.

Prof. H. E. W. Fosbroke, of the Cambridge Theological School, has been elected Dean of the General Theological Seminary, New York.

The Social Service Committee will hold a second hand clothes sale November 11th. Contributions of any articles of clothing, particularly shoes, will be gladly called for upon receipt of card or 'phone to Mrs. F. T. McGuire, 6830 Gorsten Street, Mount Airy, 'phone Gtn. 1030.

Mission Study Notes

The Normal Mission Study Classes will begin on Monday, October 30th, at 2.30 P. M., and Tuesday, October 31st, at 10.15 A. M.

Leader—The Diocesan Secretary, Mrs. H. A. Pilsbry.

Subject—South America.

Text Book—The New World—Latin America, by Dr. Arthur R. Grey, Secretary of the Board of Missions.

Missionary Educational Conference

The Educational Secretaries Mission Study Class Leaders made their Corporate Communion at the Church House, Twelfth and Walnut Streets, on Tuesday, October 3d, at 9.30 A. M.

The Bishop was celebrant and made an address on the watchword and aim of the year. Immediately after the service the Bishop formally opened and blessed the new educational room.

Then followed the conference in which the work and plans for the year were discussed. The chairman of the Finance Committee gave a brief résumé of the work done by that committee since its inception last Easter. It is a cause for great thankfulness that the educational room has been secured and through gifts of money and pledges from the Auxiliary the expenses will be defrayed for the winter.

A cordial invitation is extended to all members of Grace Church to visit the room, No. 16, in the Church House, and prove its usefulness.

Miss Avery, the business Secretary, will be there each day (excepting Saturday), from 10 until 2, and will be glad to be of assistance to anyone seeking information. Text books for the course this winter can be purchased there. Many Church magazines and periodicals may already be secured, and one feature of the room has already proved its usefulness, namely, a Diocesan Events Book, in which all dates for Church meetings and services may be registered, thereby avoiding the conflict of two important events on the same day or at the same time—a clearing house for dates!

Mrs. Pilsbry has appointed an Extension Committee, whose aim will be to reach those parishes which have no mission study class as yet, and to show the value of a class to that parish.

The conference closed with a short address by Dr. Jefferys, given with his usual thoughtful and careful preparation.

Echoes from St. Louis

The next General Convention is to be held in Detroit in 1919.

The Church in China has been given fuller independence and the Chinese House of Bishops is now free to proceed to the consecration of its own Bishops.

The hymnal has been radically revised, some 225 hymns being removed and 125 new ones added. A musical edition has been authorized. The new book is said to be a masterpiece.

On October 20th the Convention made the Pension Fund, with its endowment of $5,000,000, a canon of the Church. It will become operative the first of the year, the minimum pension being $600 a year, and the maximum $2,000 for clergymen retiring at 68 years of age and upward.

In recording the crisis in a heated debate in the House of Deputies, the St. Louis paper says: "As so often happens in convention a few wise and weighty words from George Wharton Pepper turned the scale."

A joint commission is charged with the duty of obtaining a correction of misstatements in many school and college text books dealing with the history of the Church of England and the American Church. They persistently date the birth of the Anglican Church from the sixteenth century and ascribe its founding to Henry VIII.

The Church of the Reformation was not a new Church, but an old Church purged of error and corruption.

Mr. Robert H. Gardiner, of Maine, speaking at a joint session of the Convention, opened his remarks by saying, "The most damnable heresy extant is that it does not make any difference what you believe about Christ." He urged his hearers to add to the 500,000 Sunday School scholars of the Episcopal Church in this country. "Democracy cannot endure unless it be founded on the Incarnation."

Bishop Gailor's epigrams were applauded. Among them were the following: "Better for a boy that he starve to death rather than that he lie and steal and be impure and dishonorable."

"Irreverence means in the last analysis, a lack of patriotism. Where there is no belief in God a nation is drifting into moral bankruptcy and political imbecility."

The Rev. Dr. Rogers, of Fond du Lac, presented the report of the Joint Commission on Faith and Order of which the following is the substance: "Since the General Convention of 1913, twenty-eight additional commissions or committees have been appointed to co-operate with the commission. This makes a total up to August 1, 1916, of fifty-eight religious bodies. The various branches of the Anglican community, the Baptists, Congregationalists, Disciples of Christ, the Society of Friends, Lutherans, Methodists, Moravians, Old Catholics and Presbyterians are now included. His Holiness, Pope Benedict XV, through Cardinal Gasparri, expressed deep interest in the movement and promised his prayers for its guidance.

The important work of Prayer Book revision is advancing slowly and wisely. Conservative persons need have no fear of radical or fundamental alterations in our much loved and venerated Prayer Book. The General Convention of the Venerable Church could not exactly be characterized as a rash body. The formularies as a living Church cannot forever remain static.

The pastoral letter to be read at the closing session of the Convention and subsequently before every congregation of the American Church, is being prepared by three great Bishops, the Right Reverend Doctors Brent, Lawrence and Anderson.

Other Sundays—7.30, Holy Communion; 11, Morning Prayer; 8, Evening Prayer.

Week Days—Wednesdays at 9, Litany and Intercessions; 9.30, Holy Communion.

Holy Days—Holy Communion at 7.

NOTE.—During Advent Season, December 3, 10, 17, 24, Evening Prayer is changed from 4 to 8 o'clock.

"Prepare ye the Way of the Lord."

There will be a Special Series of Sunday Evening Services in Grace Church during Advent Season. The theme of the sermons will be S. John, the Baptist, and his Message—Preparation for Christ.

These services will mark the Anniversary of our Parochial Mission. They offer an opportunity for the rallying of the spiritual forces of the Parish and the gathering in of strangers.

REMEMBER THE DATES—December 3, 10, 17 and 24—8 P. M. (No afternoon services on these days.)

It is no mere dream, this being with God, this awareness of a constant Christ. It is the experienced theme of countless saints, the motor power of that peace which passing understanding writes its delicate story on many a human face. And you, child of God, professing and calling yourself a Christian, you must achieve the companionship of Christ within. We must prepare for it by the Advent method, by the method of prophecy and preparation.

If we would hear Jesus, we must heed John. What, then, does the Baptist say? Consider him, this rugged, tender forerunner, let us make his character and message our lesson of preparation for the Lover of our souls. Let John prepare us for Jesus.—Drury.

Recollections of the Dedication Festival

The Reception was a marked improvement upon those of recent years. The attendance was larger and the presence of so many new faces gave point to the affair. Many parishioners were introduced. The musical features were a fine addition—thanks to the artists who so kindly favored us. Nor can we omit reference to the artists who transformed the Guild room into a garden. Now let there be a sustained cultivation of the acquaintances there formed until they all ripen into loyal friendships.

The Parish Meeting was the real innovation of the week. It afforded the Parish an opportunity for self-examination and self-improvement. It must be admitted that the Parish did not fully realize or improve the opportunity. It is quite certain, however, that because of this meeting we shall be keener to improve the next opportunity.

The program had more variety and spontaneity, though less symmetry than those of the Workers' Conferences of former Festivals.

In summing up the achievements of the year, Mr. Charles S. Pease was free from any tendency to glory in the past. The backward glance served only to encourage us to undertake greater things in the future. He laid stress upon the value of the regular and usual ministrations of the Church rather than the striking or spectacular things which often figure in such reports.

Mr. George J. Lincoln, being in bad voice, was unable to present the program for the new year. He handed his notes to Mr. Frederick T. McGuire, who obligingly acted as substitute.

The program presented was a parochial application of the Bishop's idea of a definite selection of a few important things to accomplish.

The program before us includes:

1. The raising of at least $2,000 of the $4,000 necessary to purchase the lot in the rear of the Church.
2. The welcoming of newcomers into the community by personal calls. In this a committee of Vestrymen headed by the Rector are to take the initiative.
3. A special series of Evening Services during the four Sundays of Advent Season, which will serve as rallying points.
4. An every-member canvass of the Parish by the Laymen's Committee, looking to increased and more widely distributed giving.

Suggestions for the improvement of the Church School were made by Mr. John G. Kaufman, Mr. S. Mendelson Meehan and Mrs. Reginald N. Hall.

The Free and Open Church was advocated by Mr. William L. Chrisman. The Pew-Rent System was defended by Mr. J. Wilson Bayard and Dr. A. L. E. Crouter. When the vote was taken, 45 voted for and 12 against free pews.

Mr. Bayard made a very convincing statement regarding the urgency of extending the Church property by the purchase of the adjoining lot, and cards for subscriptions were distributed.

Mrs. Ralph H. North, fresh from the General Convention, communicated to her hearers her own earnestness and enthusiasm as she described those "wonderful" services which she had been privileged to attend in St. Louis.

The final number on the program, "For the Good of the Parish," brought out some valuable suggestions for constructive work and improvement. Mr. Horace Fortescue bore witness to the pleasure and profit to be derived from Bible Classes like the one which has been conducted in Stenton during the past year.

Mrs. George Parkman advocated new lines of Social Service work and greater stress upon education of the Parish in this branch of Christian effort.

Mrs. A. C. Brand told how the charitable work in the lower end of the Parish had revealed a need for evangelical work in that section.

Mrs. William C. Burk made plain the need for a Parish Worker if this Parish is to become really efficient. She said the women had raised about half the necessary sum and appealed to the men to complete it.

Mr. A. C. Brand voiced the desire of many to be more fully instructed regarding the ornaments, ritual and ceremonies of Church worship.

Miss E. D. Sewall spoke with much grace and wisdom about personal loyalty to the Church—she stressed the duty of generous giving—and the exerting of personal influence so as to help and not to injure the Parish.

Mrs. Ralph L. Hayes called attention to the importance of Mission Study.

Dr. A. L. E. Crouter proposed the holding of annual Parish meetings, at which the people could have a voice in the affairs of the Parish.

To many of these suggestions the Rector responded briefly.

Festival Sunday, November 5th, was a bright day. All the faithful in the Parish were knit together more firmly in Holy Communion. One wonders why, on such an occasion, every communicant who is physically able is not present to participate in the annual corporate communion of the Parish. But our Lord gives the answer in the Gospel for that very day:

> "The Kingdom of Heaven is like unto a certain King, which made a marriage for his son, and sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding; and they would not come."

We notice in our Lord's parable that the king was wroth with those who made light of his invitation. So we may be sure is the King of Kings wroth with those who sit so lightly to all Church obligations. But the feast on November 5th was furnished with a multitude of guests.

The sermon was upon the text, Psalm 84 : 1 and 2:

> "O, how amiable are Thy dwellings; Thou Lord of Hosts!
> "My soul hath a desire and longing to enter into the courts of the Lord; my heart and my flesh rejoice in the living God."

The Rector said in part:

"If the ancient temple was dear to the heart of the devout Jew, how much dearer to us should be the Christian Church. Her spacious Courts are filled with people bound together by a tie stronger even than the racial bond—namely, the sacramental bond in Christ. Her Font speaks of a new and better Covenant. Her Lectern supports not only the Law but the Gospel. She has her table of shew-bread, the sacrificial meal by which the royal priesthood are fed,—even the Bread of Heaven. She has her Holy of Holies, her blood-sprinkled Altar, sprinkled indeed with blood,—not of bulls and goats, but of the Lamb without spot. Here rests a Presence more glorious than the Shekinah.

"Is it any wonder we love and honor the Church—this Church which symbolizes for us God's very presence?

"In the year 1858, just 58 years ago, this Parish had its inception as a mission of Christ Church, Germantown.

"Ten years later, under the rectorship of the Rev. R. A. Edwards, it became an independent, self-supporting Parish.

"Twenty years later still, the cornerstone of this present Church was laid.

"During the year following, on November 13, 1889, this Church was duly consecrated by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Whittaker, Bishop of Pennsylvania, assisted by some sixty clergy and a large body of the laity. The preacher was the Bishop of Pittsburgh."

The Rector mentioned, as men whose memory should ever be kept green in this Parish: the Rev. A. B. Atkins, C. S. Carstairs, A. S. Robinson, the Rev. R. A. Edwards, J. Henry Dunn, Charles M. Bayard, Charles Hayes Miller, Franklin B. Gowen, the Rev. Simeon C. Hill.

Referring to the fact that the fabric of King Solomon's Temple was supported by three central pillars, known as Wisdom, Strength and Beauty, the Rector pointed out how eloquently the Grace Church edifice speaks to us today of these three essential qualities in our religion.

The Thank Offering presented at that service amounted to $122.82. According to our custom, this will be devoted to our Parish Endowment Fund. This fund, which began with a legacy of $1,000 from the Rev. Simeon C. Hill, now amounts to $1,622.93.

The Church School Festival Service in the afternoon, with its procession, hearty singing and address upon the part played by the Sunday School in the history of the Parish was a necessary part of the celebration of this festive season. It was the first service for the Primary and Beginners' Departments this season and it was indeed a delight to see the children again in the Church.

In connection with his address the Rector showed the children the photographs of former Rectors of Grace Church. This collection of pictures should be increased by the addition of the photographs of laymen prominent in the past life of the Parish.

The Children's Party on Saturday afternoon was especially enjoyed by the younger children. Following the custom of recent years, the children planted a tree in the Church yard.

In 1914 a sturdy pin oak was planted in front of the Church. In 1915 an historic elm from Oxford, England, was planted in the close. This year a red oak was planted on the east side of the Church, near the tower. The children also planted an English ivy on the Parish house. All are thriving.

"The History of Mount Airy," an illustrated lecture by the Rev. Dr. Jacobs, Dean of the Lutheran Seminary, was an appropriate and interesting feature of the week's program. He demonstrated that Mt. Airy is, indeed, the "garden spot," and he reminded us of the wealth of historic association with our own vicinity. We are very grateful to Dr. Jacobs for granting us this favor.

The Missionary Feature of the Festival week was Fr. Staunton's illustrated lecture on the Mission at Sagada, Philippine Islands. His fine pictures told a thrilling story of splendid constructive missionary work amid great difficulties. With all its industrial and educational features, Fr. Staunton's work plainly centers around the Altar. It is distinctively Christian. We can understand better now why Bishop Brent speaks in such high terms of this work. The wonder is, why there are not more Sagadas.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Just to remind you,—the two funds mentioned last month are not yet complete and there is still time to contribute to them. They are: the salary for the Parish Secretary and the purse for Miss Nunneviller.

It is hoped that Miss Nunneviller will visit the Auxiliary on the first Wednesday in December. She has been invited to luncheon that day, so that we may all become acquainted with her before she starts for Alaska, and the work awaiting her there.

December 6th will be a true domestic missions day with us, for the Rev. George S. Gassner, Chaplain of the Seamen's Church Institute of Philadelphia, will be present and will tell us much that is of importance in connection with the Institute. To those whose sympathy is not aroused by foreign missions and who feel that "charity begins at home," this meeting should have a strong appeal and we hope to see many new faces in the Guild room that day.

About the second week in December the articles for the domestic box will be displayed, and every woman in Grace Church should see them. The domestic box has been made so attractive that it becomes a gift of love, not simply a means of supplying needs.

A word about the Rug Committee, that industrious coterie of women who work steadily and unobtrusively on through the year and accomplish such splendid things. This fall, with some of the money earned by them, a donation of twenty-five dollars has been given to the work in Bucks County, twenty-five dollars has been given for a new Fair Linen for our own Church altar, and the sum of five dollars has found its way into the purse for Miss Nunneviller. Is not this a good showing? We wish the Rug Committee and its able chairman continued success and future prosperity.

Junior Branch

Meetings are being held every first and third Monday, and everyone has started the year eager to accomplish more than ever before. We now have a United Offering Treasurer and hope that Mrs. North will come to tell us about the Offering, so that we all will be more interested in it. All of us are saving Indian Head pennies and dropping them in a box, which will be opened in May and the contents given to some work that is being done for the Indians. Dolls for Deaconess Sands' Christmas box are being dressed and we hope they will give pleasure to the little girls in Graniteville, South Carolina. We want every girl in Grace Church to be a Junior.

Cake and Candy Sale

Under the auspices of the Junior Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary there will be a sale of cake and candy in the parish house on Wednesday, December 6th, at three o'clock.

Bishop's Day

The Parish branches of the Woman's Auxiliary in the Germantown Convocation were well represented in Christ Church, Germantown, November 15th, throughout the day.

Bishop Rhinelander was assisted in the Communion Service by the Rectors of Christ Church and S. Michael's, and two other clergymen were in attendance. His sermon was on the Holy Communion—considered as an act of worship. "All our holy religion is summarized and enshrined in the Holy Communion, the uniquely Christian act." He suggested that we might well make it the subject of individual study, reading and thought, at this season.

It was an uplifting service, full of inspiration. Surely it intensified for each one of us "the conviction of a common mission," and that we must work "all together, from one motive, for one goal."

After a brief recess at noon, there was a Service of Intercession, intimate and comprehensive.

At one o'clock, one hundred and fifty, or more, were seated in the Parish House enjoying a social hour while lunch was served most generously by the ladies of the Parish.

It was evident that those who filled the large Sunday School room at the time of the afternoon Conference, were confident that it would be most interesting. That expectation was not disappointed.

The Bishop, presiding, introduced the Rev. James B. Halsey, who struck the Progressive note which characterized the entire meeting. His brief report of certain features of the St. Louis Convention ended in a forcible appeal for advance, with practical suggestions how to do it.

Miss Myers, of S. Agnes' School, Kyoto, brought out the greatness of the educational opportunity in Japan, the pressing need of full equipment for that school, and of more teachers.

Mrs. Markoe spoke of the pledges she had made at St. Louis on behalf of Pennsylvania and of her certainty that the women of the Diocese can be relied on to meet these pledges.

Mrs. North, in speaking of the United Offering, stirred her hearers to deeper thankfulness by the announcement that she had been able to add to the amount offered at St. Louis, an additional $700, given since that time.

The consideration of questions handed in, was the closing exercise. They touched upon familiar topics, such as: the adjustment of "apportionment" and "specials"; "missions abroad, while there is so much to be done at home." They dealt also with new problems growing out of changing conditions.

The Bishop's answers were not only illuminating, but in such a happy vein as to encourage and cheer the perplexed.

A vote of thanks to Christ Church and its workers, for their kind hospitality, was unanimously given, and the day was over—a day of memories to be cherished.

Through the influence of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew the early service on Advent Sunday has come to be observed throughout the country as the time for an annual Corporate Communion of the men of the Church. It will be so observed in Grace Church, December 3d, at 7.30 A. M.

Thanksgiving Day

The services in Grace Church on Thanksgiving Day will be as follows:

7.00 A. M. Holy Communion.

9.30 A. M. Morning Prayer.

10.00 A. M. Holy Communion with sermon. The full choir with be in attendance.

As Thanksgiving Day falls upon the Feast of S. Andrew the Collect Epistle and Gospel for S. Andrew's Day will be used at the early service.

Pews and Sittings

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Christmas Day

Christmas Day will come on Monday this year. The day previous, the fourth Sunday in Advent, should furnish an excellent opportunity for spiritual preparation for our Christmas Communion.

There will be three celebrations of the Holy Communion on Christmas Day: at 6, 7.30 and 11. Morning Prayer will be said at 10.30. There will be no Evening Service.

Except for grave cause, no faithful communicant should fail to make his Communion on the Feast of the Nativity.

Christmas Eve

What power in that word Christmas to cheer us all and make us young again! What beautiful and precious memories it quickens! Let us remember that those holy associations are even now being formed in the minds of our children. To them this is a wonder-world, new and fresh. What impressions of Christmas are they to receive this year? What new sense of love and reverence for the Holy Child are they to acquire? What new joy of gratitude and worship is to be born in them?

Let us make the most of the Christmas-Eve Festival. At four o'clock that day—it falls on Sunday this year—a joyous procession will enter the Church singing Adeste Fideles. The children will carry well-filled stockings—their gift to the children of Kensington. The service will be full of reminders of the Sweet Saviour—born on that holy night, the carols, the Gospel, the address, the Manger Scene. Everything will tend to bring out the loving kindness of God in His great gift to us.

The tree, symbol of Yule-tide generosity, will not be missing, nor will the usual presents and candy. But these will be distributed at the close of the service without disorder.

The upper School will hold its regular session at 9.30 that day, the 24th of December, but the Primary and Beginners' Departments will omit the morning session.

Christmas Stockings

Attention, Children! We are going to send the Christmas stockings from the Church School this year, as usual, to the children of S. Ambrose Mission in Kensington.

Bring the filled stockings on Sunday, December 17th. Let us try to make this the best Christmas those children ever had!

The Flower Fund

Please remember the "Flower Fund." We all love to see the flowers on the Altar, and from now until May they must be purchased.

Contributions marked simply "Flower Fund," and dropped in the box at the Church door, will be gratefully received.

Anyone desiring to donate flowers for a special day may communicate with Mrs. H. S. Lowber.

The Purchase of the New Lot

We have it on the highest authority that one should not start to build a tower until one has counted the cost; and the same rule applies to the purchase of land. Doubtless there are few in this Parish for whom an outlay of $4,000 would not be a very sizable item in the year's budget. But no one of us is buying this lot by himself or for himself. We are buying it together: and no single share is so very large, when we come to figure it out.

The communicant lists, published with our November issue, showed about 600 communicants either registered members of this Parish, or residing within its limits. Many who have moved out from the city still prefer to be counted with their old Parish. But, even cutting down the list by one-third, there would remain 400 communicants. If they were to divide the entire purchase price among them, share and share alike, this would only be $10 apiece; or just about twenty cents a week for a year. It would scarcely be a heart-breaking effort for most of us to pay such an amount. Many have already done much more.

But, if this is too much for any of us—and each one must be his or her own judge as to that—we need not keep ourselves wholly aloof. The lot offered us measures 133 feet by 200; thus comprising 26,600 square feet. It is, therefore, offered to us at 15 cents per square foot. No one, surely, wants to have no part in this enterprise. Each of us can at least buy a few square feet at this rate. Any offerings sent the Accounting Warden or put on the alms basin in an envelope marked for that purpose will be so applied.

We are a small company in the great army of the Church of God. We are set to guard a goodly heritage. It is for us to see to it that that heritage is handed on to those who join our company and who will, some day, take our places, not marred nor cramped, but fit to be used to the best advantage in our Blessed Master's work. For this reason only have we set ourselves to make this purchase. Let there be no slackers among us. Let each one do his or her fair share.

The Faithful Departed

At the late celebration on All Saints' Day, those parishioners who have "fallen asleep" during the past year were commemorated by name.

The following prayer was used:

> O Almighty God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, Who by a voice from heaven didst proclaim, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord: Multiply, we beseech Thee, to those who rest in Jesus, the manifold blessings of Thy love, that the good work which Thou didst begin in them may be perfected unto the day of Jesus Christ. And of Thy mercy, O Heavenly Father, vouchsafe that we, who now serve Thee here on earth, may at last, together with them, be found meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light; for the sake of the same, Thy Son, Jesus Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

This prayer is the first definite prayer for the departed to be officially authorized by any Anglican Church since the First Prayer Book of Edward VI. It is to be found in the Prayer Book of the Episcopal Church of Scotland and was incorporated into the revised Burial Office of our own Prayer Book at the recent General Convention.

In his sermon on All Saints' Day, the Rector referred to the modern revival of prayer for the faithful departed and emphasized the calm spirit of confidence which should always characterize such prayers.

He quoted the following words of the Archbishop of Canterbury:

"Surely we are right to be on our guard lest in one who thus reverently, trustfully, thinks and prays and wonders, we discourage the upraising of the devout soul in prayer for the loved one out of sight. We are not forgetful of the long and mischievous abuse of that devotion in later mediæval days. Nay, we have not forgotten or ignored the same abuses still alive, still in some fields prevalent—the dogmatism about things we cannot know, and the perils which such abuse involves. We understand why repression of such mischiefs, prevention of these perils, took in our formularies and our Prayer Books so stern, so drastic a character that no explicit prayers for the departed at all were admitted into the public language of the Church, and people were taught to rely in these public Offices upon that alone which can be definitely proved by Holy Scripture. I have no word of censure for those men—Laud and Andrewes, remember, were among them—who thus handled the difficulties which they had to face.

But surely now there is place for gentler recognition of the instinctive, the natural, the loyal craving of the bereaved; and the abuses of the chantry-system and the extravagances of Tetzel need not now, nearly four centuries afterwards, thwart or hinder the reverent, the absolutely trustful prayer of a wounded spirit who feels it natural and helpful to pray for him whom we shall not greet on earth again, but who, in his Father's loving keeping, still lives, and, as we may surely believe, still grows from strength to strength in truer purity and in deepened reverence and love."

The United Offering at the Convention

The great triennial event in the life of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions has once again passed into history, and another United Offering is available, to be devoted this time "entirely to the training, testing, sending and support of women for mission work at home and abroad, and to the care of such as are sick or disabled."

The amount of the offering, presented in Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis, on Thursday, October 12th, and as announced at the great Mass Meeting that afternoon at the Odeon Theatre, was $352,147.04, an increase of about $46,000 over the offering of 1913. The presentation from the women of the Diocese of Pennsylvania was $49,-208.43; but, before the closing of the United Offering Fund on November 1st, that amount had reached the sum of $50,-005.57, with $1,660.78 as the share of Grace Church. (The total amount of the United Offering of the women of the Church, covering a period of twenty-seven years—from 1889 to 1916—is $1,544,000.)

More precious than all the dollars and cents are the two lives which were offered, at the presentation service, for work in the mission field.

Still looking westward, we are already trying to catch a vision of the far-away Triennial Thank Offering of 1919 at Detroit! Who can tell what more love, greater consecration, and that "consciousness of a common mission" which our Bishop so emphasizes, may mean all along the pathway of the next three years!

Our many faithful contributors in Grace Church Parish will be interested in reading of the important United Offering "doings" at the business meetings of the Auxiliary held in St. Louis. The resolutions which were adopted may be found in the November Spirit of Missions—a valuable Convention number.

A motion to insert the word "Thank" in the name of our offering, making it "The United Thank Offering," was discussed at length, but was finally lost by 176 to 140 votes.

The United Offering Diocesan Treasurer of New York presented an interesting resolution, which was adopted. This resolution recommended the observance of the great Triennial Service by simultaneous services in all Dioceses,—the services to be arranged to conform as closely as possible to that in the Convention city. Such a service was held on October 12th at the Cathedral of S. John the Divine, New York, and had proved one of great inspiration and helpfulness. M. C. S. N.

Notes

The Kindergarten coach will call for young children, if the parents will notify Mrs. R. N. Hall, 34 Gowen Avenue, Mt. Airy, of a desire to have the little ones attend the Church School.

The Rector announced a few Sundays ago that he intended to take the Confirmation candidates on a pilgrimage through the Church to explain to them the symbolism of the ornaments and vestments of Church worship. He invited others who were interested to attend. To his surprise, a large company—some 60 persons—presented themselves. They followed with keen interest the simple explanation of things churchly. Several requests have since been made that the Rector repeat the instruction, that others may attend. He has promised to do so.

The Rector of Grace Church has recently attended the following events, all of which have important bearing upon the religious life of Mt. Airy: The fiftieth anniversary of the entrance upon the ministry of the Rev. Dr. Jacobs, Dean of the Lutheran Seminary; the twentieth anniversary of the Rev. John Calhoun's pastorate in the Mt. Airy Presbyterian Church, and the funeral of the Rev. John Toomey, Rector of Holy Cross Roman Catholic Church in Mt. Airy.

At the meeting of the Communicants' Guild, November 17th, the following important events were announced:

Wednesday, November 29th, at 7.45, meeting of the Guild to welcome the newly confirmed as members.

The same evening at 8.30, service of preparation for the Holy Communion.

Sunday, December 3d (Advent Sunday), at 7.30 A. M., Semi-Annual Corporate Communion of the Guild. At that service the newly confirmed will make their first Communion.

Are we going to increase our gifts for missions this current year? Last year, according to the report recently received, our Parish apportionment was $1,709.70. We raised in the Church $2,342.69, in the Church School $333.06, in the Woman's Auxiliary $149.25, making a total of $2,825.00, of which $710.08 was our special "One Day's Income" offering at Easter time. The missionary year is still young—let it be a vigorous one.

The Pastoral Letter

To the people of this Church, we, your Bishops, give counsel in the name of Christ.

America is involved today in world-wide confusion which finds its most acute expression in the battle-fields of Europe. No self isolation on our part is possible. The Fortunes of the nations of the world are interwoven as the threads of a tapestry. To ignore this fact is folly; to reckon with it frankly is to give due recognition to the fundamental unity of the human race and to hasten the dawn of that day in which the armaments of war shall be beaten into the implements of peace.

It was but a moment ago that we were basking in the thought that the human race was steadily coming to recognize the community of its interests the world over. The crime today of acting as if this were not so, is the greater because the doctrine of brotherhood has progressed from a local theory to a universal conviction.

Interests can never again be sectional. The world is henceforth one from North to South and from East to West, for the time being in a disturbed and suffering unity, in days to come in a unity where order and health will reign. "Here" and "there" are merely terms of lifeless space. The longest distance in the human brotherhood is but from the head to the feet of its quivering, sensitive body. Sympathy reaching to the ends of the earth is not the voluntary offering of a few, but the humane obligation of all. It is the instinctive thrill of fellow-feeling that rushes through the entire organism when a single member rejoices or suffers. Political expediency may in war time require neutrality of the State, but it cannot hold in leash the sympathies of the individual citizen. A man cannot be passionless and retain his manhood. "No heart is pure that is not passionate, no virtue safe that is not enthusiastic."

The fact that our Nation is not at war affords no ground for smugness, much less for self-applause. It throws upon us the searching responsibility of exalting the true ideals of peace and incorporating them in our national life. Nationalism too often assumes the ugly role of group-selfishness or false patriotism. Local conditions determine what form this disease will take. Yonder it breaks forth in the scarlet rash of war; here in unconsecrated prosperity which is bound to cause manhood to decay. The Nation that in some quarters, for the sake of gain, still chains to the wheels of industry the bodies and souls of her little children, that allows human life to be sacrificed to the inventions of speed and production from lack of costly safeguards, that heeds but listlessly the cry of the poor and oppressed, is not at peace even though she be not at war. If presently we aspire to act as peacemakers in behalf of the warring nations on the ground that we are not caught in the meshes of the actual conflict, let our aspirations be tempered by the reflection that we are tainted with the common disease of which the eruption of war is a symptom not a cause. God hates a godless and empty peace as much as He hates unrighteous war. Let it be sadly said that, in proportion to her swollen wealth, as figures show, America's contribution toward the alleviation of innocent sufferers in Europe is the merest pittance. A few have given lavishly even to the laying down of their lives, many in due proportion to their substance, the vast majority little or nothing. But the opportunity has not yet swept by. Christ is calling men to sanctify their wealth by offering freely of their substance to God's cause everywhere. The wounds of Armenia, Poland and Belgium still lie gaping to the sky and offer their dumb appeal to God and man. If America comes out of this day of world disorder richer in purse and poorer in manhood, she will invite, and bring upon herself, the penalty of a debased national life or even of losing her very soul. The peace that smothers the souls is as ruthless and inexorable as the war that mangles the bodies of its victims.

So far as war is a discipline which man has imposed upon himself, he must look to himself to get rid of it. Movements and associations to promote peace are not to be ignored or undervalued, especially those which emphasize the deep likenesses, and give second place to the surface differences, of the race. America is still in danger of race antipathy flaming into hatred, which always constitutes an angry call to arms. Her blood connection with the whole of Europe is a glorious heritage, making in the main for peace. Whatsoever dangers may lie lurking beyond our western horizon, they can surely be averted by a spirit of justice which has not always prevailed in our dealing with the Orient, the multitudinous Orient which presently will be the centre of the world's attention.

Again no nation, least of all so vast and diversified a one as ours, is justified in trusting to chance for the creation of her national character. She must expect of every one of her citizens some true form of national service, rendered according to the capacity of each. No one can commute or delegate it; no one can be absolved from it. National preparedness is a clear duty. If this service assumes the form of more military defense, such can easily become a menace, and will surely fall short of pacific effect, unless all the productive forces of manhood are at the same moment developed and shaped into social order and righteousness. The only thorough preparedness is that exemplified and taught by Christ, the preparedness of character based upon life with God.

Would that our peace today were like a river and our righteousness as the waves of the sea! Then would we be indeed an ensign to the nations. But how different a case it is! The nations now at war whom thoughtless people pity, have as much to teach us as we have to teach them. They rebuke our worship of comfort and money by their daily offering, upon a reeking altar, of life and treasure, in behalf of what each believes to be a spiritual ideal; they declare to us that intoxicating liquor which is so freely and carelessly drunk in our land is a national menace to be dispensed with at the cost of lowered revenue but with the gain of heightened virility; they teach us that food is the staff of physical life, not an invitation to daintiness or gluttony; they rebuke our spiritual poverty by the splendor of their spiritual eagerness, which, out of their tragedy, brings new visions from God and breeds new virtues in men; they shame our self-indulgence by a degree of self-sacrifice that is royal in that the priests that offer are the victims offered.

We now come to the study of the causes of our social disorder, whether they express themselves in war or in diseased peace. Whatever apology may be made, or local explanation offered, at home or abroad, for the world confusion, it is "none the less an outcome and a revelation of un-Christian principles which have dominated the life of western Christendom and of which both the Church and the nations have need to repent." We will know that force, be it physical or moral, cannot by itself uproot evil, nevertheless we have no right to place in the same class all the belligerents, aggressive and defensive, in this or any war. There are even occasions when the cleansing of the temple of human life must be begun with scourge and driving power. But it is the duty of the Church "to place supreme reliance upon spiritual forces and in particular upon the power and method of the Cross."

St. James, were he speaking today, could not use more pointed and telling words than those he wrote long centuries ago: "From whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts which war in your members?

CONVEYANCING INSURANCE

Know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God." Greed of possessions, greed of honor, greed of pleasure have literally dethroned God from His supreme place among men. The sole cure is to exalt God. The Church of earliest days met her unprecedented responsibility of converting and enlightening a bewildered and depraved world first by proclaiming God as revealed in Jesus Christ, and then by moral precept as exemplified by His character and word. The order is from God to righteousness rather than from righteousness to God. The world of men is athirst for the knowledge of the living God. If we need fresh evidence of this, we have it in the recent experience of the Nation-wide Preaching Mission. We therefore solemnly enjoin upon pastors and preachers that their first duty is to retire periodically within the veil, and walk with God, in order to come forth and proclaim His clear revelation of Himself made through the ages; and to reaffirm in this our day of distress that He understands and rules the race which He shaped with His own hand, and with which He irrevocably identified Himself when He became the Son of Man. Experienced in dealing with the age-long waywardness of men, He is not baffled or embarrassed by the wide-spread disorder of our times. Experienced equally and victoriously in suffering, His hand of compassion is skilled and ready to "comfort and succour all those who in this transitory life, are in trouble, sorrow, need, sickness, or any other adversity." The awful writhing mass of suffering which men are now facing does not tax, much less exhaust, His pitiful mercy. In the calm certainty of His saving power, He moves among the pain-stricken everywhere without haste and without rest.

With the incarnation as the cornerstone of the faith, our common humanity contains in itself God's assurance that we have capacity for universal brotherhood, God's executive agency for bringing in His Kingdom and His righteousness in the Church of Jesus Christ. Out of the natural human family, our Lord's mystical body is shaped into a fellowship which transcends all the divisions of nationality or race. Thus far the Church has been only strong enough to see and covet, not strong enough to consummate her ideal. Her own disunion dims her hope, weakens her arm and hinders her progress. Nevertheless in her missions throughout the world, often in conditions of extreme difficulty, she has steadily borne witness to her regenerating power and has welded living links uniting to one another distant and diverse members of the human family, as well as won individuals to the love and service of God. But it is only flame that can kindle flame. A divided Church is powerless to create an undivided world. There must therefore be no relaxation in our steady efforts to bind up her wounds and manifest her unity. The breakdown of secular efforts to maintain stable order constitutes a special call to her so to equip herself as to fulfil her conciliating office among individuals and groups of men.

We close our words of counsel and exhortation to the churches with our faces set toward the dawn. History makes plain to us that man's extremity is God's opportunity. Beneath every pall of tragedy lies hidden the glory of God—new visions of faith, new counsels of virtue—to be revealed to and discovered by those who look not at the things which are seen but at the things which are not seen, and who wrestle with God for a blessing.

We commend you with confidence, brethren, in this day of our peril and opportunity, to the safekeeping of Him who was dead and is alive forevermore. Amen.

VOLUME XIII JANUARY, 1917 NUMBER 1

Church Pension Fund

For many years the stronger dioceses of our Church have maintained funds for the care of their clergy when disabled from active work by age or infirmity, and of those dependent on them, after their death. The distributions thus made have been unequal and always pitiably inadequate.

Three years ago the Church began to awake to its duty to this body of faithful and hard working men. No one who has looked into the matter at all, can fail to realize that the compensation paid to the majority of our clergy is insufficient to enable them to live in the manner expected of them, or to do the work of which they are capable; and leaves to the clergyman with the average family no surplus whatever to lay aside to protect himself, or those dearest to him, against any failure of his powers. The General Convention of 1913 appointed a Joint Commission to work out an equitable plan for the assumption by the Church as a whole of at least a moderate part of its duty to make good its dereliction in this matter. This commission has prepared a scheme, which has been accepted by all the diocesan conventions and adopted by the General Convention of 1916, under which by the payment from each parish of a sum equal to about 7½ per cent. per annum of the total amount it pays its clergy in salary (including the use of the rectory), a fund will be created, out of which each clergyman hereafter entering the service of the Church and retired from duty through age or disability will receive a pension or annuity fixed to a certain extent by the salary he received while in active service, but not less than $600 per annum. Proportionate provision is also made for his widow and minor children.

The fund raised in this way will not, however, be sufficient to provide such pensions for the clergy already—and some of them for many years—in active service. These are what the actuaries call "accrued liabilities," and they have calculated that to meet them the sum of $5,000,000 must be provided. Of this amount the Joint Commission, headed by Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts (who has done wonderful work in this cause), has already received in cash or pledges $4,000,000. The greater part of this sum has come from a comparatively small number of men, blessed with large means, whom Bishop Lawrence and his associates on the commission have brought to see the greatness of the need and so the greatness of their opportunity. In order to make these pledges good the remaining $1,000,000 must be secured by March, 1917, and the commission is now appealing to every parish of our Church to do its share in raising this amount. This is our opportunity; our chance to show that we, too, see the need and are ready, out of our means, to take our part in the performance of this great duty.

In pursuance of the plan adopted by the Diocesan Committee in charge of this matter, the subject will soon be laid before you by the Parish Committee appointed by the Vestry for that purpose. We bespeak for what they present to you a careful consideration and a liberal response.

The Senior Sexton

In electing Mr. E. L. Hagenbaugh Senior Sexton of this Church, and relieving him of the exacting physical labor of the care of its property, the Vestry desire to record their deep appreciation of his long and faithful services to this parish.

He was first elected Sexton in 1884 when this congregation was still worshipping in its original Church building on Mt. Airy Avenue, and when the duties of the position were light and required but a small part of his time. The erection of our present Church five years later, and the growth of the work of the parish steadily increased the requirements of his position and soon engrossed his entire time.

His devotion to the Church and its work, his faithfulness to his duties, his uniform courtesy and attention to all connected with the parish who called on him for any service, and the truly Christian dignity which he at all times manifested, can only be fully known to those who have also served this Church during this long period. Their best wishes follow him into his new position where they hope he can for many years continue to serve the Church and aid in its growth and prosperity.

A New Sexton

On January 1st, Mr. Emanuel L. Hagenbaugh, for thirty-one years Sexton of Grace Church, and now eighty-two years of age, was relieved of the active duties of his office and made "Senior Sexton." He will continue to receive part salary and to officiate at times.

His successor as active Sexton is Mr. Samuel Algeo, born in County Donegal, Ireland, in 1880. Mr. Algeo came to this country eight years ago. During the past year he has been gardener for Mrs. Chas. H. Miller and has been a regular communicant of Grace Church.

Mr. Algeo was married to Miss Margaret Anderson in Grace Church on December 6th.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

There are at present several funds that the women of Grace Church are trying to raise, and in case they are not fully understood, the following list may be of help:

The salary for the Parish Worker and the purse for Miss Nunneviller have already been carefully explained, so they need no further word; it is only necessary to add that these funds are of primary importance in our parish, and it is hoped that the contributions to them will be generous.

The next on the list is the pledge of $6 for Dr. Yoh, a Chinese woman, who, after hard work, has completed her medical course in her own country and has come here to take advantage of our hospital clinics. Through the kindness of interested Philadelphians she has been given the privilege of observing delicate and rare operations in the hospitals and is adding to her experience the special training she desires.

For seven years after obtaining her degree Dr. Yoh was in charge of St. James' Hospital, China. All money earned in private outside practice she turned over to the hospital until the last year, when she put by what she thought would be enough for her passage and her living expenses during the twelve months in this country. With all prices advancing, however, this was soon gone and she will have to return without the experience for which she came if funds are not provided. Dr. Yoh is a woman whose influence and work among her people will be invaluable, and we must not lose this opportunity to help. She wishes to remain about three months longer; her board is $6 a week and about $50 will be needed for expenses. Various parishes pledged one, two or three weeks' board and the sum was soon made up. Grace Church has promised one week's board and all contributions toward it will be gladly received.

The Episcopal Hospital comes next, and every good churchwoman should feel a personal responsibility for this institution. Bishop Rhinelander, in the Diocesan News some months ago, pointed out most forcefully and movingly our duty in this regard. He told how many poor, sick creatures have to be refused admission and even treatment, though half the beds are unoccupied. He said: "You have turned them away!" We should count our contribution to the Episcopal Hospital as one of our regular yearly expenses just as we do our coal and gas bills.

In the early part of December the Rev. George S. Gassner addressed one of the Auxiliary meetings on the subject of the "Seaman's Church Institute of Philadelphia." Its aim is to help the unfortunate and provide a pleasant, wholesome place for sailors to spend their evenings when they are staying at this port for a short time. Donations of money and light reading matter of all kinds will be most welcome.

At another meeting, Miss Robinson, from South Carolina, told very convincingly of the conditions in the cotton mills in the south. She was trying to raise money to help the young girls employed there, whose lives from year's end to year's end are one long struggle with poverty and oppression. Miss Robinson appealed to us to aid her in this work and a fund has been started.

At the end of the list comes Mrs. Markoe's pledge for Pennsylvania of $2,500 for the work in the Philippine Islands at Sagada. Fr. Staunton's lecture here during our Dedication Festival has made us familiar with this subject. The sum seems like a large one to raise, but individual effort can accomplish much if properly directed, and Mrs. Markoe sets us a fine example in this respect. Let each one do her best, not only by giving herself but by asking others to give also, and there will be no trouble in raising more than our share of the pledge.

Awards

The following awards were made at the Christmas eve service:

A prayer book and hymnal presented by the Rector to Curtis Crolius, in recognition of his faithful and orderly service as choir boy.

A prayer book and hymnal presented by the Music Committee to Robert Beaumont for regular attendance at choir rehearsals.

Bibles to scholars bringing new members into the Church School:

Nellie Lamb, James Hults, Ada Insinger, June Crouter, Walton Brand. Rachel Lamb and Florence Longcope having received Bibles already are to receive a book instead.

The Christmas Baskets

The Social Service Committee reports that upwards of $16 was raised by the Juniors and expended in providing chicken dinners for some of those who would otherwise have gone without a repast befitting Christmas Day.

Five baskets full of fowl and "trimmings" were distributed where they would do the most good.

Candlemas

A more coloquial name for the Feast of the Purification is "Candlemas." The aged Simeon proclaimed Christ the "Light of the Gentiles" and the "Glory of Israel." From ancient times this festival has been observed by processions of lighted candles in the churches. The spreading light conquering the darkness symbolizes the mission of the Church to dark lands.

According to our custom for several years we shall have a Candlemas service in Church at 4 o'clock on Friday afternoon, February 2d. The whole Church School will attend. The children of the Font Roll are especially invited to bring their parents. This is one of the bright spots of our year's observances. All are welcome.

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7.

The Presentation

God claimed as His own every first born son of Israel. They were from birth marked for consecration to His service as priests. But they could be redeemed from actual service. The Levites became their substitutes. They specialized in the work of the priesthood. Nevertheless, every first born son must be duly presented and redeemed by an offering. Though he might not become a priest, yet his life was a dedicated life. The Feast of the Presentation recalls the presentation of the First Born of our race to His Father. His was indeed a dedicated life.

The Purification

But this festival is known in common parlance as the Purification. Women after childbirth were ceremonially unclean, for a boy forty days, for a girl eighty days. They were then bound to present an offering for Purification—a lamb and a turtle dove. Poor women might offer two turtle doves.

In perfect obedience to the law the Virgin Mother brought her two turtle doves and was duly purified. She also made her thanksgiving to God for His signal mercies bestowed upon her.

The Churching of Women

In our churching office we have a rite which carries us back to the old dispensation and brings the grateful and devout mother today into fellowship with the holy mother of our Lord.

The predominant idea in our Christian office is thanksgiving rather than purification. The curse pronounced upon Eve has been done away by the grace of Christ.

The thankful mother makes her vow of self dedication before the altar, presents her offering to God and receives the Blessed Sacrament. Probably the reason why many mothers omit this Prayer Book office is because it has not been definitely brought to their attention.

The Epiphany

Again the Star of the East adorns the horizon, turning the eyes of all wise men to the Infant Redeemer. Again we are reminded of the Church's Epiphany task "to make all men see what is the followship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ." The services on the Feast of the Epiphany, Saturday, January 6th, were announced as follows: Holy Communion at 7; Morning Prayer at 9; Holy Communion with hymns and address at 9.30.

The Conversion of S. Paul

Not only on Thursday, January 25th, but throughout this Epiphany season we do well to have the "wonderful conversion" of S. Paul in remembrance. The great Apostle of the Gentiles is clearly the Epiphany Saint. His abundant labors have won for him in some quarters the title of the Second Founder of Christianity. His personality dominates more than half the New Testament. And all he became and all he taught sprang from that pregnant event, his conversion. The passionate love of Jesus then born in him guided him continually until the hour of his martyrdom. It is sometimes said that conversion does not receive its full emphasis in the Church. We believe in Christian nurture, but we also believe profoundly in conversion. There will be an early celebration at 7 o'clock on S. Paul's Day.

Another Confirmation Class

Already a nucleus for another confirmation class is gathering. Several adults have expressed to the Rector their desire for the laying on of hands. A number of boys and girls are looking forward to the next opportunity. It seems a pity to wait until next fall. If it can be arranged with the Bishop a class may be presented in the spring. Candidates should not hesitate to take up the matter with the Rector at this time.

Acknowledgment

The Rector and Mrs. Cline wish to express through these columns their deep sense of gratitude to the many friends in the parish who made their Christmas tenfold happier because of their assurances and tokens of affectionate good will.

The Christmas Festival

The Church School Festival on Christmas Eve was enjoyed not only by the members of the school, but by nearly 300 visitors, including many parents. It was a delight to have a delegation from the Pennsylvania Institute for the Deaf present and we hope they will always join us hereafter.

The following was the program:

1 Procession of the whole school led by the vested choir, singing hymns, Adeste Fideles and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing." After encircling the church the procession passed in front of the Christmas tree where each pupil deposited his well filled stocking.
2 Opening sentence and brief word of welcome and explanation of the service.
3 Carol, "Blessed Night, When Bethlehem's Plain," followed by the presentation of the offering.
4 Reading of the Christmas lesson, S. Luke 2: 1-14, by the Superintendent.
5 The Magnificat sung to a simple chant.
6 The Creed.
7 The prayers.
8 Carol, "O Little Town of Bethlehem."
9 The Christmas Story told by the Rector.
10 Acts of Devotion—
The Rector kneeling in the center of the church led the school and congregation in a An Act of Thanksgiving.
b An Act of Adoration to the Son of Mary.
c An Act of Humility and Welcome to Jesus.
11 Carol, "Silent Night, Holy Night," sung kneeling, during which the church grew gradually dark and the tree was illuminated.
12 The Pilgrimage to the Manger Scene, singing "We Three Kings of Orient Are" and "The First Nowell." The whole school and some members of the congregation visited the beautiful and reverent stable scene.
13 Distribution of presents to Primary and Beginners' Departments, during which the notices were given out.
14 Recessional—Carol, "O Bethlehem." Boxes of candy were handed to all members of the school as they passed out of the church.

The Brotherhood of S. Andrew

Plans are underway for the development of a strong chapter of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew in Grace Church.

Only men who have been thoroughly trained for this work in the Way will be eligible to membership in the chapter. Meanwhile the chapter has been reorganized and the work committed to a few picked men. As the National Brotherhood Convention meets in Philadelphia next fall their work assumes unusual importance.

On the third Sunday in Advent, Mr. Frederick T. McGuire was received as a member and Messrs. S. Mendelson Meehan and Wm. B. Walton renewed their vows.

The Junior Chapter is soon to be reorganized in like manner.

The Observer

I was glad to be one of the 500 who shared the Christmas Eve Festival in Grace Church. It put me in tune with the real inwardness of Christmas. I was glad to see so much made of the Christ Child, so little of Santa Claus. I was glad to see the emphasis upon giving rather than receiving. I wished I had brought a stocking to add to the pile.

But I was glad to see the children receiving some tokens of the Mother Church's love and bounty too.

I wasn't sure I should like a Christmas tree in the Church. Somehow Christmas trees are usually so tawdry and everything in the Church should be so genuine and reverent.

But I was glad when I saw that chaste and worshipful tree all in silver and white.

I was gladder still to see the Crêche. How vivid it made the scene of Jesus' humble birth. Anyhow we children like such things.

I was glad the carols were not the cheap modern ones, but the ancient classical ones which children have loved for centuries.

It seemed so fitting and appropriate to be there with the children in the Church on Christmas Eve. What a pity to have put it in some other place or to have postponed it until the freshness and wonder of that holy night had been somewhat lost in the festivities of the holidays.

So you see how it was that I was ready to enter into the spirit of that prayer on Christmas Day which begins, "O, God, who makest us glad with the yearly remembrance of the birth of thine only Son, Jesus Christ."

It seems to me that it doesn't matter so much whether a man stands for Free Church or Rented Pews, as why he advocates either.

If Free Church, to escape shouldering his portion of the budget, I shall have an argument with him; if for Rented Pews as exclusive property; with him also. Even if renting pews is defended on the ground of expediency, perhaps I shall have a word about that.

If the poor, and others who have to count their coppers carefully, not to mention a class of lukewarm brethren sitting on the fence, are shunted away from the Church by an atmosphere of exclusiveness, shouldn't churchmen assume an attitude of resistance toward a system which has given offence, and direct their efforts to its elimination? In other words, shouldn't a churchman look forward to the abolition of pew rents, and work toward that end, however much that plan of providing income may have served a purpose in the past? Are we pretty well satisfied with Rented Pews, so much so that we have no wish for free seats, and a voluntary support of the parish? It's a poor professional or business man who wishes to accomplish something and does not do it. If he wants to achieve something very much he generally finds a way to do it.

If we are indifferent to Free Church,—do not wish and work hard for it, that condition will never come about.

There's nothing new about this indifference; it's as old as the hills. In company with the miracles enumerated in the Gospel for the third Sunday in Advent, is the good news that the poor are having the Gospel preached to them, from which it might be reasonably inferred that they had been neglected before.

The wardens of many Free Churches find that those in most moderate circumstances; yes, even the really poor, give more than the well to do, in proportion to their incomes.

It is a fact that the working people, if I can use that term, are the last to dodge their dues.

There are parishes whose budgets were never quite met by the income through Pew Rents, and which cast aside that system for one which not only pays all expenses but opens wide the doors and floors of the House of God.

The Church Pension Fund Committee to represent the parish has been appointed as follows: Mr. James Wilson Bayard, chairman, Dr. A. L. E. Crouter and Mr. Wm. L. Chrisman.

The second Sunday in Advent marked the anniversary of the parochial mission. The Church School attended a celebration of the Holy Communion at 9.30. Dr. Breed was celebrant and the Rector directed the responses from the nave. The missioner of last Advent, Fr. Bull, who so endeared himself to the children, was not forgotten in their prayers.

The Way

A pamphlet for the use of members of The Way has recently been printed. It includes a catechism, an office and some reminders appropriate to the "First Stage of the Journey." A list of the names of the first forty men to pass the first gate is printed in the pamphlet.

We quote the following:

"To every sincere and discerning traveler the way is an experience."

It is not an occasional experience but a daily experience.

It is a common experience shared by a company of men.

It is a religious experience, uniting us with God.

It is a practical experience, preparing us for strong corporate service to Home, Church and Nation.

"The dogmas of the quiet past are inadequate to the stormy present. The occasion is piled high with difficulty and we must rise to the occasion. As our case is new, so we must think anew and act anew. We must disenthrall ourselves and then we shall save our country."—Abraham Lincoln (1862).

Early Services

An ever increasing number of communicants are coming to love the early morning celebrations of the Holy Communion. Advent Sunday about one hundred persons made their Communion early. On Christmas Day there were eighty at the 6 o'clock service, an increase of almost 50 per cent. over last Christmas. The large attendance at the two early Eucharists on that day thinned out the congregation at the high celebration.

On the Feast of the Circumcision thirty-two persons began the new year by making their Communions at 7 o'clock.

This appreciation of the early Eucharists is growing more rapidly in some neighboring parishes than with us.

In S. Timothy's Church, Roxborough, 300 persons made their Communion at the 6 o'clock service on Christmas Day.

Missions

It is cause for general thanksgiving that the Board of Missions enters upon the new year with no unpaid bills to embarrass it.

The One Day's Income Plan has accomplished great things, enabling the Board to devote $81,508.91 to permanent equipment within the United States—an entirely new record. It was a brave step when the General Convention recommended that hereafter the Board of Missions set aside all undesignated legacies to be used for equipment and new work.

It means that we, the living, must meet the current demands of the Church's missionary work. For two years we have devoted our Easter offering to missions, giving each at least one day's income. Let us look forward to making a record offering next Easter.

Memory Work

Considerable stress is laid upon memory work in Grace Church School. The official pin of the School can be worn only by those who have recited the whole Church catechism. The following have qualified for this privilege and wear the bronze pin: E. Martyn George, June Y. Crouter, A. L. E. Crouter, Jr., Gertrude Doelp, Marion Haldeman, Pauline de Moll, Frank Fortescue and Ruth Jago.

The requirements for the second award.—the silver pin—are as follows:

1 Canticles from Morning and Evening prayer—Venite, Te Deum Benedictus, Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis.

General Confession.

2 Collects: Christmas, First Lent, Easter, Whitsunday, Ascension, Annunciation, Missions.

3 Scripture: The Beatitudes, Psalm 23, Parable of the Prodigal Son or Parable of the Good Samaritan.

4 Seasons of the Church Year.

5 Hymns 289, 412, 444.

(Cut this out and preserve it)

New Communicants

Sometimes large confirmation classes, carefully prepared, are presented to the Bishop, and afterward, for some unaccountable reason, there seems no appreciable increase in the attendance at the Holy Communion.

Quite the reverse is true regarding the class recently confirmed in Grace Church. Their presence is a constant inspiration at the Church services. They have brought a real contribution of strength to the Church.

Organ Recitals

Mr. McMichael will resume this month the organ recitals after Evening Prayer which have proved so enjoyable in the past.

On Tuesday evening, February 6th, Mr. McMichael will give a free organ recital in Grace Church, under the auspices of the American Organ Players' Club. It will be one of a series of twenty-four recitals given during the year by the various members of the club in different churches.

Notes

The payments for diocesan apportionment since May 1, 1916, have aggregated $309.08.

Mr. McMichael will have the use of the parish house as a studio for the instruction of pupils from Mt. Airy and Chestnut Hill.

On the second Sunday in Advent the Rev. Henry L. Phillips, Archdeacon of Colored Work in Philadelphia, made a short address at the morning service regarding the work of the Church for the members of that race within this diocese.

A new fair linen cloth, beautifully embroidered, has recently been presented by the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild and was used for the first time on Christmas Day. This covering for the altar represents the winding-sheet in which the body of our Saviour was wrapped at His burial, and is marked with five crosses as a memento of His five wounds.

The Rector will conduct a conference on missionary instruction in the Sunday School at 2 o'clock on the annual educational day in the Church House, Friday, January 19th.

After Evensong on the Sunday after Christmas the Rector conducted another pilgrimage through the Church, explaining to an interested group of persons the ornaments, vestments and sacred vessels used in the services.

VOLUME XIII FEBRUARY, 1917 NUMBER 2

Pastoral Letter

Dear Brethren:—In England lately they have been making a "Pilgrimage of Prayer." "Pilgrims," chosen for the work, have gone about from place to place, from house to house, gathering the people for informal prayer together. The time was ripe and wonderful things have happened.

Last October, in St. Louis, it was proposed that this American Church should in like manner undertake a Pilgrimage of Prayer, but with a difference. With us, it is Prayer itself which is to make the pilgrimage, moving across the country, passing from Diocese to Diocese. This Pilgrimage has begun. The Diocese of Maine was the first to take it up, in the first week of Advent. In its westward movement, it comes to us from the Diocese of New Jersey on Sunday, February 4th. We are to pass it on to Bethlehem and Harrisburg on the Sunday following. Before the year is out it will have encircled our world. On Sunday, November 25, 1917, being the Sunday next before Advent, in all our Churches everywhere a final service of observance will be held, and the Pilgrimage will close.

I am writing now to urge you all to give yourselves earnestly and devoutly to a due observance of this Week of Prayer, from February 4th to February 11th inclusive, all through the Diocese. It offers a great spiritual opportunity if we have the grace to use it.

Our chief need is that we should be aroused to the urgent necessity of prayer. In Europe men have learned this first and greatest lesson. The experience of War has broken through the hardened surfaces of life. Men have become once more spiritually sensitive. It has become natural for them to pray. But it is not so with us. We have learned no spiritual lessons. Nothing has happened to break, or even to bend, the hardened crust of our material prosperity. We are on the edge of spiritual bankruptcy. This Week of Prayer, then, must be used chiefly for our conversion to the life of prayer. I would urge especially in this connection three lines of thoughts which may well provide us with central points of meditation:

First: The World's Present Fear.

Political ambition—hatreds and emulations—broken faith—Christendom at war—"rivers of pain"—evil going forth from nation to nation as a great whirlwind—the slain as dung upon the ground—civilization in ruins. (See Jer. XXV: 32, 33.)

"And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars: and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken." St. Luke XXI: 25, 26.

Second: The Nation's Present Danger.

Our country peopled by the nations—not yet welded into nationality—no clear national consciousness or conscience—money madness—distrust and prejudice between classes—dulling of moral sense—worship of comfort and ease—unbridled license—shrinking from sacrifice—impending judgment.

"How much hath she glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her; for she saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow." Rev. XVIII: 7.

Third: The Christian's Present Stupor.

Heedlessness of God—living for the present—faithless to the past—careless of the future—no strong convictions—no courageous stand for principle—no recognition of absolute truth or right—drifting in the dark.

"Because that, when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful; but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened." Rom. I: 21.

Carefully considering these things, we shall feel an instant challenge to the Church to be at prayer. Salvation out of every danger comes from God alone. We reach and release God's saving power only as we pray.

In such a spirit, and moved by a clear sense of our responsibility, let us prepare to observe our Week of Prayer throughout the Diocese.

There will shortly be ready and distributed a small pamphlet giving suggestions as to how the Week of Prayer may be observed in public and in private. This will be followed by a printed schedule of services and meetings which are to be held in various Churches during the week.

I would also recommend that at every service in every Church from now to February 4th, a special Collect be used in preparation for the Week of Prayer. For this purpose, the Collects for the 10th, 12th and 22d Sundays after Trinity will be found suitable.

Faithfully yours,

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop of Pennsylvania.

Epiphany, 1917.

The Week of Prayer at Grace Church

The local observances in connection with the national Pilgrimage of Prayer will be as follows:

Sunday, February 4th (Septuagesima).
- 7.30—Corporate Communion of the Woman's Auxiliary (under whose auspices the Pilgrimage was planned).
- 10.15—Morning Prayer, the Church School attending in a body.
- 11.00—Holy Communion, with Sermon on Prayer.
- 8.00—Evening Prayer. Preacher Rev. Samuel Upjohn, D. D., Rector of S. Luke's Church, Germantown. This service offers a special opportunity for the men to have a share in the Week of Prayer.

Monday, February 5th.
- 4.00—Service of Intercession.

Tuesday, February 6th.
- 4.00—Service of Intercession.
- 8.00—Organ Recital. (An excellent opportunity for spiritual meditations.)

Wednesday, February 7th.
- 9.00—Litany.
- 9.30—Holy Communion.
- 12.00—Service of Intercession.
- 2.00—Class in Prayer; Leader, Mrs. W. B. Abbey.

Thursday, Feb. 8th, to Saturday, Feb. 10th.
- 4.00—Service of Intercession.

The Church will be kept open for private prayer during the week.

It is hoped all parishioners will remember the objects of intercession in their private and family devotions day by day.

Daily throughout the week the Church bell will be rung at 12 o'clock, noon, to remind all who are within hearing of the noonday private prayer for Missions. Let all who are distant hear its echo in their souls and, wherever they may be, pause for a moment of prayer.

I will therefore that men pray everywhere, lifting up holy hands without wrath and doubting.—I Timothy, 2 : 8.

NOONDAY PRAYER

Blessed Saviour, who at this hour didst hang upon the Cross, stretching forth Thy loving arms, grant that all mankind may look unto Thee and be saved, through Thy mercies and merits, who livest and reignest with the Father and the Holy Ghost ever one God, world without end. Amen.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

It is hard to realize that Christmas is so far behind us and Lent almost at hand. Before that season is quite upon us, you are reminded of the "Sample Tea" that has become a regular institution in our parish. This year it will be held on S. Valentine's Day, February 14th, from 2 until 5 in the afternoon, and tea will be served at 4 o'clock. The regular sewing meeting of the Auxiliary takes place in the morning and there will be a light luncheon for the convenience of those who wish to remain.

Remember that this is not a sale of pretty little trifles that no one wants, but what we all, at some time, have to buy, at the usual bazaar. The articles are things that we really need and would have to buy elsewhere. They are placed on exhibition as samples from which orders are taken. Why not patronize this home talent, and, in so doing, add to the fund that accumulates and is afterwards used for Missions?

The committee will be most grateful to anyone who will send in a sample article that she will be willing to duplicate if orders are received.

A request came the other day from the Indians for thread, buttons by the dozen and pictures. This is rather an unusual list of requirements, but it will not be hard to complete, for I am sure we all have some of these things that we can readily spare. The Indian boxes are sent off in the spring, so there is plenty of time, but let us try not to forget our donations.

The Rector's Letter

My dear Parishioners:

Sundry matters occur to me as the PARISH NEWS goes to press.

The great prayer wave sweeping over the country now lifts us on its crest. Ponder the prayer-inspiring words of our good Bishop. I can add nothing to them except to assure you that I shall pray for you each one by name before the altar during that week. And may I ask that, though your intercessions be world-wide in range, you forget not to pray lovingly for one another and for me.

Nothing has so delighted me in a long while as the new program which enables us to bring the Church School as a body into the Church for worship every Sunday. Even the Beginners are to join us once each month. How naturally they enter into the wonder and beauty of worship! These things, often hid from the wise and prudent, are revealed unto babes. Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight.

As we tested out recently the advisability of an afternoon session of the Church School, one thing became abundantly evident—that for the great majority of our people the afternoon is preëmpted.

Recognizing this fact, we have decided to transfer Evening Prayer to the evening —beginning Septuagesima

Gentle reader, if you have not been in the habit of attending Evensong (and the chances are you haven't), will you not now definitely plan to come to Grace Church regularly Sunday evenings, bringing with you so many of your family and friends as can be persuaded? Let your prayer be set forth in His sight as the incense; and let the lifting up of your hands be an evening sacrifice.

Faithfully yours in Christ,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

For the Pilgrimage of Prayer Week

A suggestion for the use of the Pilgrimage leaflet:

There are seven subjects for prayer; on the inner cover of the leaflet are seven texts or groups of texts bearing upon these subjects; take one subject for meditation and intercession each day and use the corresponding text.

Intercessions Prepared for His People by a New Hampshire Rector

Hear us, O Lord our God, as we cry to Thee with many souls in many lands in this our Pilgrimage of Prayer:

O bind together the hearts of Thy people everywhere with Love Divine.

We beseech Thee to hear us, good Lord.

May all who bear the name of Christ live as Christians, having in their day a glad and worthy part, by life and works, by prayer and gifts, in carrying the Kingdom of Thy Son, our Lord into all the world.

We beseech Thee to hear us, good Lord.

If it be soon possible, out of the awful strife and darkness and selfishness of the age, bring forth a righteous and everlasting peace. Make truth and honesty, justice and honor to prevail at home and abroad. So shall the nations of this world become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ.

We beseech Thee to hear us, good Lord.

Wherever Thy children in word or deed show forth any fruit of Thy Spirit, and strive to live the Golden Rule, may their one consuming aim be to make that Name which is above every name known upon earth, Thy saving health among all nations.

We beseech Thee to hear us, good Lord.

O take our offerings of time and skill, of means and study, of service and intercession, of life, and sanctify them to their uttermost good.

We beseech Thee to hear us, good Lord.

And may we all so consecrate all we are and all we have to Thee and the work Thou hast for each of us to do for our fellows, living at our best each day, that we may help Thee to bring in at last Thy Kingdom of Righteousness and Joy and Peace in the Holy Ghost in our city and in all the world.

We beseech Thee to hear us, good Lord.

And, O Holy God, hear us as with one voice we gather up these our imperfect supplications, and the needs and right desires of every heart, and say the prayer of Thy dear Son:

Our Father, etc.

The Power of Intercession

The weary ones had rest, the sick had joy that day
And wondered how.
The ploughman singing at his work had prayed,
"God help them now."

Alone in foreign lands, they wondered how
Their feeble word had grown in power.
At home the Christians, two or three, had met
To pray an hour.

So we are always wondering, wondering
long,
Because we do not see
Some one, unknown perhaps, and far away,
On bended knee. —Selected.

THE CHURCH PENSION FUND is intended fundamentally to increase the vitality of the Church by rounding out its obligation to support the Clergy, and to release their energies more and more for that spiritual work which is properly theirs.

"More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Wherefore let thy voice rise like a fountain for me day and night. For what are men better than sheep or goats that nourish a blind life, if knowing God, they lift not up hands in prayer, both for themselves and those who call them friends, for so the whole earth is every way, bound by gold chains about the feet of God."

Junior Branch

So far this year we have sent off boxes valued at $110. These were: One box of second-hand clothing to Miss Edrington, Virginia, valued at $32.00; another to Mr. Arkin, S. George's, Kensington, $27.00; post cards and knitted garments to Mr. Longshore, for immigrants, $3.00; 9 dolls to Mr. Arkin, $9.00; 27 dolls to Graniteville, S. C., $15.00; and four Christmas baskets to poor families in the parish, $16.00. The dolls to Graniteville we dressed ourselves, each of us choosing a Graniteville girl to send ours to.

We are now making dresses to send to S. James's Mission, Lydia, Va.; but we are also working and planning to raise $100 for the Episcopal Hospital in this city. So you see, there is lots to be done, and if every girl would only come, she would find plenty of ways in which to serve the Master.

Latin America

A remarkable volume of new literature on Missions has been made available this winter. Most of the books deal with Latin America.

The opening of the Panama Canal, the Panama Missionary Congress, the development of affairs in Mexico, the conditions in Nicaragua, Cuba, Haiti and Santo Domingo all conspire to turn our attention to Latin America. It will furnish the chief theme of study among a number of Christian Communions this winter.

The New World, by Rev. Arthur R. Gray, which reviews the work of our own Communion, will be the chief text book for our Lenten Mission study. Lending a Hand in Cuba, by Bishop Knight, is another Church publication. Other important books are as follows:

South American Neighbors, by Bishop Homer C. Stuntz.

The Living Christ for Latin America, by Rev. J. H. McLean of Chile.

The Unity of the Americas, by Dr. Robert E. Speer.

Mexico Today, by George B. Winton.

Advance in the Antilles, by Howard B. Grose.

For young people there is the Junior text book, Mañana? (Tomorrow?), by Rev. P. E. Osgood.

Makers of South America, by Margarette Daniels.

Martin of Mansfeld, by Margaret R. Seebach.

The Land of the Golden Man, by Anita B. Ferris.

"We must conceive our duties toward our Latin American neighbors in the highest spiritual terms. It will be fatal to pitch our intercourse with them on the level of mere commercialism, and the Monroe Doctrine is no adequate statement of our political relationship. Latin America has a right to share in the best of our moral and religious inheritance."—Robert E. Speer.

Ask largely that your joy may be full.

Let us pray for:

The Unity of Christ's Church;
The binding together of the hearts of His people in the bonds of love;
The spread of His Kingdom through all the world.

Let us pray:

That peace may prevail among the nations, among the divided members of Christ's body;

That organizations formed for good may work in loving harmony together for the one great aim of making Christ's Name and Love the better known;

That our enterprises of study and gifts and prayer may all be blest through the outpouring of the Spirit upon our souls;

That our fellow-Christians, unreached as yet, may be won to pray and learn and give.

Convocation of Germantown

At the Convocation of Germantown held in Bridesburg, January 16th, resolutions were adopted providing for fuller reports of the several Missions, that more careful consideration may be given to their problems and needs.

Bishop Garland announced that a donor, whose name is withheld, had offered to build a Church at Dolington.

A message from Bishop Rhinelander urged the building of a parish house basement for S. Gabriel's Mission at a cost of $10,000. The Bishop offered to guarantee the last $3,000.

Calvary Church, Germantown, reported the consecration of a Chapel at Queen Lane Manor, to be known as the Chapel of the Good Shepherd.

Mr. Emhart's account of the planting of the Church in Edgeley, a town near Bristol, was very interesting. Practically all the community, including the Methodist body, turned eagerly to the Episcopal Church to be shepherded. The best two lots in the town were donated, and plans are already under way to build a suitable Church. A canvass of the community revealed forty communicants. Edgeley offers an opportunity the Church must meet.

A Great Enterprise

The pension system is a great unifying force throughout the Church. It is a national system. It binds the millions of communicants and thousands of clergy, East, West, North and South, into one body of mutual helpfulness and strength. In order that this system may start, the Reserve Fund of $5,000,000 must be in hand March 1st.

Every man, woman and child in the Church wants to have a part in this great enterprise and campaign which will set our Church forward and will enable the Gospel of Christ to be preached with power.

Quinquagesima Sunday, February 18th, has been set aside for an offering throughout the Church for the Church Pension Fund.

Pews

BY A VESTRYMAN

What a lovely thing is a pew! Especially a pew with a little door to it! One enters into his pew as into his own castle, closes the door upon the multitude, and is alone with his religion—of the world, but not in it. A pew is an especially grateful possession if a church happens to be crowded. One may sail in, fashionably late, scatter the crowd of strangers—for pew-holders in the House of God are wont to talk much about "strangers"—and seat himself, conscious of the divine right conferred by a paid-up pew-rent. If "strangers" will come to church, let them stand, or take an inferior seat. They have paid no pew-rent.

These reflections arose in the mind of a vestryman who came to the church on the evening of the Second Sunday in Advent. On opening a door, he discovered the church so full that he literally could not get in. Indeed, three "strangers" almost fell into his arms when he opened the door. To be sure, the vestryman was late, but what of that? If he had had a pew, he could have claimed it. What, fellow-parishioners, are we coming to?—The Living Church.

Behind the Church Pension Fund is the determination to make this Church stronger, more efficient, and to enable the ministers of the Church to preach with greater serenity and force.

An organ recital will be played by Mr. McMichael in Grace Church, Tuesday evening, February 6th, under the auspices of the American Organ Players' Club.

Admission free. All are cordially welcome.

Mission Study Classes

There will be two Mission Study Classes in the parish: one on Monday afternoon at 3.30, beginning February 26th; one on Tuesday evening at 8.00, beginning February 27th. The organization meeting is very important; subject: "The Church Missions in South America." The text book to be used is The New World, by Dr. Gray, Secretary of the Board of Missions. Books will be obtainable at Grace Church Parish House after February 1st; price fifty cents.

The Missionary Secretary has made a special request to last year's class, namely: that each member will try and bring one new member with her to this year's class. Registrations are now being taken by Mrs. George and Mrs. Burk.

There will be three Junior Classes beginning February 26th, at 3.30 P. M. Textbook: Manana?, written by Rev. P. E. Osgood for the Junior Work this year.

Notes

In pledging a million dollars toward the five million Pension Fund, our able Diocesan Committee has put Pennsylvania in the lead in this great enterprise.

Already over $800,000 of this has been raised. The remaining $200,000 is now being raised by parish campaigns.

The goal must be reached by March 1st. Only thirty days remain. Our Parish Committee is at work. Grace Church is sure to do her part.

There will be an offering on Quinquagesima Sunday.

It is not Peace, but slavery and degradation to yield to wrong, and this must never be; yet the goal the Church seeks is the Peace of the World by the recognition that all men are brothers, and by the banishment of evil from the face of the earth, so that there will be nothing left to fight against. Arbitrations and treaties are imperative aids, but after all they are only the signs and the symbols of the desire within us to listen to the Voice of the Master when He said: "Little children, love one another." The thing that produces war is the spirit of war, and only one thing can counteract that, namely, the Spirit of Peace. This means that every soul must be impressed with its beauty, and then nothing whatever will persuade anyone to mar it. What a glorious message for the Church to carry! But She must be at work about Her business.

They are living in Nara, where Mr. Smith devotes eight hours a day to the study of the language, teaches English in night school, and instructs a Bible Class in the parish Church.

A former missionary in central Alaska says that during a recent winter the Indians connected with the Mission at S. John's-in-the-Wilderness returned practically empty-handed after an absence of several weeks in visiting their traps. The Sunday after their return to the Mission, an offering for Missions was taken. In spite of the fact that their winter's work had practically gone for nothing, a number of the men made offerings of $5 each. When the missionary asked whether in view of the failure to take any furs they could afford to give so much, they replied, "Because our Lord loves us so much and sent His messengers to us, we want to give as much as we can to send messengers to others."

The Rector's Letter

My Dear Parishioners:

No one can deny that this Parish has done nobly in missionary giving during the past few years. Not only have we exceeded our apportionment and devoted ourselves enthusiastically to all manner of specials, but in the exuberance of our generosity we have raised "over and above" all other missionary giving an amount sufficient to maintain a Deaconess in Alaska for the next three years.

All this is as it should be. We have been prospered. We live in comparative luxury. The poorer portions of the Church have a right to expect substantial and unfailing help from us.

But the faithful performance of one duty does not excuse the neglect of another. What of our Parish finances? Unless they receive our immediate attention, the efficiency and growth of the Parish will be seriously hampered.

This would inevitably curtail our missionary giving in the long run. Our primary duty is to make strong and efficient our own Parish Church—the rest will follow.

Certain developments during the past year have increased the running expenses of the Parish. This will leave us with a deficit at the end of the year if we don't "watch out."

But the thing which concerns me most is the material increase we should make in our budget for next year. We need a larger staff of workers. We should have next year both a Curate and a Parish Secretary.

There is a large and populous section of our Parish which has thus far been almost entirely neglected. There has been an unusual influx of Church people during the past year. Many families not otherwise connected with the Church have placed their children under our instruction. These are only hints as to the rich opportunities for constructive pastoral work which we are now facing.

The need of a Parish Secretary is no less obvious than that of a Curate to one familiar with the efficient methods which characterize a thoroughly equipped and modern parish.

Now is the time for Grace Church to plan for a greater future. The Every Member Canvass is before us. Let us make it a great event in the history of the Parish. Let us set forward the Church.

Yours faithfully,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Some Recent Utterances of the Rector

Our Building

Several enterprising men, architects and others, have called me up on the 'phone lately and asked what Grace Church is going to build. They had learned of the purchase of the lot adjoining the Church.

It is a suggestive question. This whole Parish is our field—what are we going to build? There is so much building to be done—not merely of outward works and organizations, but of character. Shall we be great builders? That will depend upon the strength of our convictions. All our building must rest upon the solid foundation of our most holy Faith.

Her Belief

The Church deals with us as the nun dealt with the knight when she sent him forth on his quest:

"As she spake
She sent the deathless passion of her eyes
Thro' him and made him hers, and laid her mind
On him—and he believed in her belief."

The Citadel

It is no time for foolhardiness.

The enemy is at hand.

Back to the citadel of the Faith!

Avoid entrenchment behind defences which have proved untenable.

An unsound defence is only a danger.

Outlying villages which give shelter to the enemy had better be burned.

Stop spending your ammunition defending partisan tenets—mere matters of theological opinion or liturgical taste. Back to the citadel of the Faith—there you are impregnable—eternally secure.

Side Issues

"Be not carried about with diverse and strange doctrines," or more accurately, don't be carried aside. Don't allow yourself to be drawn off to side issues. Don't follow teachings which are foreign. The Creed speaks to us the sweet patois of home. The Father awaits the return of every wanderer into the far country of strange cults.

Patriotism

Let us pray for a new birth of patriotism in our own hearts and in the hearts of our countrymen—holy patriotism; such patriotism as will arouse us from our stupor and stir in us a great passion for righteousness; a patriotism which will awaken us from our stolidity and sensitize us to the great moral issues of the hour—restoring to us the power of righteous indignation; a patriotism which will save us from our greed and self-indulgence, and nerve us for heroism and sacrifice; a patriotism which will shatter our antagonisms and weld us into one body, loyal to each other, loyal to our President and loyal to the lofty American ideals which he has so masterfully and eloquently set before us and before the whole world; a patriotism, therefore, far removed from Chauvinism, born not of hate but of love, purged of bitterness; a larger patriotism, which seeks, not national aggrandizement but the good of all mankind—that is holy patriotism.

For such patriotism, Washington bids us pray in the following words:

"Let us pray God that He will be most graciously pleased to dispose us to do justice—to love mercy, and to demean ourselves with that charity, humility and pacific temper of mind which were characteristic of the Divine Founder of our blessed religion—without an humble imitation of whose example in these things we can never hope to be a happy nation."

S. Agnes' School, Kyoto

From many quarters come criticisms concerning the large sums of money that are sent to foreign mission fields. Why is so much required, and why are such good buildings necessary to carry on that work? Perhaps a few facts relating to S. Agnes' School for Girls might partially answer these questions.

Kyoto is the center of culture in Japan, containing nearly a thousand temples, many palaces and a hundred schools supported by the Government. In just one of the latter there are one hundred girl students, while in S. Agnes', the only Christian school for girls in the city, there are but one hundred and twenty pupils.

The Government has rebuilt and improved its schools, having large assembly halls (one of which seats a thousand people); up-to-date science rooms, fine gymnasiums, rooms for teaching domestic science, and so on. S. Agnes', still housed in the old-style Japanese buildings, has an assembly hall without seats, that is too small to hold the girls and their immediate families; one good piano for the use of twenty-five music pupils; no thoroughly equipped class rooms. The garden is the gymnasium in dry weather, and in stormy times a narrow, concrete-floored passage is used.

S. Agnes' must have better buildings, better equipment, or—S. Agnes' must go.

The new buildings would include a primary school (for there is not a Christian primary school in Kyoto); a kindergarten training school, which would attract girls from elsewhere, because many of them want this course, and other normal departments. It would then be possible to send the children from our kindergarten through the primary and intermediate, to the normal schools, keeping them comparatively free from pagan influences. At present they must be sent from S. Agnes' (an intermediate school with a kindergarten department) back to the Japanese, and in time the Christian teachings may be forgotten.

Bishop Tucker says: "It is the school which insures a hearing for the teaching of the Gospel, and it is the most important factor in the building of our Church."

The Japanese have adopted a policy of non-religious teaching in the Government schools, and, as it is no longer possible for the educated youth to believe in Shintoism, religion is undermined, and the moral deterioration of the young people is frightful. Many a Japanese who is not a Christian himself, sends his children to Christian schools to avoid this danger; so, though few in number, these schools play a most important part. But the Japanese want only the best, and unless our institutions are as good or better than their own, they are a handicap, not a help. S. Agnes' must be brought up to the standard, or closed.

Psychology plays its part in deciding what kind of buildings the Church should erect abroad. To the Oriental, beauty and grandeur appeal very strongly; he is not attracted to things that are mean and ugly. He is, too, accustomed to house his deities in the finest temples he can provide, and to educate his young people in buildings fitting the importance of the work. Therefore our Churches, our schools and our institutions must be of a kind that will impress him with their importance and attract him by their beauty; otherwise he will think that our God and our religion are poor things indeed.

Knowing as we do:

"That He Who made all nations is not willing One soul should perish, lost in shades of night," our duty is plain. Whether that duty lies in Philadelphia or in Kyoto makes no difference in our responsibility.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Grace Church has pledged $50 of the $2,500 promised to S. Agnes' from Pennsylvania, but it is hoped that our offering will be double that amount.

Contributions may be given to the delegates to the Foreign Committee, or to Mrs. A. L. E. Crouter, Treasurer of the Woman's Auxiliary.

Junior Auxiliary

At a meeting of the Junior Auxiliary of Grace Church, held in the Parish House on Monday, February 19th, the following minute was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, It has pleased God to call from our midst our dearly beloved friend and associate, Constance Hall; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That while we bow in submission to the will of our Heavenly Father, we desire to express our love and admiration for her many sweet traits of character, her faithful devotion to the Church and Junior Auxiliary, and for the quiet, gentle, loving example to all who met her.—Of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.

"We extend to her mother and the members of the family our heartfelt sympathy. It is hereby

"Resolved, That a copy of this minute be sent to Mrs. Hall and to the PARISH NEWS."

The special preacher at the first of our Sunday evening services was the Rev. Samuel Upjohn, D.D., of S. Luke's, Germantown. It was the opening day of the Week of Prayer, and Dr. Upjohn brought a timely message. The men of The Way attended in a body.

Some Unusual Features of the Everymember Canvass as planned for Grace Church this Lent:

1. It will be prefaced by a general Parish meeting which will in all probability be an altogether unusual meeting.

2. It will be a personal canvass for the purpose of talking over with every parishioner the new ideal for Grace Church, but no pledges will be received during the canvass.

3. It will include the children as well as the grown-ups. Youths of the Church School will conduct the Junior Canvass.

4. It will reach the climax at a great Church service, at which the Church will be filled to overflowing, and at which the pledges for the coming year will be presented as a great offering upon the altar.

5. It will be undertaken and carried out in the spirit of prayer and devotion, and have as its one aim the greater glory of God.

Constance Hall, aged ten, died Thursday night, February 15th. Constance had endeared herself to all who knew her. She was a happy, loyal, whole-souled child—devoted to the Church. She has left us a very beautiful and sacred memory. The following Sunday the Church School held a memorial service for her in the Church. At the funeral on Monday, her uncle, the Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, of Asheville, Tenn., assisted the Rector.

The deep and abiding sympathy of the whole Parish goes out to her mother and the other bereaved loved ones.

May light perpetual shine upon her

Mission Study

Six Mission Study Classes are in progress this Lenten season, as follows:

FOR WOMEN:

Mondays at 3.30 o'clock. Leader, Mrs. W. B. Abbey.

Sundays at 7 o'clock. Leader, Mrs. R. L. Hayes.

FOR MEN:

Sundays at 7 o'clock. Leader, the Rector.

All the Senior Classes are studying "The Church's Mission to Latin America." Text book, "The New World," by Dr. Gray.

FOR GIRLS:

Mondays at 3.30 o'clock.

Three classes.

Subject, "Manana" (What of Tomorrow?), by Rev. P. E. Osgood.

Sunday Evening Services

One outstanding feature of our Lenten observance has been the increased attendance at Evening Prayer, Sundays.

The full choir is in attendance, and the music has become a real attraction.

The Rector is giving a series of ten-minute addresses on "The Beatitudes as Guiding Principles for Life's Journey."

Let us aim to fill the Church by Palm Sunday evening.

The Church Pension Fund

It is indeed cause for great rejoicing that the Church Pension Fund not only reached the five million dollar mark by March 1st, but has already swept beyond the six and a half million mark.

The contribution from Grace Church was $2,235.28.

The Vestry passed a resolution on March 2d, committing the Parish to the Church Pension system. From now on the regular payments will be made quarterly.

The Observer

If I were to set down all that I'm thinking about, and head it: "The Ubiquity of the Adversary," the screed would be too long for this publication, so I will just use one illustration of the activities of that person. Is he alert and active? Doubt it not!

Here is an argument between two old Scottish dames on that point.

One was a very censorious sort of person, while the other was a kind soul given to seeing some good in everyone.

"Really, now, Mistress Tamson," exclaimed the one, quite at the end of her patience, "I believe you'll be sayin' there's some good in the De'il himsel'!"

"Ah weel, noo," replied the other, "ye must admit he's a very industrious body!"

So let me record a few observations upon just one of the industries of the Devil: that's his full name, I believe, though he would prefer being jocularly referred to as "Old Nick" or "The Old Boy."

I refer to anecdotes, funny stories, convenient illustrations and such like. One who can tell a good story does not lack for an audience, and to raise the laugh, is rarely over-particular about his "properties." There are at least two kinds of Devil-bred yarns: the "bordering" and the irreverent. Why not call the former just plain Anglo-Saxon "dirty," for every producer of the same is ashamed of himself to begin with.

Reference is also had, fellow pilgrim, to jokes about Adam and Eve; Noah and the Ark; Abraham; Lot's wife; Joseph's coat; the crossing of the Red Sea; the Prophets, and so on.

Examples could doubtless be multiplied from your own memory, of jocose invasions of even the New Testament, for you'll find the trail of the Serpent everywhere. How many "funny stories" have you heard about S. Peter at the Gate of Heaven, for instance?

Did I hear someone ask:

"Now what is the harm of the old college song, 'Oh, Noah he did build an ark'?"

Well, worse things have been said and sung; singing about Noah's ark built out of hickory bark isn't exactly blasphemy, but why hark back to the flood for our fun? There is a lot of humorous material of more recent vintage; take that.

I know a couple of people who enjoy life and are in almost everything that's going, who simply won't laugh at a Bible joke, even to be polite, and I sometimes wish you and I were more like them!

Mission to the Jews

Our offering on Good Friday will be for Missions to the Jews. It is interesting to note in this connection that a mission has been recently established in this city for the spiritual welfare of the Jewish people. It is known as the "Hear O Israel Mission," and has temporary quarters at the northwest corner of Third and Reed Streets.

Mr. John L. Zacker is Superintendent. Monthly Conferences are now being held for the discussion of the many phases of the Jewish question.

We believe in the Holy Ghost, the Lord and Giver of Life. We believe that He animates the Church—our own Parish Church. There are evidences of it at the present time. There is a strong undercurrent of spiritual influence. We are getting a new conception of what Grace Church ought to be and do. We are being gripped by a new parochial ambition. We see the challenge of opportunity, and we are making up our minds to accept the challenge.

Lenten Boxes

During Lent the scholars of the Church School are furnished with Money Boxes, in which they gather their savings to add their part to the Easter Offering for Missions.

On the second Sunday in Lent the Rector called for a report of the progress made thus far. The Fifth Grade Boys (Mr. McGuire, teacher) reported $8.55 already on hand. They were well in the lead, but it would be hard to tell how long they may be able to hold first place.

The announcement of a special musical service on Quinquagesima Sunday evening resulted in a very good attendance. The choir sang several anthems and the Rector made an address on "Church Music." The remarkable development of the choir during the past few months is awakening a new interest and enthusiasm for music in the congregation.

The Church Periodical Club

Mrs. A. F. Kempton, the Diocesan Correspondent of the C. P. C., will visit the Parish on Wednesday morning, March 28th, at 11.30 o'clock, to talk about the work of the club. As this is the first time Mrs. Kempton has come to Grace Church, it is hoped there will be a large number to welcome her. Let all the donors of magazines make a special effort to be present.

Now is the time to send Easter cards, new and made-over ones, to the missions and hospitals. Please send them to the Librarian as soon as possible.

M. W. BAYARD, Librarian.

Duplex Envelope System

All members of the Parish are urged to avail themselves of the Duplex Envelope System as a regular method of contributing toward missions and Church support. For pledge cards and envelopes, please address the Accounting Warden.

Preparation for a Forward Step

At a meeting of the Vestry on March 2d, it was voted that a personal canvass of the whole Parish be made, with a view to insuring the financial budget for the coming year, beginning May 1, 1917.

The new and thrilling feature of the proposed budget is the provision for the salaries of a Curate and Parish Secretary.

In order that all may appreciate the urgency of this forward move, the following program has been arranged:

1. General Parish meeting in the Parish House, on Wednesday evening, March 14th.
2. A letter to every parishioner setting for the facts of the situation.
3. An every-member canvass of the whole Parish—including not only adults, but also children, on Sunday, March 18th.
4. A presentation service in Church, Sunday, March 25th, at 11 o'clock.

The idea is that the canvassers shall not receive the pledges, but that every parishioner shall come in person and put his pledge on the plate at the Church service. This will commend itself to all as a finer and more fitting way to do it.

It looks as though the time had come for every parishioner to rally around the standard of Grace Church. It will mean great things for the future of the Church and the community. Incidentally it will prepare the way for a joyous Easter.

Notes

Notice is hereby given of a meeting of The Way, on Friday evening, March 9th, at 8 o'clock. The opening of the First Gate will be the chief feature of the evening's program.

The Committee in charge of plans to extend the influence of the Church in the lower end of the Parish held a meeting Sunday, March 4th. It was decided to carry out a thorough investigation of that district. Meanwhile, the Committee will further in every way the plan to provide a Curate. It is evident to all that the development of that section of the Parish requires the services of an additional priest.

Miss Preston, Secretary to Archdeacon Neve, who is working among the mountaineers of Virginia, gave a most interesting address to the Church School, Sunday morning, March 4th.

An encouraging word from our much-loved Bishop once in a while is appreciated. He wrote, upon his return to the Diocese recently, "I feel constantly that the thought and prayers of you and your people are a real and vital help. I do send you my heartiest blessing."

The choir is now practicing the sacred cantata, "The Darkest Hour," by Harold Moore, which will be given in Grace Church during Holy Week. Both words and music are very beautiful. The purpose in this musical service is to enable the whole congregation to enter more perfectly into the meaning of our Lord's passion and render Him in return our grateful love.

The Rector is giving a course of addresses on "The Fundamental Convictions of the Christian," on the Wednesday evenings of Lent.

He announced that he regarded these week-night Lenten services as a rare opportunity for pastoral teaching.

Instead of accepting outside invitations and asking others to preach to his own people, he has decided to stay home and come into closer touch with his own flock. The vogue of Lenten exchanges is passing. The home Lent is more profitable.

By a common impulse, many Churches throughout the country have introduced the custom of carrying the national flag in procession behind the Cross.

In addition to this, the national hymn has been made a regular feature of the morning service in Grace Church.

Our patriotism seems suddenly to have emerged from our subconscious mind and become dominant. How closely kin, after all, are love of Church and love of Country.

Scores of towns in the newer parts of our country would be without regular services of the Church if it were not for the help given through the Board of Missions. In the home fields 1,177 missionaries are supported in whole or in part by the appropriations of the Board. This year, help is being given to thirty-eight Dioceses as well as to twenty-four Missionary Districts. Sound Americanism calls for the maintenance and extension of such work. It is a work for patriots as well as Churchmen.

The first term of the Church School year ended with a written examination on the first Sunday in Lent. As usual, the attendance was large. Scholars feel honor bound to report for the examinations so as not to pull down the class average. Competition for the Class Banner is strong.

Holy Week and Easter

Palm Sunday marks the beginning of the most sacred week in the year for Christians. In the lessons and Gospel for that day we listen to the whole tragic story of our blessed Redeemer's passion. In commemoration of His triumphal entry into Jerusalem we bear palm branches, singing

Ride on ride on in majesty,
In lowly pomp ride on to die;
Bow Thy meek head to mortal pain,
Then take, O God, Thy power and reign.

Daily throughout the week, morning and evening, we shall assemble in the House of Prayer to contemplate the events of that last dread week, to pray and to worship. In the holy mysteries of the altar we shall show forth His death. Especially significant is the celebration on Maundy Thursday, the birthday of the Holy Eucharist.

On Wednesday evening we shall have our corporate preparation for our Easter Communion. But no public preparation can take the place of conscientious individual self-examination and confession.

Good Friday, as we all feel instinctively, is a great spiritual climax. It is no time to go to business as usual. It should be religiously set apart as a day for thought and prayer. Many cannot do this. The resolution of the General Convention of the Church recognizes this fact; "Resolved, That we recognize with sympathy the inability of many Christian people to share in the age-long custom of setting apart Good Friday as a day of public and private devotion in commemoration of the sacrifice of our Lord. In view of this fact we call upon them at noon on that day to unite in at least a few minutes of special personal contemplation of Christ crucified."

But are most of us forced to such a meager observance of the day? A neighboring priest says, "One wonders what might not be brought to pass if those who are employed were to say, 'Good Friday, from twelve to three, is for me a time when my Church has the right to my presence. May I not be excused from the office for that time?' One notes that for Jewish holy days there is no expectation that an orthodox Jew will be anywhere but at his religious duties. Romanists find little difficulty in putting Church before other occupations at climax-times of the Church year."

May I not urge the men of the congregation—especially those who can control their own time—to reserve those three solemn hours for the Church. Let us gather with lowly and contrite hearts at the foot of the Cross for a season. Did we ever feel so keenly the need for a deeper understanding of the Cross?

"I if I be lifted up from the earth shall draw all men unto me."

There will be Morning Prayer, Litany and Altar Service at 10.30; Three Hours' Meditation from 12 to 3, and Children's Service at 4.30.

Easter Even brings quietude and rest. We should be quiet in speech, quiet in action. For the memory of Good Friday is with us and our Lord's death and burial are real to us. There will be quiet Morning Prayer and Altar Service at 9; Evening Prayer and Holy Baptism at 4.

Grant, O Lord, that as we are baptized into the death of thy blessed Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ, so by continual mortifying our corrupt affections we may be buried with him; and that through the grave and gate of death, we may pass to our joyful resurrection; for his merits who died, and was buried, and rose again for us, thy Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Easter Day is our day of triumph. "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain." If Christ had perished on the Cross and the seal on the tomb had remained unbroken, then those who deny His miraculous birth, and that He is very God as well as very Man would have some color for their assertions. "But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept." Alleluiah!

"Therefore let us keep the Feast."

Right heartily we shall keep it. At 6, 7.30 and 11, there will be celebrations of the Holy Communion, that ample opportunity may be given for every communicant to share in the offering of that great Eucharistic Sacrifice of praise and thanksgiving, and be partaker of the Risen Life of Him Who is alive for evermore.

Morning Prayer will be said at 10.30, and the Church School festival carol service will be held at 4.

The music on Easter morning will be from a communion service by George C. Martin. The anthem will be, "As It Began to Dawn," by George C. Martin.

The Darkest Hour

The sacred cantata, "The Darkest Hour," to be sung in Grace Church, Palm Sunday evening (April 1st), is especially adapted to men's voices.

In addition to our own soloists, Messrs. Gross and Ferris, Mr. McMichael has procured the services of Mr. Frank Preisch, bass, and Mr. Thomas Morris, tenor.

Mr. Oscar Schwar of the Philadelphia Orchestra will play the tympani. Much conscientious labor has been bestowed upon the preparation of this cantata. It is to be hoped a large number may be present to hear it.

History of the Movement for a Greater Grace Church

Ten men, representing the Laymen's Missionary Committee and The Way, met Sunday afternoon, February 25th, to consider plans for an every member canvass of the parish. The Accounting Warden's statement foretelling a probable deficit of $1,000 by the end of the fiscal year (May 1st) might have disheartened some men. But those ten were undaunted. There smouldered in the mind and heart of each one a desire for a greater Grace Church. Once the plan for a Curate and Parish Secretary was outlined, that desire burst into a flame.

After analyzing the figures showing the contributions for missions and parish support during the past four years, they recognized with one accord the ample resources of the parish and the need for a new emphasis upon the support of the parish. Without hesitation they decided to propose to the Vestry a plan for parish improvement.

On the following Friday evening (March 2d) the Vestry voted to recommend to the Laymen's Missionary Committee an every member canvass of the parish to provide for an enlarged budget to include the salaries of a Curate and Parish Secretary. They furthermore voted to co-operate in this movement, both individually and collectively. In accordance with these orders from the Vestry, the Laymen's Committee began at once to plan the canvass.

A really great parish meeting on Wednesday evening, March 14th, prepared the parish for the canvass as nothing else could have done. The meeting began with a devotional service conducted by the rector. The organist, choir men and girls' choir assisted in the music, which was inspiriting.

Dr. Crouter presided and made the opening address, setting before the people the far-reaching importance of the movement for parish enlargement. Mr. Chrisman presented The Needs of the Parish, showing most forcibly the urgent need for a Curate.

Mr. Bayard, the Accounting Warden, spoke of The Budget, comparing the expenditures of various years, and indicating clearly the advance which should be made at present.

The rector spoke on Pastoral Responsibility, which he said the whole parish shared with him.

A GROUP OF ACTIVE LAYMEN ABOUT TO CANVASS THE PARISH TO PRESENT PERSONALLY TO ALL PARISHIONERS THE NEW IDEAL OF A GREATER GRACE CHURCH

Mr. Landenberger strongly advocated the carrying out of the whole comprehensive program for parish improvement. His particular subject was The Need for a Parish Secretary.

Mrs. George pledged the support of the women to the new plans, stating that they stood ready to pay on demand, the sum of $300 toward the salary of a Parish Secretary.

Mr. Fortescue promised the backing of the men, and advocated a wiser balance in our budget than heretofore. He pointed out that parish support had not kept pace with contributions for missions.

Mr. Kaufman made very plain our duty of supporting the aggressive work of the Church in that field for which we are especially responsible. The neglected corner of the parish was brought before the attention of the people by Mrs. Insinger.

Mr. Allsop, chairman of the Canvass Committee, spoke of the aim of the canvass. No brief account of these addresses can hope to convey any adequate impression of their forcefulness. They were most convincing. Their accumulative effect was irresistible. The prophecy that the parish meeting would mark a new epoch in parish life was hardly an exaggeration. The people went out from that meeting united in the purpose to work loyally.

Sunday, March 18th, was the day set for the canvass. The sermon at the morning service was upon the text, Mal. 3:10: Bring ye the whole tithe into the storehouse . . . and prove me now herewith saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

The canvassers received the Blessed Sacrament in a body. At two o'clock they assembled, thirty strong, in the Parish House, to receive their assignments and final instructions. After pausing a moment for a group photograph, they went out, two by two, to visit the people of the parish.

A few days before, letters had been sent out to all parishioners from the Vestry Committee and from the rector setting forth the situation and enclosing pledge cards.

The canvassers found everywhere a cordial reception. They presented personally to the people the new ideal for a greater Grace Church. Instead of receiving the pledge cards they asked the people to bring them in person to the Presentation Service in the church the following Sunday. They presented each parishioner with a Reminder Folder decorated with a new picture of the altar and rood screen, and announcing the Presentation Service. These handsome folders contained also prayers for the parish and appropriate passages of Scripture.

The canvass was continued where necessary during the following week. On Thursday evening the canvassers met to report upon their work, turn in the valuable data they had gathered and clear up any neglected details. All looked forward eagerly to the Presentation Service which marked the climax of the whole movement.

Meanwhile the children and youth of the Church School had their share in the movement. They are educated to regard regular giving both to missions and parish support as a part of Christian duty. They received pledge cards and at their Church service, March 25th, presented on the altar their pledges for the coming year.

At 11 o'clock that day the Church was well filled. The keynote of the service was self-dedication. The people had not sent their pledges, but had brought them in person in order that they might present themselves as well as their gifts to God. The text was Rom. 12 : 1. I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable unto God.

The rector said the work before the Church called for greater personal consecration to service and the solemn call of the nation at this time required of all self-dedication.

After the presentation of the offerings and pledges upon the altar, the congregation made in unison the following Act of Self-Dedication:

"Almighty and everliving God, we humbly beseech Thee most mercifully to accept these our gifts and pledges as tokens of our love and gratitude for all Thy blessings so richly bestowed upon us Thine unworthy servants.

"And here we offer and present unto Thee, O Lord, ourselves, our souls and bodies, to be a reasonable, holy and living sacrifice unto Thee."

As they remained kneeling, the choir sang softly:

When I survey the wondrous Cross
On which the Prince of glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride.

Were the whole realm of nature mine
That were a tribute far too small,
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all.

After prayers for the Church and Nation, the National Hymn was sung. There was something stirring about the service which harmonized wonderfully with Passion Sunday. The veiled Cross, reminding us of our Lord's supreme sacrifice, gave greater brilliance to the blood-red of the National Colors. No man can measure the power of such a solemn act of self-oblation on the part of a united congregation of loyal men and women.

Our Missionaries

The women of Grace Church are certainly blessed in that they have, or will have, two missionaries—one in a foreign land—the other in the domestic field.

Many years ago the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild of this parish took Miss Alice M. Clark, of Hankow, China, as its "special missionary." In 1913, Miss Clark visited Mount Airy, and spoke to us about her work at the training school, emphasizing the necessity for normal schools in which to train teachers, especially for the primary grades. We had never done anything financially to help Miss Clark until two or three years ago, when the Auxiliary made an annual pledge of $50, which we send after Easter. It is a "special" for Miss Clark's work, to be used at her discretion. Any woman who so desires may have a share in this pledge by sending a contribution to Mrs. A. L. E. Crouter, Treasurer.

Miss Beatrice Nuneviller, one of our own Grace Church girls, has received her appointment from the Board of Missions, and expects to leave in July for St. Stephen's Hospital, Fort Yukon, Alaska. Miss Nuneviller is a graduate of our Philadelphia Church Training and Deaconess House, and has completed her course at the Episcopal Hospital. She is to be a worker under the United Offering. This was made possible by the offering from the women of Grace Church, presented at St. Louis in October, and sufficient to provide Miss Nuneviller's salary. Miss Clark also is a United Offering worker.

How many women of this parish will help to hold up the hands of Alice M. Clark and Beatrice Nuneviller by remembering them every day at the time of noonday intercession, or at least once a week, during the Saturday half hour (11.30 to 12 o'clock) set apart in this diocese for individual and united prayers?

The Observer

I have just been reading a crisp article in the current number of The Churchman which helps me to see more clearly than ever the point of this present campaign for "a greater Grace Church."

To make sure no fellow parishioner misses it, I shall quote parts of it here. The writer has referred to the stimulating success of the Church Pension Fund and he adds: "Now why not take the lesson into our own parish concerns? Our Church goes limping along in the procession of world interests—half-manned, irregularly sustained, always holding her head down; too often with a practical apology for her existence, begging her way. Why? Because Christian men have never been made to understand the magnitude and importance of our work, and as a result, we have never had the financial backing sufficient to put forth the real power and capacity of the Church.

"The time and the experience call for larger vision and extended equipment. There is not an active parish in the land which should not and could not have twice the income and three times the energy which it now possesses, if Christian men

I note with great interest and approval the plans for parochial enlargement, and I think they are excellent evidences of the progress you have been making.

P. M. RHINELANDER.

could only be gotten to see our work in the right way.

"If there is anything of more importance to a Christian man than 'his Father's business,' what on earth is it? And yet we are treating it and pushing its interests in a way that invites spiritual bankruptcy at any hour.

"There is no financial cause which a sane business man would intrust to such an administration. We need that grasp of the magnitude and importance of Christ's work and sufficient means to prosecute it with vigor and business intelligence.

"Every rector should have more freedom by release from petty, engrossing business and social demands which detract from possible efficiency in his essentially spiritual work.

"Every parish ought to be a business center with its ramifications of various spiritual and social forces co-ordinated and administered by a thoroughly consecrated business intelligence. Then we should see our Church move. But that means an altered perspective and a reasonable financial investment equal to the occasion."

The American Red Cross

The Mt. Airy Branch of the American Red Cross, with headquarters in Grace Church Parish House, is doing excellent work. The following statement of the Secretary sets forth the scope of the present plans. They call for hearty co-operation in all possible ways:

"The Mount Airy Branch of the Pennsylvania Chapter, American Red Cross, has just been organized in this community, under the leadership of Mrs. Horace H. Burrell, chairman.

"The Red Cross knows no sect. We are assembling as men and women to work for our country, in response to an urgent appeal from Washington.

"The spirit of patriotism shown has been inspiring, to say the least, and in order that no one may feel unbidden, we are asking the rector of each Church, and the head of each institution in Mount Airy, to announce publicly that such an organization has been formed and that every man and woman in Mount Airy is cordially invited to become a member.

"The dues are one dollar a year, payable to the Branch Treasurer, Mrs. George A. Henrich, 7448 Devon Street.

"Those who are already members of the Red Cross, may revert their membership to the Branch, by signifying their desire to the Treasurer.

"Several departments of work are to be started at once, including First Aid Classes, Base Hospital Supplies, Surgical Dressings, etc. Further notice of these activities will be printed in the local newspapers.

"The men are not expected to do active work, but we are most anxious for their enrollment."

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

So many interests confront us in the work of the Auxiliary that it is often difficult to decide just which ones need the most attention. Each member cannot work for all branches, as a general thing, but there are some activities in which all may take part. For instance:

The Indian box, which will be sent off in a short time, is in need of a nice new bed quilt, spools of thread and buttons in various sizes and colors, and in order that it may not be too utilitarian in its make-up, unframed pictures are asked for.

Another thing that, of necessity, all have on hand at this time of year and want to give away, is partly worn clothing. Although the barrels are not packed until fall, the Box Committee ask that all such clothing, shoes and hats be sent to the Parish House, as you are ready to dispose of them, and they will be cared for until needed. In the fall nothing is on hand but summer articles, and it seems rather absurd to send off, at a time when people are beginning to think of flannels and furs, barrels full of clothing that has kept us cool during July and August. Do remember that the winter things are wanted now as you are ready to discard them, and try also to take the time and trouble to make them worth the sending. Soiled, torn and buttonless clothing sent to people needing influences of the most uplifting kind, surely cannot be called an offering "worthy in His sight."

The Holy Spirit

"We think of the Holy Spirit as living in the Church. In the Holy Spirit we are members one of another. In every great service of the Church—Baptism, Confirmation, Holy Communion, Ordination,—the Holy Spirit is invoked. By Him we are incorporated, through Baptism, into the spiritual body of Christ. By Him the officers of the Church are, through Ordination, endowed with the power to serve men somewhat as Christ served them; or by faith in Him and by complete surrender to Him they are able to let Christ continue, through them, His ministry of sacrifice and love.

"But the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper most clearly suggests the immanence of the Holy Spirit in all things animate and inanimate. The Spirit can make everything into Christ for those who have the will to receive Him." —DR. SLATTERY.

Musical Service

On the evening of the Feast of S. S. Philip and James, Tuesday, May 1st, there will be a special musical service in Grace Church by the combined choirs of S. Mary's Church, West Philadelphia, and Grace Church. The following will be sung: Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis, by Basil Harwood, in A Flat; anthems, By the Waters of Babylon, by Coleridge-Taylor; Blessed Be Thou, prize anthem, by H. A. Matthews.

A silver offering will be taken at this service for the Choir Outing Fund.

Later the Grace Church choir will assist in a similar service in S. Mary's Church.

The United Offering Service

The thirteenth annual service of the Woman's Auxiliary, with the presentation of the united offering, will be held in S. Matthew's Church, Girard Avenue and Eighteenth Street, on Thursday, April 26th, at 10.30 A. M. The Bishop of the Diocese hopes to be present. The rector of the church, the Rev. Charles C. Pierce, D. D., will be the preacher.

Remember that this is a great thanksgiving service for all women throughout the Diocese. From the testimony of those who are present every year, we know that the service means very much to them. They "would not miss it."

A Germantown Missionary Service

The fifth annual missionary service for the Germantown and Chestnut Hill branches of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held at S. Luke's Church, Germantown, on Wednesday, April 11th, at 8 P. M. At this time we shall have the pleasure of welcoming Bishop Rowe to Germantown. He will speak especially about missionary work amongst the Indians in Alaska.

This will be the first of our spring missionary services to be held in the evening. It is really an experiment, and has been arranged especially for the benefit of women who are unable to attend meetings during the day. It also affords laymen the opportunity to be present at what promises to be a service of more than usual interest and privilege. It isn't every day that we have our Alaskan Bishop in our midst! Let us give him the encouragement of a large congregation.

Mr. McMichael, Teacher

Now that Mr. McMichael has announced that he can take a limited number of Mt. Airy pupils for piano lessons, I hope parishioners will bear him in mind in planning for the instruction of their children. Mr. McMichael's work as choirmaster and organist is a clear demonstration of his ability and enthusiasm. T. S. C.

VOLUME XIII MAY, 1917 NUMBER 5

Distribution of Parish Support

May I present a few interesting facts regarding the present support of Grace Church?

The communicant list of the parish numbers 450 names. Every parish list contains some "dead wood," and ours is no exception. When persons remove from the parish their names cannot be dropped from the communicant list until they are transferred to some other parish of our Communion.

There are on our list some forty names of persons who are no longer active members of the parish.

This leaves us a live list of 410 communicants.

What are these communicants doing financially for the support of the parish? Half of them are paying for sittings. The actual number of names on our list of pew holders is ninety-four, but many of these are heads of families. Thus sittings are provided for a little over 200 of our communicants. Let us regard all these 200 as supporters of the parish.

Pew rents do not provide half the amount of our annual budget. The major portion of our income is raised by regular weekly contributions in the duplex envelopes.

Realizing this fact 120 of these 200 pew holders contribute regularly in the duplex envelopes.

(There are more than 120 pew holders who use the envelopes, but some make use of them simply to pay the amount of their pew rents. I am counting now only those who contribute in the envelopes in addition to their pew rentals.)

Of the other 210 communicants who are not pew holders, there are sixty-six who are regular contributors to Church support through the envelopes. Thus you see the total number of communicants pledged to regular parish support through the envelopes is 186, and the total number of communicants pledged to any kind of regular support is 266.

Immediately you ask yourself, "What about the other 144 communicants?"

Well, they will have opportunity whenever they attend the services of the Church to put contributions upon the plate. But unfortunately the Church cannot count upon them.

Meanwhile non-communicants have generously offered their aid. Among those persons pledged to the regular support of the parish are forty-one who are not communicants of Grace Church. Then we must not forget the children. Some seventy children, under confirmation age, are pledged to use the duplex envelopes. The members of the Church School now use the same methods of giving as the adult Church members. We have, therefore, all told about 300 separate pledges, and if we include all who are pew holders, we have 380 persons, young and old, who have promised to sustain the work of the Church in this community.

I have made no reference to missions—but most of the 300 users of the duplex envelopes give regularly to missions as well as to parish expenses.

The ideal we should aim at as a parish is that every communicant, whether a pew holder or not, should use the duplex envelopes. This would give us 410 pledges from communicants alone. Add to this our present pledges from non-communicants, and we would have 521 regular envelope contributors.

Why not take 500 envelope subscribers as our goal and work steadily until we reach it?

T. S. C.

Parish Finances

In the letter sent out by the vestry to all parishioners on March 15th, announcing the plan for an every-member canvass to strengthen the support of the parish, it was stated that our revenue for the year then drawing to a close was approximately $8,000.* The actual running expenses of the parish for the year have been $9,000. This made necessary the raising of $1,000 in order to end the year, April 30th, clear of debt. We are most grateful to say this has been done.

The Vestry letter went on to say that in order to provide for the increased costs of running the parish next year, it would be necessary to increase the revenue of the parish from $8,000 to $11,000.

The first $1,000 of this increase is necessary to prevent a repetition of the deficit. The remaining $2,000 includes among other items the salaries of a Curate and Parish Secretary.

The Vestry realized that provision for such a budget was a large undertaking, but they stated, with confidence, "This amount can well be raised if we rouse ourselves to the realization of the opportunities that now confront us."

Meanwhile an every-member canvass has been conducted and with what results to date?

The annual revenue from envelope subscribers has been increased from $3,300 to $5,300—a solid gain of $2,000.

In addition to this the contributions for parish support at Easter amounted to $300. There is also a promise of $300 from the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild, especially designated for the Parish Secretary. This brings our revenue for next year up to $10,600, which is within $400 of the goal we have set before us.

It is only fair to add here that there are many communicants not yet heard from. As we go to press a follow-up canvass is being conducted, which may bring our assured income up to the mark.

Encouraged by these results the Vestry have already authorized the election of a Curate so soon as a proper man may be secured. Later the matter of a Parish Secretary will be taken up if the financial support warrants it. There is every reason for us to hope that the whole program, as originally conceived, will be carried through successfully. We have cause for sincere gratitude.

Meanwhile, the question arises, has missions suffered because of this emphasis upon parish support?

Probably missions will suffer a temporary loss—but in the end the strengthening of the parish will bring about increased missionary giving. According to the pledges received the contributions for missions in the duplex envelopes next year will be slightly larger than last year—a little over $1,800. The division of the Easter offering this year brought the amount for missions down to $200 as against $700 last year.

The Church School offering for missions on Easter Day showed an increase of $70 over last year, amounting to $210.

Our parish apportionment for missions last year was $1,874.15. This will increase as our revenue for parish expenses increases.

The crescendo of our parish life will cause a corresponding crescendo in our missionary giving.

"The rising tide lifts every boat."

The large lot in the rear of Grace Church, which was purchased by the parish during the past year, is being converted into a potato patch by the industry of Troop 67, Boy Scouts.

*The amounts in this article are all in round figures.

Annual Election and Appointments

On Easter Monday the following men were duly re-elected as Vestrymen of Grace Church: Dr. A. L. E. Crouter, Messrs. C. H. Landenberger, Geo. J. Lincoln and Wm. L. Chrisman.

At the annual meeting of the Vestry on Tuesday in Easter week, Dr. A. L. E. Crouter was reappointed Rector's Warden, Mr. Jas. W. Bayard was elected Accounting Warden and Mr. Fred'k M. Dunn, Secretary.

As Lay Deputies to the Diocesan Convention, Dr. Crouter, Mr. Bayard and Mr. Wm. F. Fell were elected.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The very pleasant and profitable Wednesday meetings of the Auxiliary are about at an end for this season, although the indefatigable workers are sure to find something to keep them busy even through the hot months of summer. The boxes sent for the last two years to the lepers in Kumomoto, Japan, are substantial evidences of that summer work.

What concerns us chiefly at the present moment is the annual meeting of the Auxiliary on Tuesday, the 8th of May, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The women of the parish as a rule do not seem to realize the importance of that meeting, for it is sometimes very poorly attended, yet it is then that their money, given in the white duplex envelopes, is voted on for distribution among the various mission fields. Are they not interested in what becomes of those offerings? Is the money given with so little heart in the gift that its destination is a matter of indifference? Let us hope this is not the case. Undoubtedly they are willing to trust to the judgment of their officers and others who have been in touch with the Auxiliary affairs for years, but how much better it would be to become acquainted themselves with the various needs and be able to give intelligently and interestedly.

Cannot the annual meeting be made a banner one this year? Every woman in the parish is asked and urged to attend it and show by her presence her interest and co-operation.

Junior Branch

All during Lent the Mission Study Classes have led the interest of the Juniors, but the dresses for Lydia Virginia have had stitches put in them from time to time, and will be ready to send off after the next meeting. The weeks have flown by so rapidly that it hardly seems possible that the girls will meet for the last time this season on May 7th. At this, the annual meeting, every member should be present to hear the reports of the work and elect the officers for the ensuing year.

Mission Study Classes

There were two classes for women in Grace Parish during Lent. One was led by Mrs. William Abbey, on Monday afternoons, one on Sunday evenings by the Educational Secretary and one for men on Sunday evenings led by the Rector. The subject for these three classes was the "Church's Mission to Latin-America."

There were also three classes for Juniors. One led by Mrs. Spencer Butterworth for the older girls, and two for the younger members, one led by Miss Marion Sharps and the other by Miss Dorothy Benerman.

The closing session of the Mission Study Classes was held on Monday, April 16th, at 3 P. M., at the Church House.

Mrs. Pilsbry, the Educational Secretary for the Diocese, reported five normal classes held this year with a membership of seventy-five in all,—and from those came seventy leaders. There were eighty-four parish classes with a membership of 874. In addition there were four classes for men with fifty-one members—making a membership of 1,000. There were two classes for deaf mutes in All Souls' Parish.

Aside from the above, there were three normal classes on prayer,—forty-seven members, and seventy parish classes, with a membership of 1,282, making a total for all classes of 2,484, by far the largest membership on record.

Reports were read on Cuba, Porto Rico, Haiti, Panama, Mexico and Brazil. Miss Hubbard read the Junior report. She has heard from twenty-seven branches with a membership of 300 in classes.

The session closed with a summary on "The Fellowship of the Church" by Mrs. Hayes.

The offerings so far reported from all diocesan classes and sources to be applied to missionary work in Latin-America amount to about $1,500.

The year's work on Latin-America closed with a mass meeting at Witherspoon Hall, on Monday, April 23d. Mrs. Pilsbry read numerous letters from workers in the field, and interesting illustrations were shown by stereopticon.

The Spirit of Youth

An American visitor to Westminster Abbey, conducted over it by Archbishop Trench, was confronted at the close with the remark, "You have nothing like this in your country." The American proudly and promptly replied, "Not yet." The Archbishop felt that there was something great in the reply. That is the "spirit of youth" which we feel in Grace Church.

The faint-hearted friends who counsel retrenchment instead of advance in Church work are blinded to the vast fund upon which we have to draw in the wealth of Christian faith and Christian love.

A good motto for a parish is that which inspired young Rome with prophetic ambition to build vast walls appropriate only to her future greatness In spem futurae multitudinis.

The Fellowship of the Church

A paper read at the final session of the Mission Study Classes of the Diocese, in the Church House, Philadelphia, April 16th.

Underlying all our mission study is the idea of our fellowship in Christ.

We relate the birth and the death, the resurrection and the ascension. But do we all tell it the same way? Do we say it was a Life which was born, which died, which is living again, and is alive forever more? Or do we speak of the fellowship as a beautiful memory—a lonely example? What is it to us?

It is the oldest living fellowship in the world, for it springs from a Life which never had a beginning and will never have an end—Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever.

Nineteen hundred years ago, in the stillness of the midnight hours, an angel winged his way to a city of Galilee, named Nazareth. He bore to the most blessed woman in all the world a message of life: "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee, and that Holy Thing which shall be born is the Son of God."

Such was the beginning here on earth of that heavenly fellowship, made not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life. A body was prepared, and it was "a Holy Thing." It came from the love of God, and by the power of the Holy Ghost.

The Trinity encircled the beginning of the fellowship—loving, holy, powerful—God the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. Living, breathing, deathless, that fellowship goes pulsing on—the very core and life of all the world.

With a rushing mighty wind, through tongues of fire, by the operation of the Holy Ghost, immediately on the day of Pentecost, the power of the Church sprang into action and 3,000 souls in one day were CALLED into that fellowship, and they, the Church, continued steadfastly in the Apostles' Doctrine and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and prayers, and through these hundreds of years which have passed since then, countless numbers have been and are being called—called to the Father, through the Son and by the Holy Ghost.

So we, too, by our baptism, have been called, with one hope of our calling—so we must accomplish that hope—as our task. This then is our task, to know the Apostles' Doctrine and fellowship and to continue therein; to know the Church, which is His body and to make it known.

And because through the frailty of our mortal nature we cannot always stand upright, God has ordained a way by which each member of the fellowship may be strengthened, may be confirmed. Through the laying on of hands, the hands of an apostle, now, as in those days of old, the seven-fold gifts of the Holy Ghost, the seven-fold power is poured into our human nature. There and there only we have boldness to enter into the holy place, by the way, a new and living way; that is to say His flesh.

Through that "Holy Thing," by the power of the Spirit, we come to the love of God the Father.

For the body and blood of Christ are given for the fellowship, are sanctified by His word and Holy Spirit and preserve us unto everlasting life.

So this fellowship, which is the extension of the "word made flesh," takes up its task; answers its call.

Built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the head cornerstone, link by link, the Holy Ghost, through the "laying on of hands" has forged a chain more mighty, more powerful than the gates of hell—naught can prevail against it—and into the hands of that body, have been given by God Himself His own authority—the power to "retain and to remit sins! As the father hath sent me, even so, send I you." Baptize and teach. Teach what? All things, whatsoever, I have commanded and with the fulfillment of that promise, "Lo, I am with this fellowship always, even unto the end of the world!" And through this visible organic body, the Holy Ghost energizes. From the moment when that Holy Power overshadowed the Blessed Virgin, on through these succeeding generations, God the Holy Ghost has conveyed to us the life by which we in turn can impart life through the fellowship.

Browning knew it: "'Tis weakness in strength that I cry for. My flesh that I seek in the Godhead. I seek and I find it. O Saul, it shall be a face like my face that receives Thee—a man like to me, thou shalt love and be loved by forever. A hand like this hand shall throw open the gates of new life to thee. See the Christ stand." Multitudes have been called into that fellowship. All kindreds and tongues and peoples are grafted into His life. How many have considered the task which is our calling—to know the Church, which is His body and to make it known. How many have listened to our Lord's great longing cry that we all may be one? For it is clear, that until we know the Apostles' Doctrine and Fellowship and continue therein we cannot be brought to perfection.

To us who are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation; to us, the fellowship called and chosen, God has entrusted the task—to build up this Church of the Living God through us, its living members—HERE and in Latin-America, here and unto the ends of the world, until some day it shall come to pass, as we answer the CALL, as we give our life, that at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that He is King of Kings and Lord of Lords to the glory of God the Father.

God hath given unto us the fellowship, eternal life, and that life is in His Son.

And whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world.

Nineteen hundred years ago, in the city of Bethlehem, that life was born of God. Through the power of the Highest it came into our flesh, made us the fellowship which must overcome the world. That life lived and died and rose again and is alive forever more. Loving, holy, powerful; God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost overshadows this fellowship, which was born, which lives and which is alive forever more, through the eternal life of the Son of God. Philadelphia Home Defense Reserve

A plan has been promulgated by the Director of the Department of Public Safety looking to the mobilization of a Philadelphia Home Defense Reserve of 20,000 men for the protection of our homes and property during the period of the war.

Grace Church, being a Red Cross center, is an appropriate place for a recruiting station. The following committee has been appointed to take the initiative in bringing the Home Defense Reserve before the men of the community and to represent the parish in any larger community movement.

Mr. Nelson Mayhew, Chairman; Messrs. Geo. J. Lincoln, J. Franklin Meehan, Pratt Thompson, J. W. Randall, Alan Corson and Robt. J. Thompson.

The following statement will be of interest to any men contemplating enlistment for this service:

PURPOSE—The Philadelphia Home Defense Reserve has been created to permit men who are residents of Philadelphia, and who, by reason of age, physical disabilities or dependent families, are unable to enter into active service of the United States in either the army, navy, Marine Corps or National Guard, to volunteer such services as a well-organized and efficient reserve of this sort might perform. Primarily, their duty will be to assist the Department of Public Safety in the preservation of order in the vicinity of their own homes, the protection of lives and of property from the destruction attending internal disorders in time of war.

PLAN OF ORGANIZATION—The enrolled membership of the Home Defense Reserve will be divided into forty-one companies, with a maximum of 500 men to each company. One company will be assigned to each of the forty-one police districts of Philadelphia, and will be composed of men residing in the district to which it is attached. Each company will be divided into three platoons, in order that the equivalent of one-third of the district force of the entire reserve of the city can be called out at any time should the service of the total enrollment not be required. Each company will be under the command of the police commander of the district to which it is attached. Each platoon will have the following non-commissioned officers: One first sergeant, six duty sergeants.

Each member must enroll in writing upon a blank to be furnished by the Department of Public Safety, giving his name, business and residence addresses, business and residence telephone numbers, a statement of previous military, naval or police experience, etc.

MOBILIZATION—There will be maintained on file in the office of the Department of Public Safety a complete record of reservists, their addresses, telephone numbers, etc. Upon the issuance of an order for mobilization each member affected thereby will be notified at his home through his commanding officer, if the order is issued at night or on holidays, and by telephone at his place of business at other times. He will be expected to respond immediately, and will be assigned to duty upon arrival at headquarters.

Gathering the Little Children

A few years ago it was discovered that many little children of kindergarten age would gladly come to Grace Church School if they had anyone to bring them. Accordingly, we began the custom of sending out every Sunday a coach to bring them to Church.

This has now become a regular feature of our work. The little ones look forward to the coming of the coach, and enjoy not only the ride but especially the exercises of the Beginners' Room of our Church School.

There is always room for others, and if parents will notify Mrs. R. N. Hall, Superintendent of the Beginners' Department, 31 Gowen Avenue, the coach will call for their children.

Of course, this applies only to children who are too young to walk to Church or who have no older brothers or sisters to bring them. It is hoped that many families who have recently moved into the community will avail themselves of the services of the Grace Church coach.

Notes

The Young Women's Christian Association of Germantown invites all organizations working for relief of war sufferers to use the light, well-ventilated rooms of their administration building, 5820 Germantown Avenue, as headquarters for their work. Already two units have been meeting weekly to prepare supplies for a base hospital.

New courses in first aid, dietetics and home nursing, under the authorization of the Red Cross, are now being organized.

The Bishop and the Social Service Commission of the Diocese of Pennsylvania have asked the Philadelphia Protestant Episcopal City Mission to instal a Bureau of Information, Organization and Distribution for the use of churches, social organizations and private individuals during the war. It is important that churches and parishes especially make use of this City Mission Bureau as the channel for such work in order to focus the church's available resources as to be of the utmost community value.

For quick service, call up the City Mission War Emergency Bureau, Lombard 1824.

Missions

It is reassuring to learn that in spite of the world war the constructive work of Christian missions goes steadily on.

Following are some of the special gifts and pledges towards new enterprises that have recently been made in addition to meeting, through the apportionment, the large annual financial obligations of the Board of Missions:

	Amount Needed	Given or Pledged
St. Luke's Hospital, Tokyo	$500,000	$440,000
Church General Hospital, Wuchang	160,000	90,000
New St. Paul's College, Tokyo.....	200,000	110,000
New St. Agnes School, Kyoto....	60,000	35,000

These are the large undertakings. In addition many less expensive ones are also under way at home and abroad, and meeting with proportionate response.

Some of the things accomplished in recent years are: the opening of St. Stephen's Hospital, Fort Yukon, the only place of its kind between Dawson and Tanana, a distance of 700 miles; the beginning of the little hospital and dispensary, so sorely needed, at Cape Mount; the remarkable group of buildings at Sagada, and the opening of the Church at Porto Rico, to name only a few.

To the Clergy and Laity of the Diocese:

The Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, believing that every baptized woman is a member of the same, realizes that many women are prevented by distance or bodily infirmity from taking an active part in the work of Missions.

To overcome this difficulty, a committee has been organized to take the missionary information by correspondence to these "isolated churchwomen," asking in return that they give their interest and prayers for the progress of Christ's kingdom.

Will you not assist in this work by putting the Secretary in touch with isolated women, that they may receive the inspiration that comes from united effort, and that the Auxiliary may be strengthened by the intercessions and sympathy of these new members, and a great spiritual blessing come to both the organization and the individuals?

To become an active member by correspondence, address Miss Louisa Pharo, Secretary, Haverford, Pa.

Faithfully yours,
MATILDA MARKOE,
President.

By the REV. STEWART P. KEELING

Rector of S. Peter's Church, Germantown.

The Home Defense Reserve of Germantown and Chestnut Hill have been invited to attend in a body.

SPECIAL MUSIC

He hath sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment seat!
Oh be swift, my soul, to answer Him! be jubilant my feet!
Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilies, Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in His bosom that transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men holy, let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on.

Rector's Leave of Absence

The Rector of Grace Church has filed an application for the chaplaincy of a regiment now preparing for immediate service in France.

Should he receive the appointment, the people of Grace Church would feel that they had a representative at the front. The Vestry, at their meeting Thursday evening, May 24th, endorsed the Rector's purpose to offer his services and voted unanimously to grant him leave of absence during the coming year, with full salary. The Rector, in expressing his appreciation of this loyal and patriotic action, stated that he would relinquish part of the salary to help meet the expense of the Curate who would assume charge of the Parish in case he should go to France.

The Colors

It was on Thanksgiving Day, 1914, shortly after the outbreak of the war in Europe, that the national flag—presented by Troop 67, Boy Scouts, was placed in the Chancel of Grace Church.

The first time the flag was carried with the Cross in procession in the Church was the third Sunday after Trinity, June 20, 1915. It was the occasion of the Church School Commencement.

The custom of carrying the flag in procession regularly at the morning and evening services each Sunday was begun in Grace Church during Lent, 1917, about the time that the United States severed diplomatic relations with Germany.

Since America's entrance into the war, the singing of the national hymn, "Our Father's God to Thee," has been a regular and impressive feature of the Sunday morning service.

So soon as it could be arranged, a flagpole was erected upon the tower of Grace Church, and on the fourth Sunday after Easter, May 6, 1917, the national emblem first floated over the Church.

The Flag Raising was a very beautiful and impressive ceremony. After the Holy Communion Service, the choir and clergy, singing Hymn 496, "Lord of Our Life and God of Our Salvation," led the way out onto the church lawn. The choir was followed by Troop 67, Boy Scouts, in uniform. The whole congregation then assembled around a platform which had been placed in a location from which the flagstaff could easily be observed. The choirmaster, assisted by the choir and a cornet, then led the people in singing "America."

Mr. Franklin Spencer Edmonds made a most appropriate and stirring address.

As the bugle from the tower sounded the colors, all eyes turned to see the Stars and Stripes unfurled.

Immediately all joined in the pledge of allegiance:

> I pledge my allegiance to my Flag and to the Republic for which it stands—one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

The following prayer of dedication was offered by the Rector:

Almighty God, the Supreme Governor of the world, who has created this nation out of many peoples of the earth to be an instrument in the establishment of Thy Kingdom among men, bless this banner and grant that it may stand upon the tower of Thy house as a perpetual witness to Thy power and rule over us. May our national life always be inspired by the desire to bring to pass Thy holy purposes; and may the Government, of which this flag is an emblem, seek only to advance such causes as shall be pleasing in Thy sight, through our Lord Jesus Christ. Amen.

The ceremony closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

The Stars and Stripes, floating from the tower of Grace Church day by day, are a significant symbol—but it will mean more and more to us as the Church makes greater and ever greater sacrifices and proves in the coming months the reality of her patriotism.

Total		$5,001.04

This does not include gifts from the Woman's Auxiliary.

A comparison of this year's financial statement with that for the year ending April 30, 1916, shows a reduction in receipts from pew rents of $108.53, and a reduction in receipts from duplex envelopes for parish expense of $423.41 When last year's return was made, the Church School Easter offering had not been received. Crediting this amount to last year's offerings (where it belongs), this statement shows an increase of $170.44 in the missionary offerings of the Church School.

The Church Pension Fund offering of this year has, of course, no corresponding item of last year with which it can be compared. Our offerings for the purposes outside of the diocese, which correspond with the items in last year's account, show a reduction of $678. This is due in part to the diversion of a portion of the Easter offering to the payment of our current expenses. The result of this was, as usual, to make the total amount then offered, both for current expenses and for missions, less than the total offering for missions in the previous year.

There was no substantial change in the other items embraced in the statement.

In the Interest of the Red Cross

The members of the Mount Airy Auxiliary of the American Red Cross are trying to raise the purchase price of a base hospital ambulance, and for this purpose a block bazaar will be held on June 15th or 16th. Different commodities will be for sale on each porch on Gowen Avenue in the block between Crittenden and Stenton Avenues. Every resident in Mount Airy is urged to co-operate in this effort.

Contributions of money or articles are wanted and will be gratefully received by the Misses Kolb, Mrs. H. S. Richards, Mrs. J. D. Pettingill, Mrs. Robert Wallace, Mrs. Charles Klauder, Mrs. H. H. Burrell, Mrs. George W. Bates and Mrs. Emanuel G. Kolb, who are the committee in charge of the arrangements.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, held on May 8th, was well attended and the members showed a keen interest in the proceedings, particularly when the time arrived for voting the distribution of various balances on hand.

The length of the Treasurer's report showed that her position is decidedly not a sinecure, and appreciation of her work was fully expressed.

The Secretary reported an average attendance of twenty-five people at the thirty meetings of the Auxiliary, from October to May.

The following speakers were present during the year: Father Staunton, from the Philippine Islands; the Rev. George S. Gassner, of the Seaman's Church Institute, Philadelphia; Miss Robinson, from Columbia, South Carolina; Miss Esther Means, the Church Mission of Help, Philadelphia; Deaconess Carroll, the Italian Mission, Philadelphia; Mrs. Kempton, of the Church Periodical Club, and Miss Libby, from the Society for Organizing Charities.

A class on prayer, during the Week of Prayer, was ably led by Mrs. Abbey.

Seven hundred and thirty-one dollars and fourteen cents was the share of the women of Grace Church in the united offering, from May, 1916, to May, 1917.

The quantity of work done by the Box Committee is carried on so smoothly and so well that it may not always be appreciated. It means careful planning and good execution on the part of the able chairman to have materials bought and sewing all planned and ready so that twenty-five women shall be kept busy each week. The figures, however, at the end of the year, give some idea of the work involved. Boxes having a total value of $749.15 were sent to the various mission fields during the year ending May 8, 1917.

An interlude in the business is the reading of letters acknowledging the receipt of boxes or donations. It is always encouraging to hear that what has been given has carried help and joy to the recipients.

The report of the Rug Committee was interesting, as usual, and showed a total of $134.15 received from orders. This sum was divided among several charities, $25 being used to purchase a fair linen for the altar of Grace Church.

The Educational Secretary reported that there was one mission study class for men, held on Sunday evenings during Lent, led by the rector, and two classes for women, one led by the Missionary Secretary, and the second by Mrs. William Abbey. Mrs. Abbey kindly consented to help Mrs. Hayes, who was asked by Mrs. Pilsbry to lead two classes outside her own parish. Mrs. Butterworth took charge of the class of older juniors.

The work of the Periodical Club is far-reaching indeed. The Librarian reported that from this parish seventy-three current periodicals are sent regularly by thirty-eight contributors, and over two thousand books, magazines, papers and cards have been sent out during the year. The area covered extends from Philadelphia and the mining camps of Pennsylvania, to New York, and as far south as Tennessee and Georgia.

Reports from the Tract Society, with collections amounting to $10.75; the Little Helpers, with its membership of thirty-five, and from the Bishop's Bricks Fund were all encouraging.

It was most inspiring to hear of the fine things accomplished by the juniors. Both older and younger branches showed good results from their year's work.

Interest is gradually being aroused in the needs of the Italians who have settled in Philadelphia and vicinity and an open conference on the Italian work was held at the Church House on May 4th. An account of this conference was read at the annual meeting and excited much interest. Bishop Garland spoke of the amount of work to be done. With five or six missions established, only $4,500 appropriated by the diocese and expenses of $8,000, something must be done to meet the demands.

It was suggested that the Extension Committee of the League become the Bishop's Auxiliary, to help raise the money. A fair was also mentioned to awaken more interest throughout the diocese and to exhibit the lace work of the Italian women. The plan of reaching parishes through the auxiliaries, by sending speakers to explain the work, has been very successful. Large boxes of clothing, with $188.50 in money, have been received to meet the most urgent demands.

The fair will probably be held in November, and each parish is asked to give five or more articles to be sold at reasonable prices. Will Grace Church help?

In submitting a report from the Social Service Committee, the chairman said that it was necessary to combine problems with results. Friendly visiting is their chief mission and some good results are seen even though the cases undertaken have been very difficult.

The greatest problem is the lack of some activity, either spiritual or social, to offer, particularly for girls who need some wholesome and attractive substitute for street visiting. Efforts have been made by the committee to have the public schools open for community use; one day each week a representative accompanies small children to the dispensary for necessary treatment, and twice each year a sale of partly worn clothing is held. This list does not include half the things this committee finds to do.

A very interesting and important part of the annual meeting is the voting on the distribution of balances in various funds, as there are wide differences of opinion as to where the money is most needed.

Amounts varying from $5 to $17 were voted for the use of the different speakers who had been present during the year. Some money was used to complete pledges already made; the Italian Mission received its share, and $10 was contributed to the Flag Fund for Grace Church.

The officers of the Auxiliary and the entire Executive Committee were re-elected for the coming year, and the Missionary Educational Secretary and the assistant to the Secretary were elected members of the Executive Committee.

The United Offering

In spite of unfavorable weather, 381 women gathered at S. Matthew's Church, Eighteenth Street and Girard Avenue, on Thursday, April 26th, for the thirteenth annual service of the Woman's Auxiliary with the presentation of the united offering. The Bishop Suffragan was the celebrant, and the rector, the Rev. Charles C. Pierce, D. D., the preacher.

Taking S. Luke 13: 15-16 as his text, Dr. Pierce spoke of three "Motives for Service"—(1) Personal pity; (2) personal advantage; (3) personal kinship—as those our Saviour set forth in His stern reproof to the ruler of the synagogue: "Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the Sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering? And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, these eighteen years, be loosed from this bond on the Sabbath day?" Dr. Pierce made a forceful application of these motives to service under present-day conditions, referring especially to the world war, and emphasizing the call to a larger service on our part. He gave us the comforting assurance that "when the smoke clears away, brotherhood will reign and peace and piety will embrace the earth." Oh, that these may prove to have been the words of a true prophet!

In announcing the amount of the offering, Bishop Garland spoke with appreciation and enthusiasm of the increasing helpfulness of the united offering in carrying on the missionary work of the Church, and he asked us to kneel in silence and consecrate ourselves anew—our souls and bodies—to the service of the Master, that we may be ready to make any and every sacrifice at His call.

The offering presented at the service was $8,778.80. The total amount (nearly $9,800 for the first six months of 1916-1919), is an increase of $2,000 over that for the same period of 1913-1916, and as we gained, in this diocese, about 2,000 contributors during the past triennium, the increase in the offering shows a normal growth.

The share of the women of Grace Church in the spring presentation was $260.35 from eighty-eight contributors. This amount includes $11.85 from twenty-one contributors at the Leamy Home and $5 from the Junior Auxiliary.

We have now 140 names on the list of contributors to the united offering. Our plan is to reach every woman communicant that she may have a share in our woman's united thank offering. Will you help? To our workers in the mission fields it means so much of comfort and encouragement to know that the women at home are standing behind them with their prayers and with their gifts. It means just as much in our lives to be praying and giving! We and they are one in Christ's body—the Church—and all are equally responsible.

Remember the great privilege that we of the united offering in Grace Church Parish are to enjoy during the coming three years, in providing the salary of Miss Nuneviller, who left on May 30th for her far northern field of service—Fort Yukon, Alaska—where she is to have the joy of ministering to souls and bodies at St. Stephen's Hospital. Surely our thoughts and prayers follow Miss Nuneviller as she travels to the Arctic Circle! M. C. S. N.

The Communicants' Guild

The early celebration on Trinity Sunday is always a special occasion for the members of the Communicants' Guild. They will assemble in the Guild Room and attend the service in a body.

The Guild is composed of all whom the Rector has presented for Confirmation during the past four years.

There will be a preparation service for Guild members in the Church on Friday, June 1st, at 7.30 P. M.

After this service the annual meeting will be held. It is hoped every member will make special effort to be present.

Liberty Loan

In the following words the Bishop of Pennsylvania urges upon all Church people the duty of subscribing to the Liberty Loan:

The success of the Liberty Loan of the Government of the United States is a matter of vital importance to our country and to our Allies at this time.

The Central European Powers, trusting to our unreadiness and slowness in mobilization, as well as to the internal troubles in Russia, are seeking to force a decision in their favor on the western front, and are confident of their ability to secure it.

It is a gravely critical situation. What is instantly and imperatively needed is some sure and unmistakable sign that the American people are fixed and resolute in their intention to do their full part at any cost in this world-wide struggle for liberty, righteousness and justice. If we fail now, our cause, which is the cause of our Allies, will be in jeopardy.

The Liberty Loan is our opportunity. The duty of subscribing to it is a clear patriotic and Christian obligation. The raising of the full amount of the loan is of course important. But much more important is the enlistment of our entire citizenship. Each individual subscription now, whatever its amount, will mean as much as, if not more than, a fresh soldier at the front. It will mean a blow struck when the need is greatest. It will mean, under God, a new assurance of victory for our cause which, as we confidently believe, is according to His will.

Enlisted Men

All enlisted men from this Parish are invited to meet with the Rector and the men of the Way each Sunday morning at 9.30 in the tower room of Grace Church.

The purpose of these tower room meetings is to strengthen the bonds of fellowship before these young men go to the colors—in order that they may feel that the Church at home is loyally back of them.

The first of these interesting meetings was held on Whitsunday morning. The enlisted men were presented with copies of the New Testament bound in khaki.

The Rector desires to know at once the names of all parishioners who have enlisted or are in training for national service.

The following is the present Parish roll of honor:

Prize Winners

Grace Church School is proud to have two prize winners in a recent contest open to the scholars of the Sunday Schools of Germantown. The test was on the "Life of Our Lord," and the prize to be awarded was five dollars, which it was understood should be donated either to missions or religious education.

Two of our scholars, Mary L. Houston and Julia F. Houston, members of Mrs. H. S. Lowber's class on the "Life of Our Lord," took the examination.

They not only captured prizes but they qualified for double prizes of ten dollars each. These augmented prizes were given to all who received averages of 90 or over. The Misses Houston, however, had a margin, for they both received averages of 100. They were the only two of the sixteen prize winners to attain this high rank.

They have established a fine precedent for the school in coming years, for the contest is to be an annual one.

Brotherhood of S. Andrew

Resolution concerning the National Convention of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew to be held in the city of Philadelphia, October 10-14, 1917, adopted by the recent Diocesan Convention.

WHEREAS, The National Convention of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew is to meet, with the approval of the Bishop of the Diocese, in the city of Philadelphia in October; and

WHEREAS, "Christian Usefulness," the theme of this Convention, comes with a peculiarly solemn call to all men in this hour of distress of nations; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Convention extends a cordial welcome to the delegates of the forthcoming National Convention of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew, asks God's blessing upon its sessions, and pledges the hearty co-operation of the men of this Diocese in seizing the opportunity for more fervent prayer and worthier service.

Convention Prayer

Grant, O Lord, that all whom Thou dost choose to work for Thee may labor in union with Thy holy purpose, in living unity with Thy dear Son, and in the power of Thy Holy Spirit. Especially, give Thy grace to the Brotherhood of S. Andrew, soon to meet in annual convention, that all these, Thy servants, may be led in wisdom and purity of faith and love to such devotion of heart, and readiness of will, as may enable them to serve Thee truly to the glory of Thy great Name and the benefit of Thy holy Church, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Rector's Letter

My Dear Parishioners:

As the time draws near for me to bid you a long farewell and go overseas with the forces, I realize as never before how strongly I am bound to you by ties of pastoral love.

What saddens me is the thought of leaving you at a time when you will be in special need of the comfort of religion. If you are called upon to make great sacrifices and meet heavy sorrows, I want to share them with you. Perhaps my absence will help quite as much as my presence. You will feel that I am near the throbbing heart of the world sorrow. I hope I shall be a better pastor in future years for having been there.

I shall not be in France as an isolated individual, not only as the chaplain of a regiment of over a thousand men, but also as your pastor, your representative.

In every experience I shall feel that you are back of me. You, who have made it possible for me to go, will hold me up by the aid of your faithful prayers. Don't forget to pray for all the men of the Ninth Engineers.

In turn I shall be ever mindful of you. No din of battle will be able to drown out the echoes from home.

I shall see you assembled for worship before the altar. I shall hear the songs of the children. I shall picture the scenes of your good works. You will not let the work of the Church lag. With a fine sense of loyalty, you will double your efforts. I shall be comforted to know that you will have such a priest-in-charge as Mr. Chattin. You will be well shepherded. Try and help him in every possible way.

As I think of Grace Church I shall always see the flag flying from the tower and the light burning in the sanctuary. The one symbolizes your patriotism and the other your unceasing prayers.

I am confident that I speak not only for myself, but also for every enlisted man from the parish when I say from my heart:

Keep the colors flying and the light of devotion burning until we come home to you again.

We go with a prayer upon our lips and no hatred in our hearts. We go with high hopes of victory and of safe return. But if we shall be called upon to surrender our lives, be assured we shall do it gladly in the belief that our cause is that of justice and liberty for all mankind.

Faithfully yours in Jesus Christ.

BISHOP'S HOUSE

PHILADELPHIA

Dear Dr. Grouter:

I am writing to you as Rector's Warden of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, to express to the Vestry and the whole congregation my deep appreciation of the fine spirit they are showing in their support of Mr. Cline during his term of service as chaplain with the Army.

His absence will, of course, be a great loss and deprivation to the parish, and yet

I believe that out of it will come a new and very precious blessing to you all. You are not forgetting him. You are doing the very opposite. You are claiming your share in the service which he is rendering. I take your action to mean that every member of the parish wants to do his or her part in this great undertaking.

This is a very fine and inspiring thing, and the whole Diocese will be the better for it.

Faithfully yours,
P. M. RHINELANDER.

RT. REV. PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
251 South Twenty-second Street,
Philadelphia.

Dear Bishop Rhinelander:

Your letter of the 6th inst. expressing your appreciation and approval of the course pursued by the Vestry of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, in granting leave of absence with full salary to their rector, Rev. Thomas S. Cline, during his term of service as chaplain in the Army is received. Your cordial and kindly sentiments are deeply appreciated. The Vestry and indeed every member of the parish feel they are but performing their plain duty as members of God's Church in thus furthering His service in the great cause in which we are all so deeply interested.

It is true Mr. Cline's absence will entail a severe loss to the parish, but I believe the members of the Church and congregation will rally to a full realization of their duties and not suffer its work to fall away unduly.

Your encouraging and sympathetic words will prove a tower of strength and I shall take pleasure in making them known to the Vestry and members of the congregation at an early date.

Very faithfully yours,
A. L. E. CROUTER,
Rector's Warden.

A Farewell Service

What more fitting day for a farewell service for nurses, or, indeed, for any missionary, than the Feast of S. Barnabas, the Son of Consolation! Such a service was held at the Church Missions House, New York, on Monday, June 11th, at 11.30 A. M., for Miss Beatrice Nuneviller and Miss Frances Wells, of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, and the Convocation of Germantown, who are to minister as nurses at S. Stephen's Hospital, Fort Yukon, Alaska. Bishop Lloyd was the celebrant, assisted by the Rev. Franklin J. Clark.

We listened to the thrilling words of the Gospel: "This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you." . . . "I have called you friends"; . . . "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you," . . . "go and bring forth fruit," "that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you." What wonderful commands, blessed assurances and precious promise of answer to prayer,—all for our out-going missionaries! Surely, "with purpose of heart," they will ever "cleave unto the Lord," as (in the Epistle) Barnabas exhorted the people of Antioch.

Then there is the Collect for the day—just the prayer for every worker! "Leave us not, we beseech thee, destitute of thy manifold gifts, nor yet of grace to use them alway to thy honor and glory." In a brief address, full of inspiration, Bishop Lloyd said that it did not matter so much whether we had many "gifts" or few ("cleverness may prove a snare. Stupidity sometimes leads into service"); but with those we do possess we must allow ourselves "to be used of the Christ." It will follow that we shall then have "grace to use them" always to His "honor and glory."

The departing missionaries were assured of the "sympathy, help and prayers" of those at home. It should never be necessary for the worker, going out to a mission field, to say: "I hope you will pray for me." We are bound so to pray. If we do not, we stand condemned.

Miss Nuneviller and Miss Wells left at the close of the service for Seattle, where they were to be joined by Mr. John W. Wood, the Secretary of the Board of Missions. They expected to sail for Alaska on the 19th of June.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Some of the members of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild and their friends as well are already at work upon the Christmas box to be sent to Miss Riddell for her afflicted people. The following letter shows their appreciation of the box of last year. The help is asked of everyone in Grace Church to make the next one just as full and attractive as ever. The colors liked best by the lepers are the soft neutral tints. Red and blue are not liked at all. Knitted articles of all kinds are wanted—table covers, scarfs, handkerchiefs, dolls, Victrola records, ribbons, note paper, sewing boxes or bags, etc., and let us send some things especially for the men.

The box will be packed September 1st. Please send any donations by that time to Mrs. E. W. Jenkins, 334 Gowen Avenue.

My Dear Friends:

As the year 1916 went on, I thought that possibly our dear folk in the hospital would not have quite such a joyous Christmas as usual with regard to gifts. But despite all the claims of the war we have known no lack, and some have said, "This is the happiest Christmas I ever had."

As I think you know, we keep Christmas Day itself somewhat as a solemn festival and have the Christmas tree and all our fun on the Feast of the Epiphany. But this year the cold was so intense that we postponed the tree until all our invalids could safely come from their beds. No one will miss the sight of the brilliant tree, with frost too, so kindly sent. Generally we have an angel and a star; this year there was a star but no angel among our lovely dolls. And many were the inquiries, "Where is the angel?"

Because of the great cold I gave all the warm things on Christmas Day and directly afterwards, so that when we did have the Christmas tree we had only the dolls and the many dainty gifts, of which a special contingent came from Philadelphia. I am very grateful to everyone who contributes these gifts, and, as I take it, these are really "birthday gifts" to them, instead of to the One, Who when He was among us, "carried our sorrows, yet did we esteem Him as a leper, smitten of God and afflicted?" I never at Christmas give anything which is not perfectly fresh and whole: giving it as to Him.

Very useful things come among the Christmas gifts which are not perfectly fresh and new,—and those I generally bestow afterwards in the wards wherever they will be most appreciated.

My one regret at these times is that you cannot see for yourself the great pleasure and happiness you create, and you cannot even imagine what it is like to see a poor scarred face losing its deformity in the smile which is awakened by your loving kindness.

Everyone had a doll. There was a special lottery for them, because I could not possibly decide to whom each should go. Of the two loveliest baby dolls I have kept one back for Easter (I believe his name is Reginald), and then I am going to give him to the care of a dear woman who has a little son whom she will never see again. It will I know be a great consolation to her to have the care of Reginald and his beautiful baby clothes and to lend him out to the other women and girl patients. He will belong to the hospital and so give pleasure to many, but he will be under her care.

Most of the women now have a doll on their table in an honored place among their books and possessions, and I wish very much the donors could have seen a young woman of twenty-two in dark glasses shielding her almost sightless eyes, take up her small doll, and holding it to her swollen face, say, "My baby! my baby!"

One beautiful lady, in a trained evening gown of violet silk and white lace, is now standing up in a box with a glass front to it on the table of the happy possessor.

Some of the men also have their dolls on their tables and were keen for me to bestow English names on them. To one of them, a lad of seventeen and almost blind, after talking about his doll I said, "How many fingers have you now, Kaichiro San, on your right hand?" And he held it up for me to see. Just one crooked one and a thumb! And he has no feeling in them! but manages to dress himself quite tidily still. He is growing into a huge man, but for years has had no hair on his head and even his face is not whole. It is to such as these you bring a glimpse of the love of the Master.

Mr. Hewlett caused much merriment by his naive remarks when presenting various gifts. Mr. Tobimatsu (my Japanese Secretary) and his wife recited an old classical poem of Japan very artistically and were listened to with absorbed attention.

One of the great pleasures of the evening was the singing of some of the women patients. A quintette of them sang "Praise to the Holiest" in parts, and the youngest of them, a girl of sixteen, sang the bass, and very well, too! It was wonderfully sweet. Two of these who sang had well-trained voices. She also sang "In the Secret of His Presence" as a solo. Dear woman, she truly has that secret and her singing was as pathetic as it was sweet. Later on little Daniel stood on a chair and sang, "Jesus Loves Me, This I Know." He was looking very bonnie in a blue coat I crocheted for him when in the mountains last summer, so I was quite proud, too!

Towards the end of the evening two of the men told a story, rather acted a story, consisting entirely of puns and clever play upon words and phrases. There were shouts and ripples of laughter from beginning to end and it lasted for quite twenty minutes. It was absolutely original and immensely appreciated, as indeed it would have been anywhere.

Before closing a vote of thanks was proposed, seconded and enthusiastically carried, to all those who had that evening given special gifts, viz.: Mr. Hewlett, who gave the oranges; Miss Hughes (who you may remember helped me for some time with secretarial work and who is now working hard for her country in its need), who provided the nuts (a bag of nuts each with a surprise packet inside); my niece, Miss Wright, who sent the cakes, my old servants, who gave a packet of caramels to everyone, and to Mr. and Mrs. Tobimatsu, who provided a further little gift of cakes for each to take back with them.

We began with Christmas hymns and a brief prayer and address, and at Mr. Hewlett's suggestion, ended with one verse of "God, Save the King" (most of them can sing it in English), followed by the Japanese national anthem. Then there came a great gathering up of possessions, many bows and "good-nights," then the getting into bath-chairs (we have only two) and the waiting for them to come again for some of the patients,—then the slow quiet walk back through the grounds under the beautiful sky and all was gratitude and peace.

Please try to understand my thanks to everyone. I cannot really express them and believe me,

Ever gratefully yours,

H. RIDDELL.

P. S.—Perhaps I ought to explain that the Rev. A. S. Hewlett is the English chaplain. He came out chiefly because Malcolm and the American Hawaiian family had no English services and sacraments. He is a cousin of mine and though he was sixty when he came out has not suffered at all in health and is a great comfort to us all.

The Church School Commencement

The closing exercises of the Church School were held on the Church lawn, Sunday afternoon, June 17th. Never before were so many parents and friends of the school present at these exercises. The interesting exhibit of notebooks and other work of the pupils in the parish house attracted much attention. The rector made a short address of welcome and reviewed some of the special features of the past year's work. For the first time this year the Christian Nurture Series of lessons has been used in the Primary as well as the Junior Departments. The custom of having the whole school attend divine service in the Church every Sunday, which has been instituted this year, was referred to. The faithfulness of the teachers was highly commended by Mr. Cline.

Papers were presented by representatives of the four older classes upon themes related to their year's work.

The following were the subjects:

1. "Why the Church Is Vital to Us," by Ruth Jago.

2. "The Christ Among the Samaritans," by Ann Elizabeth Sheble.

3. "The Spread of the Church in Alaska," by Eleanor Matlack.

4. "Godfrey and the First Crusade," by Frank Fortescue.

The school banner for the class of highest rank was awarded to the Upper Senior Girls (Miss Adele Bayard, teacher).

Classes receiving honorable mention were:

Fourth Grade Boys (Miss Margaretta Bayard, teacher).

Lower Senior Girls (Mrs. Lowber, teacher).

Lower Senior Boys (Mr. Landenberger, teacher).

The class which has made the greatest progress during the year was the Seventh Grade Girls (Mrs. Pease, teacher).

The following had distinguished examination papers:

Mary Burd, Martyn George, Hannah Kaufman, Eleanor Matlack, Katherine Matlack.

Public mention was made of the faithful service of Ada Insinger in helping with the little children during the year.

The honor roll for attendance was read as follows:

Present every Sunday—John Conarroe, Lewis Conarroe, Francis Murphy, Rachel Lamb, William Wagner, M. Eliz. Kaufman, Nellie Lamb, H. Bertram Rebman, A. L. E. Crouter, Jr., Mary Burd, Agnes Lamb, Margaret Wilkinson, Frank Fortescue, Adelaide Sheble, Rutherford Brown.

Absent only one Sunday—Christine Alwine, Philip A. Cline, Cheston Weiler, Virginia West, Fred T. McGuire, Jr., Mildred Simons, June Yale Crouter, Robert Nesbitt, Jr., Sarah Thompson, Marion Haldeman, Ada Insinger, Gordon Crouter.

Awards for bringing new pupils to the school were given to the following:

Frank W. Butterworth, A. L. E. Crouter, Jr., Mildred Simons, Gladys Brunner, Christine Alwine, Anna Bose.

The silver pin for the completion of the second assignment of memory work was awarded to Frank Fortescue, who is the only one to have received this distinction thus far.

The following children received cards of promotion from the Primary Department to the Junior Department:

Anne Burton, Leslie Burton, Anita Caldwell, Howard McCready, James Weiler, Nancy White, Emily G. Dixon, Marion Collier, Dorothy Keller, Esther Nonneman, Florence Smith, Alan Crouter, Russell Frederic, Russell Grub, William Insinger, Herbert Lewis, Irving F. Seitz, A. Katharine Cline, Stephanie Sheble, Elizabeth Lindon, Dorothy Brunner.

The rector bade farewell to the members of the school wishing them a pleasant summer and announcing the opening of the Church School on September 30th. He said in case he himself should be called into service as chaplain in the Army, he would, of course, not be present to greet them upon their return. He gave them a solemn charge to be loyal to the flag and the cross.

Then while the standard bearer and the crucifer held those two honored symbols before the children, all present united in two pledges of allegiance as follows:

First, to the flag—"I pledge allegiance to my flag, to the republic for which it stands, one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Second, to the cross—"I pledge allegiance to the cross and to the Savior for which it stands, who lived and died that this might be a better world for me and all mankind. I dedicate my life to the service of His Church forever."

Magazines for the Navy Yard

Chaplain Dickens and his assistants in the Philadelphia Navy Yard have issued an urgent request for contributions of books, magazines and victrola records for the use of the men in the service. There seems to be an overwhelming demand just now.

The Church Periodical Club has taken the matter up and request that these things be sent to the Grace Church Parish House marked "C. P. C." They will see that they are distributed to the proper parties.

Someone will be in charge of this work throughout the summer, therefore, don't horde your reading matter, pass it on at once while it is fresh.

Remember this is a war measure and should not interfere with the regular supply of periodicals and books for the work of the Church Periodical Club.

Patronize Our Advertisers

It costs you nothing to say, "I saw your advertisement in the GRACE CHURCH PARISH NEWS." This goes further with the tradesman than you think. It also helps financially the work of the PARISH NEWS. Have you read carefully the advertisements this month? Will you not do so, at once, and give your patronage to some of our advertisers?

Patriotic Service

Grace Church was well filled Sunday evening, June 10th. The rector extended a welcome to representatives of the following patriotic groups: (1) The Boy Scouts of America; (2) the Home Defense Reserve; (3) the Ninth Regiment of Engineers, U. S. A.; (4) the American Red Cross, and (5) the enlisted men from the parish.

The rector said he had the honor of belonging to all these groups. The sermon on "War and Christianity," by the Rev. Stewart P. Keeling, rector of S. Peter's Church, Germantown, set forth forcibly the reasons why the Church urges her sons to arm for this great conflict against the Prussian autocracy.

The choir rendered some beautiful anthems and the congregational singing was indeed stirring.

An Appreciation

May I express my appreciation of the loyal and generous spirit manifested by the people of Grace Church in granting me leave of absence, with salary, to serve as chaplain to our overseas forces?

A like patriotic spirit has been shown by the rector and people of St. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, in allowing us to have their curate—Rev. John M. Chattin—to serve during my absence. Mr. Chattin's position at St. Paul's will be held open for him. This action called forth special commendation from the Bishop. Mr Chattin will take charge of this parish Sept. 15th.

With the same readiness to make sacrifice for the great cause, which absorbs our interest now-a-days, Rev. Frederic Gardiner is laying aside his duties in the Educational work of the Church, and taking charge of Grace Church during July and August.

These things are heartening, and are indications of the spirit of self-forgetful service and co-operation, which is going to make America a mighty factor in the war.

T. S. C.

Children's Patriotic Service

The President of the United States, in an open letter, addressed to the officers, teachers and pupils of the Sunday Schools of the United States of America, writes: "The present insistent call of our country must be heard and answered by every citizen of the United States in proportion to his or her ability to maintain the national power and honor.

"Many citizens will render their aid by force of arms on the battlefield, while others will make the nation strong by their gifts and support to the common cause.

"It is highly fitting that the Sunday Schools of the nation should observe a patriotic day."

The day chosen is the Sunday preceding the Fourth of July. Sunday, July 1st, will be marked in Grace Church by a special outdoor patriotic service for the children at 4.30 P. M. A Church School Auxiliary to the Mt. Airy Branch of the Red Cross will be formed. An offering for the benefit of the Red Cross will be taken. Adults as well as children are invited to attend.

The Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown

At the spring meeting of the Convocation in Southampton, Bishop Rhinelander and Dean LeRoy spoke to the women about the much-needed church building on the Northeast Boulevard for S. Gabriel's Mission.

They told of the rapid growth of the community in which the mission is located and of the great hope that at least a part of the building will be completed very soon so that it can be used for worship.

The first year's salary for the missionary is assured with the exception of three hundred dollars, and the women were asked if they would provide this amount. After the regular order of business it was voted that "the Woman's Aid to the Convocation make themselves responsible for the three hundred dollars toward the first year's salary of the new rector of S. Gabriel's."

The delegates are taking this word back to their parishes and at the fall meeting hope to be able to report that the greater part of three hundred dollars has been raised. Grace Church delegates are as interested as the rest and will be glad to receive any amount at all toward this worthy object.

Compassion

On Sunday, June 17th, the opening day of Red Cross Week, the rector preached "in defense of compassion." He characterized the war as a struggle between the principle of ruthlessness and the principle of compassion. To the casual observer Haig's army and Von Hindenberg's army may appear equally ruthless. Individual men from either camp may be equally ferocious. But the spirit and purpose animating the two great war machines are as different as night from day. Prussianism vs. democracy means nothing less than ruthlessness vs. chivalry. Compassion for Belgium roused England to her duty in this conflict. Compassion for France is touching the heart of America today. Compassion for oppressed humanity in whatever land, compassion for future generations compels us to unsheath the sword. Though we must strike hard we shall do it with chivalry and with respect for all human beings. God forbid that we should be hardened or embittered. The world never needed so sadly our compassion. But our compassion must be dynamic. Our tears will not help. The most effective expression of our compassion is the Red Cross service whose mission is the alleviation of human suffering in times of peace and war. Our support of this great beneficent agency will register how much we really believe in compassion.

Referring to the Flag Day speech of the President of the United States in which he said: "The statesmen of other nations paid little attention to what German professors expounded in their class rooms and German writers set forth to the world as the goal of German policy, regarding them rather the dream of minds detached from practical affairs, as preposterous private conceptions of German destiny, than as the actual plans of responsible rulers," the rector read the following extract from a sermon preached by himself to a congregation in New Hampshire in August, 1906, eight years before the war broke out. He prefaced the quotation by saying that he little realized the full significance of these prophetic words when he uttered them, regarding the opposition to the Christian principle of mercy as academic rather than practical.

"I suppose we are all agreed that the highest recommendation our religion can have is its exemplification of the love of the Heavenly Father. We are agreed that mercy and compassion are the most Godlike virtues—those through which chiefly the Almighty power of God is to be declared among men.

"We are so thoroughly convinced of this that it seems to us a truism—surely all men must join us in extolling these tender virtues.

"But wait; suppose I should tell you that there was a great school of thought in Germany issuing a challenge to pity and calling in question the value of mercy—cutting under the whole fabric of Christian charity. Yet such is actually the case.

"I believe we are in great danger of provincialism in all our talk about Christianity. We take things for granted in our circle of choice souls, which out in the big world are seriously questioned or even flatly contradicted.

"Thus we flatter ourselves into a false sense of security. Thus we shall find ourselves unarmed when the faith needs defenders.

"I believe we must pinch ourselves and keep awake to the rapid movements of thought. We must read the signs of the times and not go on forever repeating outworn formulæ. Why fight men of straw—when a really formidable foe is coming?

"For instance, the great outline of Christian morality was taken for granted on all hands a few decades ago. The great attacks upon Christianity, like that one in which Huxley was a leading figure, accepted the foundations of Christian morality as ideal. The argument was as to how to account for them, i. e., whether natural history would be sufficient to explain the existence of the moral code and of the structure of the Christian world.

"But now this is all changed. The critics have shifted their ground entirely. They attack the very citadel of our religion. Of course we do not hear the roar of the battle front. That is going on in Germany—the home of skepticism. But we do hear the distant rumble of the guns and in time we shall hear more. The German critics will no longer accept our Christian mode of life with its ideal of pity and mercy. They actually reject a great part of the broad basis of all morals in rejecting mercy, pity and sacrifice. This is why I say they challenge the very citadel of our religion.

"The teaching of the brilliant writer Nietsche, whose influence (though he died some years ago) still grows, we are told in Germany is summed up in one word, as a challenge to pity, as the Gospel against mercy. He says: 'A new commandment give I unto you—that ye have no pity.'

"Now I know this comes to many of you as a shock—as an unheard of thing, an absurdity—that men should seriously attack pity, mercy, love and care of others and regard them as, after all, hindrances to the progress of the race. Nevertheless this is a fact and we are called upon to defend these Christian virtues. In doing so we shall find great blessing, for we shall come to value all the more highly the priceless revelation of Christ to the world. We shall love that for which we fight, until we shall be willing to lay down our lives for the Gospel of Love.

"These Germans tell us that all past progress in the evolution of the race has been brought about by natural selection which proceeds by unchecked competition. They claim, therefore, that future progress must depend upon the same process—the survival of the fittest.

"Only the strongest must survive and propagate their kind. This requires free competition. There is no place left for the succor of the weak, or the sparing of the helpless. The first law of progress is ruthlessness. To show pity, to seek to heal or restore would be to lapse into weak sentimentality.

"Such a doctrine makes chivalry a farce, the noble army of martyrs a deluded crowd of fools and our Lord Himself the arch enemy of the progress of humanity. Oh, why will men attempt to throw out of the door of the mind, truths which came in through the window of the heart? This German rationalism would rob us of all human feeling and make us cruel.

"Suppose all the arguments of philosophy, all the facts of science, all the authority of kings, the whole flood of public sentiment, yes, and the wisdom of the world should try to sweep away mercy and pity, would we yield them up? Never.

"Our hearts tell us that they are right and good. God has revealed His own nature in the Incarnate Son as merciful. He has declared His Almighty power chiefly in showing pity. The inner voice of the Spirit tells us that we must cling to charity as life's best gift. 'Everyone that loveth is born of God and knoweth God.' Therefore, we are prepared to take our stand with Jesus Christ for pity and mercy. We are ready to suffer, to die, if we must. 'For we are persuaded that neither death nor life, nor angels nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.'"

Why is the Church Vital to Us?

RUTH JAGO

No one will question that the Church is vital. If we go back to the earliest days of the Church, the Apostles, and then down through the ages,—Ignatius, Polycarp, Boniface, Thomas a' Becket and Bishop Cranmer and a great company of the faithful show that the love of Jesus is stronger than the fear of pain or death.

Perhaps one of the most important reasons why the Church is vital is that in the Church there is Fellowship. Here all hold a common Faith and all own Jesus as Lord. This Faith is a certain Faith. Outside the Church is much vagueness, haziness, doubt and denial. Within the Church there is the Catholic Faith, certain and sure, revealed by the Lord Himself in the Word of God, interpreted by the Catholic creeds and attested by the consensus of Christendom. The Church, the pillar and ground of truth, is the interpreter of the Bible.

The channels of grace in the Church are the sacraments. To share the vitality of the Church we must abide in Christ and He in us. This is the purpose of the sacraments. The two "generally necessary to salvation" are Baptism and the Supper of the Lord. Baptism is the first essential to the Christian life. In this sacrament we "put on Christ." It starts us on the one way. At Pentecost men were bidden to "arise and be baptized."

The other of the two greater sacraments is the "Supper of the Lord" or the "Holy Communion." The more often we receive the Holy Communion worthily the more we share the mind of Christ.

If we have found within the Church the spiritual privilege of Christian fellowship, if we have found the true faith, if we have found in the sacraments the very means of grace by which we partake of the life of God, then we know why the Church is vital to us.

And we do find all these precious things in our own Church. Therefore, let us appreciate our own privileges here in Grace Church and serve faithfully with the strength God gives us.

To the Worshippers of Buddha

Your God can't send the thunderbolts,
  Nor the lightning flashes seen;
But only sit on the temple floor,
  So solemn and serene.

He cannot send the raindrops,
  The rain that wets the soil;
The rain that makes the rice grow
  And rewards the farmer's toil.

My God can send all of these,
  And all things else beside;
Your God is only known in the East,
  My God the whole world wide.

Do Your "Bit"

Every one is surely anxious to be doing something in aid of the country in this emergency, but many of us are at a loss to know where we can make our efforts most effective. The Church has provided for just this difficulty, by the organization of the "City Mission War Emergency Bureau," telephone, Lombard 1824. The Bishop and the Social Service Commission have asked the Philadelphia Protestant Episcopal City Mission to install a Bureau of Information, Organization and Distribution for the use of churches, social organizations and private individuals during the war. It is important that churches and parishes, especially, make use of this Bureau for such work, in order to focus the church's available resources so as to be of the utmost community value. Every man, woman and child in the Parish ought to see that they are at some definite patriotic work,—just the work which they with their talents and conditions can best do. If they are not certain what that work ought to be, here is the way to find out. DO IT NOW.

A Letter from the Rector

[If any of the people of Grace Parish have had doubts as to the expediency of our beloved Rector's joining himself to our Country's forces, it is thought that the following will dispel the last lingering one of them. He has opened our eyes to the vision of service as he sees it.—Editor Parish News.]

From the first startling note of reveille to the dying echoes of taps, there is not a dull moment in the barracks of the Nineteenth Regiment of Engineers.

The men are in earnest, and are making rapid progress in their military training. The officers are of high grade,—delightful men to be associated with and keen for their tasks. A spirit of eagerness for service in France pervades the whole regiment. Since July first I have been acting chaplain, and my experience has convinced me of the rich opportunity before me.

We have had regular services at 10 o'clock on Sunday mornings and, beginning July 15th, an early celebration. The attendance has not been large. Men have "liberty" Sundays and scatter to their homes far and near.

The chief opportunity for spiritual influence has been personal.

One boy stops me to say he is homesick. We sit down for a chat, and in a few moments he has told the story of his wild youth; his resolution at the time of enlistment to begin anew and live a Christian life; his "auricular confession" to his mother before saying farewell; his present struggle and great determination to "make good."

Another fellow who has found military life too severe, and is just getting on his feet again after a painful sickness, has been made very thoughtful. He timidly approaches to ask if I can arrange for his confirmation before we sail. Intellectual doubts have caused long delay, but now the doubts are gone, he feels strongly the need of the Holy Communion. He must be prepared for death.

Only last Wednesday I presented one of the commissioned officers for confirmation.

These are only random cases. Men of all communions, including Roman Catholics, Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists and Friends have shown a desire for serious conversation regarding the religious life.

I foresee an unbounded opportunity for Christian influence as we are about to set sail for France. If the men are responsive now, what will they be later? The time is coming when the need of religion will be infinitely more real to many of these light-hearted fellows.

Already many have volunteered to help the chaplain in his work, for it is obvious that he can do little single-handed.

A large part of the chaplain's work will be to provide for the recreation of the men. Hospitable Philadelphia is mindful now of the engineers. Frequent trips, parties and entertainments are arranged. I have had three parties of 50 each this week.

We are taking along a splendid equipment for the entertainment of the men in France. This has been made possible by the generosity of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Church and the Engineers' Club. In fact, I cannot express my appreciation of the fine backing I have had, especially from the Church.

It will all count for the good of these men who have offered their service to the country. Being a shop regiment, they will have leisure evenings. They will be surrounded by innumerable and strong temptations. Every means must be used to furnish wholesome counter-attractions and to prove to the men our real interest in them.

We shall soon be off now—perhaps before the August PARISH NEWS goes to press. The movement of the troops will, of course, be shrouded in mystery. But pretty soon you will get word that the Nineteenth is safely at work "somewhere in France." Keep us in your prayers.

Yours in Jesus Christ Our Lord,

A Word of Thanks

May I express, through the PARISH NEWS, my sincere gratitude to the members of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild, and also of the Church School, for their generous and thoughtful contributions to my equipment as chaplain.

These gifts have a value far beyond their intrinsic worth, because of the real friendship which they represent. I feel that I am very deeply indebted to the people of Grace Church for their interest and help at this time.

Special mention should be made also of the work of the Altar Guild in providing a beautiful set of linen for my new Chaplain's Communion set.

The Twilight Service

Through the summer, the evening service will be held in the "Close," between the Rectory and the Church (weather permitting) at 6 o'clock. The full choir will render the music.

This is an experiment which we hope will be given a full trial.

The hour is after the heat of the day is over, and the beauty of our evensong seems to be enhanced by the out-of-door setting.

The time may interfere with the usual arrangements of some families for the evening meal; they might substitute another hour, and invite their friends to come with them to what promises to be a unique and popular service.

The Convocation Prayer Groups

Before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear.—Isaiah 65:24.

The organization of the prayer groups, with the enthusiastic approval of the Bishop of the Diocese, dates from the fall of 1915. During 1915-1916 there were groups in all of the six convocations, although one or two met during Lent only. Several of the groups reassembled in October, 1916, notably those of the Convocations of West Philadelphia, Chester and Germantown. During that month the intercessions were especially for the General Convention. (As many members as possible of the Germantown group joined with a parish group at Grace Church, Mt. Airy, organized for the Convention weeks.)

Saturday, from 11.30 to 12 o'clock noon, had been set apart in 1915 as a time for special prayer, and those who were unable to join groups were asked to observe the half hour, at least its closing moments, in their own homes or wherever they might be. Bishop Brent writes: "Noon-tide is intercession time, not exclusively but fittingly. At that moment Christ entered into the most mysterious and unfathomable recesses of the Atonement. It is a natural resting spot, too, from the business of life, wherein we may exchange outer for inner activities, disciplining self-interest by praying for others and their interests."

The selection of the day met with criticism here and there, but would it be possible to fix upon a day convenient for everyone? Saturday seems to have advantages. One is that it immediately precedes Sunday. Also it is a day seldom selected for meetings, and one on which teachers and all women employed on other week-days are free to avail themselves of this opportunity and privilege. So much in vindication of the day! The object of the prayer group is, of course, that gradually there may come to be more and more united and simultaneous praying on the part of women throughout the Diocese, and the general plan is service, by intercession widely loving and all-embracing, but that each group shall be especially interested in and prayerful about the missionary work of its own convocation.

The prayer group of the Convocation of Germantown was the first to organize, on Saturday, November 13, 1915. Its meetings are held in the Girls' Friendly room of S. Luke's Parish House, and when, on the 30th of June, the members shall separate for the summer, they will have met together on sixty Saturdays, precious, peaceful half hours of fellowship in prayer and praise! The ideal for this group is that all of the twelve churches of Germantown and vicinity shall be represented. There have been this season nine members representing seven churches. Since the organization of the group in 1915 we have lost three members only, and those by removal from the city. There is no obligation to be present at every meeting.

Prayer groups seem to grow slowly, and yet, when we stop to think seriously about them, there comes the question: "Why is it?" Why are not women eager to do the most important thing in life, and why do they not remember the special promise to "common prayer?" At this awful and heart-rending time in the history of the world, what more important, in the cause of preparedness, than the call to prayer—prayer for those who serve in the mission fields of the Church, and prayer for those who serve on the battlefields of Europe; prayer for those who suffer here at home, and prayer for those who suffer across the seas, and prayers for ourselves that we may "be strong and of a good courage?" Oh, the pity of it that so many women say: "I have not time"—"I am too busy!"

"The weary ones had rest, the sick had joy
that day
And wondered how.
The ploughman, singing at his work, had prayed,
'God help them now.'
Alone in foreign lands they wondered how
Their feeble word had power.
At home the Christians, two or three, had met
To pray an hour.
So we are always wondering, wondering
long,
Because we do not see
Someone, unknown perhaps, and far away,
On bended knee." M. C. S. N.

(For further information in regard to the prayer group of the Convocation of Germantown, apply to the Secretary and Treasurer, Miss F. D. Abbot, 6115 Main Street, Germantown.)

The Church Hut at League Island

Books and magazines—and especially victrola records—are wanted for the Church Hut at League Island. The work which the diocese is doing there seems deeply appreciated, if one can judge by the numbers who use the facilities offered. On a recent visit there must have been 1,000 sailors and marines in the huge tent. We hope that many will make real sacrifices in supplying victrola records—not old and used up specimens, but such as you are reluctant to part with, because you care for them. Most of us have had little chance for sacrifice so far, let us not miss any chance that comes within our power.

Patriotic Sunday

Grace Church lived up to its traditions in the celebration of "Patriotic Sunday," July 1, 1917. The congregations were large, devout and responsive to the nation-wide call of President Wilson, who wishes everybody to be impressed with the aims and purposes of the United States in the war "to make the world safe for democracy."

The sermon at the morning service by the Rev. Frederic Gardiner, Priest-in-Charge, dealt broadly with this topic.

The popular feature of the day, arranged by Dr. Gardiner, was the afternoon service for the Church School on the "Close," between the Rectory and the Church. This service was attended by many friends of the Parish and by former parishioners as well as by our own people. Important factors of the occasion were the offering for the American Red Cross, and the opportunity offered for the young people to enroll in that organization.

A detachment of marines from the Philadelphia Navy Yard were in attendance, and later were entertained by members of the Parish at supper.

In view of present exigencies, it was a thrilling moment when our own Troop 67, Boy Scouts, backed by the marines, the congregation standing, stood at attention before the colors as the navy bugler sounded the salute.

Of course, our beloved Rector couldn't stay away with so much going on; so he appeared upon the scene from the Nineteenth Regiment barracks, and took part in the services. It was well he came. A surprise awaited him. Just before the recessional hymn, Mr. S. Mendelson Meehan, on behalf of the Church School, in a few well-chosen words, presented him with a handsome leathern pocket case of photographs of the Rector's family.

There was also presented to Mr. Cline, a sum of money to be applied to the purchase of his equipment in the foreign field.

Grace Church Children and the Red Cross

Following an earnest appeal by Dr. Gardiner and the Rector, the children of Grace Parish have formed an auxiliary to the Mount Airy Red Cross, the headquarters of which is in the Parish House.

While the mothers are sewing busily upstairs on pajamas, hospital shirts, bandages and surgical dressings, the children meet in the infant school room and wield their shiny little scissors in aid of our brave soldiers.

The smallest boys and girls cut muslin, gauze and flannel into tiny bits, which are used to stuff fracture pillows. When they get tired, a run on the Church lawn is in order.

The older girls pick okum for pads and pillows and do the work very capably. Some of the older ones assist in the main workroom with sewing and bandage making. Many of the young ladies of the Parish are active in all Red Cross work.

There were about a dozen children present at the first meeting. Twice that many were present at the second.

Will not the mothers of the Parish realize that the children's assistance is not only valuable, but that the training in unselfishness and patriotism is worth much? Whether they enroll or not (the membership is $1, just as for adults), all children are welcome. They must bring their own scissors; sharp ones, of medium size.

Let the children do their bit! Friday mornings at 9.30!

The Spread of the Church in Alaska

ELEANOR MATLACK.

The first of our possessions in size and importance is Alaska. This vast land is almost one-fifth of our territory and yet over much of its area Christ's message has never been spread.

Missionary work in Alaska practically began with its discovery. In 1793 the Russo-Greek Church sent its first missionary to what was then known as Russian America, and churches, schools and hospitals were founded on behalf of the natives. This work was maintained for many years through the Russian Government.

The Church of England first reached Alaska about 1838 and established the work at Fort Yukon and Fort Adams.

In 1867 the United States purchased Alaska, paying $7,200,000. People laughed at the purchase of polar bears and icebergs, but in less than two years Alaska had paid for itself more than twice over through furs and fisheries. After the transfer of the territory to the United States the Presbyterians were first to enter the new field. Other Christian bodies later took up the work and Alaska was divided among the several missionary boards. The part allotted to our Church was the Yukon Valley, where the chief part of its work has since been, sending the Rev. Mr. Parker as its first missionary. The first mission station was established at Anvik, and later stations were planted at Point Hope and Tananna. Many more missionaries began coming in the years following.

When gold was discovered in the Klondike in 1898 a great rush followed like the one to California, fifty years before. Every steamboat on the Pacific was pressed into service and carried struggling crowds toward the golden north. Many died from cold and hunger, but mining camps and towns sprang up. In time the transportation of necessities, and the organization of life became systematized. Today the gold diggings in Alaska, like many other employments, offer good pay for hard work, but no miraculous fortunes.

In these mining towns there was great need of the ministry of the Church. Arch-Deacon Stuck was one of the first men to respond to the call. He conducted Church services in a little cabin, and helped the miners and native Indians in many ways. He was the first white man to reach the top of Mt. McKinley.

But the most wonderful hero of Alaska is Peter Trimble Rowe, the present missionary Bishop, having been sent out in 1895. A great problem confronted him; with few helpers he must minister not only to natives but to gold seekers also. Practically no railroads even now net the surface of Alaska. A few steamboats ply upon its rivers in summer, but dog-sleds and snow-shoes are its only means of communication in winter.

Nothing daunted Bishop Rowe and he set to work with a will. From one side of Alaska to the other he travels each year on foot, sled or boat. Baptizing, confirming and administering the sacrament which many of the natives receive but once a year.

It takes the Bishop five weeks to prepare for his long journeys. He must be in perfect physical condition, to maintain which he practices running, mountain climbing, rope skipping and swimming in icy cold water. He must also train the dogs for the sleds and prepare supplies for the many months that he will be on the march.

Picture the journey! Two men and a team of half savage Eskimo dogs that must be constantly watched that they do not attack each other or their masters; that they do not freeze or sicken or become snow-blinded. There are hundreds of miles of snowy trackless waste, icy mountains and howling wolves. Unfriendly tribes of Indians and the fight to keep from freezing and starving on the lonely marches. At the Indian villages and scattered camps are warm welcomes, the hunger for the word of God and the sacraments of the Church that fully repay the Hero-Bishop for his trials. Grace Church is very proud and happy to have a former parishioner, Deaconess Nuneviller, in the mission field of Alaska. She is now on her way to Fort Yukon, where she will nurse in one of the Church's hospitals. Shall we not remember her in our prayers and offerings as she takes our place to "carry the cup of cold water" in His name?

The following prayers are authorized for use in the Diocese of Pennsylvania during the time of war.

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop.

For All in Authority

Let us pray for the President and for all in authority, that God may grant unto them at this time special gifts of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and strength, that upholding what is right and following what is true they may obey God's holy will and fulfil His divine purpose.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God most high, Who alone rulest in the kingdoms of men, grant, we beseech Thee, the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit to Thy servant, Woodrow Wilson, our President, the members of his cabinet and of the Congress. Endue them with prudence, fortitude, temperance, justice and the spirit of a sound mind, that guided by eternal truth and right they may labor faithfully for the safety, honor and welfare of our country and the advancement of Thy kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Subscribe for the Parish News

Salvation is free; so is the Parish News, but inasmuch as it is customary to pay the minister, the sexton, the gas man, the coal dealer and to provide funds for taxes, water rents, insurance and sundry incidentals to have the gospel preached to us in our parish Church, why is it that there are so few who are disposed to give 50 cents a year for the parish paper? Isn't it fair to say that the average family takes a Sunday newspaper, and a morning and an afternoon paper?

If so, the newspaper account would look something like this:

52 Sunday papers at 5 cents .....$ 2.60
626 week-day papers at 2 cents.... 12.52

Newspapers per year $15.12

If we can stand that, we ought to be able to spend 3 1-3 per cent more and help out with the expense of publishing and mailing the Parish News. As it is, the subscriptions and advertisements do not make both ends meet by something like $150 a year.

Duplex Envelope System

All members of the Parish are urged to avail themselves of the Duplex Envelope System as a regular method of contributing toward Missions and Church support. For pledge cards and envelopes, please address the Accounting Warden.

The Rector's Mission

In the dark hours of the early morning of Thursday, August 9th, the Nineteenth Regiment of Engineers marched from their barracks, and entrained at the railroad yards, Thirtieth and Market Streets, for a destination known only to the Federal authorities and the superior regimental officers. Our Rector, as Chaplain, long awaiting the summons to foreign service, accompanied them.

He was present at the Twilight Service at Grace Church in the uniform of his office on the last Sunday in July, and at the close of the exercises, spoke to us of the call he felt to leave, for a time, his work in this parish. He told of his personal opportunties for spiritual influence; of the help he hoped he had been able to afford some homesick fellows, and those to whom the outlook seemed dark and their duties severe.

There is not the least doubt that he will ignore denominational lines, and, if his "boys" want his spiritual help or the hand of fellowship, he will be there to serve them.

The cheering fact of co-operation by his men and the officers, the municipal authorities and the railroad people, were of the greatest possible encouragement, he said.

When we hear from him again, it will probably be from "somewhere in France," for he has promised to send letters for publication in the Parish News.

May God prosper him in his mission and bring him back home in due time and in safety.

Mount Airy Red Cross Entertains Troops

On Tuesday, August 14th, one hundred and twenty-five men of the U. S. Army Ambulance Corps were entertained by the Mount Airy Red Cross, at the residence of Mrs. Samuel Dreher Matlack, 328 E. Mt. Airy Avenue.

The men had come from the Army Camp at Allentown for intensive training at Camp Betzwood at Port Kennedy, not far from historic Valley Forge. In that locality there is more room for ambulance maneuvers, more hills, woods and rough roads for both ambulance and stretcher drills.

From Camp Betzwood the soldiers have been taken to visit points of historical interest in, and around, Philadelphia. It was while returning from a hike to Philadelphia, that Mount Airy was honored by an hour's visit. The men were under the command of Lieut. Wilfred B. Fetterman, well known and loved in Mount Airy as one of its leading physicians.

Mrs. H. H. Burrell and Mrs. Matlack received the men, who then threw themselves on the grass to rest under the old trees. Young girls of the Red Cross passed among them with cigarettes, while ice cream, delicious home-made cakes, fruit punch and other cool drinks were being served. How they seemed to enjoy it and the friendly talk that went with it!

Afterward there was dancing on the lawn to the music of a victrola; photographs were taken and songs were sung as only college boys can sing—"Kaiser Bill," "Over There" and finally and dramatically, "Good-night Ladies, We're Going to Leave You Now."

There were many young physicians among the men, and many colleges represented by large groups. Some came from as far away as California. They were as fine and manly a lot as can be found anywhere; serious, yet happy, clear of eye and high of purpose—all anxious to get to France and do their bit to settle "Kaiser Bill."

God bless them, every one!

An Acknowledgment

The following letter from the Rector was received by the President of the Woman's Auxiliary and Guild, the day the Nineteenth Engineers and their Chaplain left Philadelphia for France:

MY DEAR MRS. GEORGE:

Will you please convey to the women of the Guild my sincere gratitude for their generous gift? It was perfectly lovely of you all.

I have received no orders as to the use to which the money is to be put, so I have converted it into gold and shall carry it as an emergency reserve, hoping that I shall not have to disturb it while abroad.

Gold is suggestive of the donors. If ever a group of women could be characterized as "pure gold," it is the women of Grace Church. The very thought of them will always be a tonic and an inspiration. It will make me a better Chaplain and a manlier man.

Gratefully and affectionately,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

The Barracks, 19th Engineers,
August 8, 1917.

Auxiliary No. 8, Mt. Airy American Red Cross

The Auxiliary has enrolled 1,116 members. Five classes in first aid have been graduated. The donation to the recent Campaign Fund was $1,353.80. The bazaar, held June 15th, netted sufficient funds for the purchase of an ambulance, equipped with four litters, extra tires, tubes, etc. This ambulance has been presented to the University of Pennsylvania, Base Hospital No. 20.

The following boxes, filled according to Red Cross specifications, have been completed by the Auxiliary:

Eighteen No. 1 boxes—each box containing 540 surgical dressings; 8 No. 2 boxes—each box containing 9 equipments; 3 No. 4 boxes—each box containing 1,080 muslin bandages.

The equipment referred to in No. 2 box consists of the following:

Sheets	6
Pillow cases	4
Pajamas	3	suits
Hospital bed shirts	4
Convalescent gown	1
Socks	4	pairs
Bed socks	2	pairs
Bath towels	2
Face towels	4
Wash cloths	3
Slippers	1	pair
Hot-water or ice-bag covers	2

At a recent special call for surgical dressing for the Navy, the Auxiliary made 5,300 gauze sponges, which was over one-quarter of the quota of 20,000 sponges required from the Southeastern Chapter.

At the present time, boxes containing the following articles are well under way: gauze dressings, muslin bandages, fracture pillows, oakum pads, ambulance pillows, pajamas, convalescent robes and hospital bed shirts.

There has been an urgent plea from headquarters for knitted garments. The Auxiliary will furnish wool to anyone desiring to knit scarfs, sleeveless jackets, helmets, wristlets or stockings. The workroom at Grace Church is open Wednesday and Friday mornings, where wool and directions may be obtained.

Donations of odd lengths of wool will be gladly received. The Red Cross workers at the Leamy Home have already made three afghans, and are willing to continue this work as long as the wool is forthcoming.

The children continue interested in their Red Cross work, although August has naturally brought some diminution in attendance.

The work is practically the same; the cutting of bits of material with which to stuff fracture pillows, and the picking of oakum for ambulance pillows. This for the little ones; the older girls sewing and working on surgical dressings.

A new method of membership has been devised for the smaller children, whereby four may unite to pay the dollar dues under one name, although all four receive enrollment cards of some sort. It is hoped that more children will enroll in the fall, when the working hours will undoubtedly be changed for those who attend school.

Our "United Offering Nurse"

The following letter from Miss Nuneviller was written from a point on the Yukon River, nearly a thousand miles from its mouth, and just within the Arctic Circle:

S. Stephen's Hospital,
Fort Yukon, Alaska,
July 11, 1917.

MY DEAR MRS. NORTH:

I cannot tell you how much I appreciated the PARISH NEWS received last week. One certainly is glad to see anything that comes from home to this far-north country.

There are about three hundred and fifty natives here at Fort Yukon and twenty white people; the nearest village is eighty or ninety miles distant. Fort Yukon is upon an Indian reservation, which I think is the largest in Alaska. Our establishment, S. Stephens, is the only hospital under the discipline of our Church on the whole Yukon River, and is the only institution of the kind for the natives in the interior. So you see, natives come for hundreds of miles to us. The work is most interesting, and I do love the people so. When we came here, we found that the river had washed in so far this past year, that it became necessary to tear down the mission building. Thereupon, the doctor and his family moved over and took several rooms at the hospital. Archdeacon Stuck has his headquarters here, so he makes another addition. The cook sleeps in a tent, and a male helper in the basement. You can see that we are all crowded together trying to do our work.

Archdeacon Stuck has started a building fund, and hopes soon to have enough to begin the foundations for the new mission building, and to finish a well, which is wanted to supply running water for the hospital this winter. At present every drop of water we use has to be carried a hundred yards from the river, and all waste from the wards has to be carried to the river and disposed of.

Of course, this is not so very bad now, but when it is fifty or sixty below zero it will not be pleasant!

I shall send you a picture of the hospital as soon as we can get a good one.

Miss Wells joins me in sending love.

Most sincerely yours,

BEATRICE NUNEVILLER.

Churchmen's Dinner

One of the major events of the year will be a great gathering of churchmen at a dinner to be held in the Academy of Music, Wednesday evening, October 10th.

This marks the opening of the Thirty-second Annual Convention of the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew. Churchmen from all over the United States, many of them leaders in the life of the Church, will be present.

George Wharton Pepper will be toastmaster. Bishop Williams, of Michigan, a prelate well known and revered in the Diocese of Pennsylvania, and John Stewart Bryan, Esq., a prominent churchman, of Richmond, Va., will be the chief speakers. Their subject, "The Investment of a Life."

Too much cannot be said to emphasize two points; first, that the function is not for Brotherhood members alone, but for all churchmen. The topic is of general interest; and, second, that it will be an occasion of tremendous interest. There will be a good dinner, good company, inspiring speakers, and something long to be remembered.

Dinner tickets, $1.50, must be engaged at once, as even with the big Academy space, it will be filled soon. Messrs. Meehan, Walton or Allsop will receive applications.

To Entertain Visiting Churchmen

A very large number of the clergy and laity from all parts of the country will be drawn to Philadelphia, October 10th to 14th, to attend the Thirty-second Annual Convention of the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew.

The fact that the Church in Philadelphia bore such an intimate part in the early life of our country, makes those in charge of the arrangements hope for an unusually large attendance this year.

To provide accommodations for these visitors from the Church-at-large, much co-operation is needed.

Members of Grace Church Parish will be glad to help, and these are the opportunities.

First—Board and lodging at a price.

Second—Entertainment of a clergyman.

Third—Entertainment of a boy.

Will those who can do one of these three things kindly notify Messrs. Meehan or Walton at once, as the opportunities must be scheduled soon.

Notes

The men of the Way will meet at 9.30 in the Tower Room every Sunday morning until further notice.

The Rev. Frederic Gardiner, L. H. D., who will be in charge of Grace Church during the summer months, resides at 606 Westview Street, Germantown. He holds himself in readiness for pastoral ministrations. In case of sickness or other need he may be reached by 'phone, Germantown 3546.

The Church Periodical Club

Requests have been forwarded to the Church Periodical Club for magazines that will be sent regularly to our army in France.

Are there not more of the members of Grace Church who subscribe to magazines who will gladly forward them regularly at domestic postage rates?

Please send word to the Librarian the names of the magazines you wish to pass on. Surely there are many who would like to give cheer to the Nineteenth Regiment.

The Observer

Are we "reverting to type?" Is the spirit of "the caveman" becoming manifest in men of today? Fighting in the open with galloping chargers, flying colors, gleaming swords, columns at the double quick and glorious victory or death on the field of battle is what we were brought up to understand by our school histories was the way that self-respecting nations fought.

And then again, recall the imperishable fame of the naval heroes of ages past, who attended to their grim tasks in full daylight on the bounding billows.

Now, armies dig themselves into the ground, and from trenches snipe at the foe or dash out under curtains of fire and by the light of star shells to their deadly work in the small hours of darkness. Aerial contests thousands of feet in the sky are of such common occurrence as to demand only passing notice.

The same barbarous practices are followed upon the sea. The submarine assassins in comparative safety are launching their torpedoes with ruthless and appalling effect upon defenseless vessels.

General Sherman had a name for "war," as he saw it; we wonder what he would call it if he could view it today!

Are we assimilating this sort of thing? Are we becoming brutalized? Is the ferocious madness of modern warfare dulling the perceptions of Man? Is not his morale lowered by the very existence of these things?

Anyone who knows how restless children usually become about four o'clock of a Sunday afternoon, will appreciate a novel manner of entertaining them, of which a friend—a school ma'am—writes us as follows:

"Today has been an exciting one to me. I had caused it to be noised abroad in this summer village of thirty houses that I would tell the little children Bible stories Sunday afternoons. Thirteen youngsters appeared on my lawn, ranging in age from two and a half to eleven years old.

"Noah was the hero of the day, and when the story was finished, I suggested that we play it. In the end we built the Ark—three stories high—with a kitchen table, small chairs, old portieres, etc., and Noah and his three sons mounted to the third floor.

"There were no wives to accompany these gentlemen, for the others all considered it preferable to be an animal to a wife!

"There was no lack of interest in the story, nor of enthusiasm in the play. Next Sunday we are going to hear about Joseph, and I expect keen rivalry as to who shall wear the 'coat of many colors' in the play."

Our National Anthem

In these days of patriotic tension as we are entering the Great War, we feel the need, as perhaps never before in our generation, of an official national anthem.

By "official" I mean one that has been adopted by United States Congress and holds the position, therefore, undisputedly. We have no official national anthem in this sense. "The Star-Spangled Banner" has never been adopted by Congress. It has almost become the accepted national anthem by virtue of popular selection and by order of the Army and Navy Departments. The most important requirements of a national anthem are two-fold. First, the words should be national in character, and second, the air should be vocally possible for the average voice. The words of "Star-Spangled Banner," while beautiful in many respects, are not national, either in concept or expression. They commemorate an incident in the War of 1812—the bombardment of Fort McHenry. The air although inspiring for a brass band, is, as everyone knows, a dismal failure vocally, owing to its wide range. A crowd singing it starts lustily enough, but when it reaches, "And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air," the volume falls off, until the closing lines are reached. This tune was, moreover, originally an old British drinking song, which in the face of the present wave of prohibition makes it even more undesirable for a national anthem.

The words of "America" are wholly national. They were written by the Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, an American, in 1832, and reverberate with the lofty sentiments of freedom and liberty—those foundation principles upon which this government stands. They speak of the love of our country and petition the praise and protection of the Author of Liberty. The air, so familiar to all, and within the range of every voice, is that of "God Save the King," which was evolved from an earlier form, authorities assigning it variously. The balance of evidence, however, is in favor of Henry Carey, an English poet, dramatist and musician, best known, perhaps, as the author of the ballad, "Sally in Our Alley." His son positively claimed the composition of the tune for his father, shortly after his death.

The question is sometimes asked, "What will become of 'My Country 'Tis of Thee' in an international medley?" Again this sameness of tune would be an advantage, for it would afford us protection. Nothing is more lacking in respect than to medley a national anthem. It is notoriously bad taste. If an international medley is played, however, Britain will always be represented by "God Save the King." When the orchestra reaches the U. S., in order to avoid repetition it will play one of our popular national songs, just as it does for Germany and the others. And so our national anthem would be protected from at least being medlied internationally. It should never be tolerated in a medley of any sort. The Army and Navy Departments have forbidden the practice in regard to "The Star-Spangled Banner," but it is done nevertheless.

If audiences would register their distaste for such lack of respect, orchestras would soon become educated to a better sense of propriety.

If you agree with me, please use your influence toward swaying the popular opinion for the adoption of "America." Meanwhile have it sung instead of "Star-Spangled Banner" whenever the national anthem is scheduled. But whichever is to be sung, give it first place. Preface, never finish a program with it, and register a protest for either being medlied.

Let us hope for and work for the adoption by Congress of a national anthem, and let that anthem be "America."

IN MEMORIAM

Entered into rest, August 20, 1917, Emeline Willis Henderson, a resident of the Leamy Home for about twelve years. Mrs. Henderson transferred her Church membership from St. James, Twenty-second and Walnut Streets, to Grace Church, Mount Airy.

Always loyal to her Church, she loved all its services, and was interested in all its organizations. Cheerful, gentle and sympathetic in all her ways, her going has left a void in many hearts in the Home and at Grace Church. In the Woman's Auxiliary her presence will be sadly missed. Her funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Gardiner. The interment was in West Laurel Hill.

A Letter from Our Rector

SUNDAY ON SHIPBOARD

Whether on land or sea our Sundays always begin with the Blessed Sacrament. This day I had asked a clergyman from Ohio, who was going over to work among the German prisoners in England under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., to be celebrant. The deck steward had arranged an altar for us in the smoke room. He even had two bouquets of flowers and a picture of the Crucifixion. It was a reverent and significant service, with appropriate prayers. A group of officers and enlisted men appreciated the privilege of beginning the day with the Lord.

When the service began, several officers were asleep on the couches about the room. But in the reading of the Epistle, at the words, "and some are fallen asleep," these men roused themselves and participated in the service.

About ten o'clock the band of the 19th Regiment began to play on the aft deck. The boys gathered about by the hundred, perching on rafts, upper decks and rigging.

Soon the chaplain mounted the platform where the steward had placed a pulpit covered with the Union Jack and the Stars and Stripes. Leaflets were distributed, and all took part in the unique open air service.

The very situation was a sermon. The ocean spoke of eternity, the ship of the Church, the life preservers, which every man wore,—for we were in the danger zone,—spoke of salvation. The men were reminded that the home friends were praying for them,—they too must pray and they did. The clergyman from Ohio preached a stirring sermon. The music, led by the band, was hearty. The regimental quartet sang "Lead, Kindly Light." It was fine. And the whole service was being duplicated on the forward deck, where a clergyman from Kentucky conducted a service for the 18th Regiment.

In the afternoon I had fourteen of the boys for an hour of Bible study,—then came a short service in the ship's hospital.

At six o'clock we had a special service for officers in the smoke room, which proved a great success.

That Sunday was our first day in the danger zone—we had a few minor sensations. Our cruiser convoy was investigating a boat which appeared to be running away. Finally the cruiser got the message that she was fleeing from a submarine. The cruiser signalled the rest of our flotilla to that effect. Immediately we began to zig-zag and manœuvre,—but it was only a floating buoy whch had gone adrift. It did look like a periscope might look,—but that was the nearest we got to a submarine,—so far as we know.

The Sundays on board offered a special opportunity for the chaplain—on land men scatter. However, since our arrival in France things are developing. I shall write you later about Sundays in camp.

Meanwhile, how are my dear friends in Grace Church? I trust you are all faithful in your prayers. These men need their help more than I can tell you. I am so glad America is fully aroused to the meaning of this war. A German prisoner said to one of our boys the other day, "You have come too late." Have we?

Affectionately yours,
Thomas S. Cline.

The Red Cross, and How Each Parishioner Can Do His Bit

The boys in khaki and the boys in blue have enlisted to serve their country and to serve us. It is little enough for the rest of us to provide for their care when wounded. And the sooner every man, woman and child in this country enlists in some form of service, the sooner will this war be won.

Joining the Red Cross is enlisting. Working in the Red Cross, regularly and faithfully, is being true to your country and your flag. If you have a boy at the front, or preparing for service, you will need no urging to work for his comfort. To those who have given no sons; can you rest without giving service? And how much service do you give? Two hours a week, if it suits you? None, if some other duty or pleasure chances to come at the same time?

The boys at the front give all—time, comfort, money, life—100 per cent. There are 168 hours in a week. If you give even three to Red Cross work, it is not quite 2 per cent of your time. Rather shameful, is it not? There are men and women giving seven days a week to this work; others giving part of every day; still others at least half their time, or every available minute. What are you doing?

What are the parishioners of Grace Church contributing in prayers, time and money? How many have given of any of these till they actually felt three things—the responsibility, the great privilege, the strain?

You are needed—and you—and you. There is something for each one to do, and an urgent call from headquarters for all the work and money and interest we can give. The work room in our own Parish House is open every Wednesday and Friday. We wish that more women would bring their lunch and stay all day. Can the household not be rearranged so that these days are free for this urgent work? Only sickness or the care of small children should interfere with Red Cross days. There are pajamas and hospital night-shirts to make, and competent women in charge to instruct beginners. There are muslin bandages, slings, T binders, four-tailed, and others. The making of surgical dressings of gauze is under careful heads who are ready to show newcomers how to work. Pounds and pounds of wool are awaiting your needles, to be made into sleeveless sweaters, helmets, mufflers, wristlets and socks. Cold weather is not far off. The need for this woolen stuff is most urgent. Shall our boys overseas and at home in the cantonments go cold for lack of our devotion?

Small ambulance pillows, each with two neat, white cases, are made and filled with clean rag clippings. These rags we now have "shoddied" or ravelled into a soft, fluffy mass that will not mat easily. And we need clean rags, both white and colored (kept separate)—all you can send to the Parish House.

We also need old counterpanes and Turkish towels. Bits of these are used to cover one side of the large oakum pads used on battlefields and in the ambulances for covering fresh wounds. The oakum sterilizes and also checks bleeding. Every soldier should be provided with one for immediate use, until his wounds can receive attention. And there are not enough of these life-saving pads. Will you not come and make some for our boys?

Then, there is the Refreshment or Commissary Department. Last week, Mt. Airy Auxiliary fed 800 troops passing through Philadelphia—a day's strenuous work for our women. We need money to keep this work going.

Comfort bags or housewives are to be made and filled with thread, buttons, shoestrings, writing materials, knitted articles, little books and many other trifles. Just now we are busy with Christmas kits or packages. Any little pieces of gay cretonne or gingham made into bags, 10 x 13 inches, and sent filled or unfilled to the work rooms will help greatly. Also money for tobacco, jam, chocolate, or for articles with which to fill these bags. The Overseas Committee of the Emergency Aid, co-operating with the Red Cross, sends these bags and other Christmas packages to France, free of charge. While bags may not be marked with the names of individual soldiers, small packages may. This is a safe way of forwarding. The request came for October 1st. There may be another shipment.

Do you realize that it takes months for packages to reach individual men at the front? Christmas gifts must be sent now to be in time. Let no friendless man feel lonely and forgotten on that day. And after they are provided for, we must see to our men in training at home. Let us forget ourselves this Christmas and give, give, give to those who are fighting for our liberty.

Are you praying for the Red Cross work? Can we not have a Red Cross Prayer Guild?

The sewing day of the Women's Auxiliary is Wednesday. Let us not neglect our Parish work, but give Wednesdays to our missionary sewing and all day Fridays to the Red Cross.

A Red Cross rally is being arranged for the evening of October 15th or 16th, in Grace Church Parish House. Every member of Grace Church Parish is invited to come and bring a friend. Come and learn what is being done, what is to be done and what you can do. There will be several good speakers.

Mount Airy Red Cross, No. 8

During the month of September the method of packing Red Cross boxes was changed. Instead of individual equipments for soldiers, each box now contains one kind of thing, done up in packages of ten or twenty as specified.

The large wooden packing boxes are now of uniform size, 33 x 24 x 22 inches. At the date of writing, September 21st, our month's work is as follows:

140 Abdominal pads.
50 Pairs pajamas.
55 Surgical night-shirts.
39 Convalescent robes.

Gauze dressings:

- Gauze pads, 4-in.—97 pkgs. (20 in each).
- Gauze sponges, 4-in.—99 pkgs. (20 in each).
- Gauze pads, 9-in.—30 pkgs. (20 in each).
- Gauze rolls, 3-yd.—8 pkgs. (10 in each).
- Gauze sponges, 2-in.—42 pkgs. (20 in each).
- Gauze rolls, 1-yd.—50 pkgs. (10 in each).

60 Fracture pillows.
120 Ambulance pillows, each with two cases.
200 Oakum pads.
140 T binders.
260 Slings.
120 Four-tail binders.

This large amount of work is possible because of the splendid help of the branch work rooms at the Presbyterian, Methodist, Roman Catholic and Flourtown Presbyterian Churches.

Mrs. Horace H. Burrell, chairman of the Mt. Airy Red Cross, is ill of nervous prostration due to overwork. Her efficient management has brought the auxiliary to its present high standing of second in the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter, both numerically and in amount of work. Her associates hope she will soon be among them again. Meanwhile, Mrs. Samuel D. Matlack is acting chairman, assisted by Mrs. Walter Willard and a very efficient Board of Directors, including the following Grace Church Parishioners: Mrs J. H. Mendel, Mrs. Wm. C. Burk, Mrs. Robt. W. Wilkinson, and Mrs. Frank H. Chapman.

The men of the Way will meet at 9.30 in the Tower Room every Sunday morning until further notice.

A Melting Pot for the Red Cross

The Mt. Airy Auxiliary, No. 8, American Red Cross, has introduced a novel plan for raising money to replenish its treasury. A large receptacle has been placed in the work room in the Parish House, into which parishioners and their friends are asked to drop any piece of old gold or silver they may have intended otherwise disposing of.

Nothing is too small to be considered, pieces of old jewelry, a thimble, a broken spoon or fork, a few links of chain; in fact, anything that has the slightest intrinsic value.

This idea of the melting pot has been utilized successfully by many charities and organizations when the raising of money was necessary, and we are confident that with the interest and co-operation of our members, a similar result will be achieved by us.

This auxiliary is one of the very few which furnishes wool free to any one desiring to knit for the soldiers or sailors, having already spent over $300 for that purpose. The purchases of wool at the current advanced prices for this free distribution and the various other required expenditures have made marked inroads in its funds, and it is asking you to help in this practical manner, not only to make such contributions personally, but also to procure from your friends any odd pieces which they may wish to dispose of when making their semi-annual house changes.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

What sort of work will be accomplished by the women of the Church this year? Shall the needs brought about by the war be made an excuse for letting missionary work go by the board; or shall each woman determine to redouble her efforts along these lines, and see to it that the soldiers of the mission fields are not neglected for the soldiers of the trenches? The women of England, who have been brought face to face with all the horrors of the war, have set a splendid example in this respect for other nations to follow. Can Americans, whose lives are running pretty much as they have been doing for years, afford to lower such a record—Americans, who, as yet, have scarcely been touched by this overseas calamity?

We are learning more and more each day about the importance of our "bit," no matter how small it may be, so it should not be hard for us to realize the value and the necessity of everything we can do toward the work of the Auxiliary. The Wednesday mornings spent sewing in our guild room bring splendid results. Cannot each woman of Grace Church determine to attend those meetings more regularly than ever before, because her help is more needed than ever before? Partly worn clothing is in great demand. Send all you have, and all you can gather from your friends. There is a use for every piece.

Work will start the first Wednesday in October on the domestic box, which will be sent this year to the Rev. Frederick S. Beattie, Goffstown, N. H. His family consists of his wife, a little girl, named Harriet, eight and a half years old, and four boys,—Frederick, aged six and a half years; John, five, Ralph, three and a half and Robert, six weeks old. There will be plenty of sewing for everyone to do.

A letter from Mr. Beattie follows, which will give some idea of the help that must be given to this missionary:

"The parish here is very small, and the people have little means. They give proportionally far beyond many, if not most, large parishes, but their fewness makes it an anxious strain just to keep out of debt. The spirit here is wonderfully good.

"The parish is what would be called an 'advanced' parish in some ways. I came here in December last. There are about sixty communicants resident, and at the early Eucharist each Sunday there are usually from ten to fifteen present, and usually half are men! If I could treble the communicants, double the salary, and multiply the Sunday School by five, it would be too near ideal conditions to be safe to think about.

"The district is practically a mission district. There are isolated church people for miles around, stranded in the hills. There is, for example, one old man who lives at a distance, who was confirmed last year, and who has lately become paralyzed, to whom I carried the Whitsunday Sacrament, and three miles from here is the large county farm and hospital, with some resident nurses and resident inmates, and transient cases all the time. The work is varied and much scattered. I get about mostly by bicycle.

"It has been very difficult to get along these last two years, with advancing prices and a family of small children. I really do not know how I do get along, except that I do somehow. I think that what we could use best, if we had to make a choice, would be bed linen and blankets, children's clothing of all kinds and a suit for myself. But there is not anything that could not be used to great advantage, as almost everything is running short, and summer is coming to an end. I shall be very grateful for any help whatever.

"Faithfully yours,

"FREDERICK S. BEATTIE."

The Woman of the Hour

Who is "the woman of the hour"? Surely she is the woman who prays and works as never before—the one who suffers silently with smiles rather than tears—the one who "seeketh not her own."

The writer has in mind a fine example—a mother who has given all of her sons (three) to the service of their country, and who, separated, for the first time, from her young daughter, has spent the entire summer within easy reach of Philadelphia, that she might devote all of her time to relief work and study. Mrs. —— is only one of hundreds and thousands of mothers, wives, sisters and friends—women of the hour! We find them not only in the large cities—the centers of activity, but everywhere. God bless them all! He alone knows what the future holds for them. Whatever it is, they will be "strong and of a good courage."

Delightful hours on the beach have passed all too quickly. We watched the sandpiper's mechanical step and the graceful dip of the sea gull, and fell under the spell of the mighty ocean; restful even in its restlessness. Out over that vast expanse of water, far beyond the horizon line, loved ones have traveled, and many more will follow, to scenes unbelievable, unthinkable. "Lost to sight, to memory dear," in very truth they are not forgotten! For proof of this—if proof were needed—one had but to step up yonder into the Music Pavilion, where there was one of the many groups of women working day after day with nimble fingers and warm—if ofttimes sad hearts.

Now the summer days have gone, and the temporary organizations of the Red Cross are disbanding—the busy workers returning to their home bases, only to go on and on with this most important labor of love. At the same time many of them will resume work along the regular lines—just as important. Nothing in Church, or hospital, or elsewhere, should be neglected. This means that every woman must do more than ever before—more than she ever dreamed that she could do. One of our dear Grace Church workers (also devoted to relief work) returning home, after a short vacation late in the summer, with "new life and refreshment," writes: "I hope to be more useful in the parish this year than last." Let us all make this our aim, and let us see to it that no department of the work suffers. A steady advance may be made if all the workers so decree.

Thus far we have emphasized the work of "the woman of the hour"; but, after all, is not the most imperative call "the call to prayer"? We never pray enough, but are we not at last beginning to realize the importance of intercession? It has been a joy to read about the prayer-circles in the Pasadena and other high schools of California, and that, in the Diocese of East Carolina, a parish branch of the Woman's Auxiliary meets every afternoon, at six o'clock in the church, for prayers, the members of the Auxiliary being responsible for the conduct of these services.

In our own diocese, and in our own Parish, we have wonderful opportunities! There are the prayers and the form of service set forth by our Bishop. There is the Saturday half-hour (11.30 to 12 o'clock noon)—the special weekday time for intercessions—whether in groups or individually. Our own Church is open for prayer and meditation, and, on Wednesdays, there are the services of Intercession and Holy Communion. Are we sufficiently mindful of all these privileges and very real helps? Why can we not have a congregation of say forty or fifty women on Wednesdays? What an inspiration it would be, and how much it would mean to the life of the Parish!

Can we really prove ourselves women of the hour if we fail to make the most of all sources of strength and power? We shall need them!

M. C. S. N.

Automobiles Wanted

On Wednesday, October 10th, which is the day preceding the opening of the Thirty-second Annual Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, it is proposed to take the visiting delegates to the Valley Forge Memorial Chapel by automobile, starting from some central point in the city.

A list of those who would be willing to lend their motors for this purpose, and include the services of a chauffeur, is being prepared. Any member of Grace Church who would like to join in this entertainment of Brotherhood guests will kindly notify some member of Grace Chapter.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew

The Thirty-second Annual Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, which meets at the Hotel Adelphia, Chestnut Street, below Thirteenth, Philadelphia, Wednesday, October 10th, to Sunday, October 14th, next, is in reality a convention of our Churchmen. Attracting so many of our Bishops and Priests and representative laymen, it marks, each year, the largest gathering of men of the Church.

The keynote of the convention will be struck at the great Churchmen's dinner on Wednesday evening. While the dinner is open to all Churchmen, only a limited number of prompt applicants for seats can now be accommodated. Cards are $1.50, and may be had from Edmund B. McCarthy, 1201 Chestnut Street.

There is very grave danger that the Church's definite work will be lost sight of and our Christian forces stampeded by pre-occupation in the war. The Brotherhood, therefore, feels that the convention should give opportunity for a definite call to the men of the Church who remain at home to the vital work of maintaining the home supply base. With this in mind, the program has been designed especially to arouse Brotherhood men and Churchmen generally to the need of conserving the normal work of the Church in the individual Parish. All men interested in the Church's welfare should make every effort to be present at the convention, and there learn of that Christian usefulness, which is the underlying theme of the five-days' program.

The Parish that fails to receive the spiritual impetus of this gathering of Churchmen by not having one or more representatives in attendance is sure to miss much of the help that will make for success in its work.

The Leper's Christmas Box

Leamy Home,
Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, Pa.,
September 17, 1917.

MISS H. RIDDELL,
Kumamoto, Kiushiu, S. Japan.

MY DEAR MISS RIDDELL:

Many residents of Mt. Airy have read with so much pleasure your letters from Japan. They promote a more vital interest in the noble work you, with the assistance of your co-workers, are accomplishing.

We take to heart the sorrows of our brothers and sisters in the far Orient. It seems we cannot adequately express our sympathy or admiration for their patience and fortitude as depicted by yourself.

Gifts upon the anniversary of our Lord's nativity are a small expression of the Christian love we entertain for them; so the ladies in the Leamy Home, of which I am a resident, have been busily employed for some weeks past in making various articles for Mrs. Jenkins' box.

It has suggested itself to us that we could give a three-fold pleasure in including among the collection a little present for yourself in appreciation of your splendid work. I say three-fold, for it gives us great pleasure to thus demonstrate our appreciation, we know also that those under your charge must, and will, be gratified thereby, and we hope that you will experience happiness in receiving our expressions of good-will and fellowship.

We will not record the many messages sent, but are leaving that as the duty of the little messenger, known the world over as the god of love, and we trust, that from his prominent position in the afghan he will prove himself a most acceptable ambassador.

With the sincerest wishes for your health, happiness and success in your work in the vineyard of Christ,

Very truly yours,
ANNE M. MILLER.

This letter pinned to a beautiful, warm, knitted couch afghan, made by Miss Miller, was sent to "The Hospital of the Resurrection of Hope," as a special gift to Miss Riddell, and, thanks to our dear friends in the Leamy Home, this year's box far surpassed any before sent to Kumamoto.

There were beautiful scarfs, nightingales, slippers, table-covers, wash-cloths, handkerchiefs, ribbons, etc. The men were not forgotten either—and dolls! Dolls for the men and the women.

The children in our neighborhood were invited in to see them, the day the box was packed, and they were most enthusiastic. One little tot was asked which one she would like, and she answered immediately, "All of them," and there were ten.

The very last article to be put in the box was a framed photograph of the interior of our own Grace Church.

The entire box was valued at nearly $200, and thanks are extended to all who helped to make it such a success.

Notes

The Organist wishes to announce that his courses in musical instruction have been resumed at the Parish House.

There are vacancies in the choir for a few boys between the ages of nine and thirteen. Also an alto is wanted.

Organ recitals will be resumed, beginning with the first Sunday in October, at twenty minutes before the hour of Evensong.

During the absence of Rev. Dr. Gardiner, in the latter part of September, services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Breed, Rev. Dr. Montgomery and Rev. John M. Chattin, of Chestnut Hill.

The Rev. John M. Chattin will be in charge of Grace Church until further notice, and holds himself in readiness for pastoral ministrations. In case of illness or other need, he may be reached by telephone, Chestnut Hill 1747. Residence, 220 East Meade Street, Chestnut Hill.

Juniors, Attention!

The first meeting of the Junior Auxiliary was held on Monday, October the 1st, at 3.30 P. M.

It is hardly necessary to urge the old members to attendance, for they are always loyal and faithful; but every girl in the Parish is a Junior, and there are many that we would like to welcome this fall as active members. Will not every girl who attends Grace Church, or the Church School, consider this a personal invitation to her to be present at our meetings? We will make all newcomers very welcome. If the girls who do not come could realize what good work we do, and what good times we have, there would not be one who would miss a single meeting in the Church year.

During the absence of our Rector in France, let us realize that we are stewards of a splendid work, and let us give him a faithful account on his return. This must be the banner year for the Juniors. There was never so much to be done, and we need every girl in the Parish. E. M.

The United Offering

This is the month for the semi-annual collection of the United Offering. The notices to contributors will go out about the tenth.

Is it not wonderful that we now have a definite and most interesting purpose in this branch of our activities? We have heard from our United Offering Missionary nurse that she is well and happy in her work. Dear friends, she is depending upon us to stand steadily behind her with our prayers and our gifts. We must not fail her!

During the past year we have lost quite a number of contributors because of deaths and transfers to other parishes. We must not look in vain for those who will make good the loss! No woman can afford to miss the joy of a share in this great offering of thanksgiving, and we appeal to all (seniors and juniors) to help realize the United Offering "ideal" for Grace Church. Reader, if you are not already a contributor, why not send your name and address to our Assistant Treasurer, Mrs. Robert J. Thompson, 124 West Mt. Pleasant Avenue? You will then receive all necessary information, and the interesting literature about the offering, and the women workers whose support it provides.

MARY C. S. NORTH,
Treasurer United Offering.

Church School Rally Day

The first Sunday in October will see the opening of the Church School. How glad shall we be to gather together once more in the great work of upbuilding and training of our future Churchmen and Churchwomen!

Every Parish event this year will be shadowed through the absence of our Rector. To his heart the work of the Church School was so dear. But this will be our inspiration for better things. We will strive to be more faithful, more sincere, more devout, more patient, more zealous. We will take pride in showing our Rector good results from our year's work. We will hearten him in his own noble work at the front when he learns that in the Parish work we, too, are not slackers.

Parents, teachers, scholars, and officers all join in a determined effort to make our school strong this year, and to accomplish splendid results.

Entertaining Visiting Churchmen

Did you notice the invitation given in the September number in relation to quarters for visitors attending the Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, October 10th to 14th?

Members of Grace Parish are asked to offer accommodations for the entertainment of a clergyman, of a boy, or offer board and lodging at a price.

Please give your name to either Mr. Walton or Mr. Meehan.

Open the Door

A knock and the voice of a friend—who does not hasten to open wide the door? The friend has not only knocked—he has called aloud. It must be something urgent.

You do not hesitate,—you cannot open the door quickly enough.

"Behold, I stand at the door, and knock; if any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him and he with me."

Among those who have heard the Voice, and have followed the khaki-clad heroes gone over the seas to curb the war-crazed enemies of civilization, are the nurses, untiringly attending the sick and wounded—the chaplains who carry the Church with them, finding diversions for the well, comforting the wounded, ministering to the dying, and burying the dead; the fearless surgeons and ambulance drivers literally snatching the helpless from the very jaws of death.

All of these have listened to the Voice calling them, and with open heart and mind have gone forth to save.

Neither youth, age nor state of health is a bar to service, even if it cannot be performed within sound of the guns. Many are the activities for relief—manifold are the great and little things to be done on this side of the seas. At the very least, there can be cultivated a state of mind, to cheer and support the absent—helping them by assuming their burdens here, and encouraging them by being of one mind with them in obeying the Voice calling to service and sacrifice.

RED CROSS RALLY

A Red Cross Rally will be held by Mount Airy Auxiliary, No. 8, in Grace Church Parish House, on October 15 or 16. The exact date and speakers will be announced from the pulpit. Will not every member of the Parish consider it a personal duty and privilege to attend?

The Rector's Letter

In a former letter I described a Sunday on the "restless sea." Let me tell you now of a typical Sunday in a Rest Camp in France. I would not give you the impression that every day is Sunday over here. Quite the reverse. And Sunday, from the Chaplain's point of view, is probably quite different from Sunday from the average soldier's point of view. Military duty has the right of way—and, after that, comes pleasure as a rule; but there are always some who give religion a place—and that is where the Chaplain gets a chance.

Rest Camps are very hospitable places. They will take in a few thousand unexpected guests upon amazingly short notice. There is always room—if not in barracks, then in tents or under the open sky. There is always food—if not beefsteak, at least bread and jam and tea.

These guests may be fresh troops on their way "up the line," or they may be weary remnants returning with many a thrilling tale of the Front. They may be of almost any nationality. In this camp we meet Frenchmen, Englishmen, Canadians, Australians, Scotchmen, New Zealanders—even Egyptians. Yes, we met Germans and Austrians, too, but they were prisoners, not guests.

Our hosts at this particular camp were Englishmen—and let me say, in passing, that the English officers are charming.

English camps are always clean, which is more than can be said for those of our illustrious French allies.

Before reveille, some of us had found our way to a quiet little room adjoining a Y. M. C. A. hut, where an altar had been erected. Here we had the Holy Communion. The celebrant was a Church of England Chaplain recently back from service at the Front.

Soon after breakfast came parade service. You know in the English Army divine worship has a recognized place among the military duties. All officers and men attend parade service. These services are often held in the open and with the aid of the well-trained English bands, are beautifully rendered. I remember a very impressive parade service of the Royal Field Artillery in England. But when a suitable building is available, the troops march in and the service is held indoors. So it was this Sunday. The canteen hut served as a church, and everybody seemed oblivious to the row of beer casks in the end of the room. The tables were pushed back and the rough wooden benches arranged churchwise. The Church of England Chaplain read the service, and I preached the sermon.

A piano was our only instrument, but the men sang heartily. Before nightfall many of them marched away with knapsacks and trench helmets on their shoulders. Some of them may be in a fairer "Rest Camp" by this time.

"Soldiering is a great life," the boys often say over here, "if you don't weaken."

After the parade service, I assisted the Free Church Chaplain in the voluntary non-conformist service. He was a Baptist minister from London—and a more lovable man I have not met on this whole expedition. Later I went with him to the English military prison. No visitors are allowed in there except the Chaplains, and my friend got a "call-down" for taking me along.

I saw men running to and fro, and I asked why they ran. "They are not allowed to walk; everything must be double-quick," was the reply. It struck me as a peculiar form of punishment, and I felt at once what a dignified privilege it was to walk at leisure.

There were two simultaneous services, one Church of England, and the other "Free Church," which evidently means "not Church of England." I heard the churchly chanting only at a distance, for I attended the Free Church service and spoke to the men. I remember especially a Canadian, who was so pleased to hear I knew Quebec, and a fine-looking Australian with a sentence of two years for desertion. He said to me, "That is no place for human beings up the line." Yes, it is a great life, if you don't weaken.

While I am speaking of prison services, let me tell you of one in a German prison nearby. As the English Chaplain and I entered the gate, someone shouted: "Eyes up," and instantaneously there was a clatter of knocking heels and some 500 "Bosches" stood at attention.

It was announced that service would be held in the hut shortly, and those who desired to attend, entered and stood waiting, for there were no chairs or benches.

A young sergeant, formerly a theological student at Leipsic, acted as interpreter. There were no hymnals, but how those Germans sang! They all seemed to know the words of the hymns. They were very earnest and reverent. I cannot describe my conflicting emotions as I followed that service. The German prisoners are a well-trained, efficient lot of men. I had opportunity to go through one of the big prison camps. It was in every way a model camp.

But I must return to my subject. That Sunday afternoon—what did I do? Oh, I probably had a nap and a cup of tea with the English officers and watched the dirigibles circling overhead.

But that evening I addressed a group of some 300 soldiers in the English Y. M. C. A. hut—a great opportunity. The Y. M. C. A. Secretary, Chaplain and I had a late supper together, and while we were enjoying our bowls of hot cocoa, a Mr. Hart, an expert on the prisoner problem, came in. He had just come from Petrograd and was on his way to hold conferences in London and Paris regarding the condition of the Allied prisoners in Germany and Austria. He said they were underfed and that it would require forty thousand tons of food a month to supply them with what they needed. That is a problem for the Y. M. C. A.!—but they seem equal to big problems. It is a shame, for the German prisoners are getting plenty of nourishing food over here.

We are no longer in a Rest Camp, but a Work Camp. Our regiment is scattered all over France temporarily. I am at headquarters, where we have only two companies. We have put up a big tent, which serves as church and recreation room. Here the men write their letters and meet socially. We are no longer under English auspices, but are at an American Base.

I have been detailed to act as Base Chaplain and have an office in Base Headquarters. I have charge of the religious services in an American Base Hospital, and visit among the patients almost daily.

Among my duties as Base Chaplain is that of making arrangements for all burials. I am careful that all soldiers and sailors have appropriate military and religious honors.

The dear people of Grace are continually in my thoughts and prayers. Last Sunday I was especially mindful of the children, for that was the day set for the opening of the Church School.

My sincere love to all. Letters are very welcome over here.

Faithfully yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Address: Chaplain Thomas S. Cline, Headquarters 19th Engineers (Railway), American Expeditionary Forces, via New York.

A Word from the Priest-in-charge

After much uncertainty, it now seems to be ordered that your Rector's original plan is to be carried out, and for the time being, I have the privilege of working among you as Priest-in-charge of Grace Church. I think I may speak for the entire congregation, as well as myself, when I say that in all we do we shall have in mind the wishes of the Rector, and all our efforts will be directed to the maintenance of his ideals, both in the church services and the parish activities. It is our earnest desire to welcome him on his return, and to gladden his heart, by being able to give a faithful account of our stewardship. We must all work together to that end.

I fully realize how hard it is for you to see another in the place of one whom you have learned to love, honor and respect, and yet we can all best show our regard for him by putting the same earnestness and zeal into everything we do, as if he were here directing it. A few years ago, Bishop Rhinelander, in his Confirmation address at Quakertown, laid stress on the importance of Loyalty, Unity and Sacrifice in our life as Christians. We are attempting to develop these ideas in our Church School this year, and I am sure we cannot do better than to adopt them as the rule for our parish during these trying times—Loyalty to our absent Rector and all his plans for the good of the parish; Unity in carrying them forward, notwithstanding the temporary loss of his valued leadership; and finally, the determination to Sacrifice much, rather than disappoint him in the confidence he has reposed in us.

Let us all pray and work with this end in view.

Faithfully yours,

JOHN M. CHATTIN.

Subscribe for the Parish News

Due to the increased cost of paper and printing, and an extended mailing list, the expense of producing the parish paper is very much above the revenue from advertisements and subscriptions.

Many of our patrons have recently cancelled their advertisements, and as the subscription list is absurdly small, when compared with the mailing list, the books show that the publication is not self-supporting by the amount of over one hundred dollars in the fiscal year. Should it not pay its own way?

When one of our Boy Scouts calls upon you with a subscription blank, will you not put yourself down for one dollar for two years' subscription, or at least fifty cents for one?

The Dedication Festival

As you will see by the program, we are trying to keep our Dedication Festival as nearly as possible in accordance with the Rector's custom. We hope to have a special preacher at the 11 o'clock service on Sunday, November 4th. The announcement will be made later. Let each one of us enter into the spirit of the festival as best we can under the existing circumstances, and a blessing will come to the parish and its work.

The Parish Reception

It has been thought well this year to combine the parish meeting and the reception, holding an informal conference upstairs at 8 o'clock, where any suggestions bearing on the welfare of the parish will be gladly received, followed by the usual informal reception below stairs. The date is Thursday evening, November 1st, All Saints' Day, at 8 o'clock, in the Parish House, and everyone in the parish, over sixteen years of age, is most cordially invited to attend. To repeat from last year:

No individual invitations are being issued.

Nothing exclusive about it.

Dress informal.

It is intended to afford the parishioners of Grace Church an opportunity to welcome socially the numerous Church people who have recently moved into the community, and also to meet Mr. and Mrs. Chattin.

Write the Rector

It isn't "out of sight, out of mind" with the Rector of Grace Church. It has been our privilege to see some of his intimate letters, and in all, there is evidence of his carrying his friends on his heart, just as he does at home. He even makes reference to small things and commonplace happenings in his life with us, all of which go to show the undercurrent of his thoughts in the midst of stern demands upon his time and energies.

To one of "his boys" in the service, he expresses the hope of greeting him in France, and tells of an occasional diet of "hardtack and bully beef"; the collapse of the tents in a storm in the middle of the night; touches jestingly upon their being without baths for disgracefully long periods, but does not fail to say that for the most part he and his men are well housed and fed and in the pink of condition.

To another man he describes beautiful scenery, and how it brings to him thoughts of home and friends and beloved Grace Church. Then he goes on to enlarge upon the cozy comfort of a big Mt. Airy sweater.

Good friends: everyone—don't let him do all the letter-writing! Don't take it out in thinking nice things at him.

Write! There is his address, right at the end of his grand letter in this issue, and don't fail to make sure that you put on the right amount of postage. (The post-office rules that the domestic rate of postage, three cents per ounce, will carry your letters to the American Expeditionary Forces, and you be sure to spell it out in full, otherwise, if initials are used, it may go to the Australians. For regular letters to France, the rate is five cents per ounce.)

The Corporate Communion

The Sunday of the octave, November 4th, will be the day for our Annual Corporate Communion and Thank Offering. The gifts on that occasion are devoted to our Parish Endowment Fund.

If those who are able, would receive at the early celebration, it would be easier for them to do so fasting,—a pious custom in the Church, at one time well-nigh universal,—and would also make the later service, with its sermon and elaborate music, less tiresome than is the case when the majority make their Communions at this time.

The calm of the early morning hours, undisturbed by the claims of our usually busy life, seems best fitted for our Communions, and the blessing there received will help us meet the trials of the coming day.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The following letter has been sent out to the Pennsylvania Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary by its President, Mrs. John Markoe:

Dear Friends and Fellow Workers:

Shall we take for our slogan this year—

"Workers together with God"?

Our country is at war,—that must be our first thought. Do you remember St. Theresa's saying, "I would have you, my daughters, to be brave and valiant men"? That is what we must be,—brave and valiant.

Some of you have sent your dearest to the Front. Those who do that are as brave and valiant as those who go.

Some of us have gone to work abroad. They have laid a heavier burden on our shoulders. We must try to work harder than ever, that the Kingdom of God may not suffer loss. If Christians in all lands had worked as hard as they ought to have done for the progress of His Kingdom, the kingdoms of this world would not have been in the agony of this present struggle.

So it beseems us to work, to pray, to give for the coming of Christ's Kingdom in the hearts of men. Let us emulate the example of our Mother Church in England, which gave one million dollars more than ever before to missions the first year of the war. So then, let us go forward knowing that we are "workers together with God."

MATILDA MARKOE, President.

September, 1917.

The Junior Auxiliary

The meetings of the Junior Auxiliary have really started. We met five times during October, and so far have three new members, making seventeen on the roll.

We have not forgotten Miss Nuneviller, and already a number of little underskirts are finished to send to her for some of the little Eskimos in Alaska. We are going to send a crib and the bedding, just as soon as the money can be raised. But that is not all,—just as everyone is doing her "bit" in War Relief work, so are the Juniors; we are making caps for French babies under a year old. We would be very grateful for any second-hand clothing for an infant of that age, as these babies are destitute.

Won't all the girls in Grace Church School who haven't attended a meeting of the Juniors this season, try to come next week? Don't forget—the day is Monday and the time is 3.30 o'clock. C. T.

Confirmation

Bishop Rhinelander will make his visitation to Grace Church the Sunday next before Advent, November 25th, at 4 P. M. Evening Prayer will be said at 3.30 o'clock on that Sunday.

Confirmation instructions will be given Sunday afternoons immediately at the close of evening prayer (4.45 P. M.), except on November 4th, our Festival Sunday. These instructions will be open to all who care to attend. There will be some week-day instructions in addition to the ones arranged for Sunday, on account of the shortness of the time.

"Too Young to be Confirmed"

Not too young to be baptized. The Church is very positive about this. The Prayer Book says: "The Minister of every parish shall often admonish the people that they defer not the baptism of their children longer than the first or second Sunday next after their birth, or other Holy-day falling between, unless upon a great and reasonable cause."

The gift in Baptism is a greater one than the gift in Confirmation, and yet it is received by an unconscious infant. In support of Infant Baptism we quote our Lord's words: "Suffer the little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of God." If it is wrong to forbid little children to come to our Lord in Baptism, why is it right to forbid them to come to Him in Confirmation?

Not too young to sin. You may delay the children's Confirmation, but the devil will not delay to tempt them. "The hunter" (as Satan is called in the ninety-first Psalm) does not recognize any "closed time" for souls, any time when he may not set his snares. Are not the sins of children as serious to them as the sins of grown-up people are to adults? Are children's sins a joke only? Do they not matter? Are they not worth while preventing?

Now, Confirmation is a means of grace. It does people good. To be confirmed means to be made stronger. If the Laying-on of Hands conveys spiritual strength, then early Confirmation is Preventive Work.

Not too young to die. A young prince once asked his tutor to teach him how to prepare for death. The tutor, being a foolish man, said: "Oh, you are too young to think about that." "No," said the prince, "I have been measuring the graves in the churchyard, and there are several which are shorter than I am."

I remember a mother telling me that her girl of thirteen was too young to be confirmed. I said: "I will agree to her waiting another year if you can promise me that she will be alive then." The girl was not confirmed then, and she died before the next Confirmation came around.

If your child dies unconfirmed, can you feel that you have done all you might for his soul? In the first Reformation Prayer Book it was said: "And that no man shall think that any detriment shall come to children by deferring of their Confirmation," —i. e., in not being confirmed while infants, but waiting till they could say the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Commandments, and answer the questions in the Catechism, —"he shall know for truth that it is certain by God's Word that children being baptized (if they depart out of this life in their infancy) are undoubtedly saved."

That is so, without doubt. But a child of ten years is long past infancy. This assurance doesn't apply to him. You cannot deny that he has committed "actual sin." And again if, as the Catechism teaches, Holy Communion is "generally" (that is universally) "necessary to salvation," ought not that child to receive it? And is not Confirmation the chief preparation for First Communion?

Our Lord's Words seem to be interpreted thus: Suffer infants to be brought to Me in Baptism. Suffer children of ten or less to be baptized (if it has been omitted), but on no account suffer them to come to Me in Confirmation, because they are not old enough." Does this strike you as a sound interpretation?

Why should there be this age limit for Confirmation?

The Bible knows nothing of it. It doesn't say: "Except ye are grown-up, or at least so many years old, ye shall in no wise be confirmed." There is nothing like this. On the contrary, our Lord said to grown-up people: "Except ye become as little children, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." The condition of children is not less pleasing to God than that of grown-up persons, but more so.

The Primitive Church knew nothing of it. On the contrary, the rule of the Universal Church for the first thousand years and more was to confirm infants as soon as they were baptized This is still the rule of the Eastern Church. The late Dean Plumptre wrote: "Of what may be called the modern Protestant idea of Confirmation, as being the ratification by the baptized child (when he has attained an age of deliberate choice) of the promises made for him by his sponsors, there is not the slightest trace in Christian antiquity."

The Prayer Book knows nothing of it. The Prayer Book no more requires candidates to be just so many years old than it requires them to be so many pounds in weight, or to measure so many inches about the chest. A limit is laid down, indeed, but it is an intellectual test, not an age test.

Children are to be brought to be confirmed so soon as they can say the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, and have been instructed in the Catechism. How soon may this be? Bishop Cosin shall answer. He took a leading part in the last Reformation revision of the Prayer Book. He wrote: "Many can say the Catechism and be confirmed at seven years old." Nicholas Ferrar, who was born in 1593, was confirmed at the age of five. Did not these Bishops of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries know what the Prayer Book means? Why, they were the very men who made the Prayer Book what it is.

Someone may say: "But do you really think that so young a child can understand it?" Well, it is clear that the Church thinks so. But what is it that the child has to understand? There are three things. He must understand that he has to try to be a good child. Next, he must understand what is meant by being a good child. Thirdly, that God is about to help him to be a good child. Is there anything else? I think not. Can you say that this is too difficult for any child who has the use of reason?

St. Gabriel's, Feltonville

At a meeting of the Convocation of Germantown, held October 16th, the needs of this Mission were very strongly set out. It is in a growing community. A thousand houses have been recently built and as many more are in contemplation. The houses are small residences suited for persons of limited means, and the people, who are coming to the Mission, are loyal and devoted, but are not of large means. There are already one hundred communicants on the list and one hundred scholars in the Sunday School. They are now worshipping in a building which was thought unsuitable for use as a moving picture place and also unsuitable for use as a garage; but it is the only place which could be obtained for church services. It is damp and unhealthy. The rent is now $35 a month. An increase of the rent to $40 a month is threatened, and the place is for sale, in which case the Mission will be compelled to give up possession altogether.

The Diocesan authorities have purchased for the Mission a lot on the Northeast Boulevard, admirably situated and of ample size to accommodate a church, parish house and rectory. Until this is used for church purposes it is subject to taxation. Plans approved by the Diocesan Church Building Commission have been prepared for the entire plant. It is proposed now to expend about $10,000 in building what may constitute the basement of the church or parish house, when completed, but can be used in the meantime for church services and for other work. The Bishop, who is very much interested in the movement, has provided, from sources in his control, over $5,000 for this purpose. The Convocation has been asked to provide the balance. At the meeting on October 16th a few of the parishes pledged themselves for sums aggregating $1,400. The delegates from Grace Church offered to provide $250, and hope that a very much larger sum can be furnished for the purpose from this parish. The work is well organized, and in numbers and enthusiasm most promising. The congregation, out of their small means, have promised to raise $1,000 toward the cost of the building now proposed.

This is the time to give effective help toward the establishment of a strong and prosperous parish in a growing community. We hope that Grace Church will do its full share. Contributions may be sent to the Accounting Warden, J. W. Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown.

It was learned that a leader is needed at St. Gabriel's for the Girls' Friendly Society. The Rev. Mr. Krantz not only performs his duties as Rector there, but is Scoutmaster and leader of this girls' organization. Is there any person in Grace Parish who can spare two hours every Tuesday evening, to show these girls how to become leaders themselves?

Such a society of fifty girls should be encouraged. It was decided, at this meeting, that "The Woman's Aid" take up the work of distributing the Prayer Books and Hymnals, printed in compact form, and covered appropriately, for the use of the soldiers and marines and their families.

Mrs. James Cheston, Jr., Chestnut Hill, was made Secretary in charge of this work.

Sunday School Institutes

Grace Church School was well represented at two recent Institutes of the Sunday School Association of the Diocese. Interest in religious education has been growing intensely, spurred by the great forward movement that the Church at large has been making during the past few years. Our Diocesan and District Institutes have been real helps to earnest teachers and officers.

Study classes are being formed again this year.

For the Germantown district, a class will be conducted Friday evenings at St. Luke's Church, Germantown, by Rev. Llewellyn N. Caley. The subject is "The Christian Year." The class is open to all.

The Church School

Rally Day, October 7th, was celebrated in the Church with enthusiasm and devotion. The attendance was all that could be desired, being better than at our closing period last term. Better still, the succeeding Sunday, beginning class work, saw an increase, with a number of old and new scholars.

There must be a number of little ones just arriving at School age. Our Beginners' and Primary Departments should be built up.

The Bible classes for young men and women started well, but our capacity for larger membership is not yet taxed. Will you help it along?

New Equipment for Church School

We badly need more chairs and new tables of more convenient size. This want has been felt for some time, but the still more important supplies, books, etc., exhaust the available funds. It is hoped that the means for the purchase of chairs and tables may be provided.

A Message from "The Front"

The Church School, in session October 14th, joyfully received a message from their Rector. The Superintendent read from a letter dated in France September 24th, the following being an expressive extract:

"I am thinking of you, especially as the Sunday draws near when the Church School will have its opening session. How I should like to be there to welcome the children back, and plan with you the educational work for the coming year, but I find myself here in the midst of a big opportunity in poor mutilated France.

"My work as Chaplain has been very much handicapped by the fact that the regiment has been broken up, and various companies stationed in different cities and towns, but I still have with me about 250 of our men, and will have to visit the other companies at an early date. Meanwhile, I have been able to do some work at an American Base Hospital, which is without a Chaplain, and I have been placed in official charge of all funerals in this area, which includes many troops besides our own."

In Memoriam

After a long illness, Miss Mary E. Shaw passed to the Rest Eternal at Leamy Home on October 4th.

Although maintaining her connection with St. David's, Manayunk, she was ever a faithful attendant of the services at Grace Church, Mt. Airy, until her state of health prevented, and a liberal contributor to the support of the parish and its various benevolent activities. Her deep interest was particularly manifested in the work of the Woman's Auxiliary and in the United Offering.

The burial service was held at St. David's on October 8th, at 2.30 P. M., and the interment was at West Laurel Hill.

The Men of The Way are asked to meet the Rev. Mr. Chattin on Friday evening, November 2d, at 8 o'clock, in the Parish House.

Mount Airy Red Cross

At the annual meeting and election of officers, held Friday, October 12th, the total number of articles shipped from the Auxiliary since March, 1917, was 27,084.

The following officers were elected, to serve until October, 1918:

Chairman—Mrs. Horace H. Burrell.

First Vice-Chairman—Mrs. Walter Willard.

Second Vice-Chairman—Mrs. William C. Burk.

Secretary—Mrs. J. Harold Mendel.

Treasurer—Mrs. George A. Henrich.

A successful campaign, under the direction of Mrs. George A. Henrich, was conducted during a recent golf match at Whitemarsh Valley Country Club, netting $166 to the Auxiliary, from the sale of badges.

At the Red Cross Rally held at Grace Church Parish House on October 15th, Miss Anne Melick, Pennsylvania State Secretary of the American Red Cross, made the interesting statement that Mt. Airy Auxiliary held first place among the Auxiliaries of the Southeastern Chapter, as regards membership, activity and quantity of work.

The Endowment Fund

According to the custom of the parish, the offering on the first Sunday of November will be for the increase of its Endowment Fund. This fund is growing very slowly. It represents, in a sense, our belief in the future of Grace Church and our intention that it shall be carried on after we who are now responsible for it, have gone.

We are sure that when members of this parish realize this, they will be glad to make their offering for this fund a liberal one. Until the principal aggregates $10,000, no part of the income of the fund can, under the Trust Agreement, be used for the benefit of the Church. Let us raise the first $10,000 soon and then go ahead to raise more.

Notes

It gives us pleasure to record the ministrations of the Rev. Clarence Ernest Ball, of Alden, Delaware County, Pa., upon the Seventeenth Sunday after Trinity.

Our organist, Mr. Maxwell McMichael, A. A. G. G., expects to join his regiment at Fort Meade about the first of this month. His departure will be keenly felt by the choir, and the congregation at large.

Mr. McMichael is a finished musician, an able teacher, and, as his frequent voluntary recitals give evidence, he has a generous spirit and the interests of the parish at heart.

The Rev. John M. Chattin will be in charge of Grace Church until further notice, and holds himself in readiness for pastoral ministrations. In case of illness or other need, he may be reached by telephone, Chestnut Hill 1747W. Residence, 220 East Meade Street, Chestnut Hill.

There is special need this fall for all the partly worn clothing that can be found, for a very urgent appeal has gone out from the City Mission for clothing as well as money. The demands were so great last winter that the Mission faces a large deficit, and this year the requirements will be still greater.

Please send to our Parish House all the clothing you can possibly spare, for Miss Edrington must have her barrels as usual, and the city's poor must be helped beside.

The Rector's Letter

Dear Friends:

Now that I begin to realize something of the magnitude of this Expedition I do not wonder that President Wilson waited long before committing the Nation to it. As I heard General Traub say, the other day, "The British stopped the Enemy, the French have held them, it remains for the Americans to drive them back." That, my dear friends, will be no easy task. It may take a long while and we may be dead-tired before we are through with it—but it must be done.

Among the by-products of the war are two slang phrases which we picked up in "Blighty" and which seem apropos. We may get "fed up"—but nevertheless there is only one thing for us all to do now—"carry on."

It is something to be in the vanguard of a great host. I am not sure whether your Rector was the first Army Chaplain to land in France with the Expeditionary Forces, but I have as yet heard of none who preceded him.

It was my sad duty to officiate at the burial of the first officer of those Forces to die in France. I was present at the dedication of the first American Y. M. C. A. building to be erected in this country. I am Chaplain of the first American hospital to minister to our soldiers over here. The other day I rode out of the shop upon the first American Army locomotive to be constructed in France. It was her maiden trip. I tell you she looked majestic alongside of these French and English engines and she had a real whistle, too. The Big Chief of this expedition paid her a visit the day before. By the time you get this letter her name will be "Legion."

The speed with which American engineers turn out work fills the Frenchmen with amazement. They look to us with great hopes. A little eight-year-old garçon voiced the sentiment of France, when he said to me the other day "Americains qui êtes venu ici, vous allez mettre fin à cette guerre." God grant we may not disappoint those hopes.

I must tell you more about my work as Chaplain. Since the middle of September I have been stationed at our regimental headquarters, but I have only had a portion of the regiment to minister to. Most of the companies are scattered "somewhere in France." (Aren't you tired of that phrase?) Even so I have a parish of some two hundred and fifty souls—but such a parish! Imagine a parish with no woman's auxiliary—not even a vestry! I was going to say no Sunday School, but I remembered my Bible Class.

We have been holding our Sunday services in a tent—which served also as a correspondence room and recreation hall. There we have had vaudeville shows, boxing and wrestling matches, French classes and prayer meetings. The place had so many associations we hated to leave it, but the weather has grown so cold and damp of late that we have moved our piano into our new Mess Hall. From now on this will be our Church and recreation centre. Here Major Pierce, just fresh from Philadelphia, addressed us last Sunday. Here our moving picture machine, also a new arrival in France, threw its first tragedies and comedies on to the screen this very night. Here our victrola makes us homesick with dear old songs and favorite melodies. Here thousands of letters to loved ones at home will be written. Yes, thousands for the poor Chaplain to censor, when he would rather be writing to his own much loved parishioners. And while I am on that point, let me remind you that everyone who reads this letter owes the "Rector" a letter and his address is at the bottom of this letter. I'll promise to answer every letter you send, so there!

To continue about my work, since September 22d, I have been detailed as Base Chaplain and this has enlarged the scope of my activities considerably. Every day, except Sunday, I report at my office at Base Headquarters. Most of the matters there referred to me thus far have been in connection with the burial of the dead.

Twice today the three volleys have been fired over the open grave, twice the bugler has sounded "taps." This morning we buried a seaman, this afternoon a soldier. A peculiar sadness attaches to these funerals—to think these boys are laid away in foreign soil so far from their dear ones. But the sadness is ours—not theirs. "Then are they glad because they are at rest; and so he bringeth them unto the haven where they would be." I read that portion of Psalm 107 (verses 21-31,—look them up), at the naval funeral this morning. Oh, dear friends, thank God for the Christian Hope —it never fails us. It shoots a ray of light through every dark cloud—even this blackest of all clouds, war.

There is a brighter side to the life of a Base Chaplain—the hospital! Ah, you are mistaken if you think a hospital is a gloomy place. Certainly not No. 101! There I go almost every afternoon. Every other Sunday we have an early celebration in the Adjutant's office, and every Sunday night we have a splendid service in the Mess Hall. We are very high Church—not only the clergyman, but the majority of the members of the congregation wear robes—bath robes, or should I say dressing gowns.

And how we sing those Gospel hymns. When I get back I shall be keen for song services with plenty of Gospel hymns. What will you conservative Episcopalians do when you have an ex-Army Chaplain for a Rector?

I must not tell you any more this time—or there won't be room for all those other articles in the PARISH NEWS—about the Red Cross, the U. O., the Juniors and "Pews and Sittings." Oh, dear, it makes me homesick!

Affectionately.

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Nov. 7, 1917.

Address: Chaplain T. S. Cline, Headquarters 19th Engineers (R'y), American Expeditionary Forces, via New York.

P. S.—There are no rented pews in our Mess Hall.

Mount Airy Red Cross

The work of the local Red Cross Auxiliary is proceeding with interest. During the month, a letter was received from the Red Cross Clearing House, in France, acknowledging the receipt of a large box of surgical dressings and other hospital supplies, complimenting us on their perfection.

This gives Mount Airy the honor of having sent the first box received in France from the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross.

During the past two weeks, the Grace Church workroom alone has turned out 40 surgical night-shirts and 29 pairs of pajamas (the latter being 58 pieces), 3,400 surgical dressings, as well as other bandages and quantities of knitted goods.

The Melting Pot is still receiving donations of old silver and gold to be sold for Red Cross work. Send contributions to the Parish House.

Notice.—On Saturday, December 29th, a dance will be given by the Mount Airy Red Cross, in the new ballroom of the Automobile Club. Tickets, $1 each. Proceeds are for the purchase of wool and other supplies. Mrs. Thomas H. Ball, chairman. Apply to Mrs. Ball, Mrs. Burrell or Mrs. Matlack for tickets. Invite your soldier and sailor friends.

Three Notable Duties

1. PRAYER; 2. FASTING; 3. ALMSGIVING.

These three notable duties are enjoined by our Lord in the Sermon on the Mount (S. Matt. vi, 1-18). The Church has certainly not neglected to emphasize their importance.

1. Prayer is Her vital breath. The incense used as an adjunct of worship, both by Jew and Christian, typifies the ascending prayers of God's children. "Let my prayer be set forth in Thy sight as the incense; and let the lifting up of my hands be an evening sacrifice." (Ps. cxli, 2.) "And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given unto him much incense, that he should offer it with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne. And the smoke of the incense, which came with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God out of the angel's hand." (Rev. viii, 3-4.) Prayer, whether private or public, is a great source of power in the life of every Christian. Prayer is an expression of religious feeling; and therefore it takes a variety of forms; thus—Confession expresses humility; Petition expresses desire; Thanksgiving expresses gratitude; Intercession expresses good will to others, and the highest form of prayer, communion with God. All these have their highest expression in the Holy Eucharist: that One oblation from which all other offerings derive their efficacy; the Church's Prayer Meeting.

All our actions should be prayers: "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the Name of the Lord Jesus" (Col. iii, 17), and so fulfill the Apostolic injunction to "pray without ceasing." (I Thess. v, 17.)

2. Fasting; self-discipline; the want of this is the cause of all our sin. What we need is, generally, not more grace, but to use more the grace we have; to do this requires a habit of self-discipline. Our Blessed Lord not only taught the necessity of this virtue, but by His obedience even unto death, has left us the perfect example. The Church sets forth, in the Prayer Book, a Table of Fasts—Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, and other days of fasting on which she requires such a measure of abstinence as is more especially suited to extraordinary acts and exercises of devotion.

3. Almsgiving.—Our Lord's example is our inspiration to give to others: "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though He was rich, yet for your sakes He became poor, that ye through His poverty might be rich." (II Cor. viii, 9), and in S. Luke xii, 15-34 (which I beg you to read), He lays down for all time the lesson of self-forgetful generosity, and absolute dependence on Him, which the man of the world would be quick to stamp as improvident. "But ye have not so learned Christ; if so be that ye have heard Him, and have been taught by Him as the truth is in Jesus." (Eph. iv, 20, 21.) Furthermore, the Church contemplates the alms of the faithful at every celebration of the Holy Eucharist, thus in her highest act of worship embodying Prayer, self-oblation and almsgiving.

Now we must admit that we as individuals have fallen very far short of the high ideal set before us by our Divine Master, and constantly taught in His Holy Church.

Now comes another call to these very duties so long neglected or only partially fulfilled. The nation bids us—Pray, Fast, or deny ourselves in many ways, and to give and give again to the cause of righteousness and freedom. Churchmen everywhere are responding nobly to the call. Let us in this new call to old duties recognize an individual responsibility, the result of which shall be seen in churches thronged with worshippers offering their united prayers before God's altar, lives stripped of luxury and extravagance, no longer self-indulgent but self-disciplined, and a generosity which shall reach out in blessing to supply every need of suffering humanity.

Advent Addresses

The addresses at Evening Prayer on the four Sundays in Advent will be on "The Last Things":

December 2d—"Death."
December 9th—"Judgment."
December 16th—"Hell."
December 23d—"Heaven."

Owing to the present musical situation it seems best to continue these services at 4 P. M., in order to have the organist, Mr. Nodel, with the Choir once each Sunday, which would not be possible should the hour for service be changed during Advent, as has been customary. I trust the members of the congregation will make a special effort to attend these services. The times are serious, and it is fitting that we should come together to consider serious subjects.

Have you a boy in camp, training to take part in the most frightful war in history? Or, if you have not, will you not put yourself in the place of the mothers who have, and think what it means to them that their sons are without the ministrations of the Church? Living day after day, with all sorts of companions, far from the home influences that have for years surrounded them, is it not fearful that they should be denied the comfort and strengthening power of the Sacraments?

Mothers, open your hearts and your purses and give freely to the $50,000 fund that is needed to send the Church to the camps. Remember, the war is not over; your boy may yet be old enough to take his part in it.

The Rev. John M. Chattin will be in charge of Grace Church until further notice, and holds himself in readiness for pastoral ministrations. In case of illness or other need, he may be reached by telephone, Chestnut Hill 1747W. Residence, 220 East Meade Street, Chestnut Hill.

It may not be generally known, that by a very generous concession on the part of Mr. Nodel, Music Master of St. Paul's, Chestnut Hill, we are supplied with organists and a trainer for the choir. May we make this a partial expression of our gratitude for his very material assistance in the absence of Mr. McMichael?

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the ushers at services, or to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Baptism of Infants

"The Minister of every Parish shall often admonish the people that they defer not the baptism of their children longer than the first or second Sunday next after their birth, or other Holy-day falling between, unless upon a great and reasonable cause."

This Rubric from the Prayer Book, and a careful reading of the Baptismal Office should be sufficient indication to all Christians of the mind of the Church as to the importance of having their children brought to the Sacrament of Holy Baptism at an early date, and yet I suppose it is the experience of every Priest that many parents fail to realize their responsibility, and must be urged again and again before they can be brought to accept for their helpless little ones God's great gift of Regeneration and Adoption. They are properly solicitous in all things pertaining to the mental and physical condition of their children, but in this most important matter of their spiritual well-being, they often seem sadly indifferent.

I hope all devout members of the congregation will join me in prayer to Almighty God that all the unbaptized in our Parish may speedily be brought into the membership of Christ's Holy Church, and be made living members of the same.

O Lord, we beseech Thee mercifully to receive the prayers of Thy people who call upon Thee; and grant that they may both perceive and know what things they ought to do, and also may have grace and power faithfully to fulfill the same; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. J. M. C.

There is special need this winter for all the partly worn clothing that can be found, for a very urgent appeal has gone out from the City Mission for clothing as well as money. The demands were so great last winter that the Mission faces a large deficit.

Please send to our Parish House all the clothing you can possibly spare, for Miss Edrington must have her barrels as usual, and the city's poor must be helped beside.

Social Service

There are many ways in which the Church may illustrate, in the lives of its people, the parable of the good Samaritan. The physical well-being of the community must be an accomplished fact to maintain its spiritual strength.

The Social Service Committee of Grace Church is aiming at Constructive Work; not the charity which makes paupers of those seeking help.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary, the Secretary of this Committee, Mrs. Meehan, gave an account of some of the practical work that is being done. She said: "There is no disputing the efficiency of a paid Charity Association, where questions of social distress are studied systematically, but there is need for the personal touch which the Church is able to give.

"The first canvass made in the Parish, several years ago, for the purpose of bringing new members into the Church School, revealed several cases of trouble and need. Those directing the canvass realized the need for a method of assistance,—hence the forming of the Social Service Committee."

Mrs. Meehan went on to cite several cases as concrete examples of some of the problems confronting the Committee. The Auxiliary heard the account with interest and a generous response is to be forthcoming in some plan of regular financial assistance. Meanwhile the people of Grace Church, in general, may well consider this needful work right at our own doors, and give the speedy help which the Committee earnestly seek. Mrs. A. C. Brand, 115 East Durham Street, is the Committee's Treasurer.

The Missionary Calendars

The Missionary calendars are now on sale in the Parish House. Apply to Miss Hearne or to the Educational Secretary. The price is 30 cents. Every family in the Parish should have one.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Immediately before us lie several pressing obligations that are so vital and so directly your concern and mine, that surely no anæsthetic is powerful enough to deaden us to their appeal.

First of all, we must send the Church to the men in the camps. This, of course, is not entirely Woman's Auxiliary work, but the women must do their share,—and God grant that it may be a most generous share, for this is not a question to be argued, but a fact to be accepted. If we do not help to make it possible, who will? Who else should be so interested, for are not those men our sons, — our husbands, — our brothers?

The Bishop has asked for $50,000 at once to carry on the work, and there should be no trouble whatever in raising such a sum, if each of us will give a part.

The next to be considered is S. Agnes' School for Girls, Kyoto. At the last General Convention it was decided that the most urgent appeal presented was from S. Agnes', and that our special efforts should be spent in providing the money to rebuild and bring the school up to the required standard. If this should not be done, the Government of Japan will revoke the school license, and so will pass away the only Christian school for girls in that large district.

By the end of last year the $50,000 required had been raised by the Woman's Auxiliary, but when building started, materials and labor had so advanced in price, that more money was needed. American gold dollars, which a year or so ago were worth two-and-a-half in the Japanese coins, are now, on account of the advance in silver, worth only $1.16 in their money. This in itself considerably lowers the buying power of the $50,000, so now $27,000 more must be raised, and it has been decided that the great thank-offering, which is to be given during the Week of Prayer, will be devoted to S. Agnes' School.

The Week of Prayer, which is to be at the beginning of Advent, will mark the end of the Pilgrimage which started just one year ago, and has since traveled round the world. The thank-offering should be a splendid one. "Freely ye have received; freely give."

The third obligation is close at home. At a recent meeting of our Auxiliary, one of the members of the Social Service Committee gave an interesting talk, explaining the lines on which their work is carried out, and it is earnestly hoped that every member of the Auxiliary will stand back of this Committee with all the help she can give. The needs they are supplying are here, right at our doors, and there is no excuse for neglecting them. During these last years people have been gradually learning the joy of giving, so, when we find our neighbors in want, we will certainly be glad to supply their needs.

Those who were present at the Diocesan Meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary on November 15th, were asked to tell of the work of the recently organized Society for Isolated Churchwomen. It was formed for the purpose of helping women who are out of reach, to take an active part in Auxiliary work, by sending regularly to them interesting reports of the various meetings, and other information from time to time. A Correspondence Mission Study Class has also been arranged. On the other hand, it is good to know that those who are at the meetings are followed by the prayers of these women.

Please tell about this wherever you can, so that names may be sent in and more of such lonely women may have the benefits of the Society.

The Junior Auxiliary

A tea was held at the home of Mrs. Pratt Thompson by the Junior Auxiliary on Friday, November 23d, for the benefit of the Chaplain's Fund, and for the work in Alaska.

Diocesan Missionary Meeting

The monthly meeting of the Diocesan Missionary Society was held at the Church House, Twelfth and Walnut Streets, on the morning of October 31st.

The first speaker was Dr. William Jeffreys, now connected with the City Mission. He spoke of how little the work of the City Mission is understood and appreciated, and asked that in future one or more members from each Parish represent the City Mission and keep its interests and needs before the Parish. There are a large number of good Church people who do not even know what the City Mission is. Dr. Jeffreys declared that the City Mission is the greatest power in the Diocese for spreading the Kingdom; the most potent by 500 per cent.; which Dr. Jeffreys declared pretty strong language considering his opinion of Mission Study Classes and other activities.

In future, instead of the yearly City Mission report, which nobody reads, there is to be an interesting paper circulated in each Parish, through its City Mission Circle. In this way the Diocese may be educated in its non-Parish work.

The Society for Church Work Among the Blind was then discussed. Rain or shine, war or no war, the blind are always with us. It is our simple Christian duty to look after them, to see that the Church keeps in touch with its blind communicants, to help them when they are out of employment and to see that they are not destitute. The budget provides $350 yearly for this work; not nearly all of which has been received. Five hundred dollars a year is about the sum really required. Each Parish is to become a member of the Society for the Blind and to contribute yearly.

The Home for Consumptives at Chestnut Hill is well-organized, and is, perhaps, the best part of our City Mission work.

The second speaker was the Rev. Mr. Lane, of S. John's, Northern Liberties, one of the oldest Parishes in the Diocese. The church is at the corner of Brown and American Streets. There are 110 communicants, all poor. The people include practically all the nations now at war, Poles, Russians, Hungarians, Armenians, Jews, etc. Thirty-five thousand people in a densely populated ward, where both birth and death rates are very high, saloons on every corner, and housing conditions unspeakable! Here and there among the foreigners is an English-speaking family.

The ordination service says: "Seek for Christ's sheep that are dispersed abroad, and for his children who are in the midst of this naughty world." How were these people to be reached? The streets fairly swarm with children. There was the answer. So he opened the doors of the Parish House every afternoon. He was absolutely swamped and was obliged to issue cards, getting out 600. Then he divided the children and the hours; boys under 10; boys over 10; girls under 10; girls over 10—at stated times.

He called on Deaconess Colesberry at S. Martha's House for advice; then secured a Parish worker, Deaconess Mills. Summer came. This hot, crowded, dirty section of the city and no playground. He looked around. There was an old graveyard adjoining the church that had not been used for many years! Ho took half the gravestones up, marking them carefully, then went to the Playground Committee and asked for apparatus and a teacher and got both. Last summer 12,000 children played in that little place, 50 x 30 feet. This year he means to take up more gravestones and enlarge. He hopes that Councils will soon give them the playground that has been asked.

This is what is going on at S. John's:

Monday afternoon: Free library—the only library in the ward—a "story hour"; girls' Drawing Class.

Tuesday: Girls' Friendly (younger girls in afternoon; older in evening).

Wednesday: Girls' Music Club—a paid teacher through Settlement Music School; Girl Scouts.

Thursday: Free library; story hour; Boys' Drawing Class; also two Girls' Clubs, and a Savings Bank.

Friday: Young Men's Club—pool table—took young men from pool rooms and corners. They raised $50 to repair old table. Also two Boys' Clubs.

Saturday morning. Girl Scouts.

Deaconess Mills gave up her summer vacation to study the settlement work on the East Side of New York. There are five empty rooms in the Parish House, and if enough furniture can be procured the Deaconess at S. Barnabas will come to live with her. They will gladly accept anything and everything. Books and games are asked for. A piano is needed, or an organ. These foreign children are very musical.

Money, of course! If S. John's is to stay there, $500 must be raised for this year's work. Who will help? And who will pray for S. John's and the little children, the American children of tomorrow?

Mr. Lane also asks us to send volunteer workers, workers by the hour, women or girls who can teach or play or entertain or help in some way, if only a few hours a week. The children are there; the work limited only by lack of workers.

The last speaker was a young woman, a social worker from the Episcopal Hospital. There are four of these workers and a Secretary. Their principal endeavor is to help the sick carry out the doctor's orders, to follow them up as they leave the hospital or dispensary. There is work among the tubercular, the defective, the babies and mothers, the lame, the blind and the insane. More workers are needed—volunteer workers; some for visiting and some to assist at hospital clinics; others in the clinical department.

The young women of Grace Parish are already organizing under the direction of Mrs. Matlack, to assist in Diocesan work, at the Bishop's request. Miss Helen Rebman is Secretary. Will those who can help in any way apply to her? Donations of all kinds are being received; a bed, a desk, a chair, a couch cover, pictures, books and games are already promised. Please look around your house and find something you can give to S. Agnes' or S. John's Houses. Telephone Mrs. Matlack or Miss Rebman this week. K. M. M.

Church Periodical Club

A call has come from the Front for magazines and books.

The War Commission of the Church has handed over to the Church Periodical Club the duty and privilege of supplying the Chaplains with reading-matter. Will not Grace Church respond to this call and keep the Rector well provided with books and magazines?

This does not mean sending them in bulk, but each parishioner, who is able and willing, forwarding, carefully wrapped, every week or month, a magazine with domestic postage (four ounces for one cent), directed

CHAPLAIN THOMAS S. CLINE,
Headquarters, 19th Engineers (Railway),
American Expeditionary Forces.
Via New York.

This is an extra work of the C. P. C., and should not interfere with sending magazines regularly to missionaries, shut-ins, hospitals, etc. Please let the Librarian know what magazines will be sent, so that a correct report may be made.

Do not forget to send all reading-matter that you are willing to "pass on," to the Parish House,—also toys, games, Victor records, Christmas cards, etc. There is much material that would not be suitable for a regiment which could be used to advantage in many places.

Will not every parishioner do his or her share in this part of the war work for our own Chaplain? M. W. BAYARD, Librarian.

All members of the Parish are urged to avail themselves of the Duplex Envelope System as a regular method of contributing toward Missions and Church support. For pledge cards and envelopes, please address the Accounting Warden.

Self-Sacrifice

"We, who in the providence of God are not called to the battle line, cannot sit idly by while our young men are preparing themselves to risk everything that life seemed to have in store for them. Surely the Cross of Christ must mean little to men who can live selfishly in such a crisis! Our sons and brothers in camp and on battlefield must feel our strength behind them! If they show their manhood not by high thinking only, but by high action, surely by plain living and heroic giving we can let them know that the race is worth the great sacrifice we are asking of them. S. Paul bade men labor not that we may live in comfort, but 'that we may have to give.' Not only in the innumerable small ways in which we waste so much, not only in the easy luxury in which we delight to live, not only in the costly apparel of which we are so proud, but in the ordinary comforts and conveniences of life must we learn the meaning of sacrifice. If we are to feed and equip our young men for battle, if we are to supply the famine-stricken people of the world, above all if we are to get out of this war some return for the sacrifice of our sons, we must learn ourselves and thus teach others that 'man's life doth not consist in the abundance of the things that he possesseth,' that 'man doth not live by bread alone,' we must learn ourselves and must practically teach others that idealism and not materialism is the wealth and the glory of our race.

"We ought to have learned this long ago, for the basis of our religion is the fact that the Eternal Son, who 'thought it not robbery to be equal with God,' taking upon Himself human nature, lived among men a life of strenuous labor and self-denial. We ought to have learned kneeling before the altar, where Christ's great sacrifice is in a mystery offered morning by morning to the Eternal Father, that our chief value consists in giving even to the uttermost. What heroes men should be who cling for salvation to the Cross of Christ! But we have not learned it. The Eternal Father Who spared not His only begotten Son must teach it to us. I wonder if the fundamental meaning of this war is that 'without shedding of blood there is no remission of sins!'"—From the Council Address of the Bishop of Fond du Lac.

Pastoral Letter of the House of Bishops

Adopted Second Day of Session at Special Meeting, Chicago, October 17–19, 1917

BRETHREN OF THE CLERGY AND LAITY:

Our nation is at war in behalf of justice, liberty and humanity. When these are in danger, the Church's station is at the front.

When the nation has with solemn deliberation entered war, voices which have spoken for neutrality, non-resistance or pacifism are silenced. We hate war, and shrink from its horrors, but we who enjoy the privileges of civil liberty won by the blood of our fathers must, when they are endangered, defend them at the cost of our blood. In the overthrow of injustice and in humanity is the only hope of permanent peace. Loyalty demands of every citizen unconditional consecration to the service of the nation.

We thank God that from their homes and parish churches have gone the boys and men of the Church, eager to do their duty wherever the nation sends them. We watch them with pride as they are mustered into the Army and Navy.

As the nation is preparing to enter the awful conflict, we, your Bishops, remind you of certain definite duties and opportunities.

I. A nation fighting to keep the world safe for democracy must in character and action be true to democracy. Racial strife, class antagonism, impurity and intemperance wreck civil liberty. Before we can conquer injustice and inhumanity in others, we must first overcome them in ourselves. Our guilt in these respects we must acknowledge with shame. We expect of our soldiers and sailors concentration of thought and action, self discipline, courage and serenity under stress. We can demand no less of ourselves. In humility and sincerity we must live by the principles for which we fight. National character gives thrust and force to the National Army. The war with all its suffering and loss may prove a blessing if it rouses us from the indifference to religion, to spiritual concerns and moral issues, which threatens our very life.

At the source and foundation of the character of this people are Christ and His Church. If the force of arms is necessary to put down wilful disregard of the rights and decencies of human life, it is only by the persistent teaching of Christian principles that these can be preserved for ourselves or for the world. We need plain teaching of the Christian Religion, with its insistence on the claims of God and the claims of our fellow-men, and on God's present gifts of grace by His Spirit through His Church and Sacraments to enable us to live up to the example and precepts of His incarnate Son, our Lord.

II. The President has well said that this is a war not of armies but of peoples. Every man, woman and child has a place and is enlisted in the cause, the Army and Navy at the front, we close beside and behind them; though they be in France and we in America, we are one with them, bound together in a common cause. Hence everything that we are and that we do will unite in their support. Every man on the fighting line, in hospital or on lonely guard duty, must feel behind and with him the heart, sympathy and action of the people. To express this, we must not only work for the Red Cross and give generously in money and comforts; we must also be ready to pay heavy taxes cheerfully, and buy Liberty Bonds. It is upon the people's substance that the armies move.

Failures in efficiency there are and will be. Let us withhold criticism until we are sure it is justified. Rivalry for position or fame has no right place in war or in organized beneficence. Force depends on united action.

III. Next to the character and consecration of the people, the fighting power of a nation is in the possession of the staples of life in food and clothing. Upon the economy, simple habits and self-restraint of Christian people the Nation has a right to call with confidence. Every housekeeper and child, every man, whether traveling or at home, has his duty so to save food and clothing, money and everything as to provide for our allies and for ourselves. Covetousness and the seeking of selfish gain in the country's time of need should be frowned upon as no less disgraceful than cowardice or rebellion.

IV. The War Department is working out a great, and we believe beneficent, experiment in warfare. Military discipline used to cut the armies off as much as possible from home and natural associations. Men in abnormal conditions become abnormal. A soldier is still a man. Confident that the normal man is the best fighter, the Government is doing everything in its power consistent with military efficiency to keep the soldiers and sailors in touch with society and home, to encourage right associations with the women and girls in the neighborhood of the camps, and to build up the men, physically and morally, through recreation and social and religious influences. While we trust the general high character and awakened moral sense of our soldiers, every officer of the Church and every citizen should see to it that his town is clean enough for the soldiers to roam in, and the officials and people should do their part to protect the girls of the neighborhood as well as the men and boys who have come from distant homes.

Grateful for the action of the President and of Congress in restricting the manufacture and sale of liquor, we urge all to support the authorities in enforcing the law; and to set a personal example of abstinence.

V. The War Commission of the Church has been created to marshal the spiritual forces of the Church for efficient action.

We want the Church to follow our boys and men with sympathetic interest and to offer them the Sacraments and pastoral care. Reinforcing the commissioned chaplains, voluntary chaplains of our communion, welcomed by the authorities, will keep close to the camps and naval stations, both in this country and in France, and give guidance and spiritual leadership to the men.

Strong laymen also, members of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew and others, engaged for that special work by the Commission, will, as Secretaries of the Y. M. C. A., keep in touch with churchmen. Chaplains will be equipped; the names of churchmen in the National service will be listed; literature will be sent; duplication of work and of appeals for help will be avoided by co-ordination of local efforts and Church organizations with the War Commission.

Within a few weeks the Commission will ask of the Church Five Hundred Thousand Dollars. The Bishops are confident that every loyal churchman and churchwoman will respond generously to this war call of the Church.

VI. Finally, brethren, let us be earnest and constant in prayer, at home and in church, for God's blessing on what we are confident is a righteous cause; for the President and his advisors; for our Army and Navy; and for our sons, brothers and husbands, first that they may, in camp and battle, on leave and in hospital, be faithful and unafraid; then, if God wills, that they may have a safe return.

Let our churches be open for private prayer, as well as for the regular services, and for others of a less formal character, with opportunities afforded for the mention of particular persons and needs.

Let the opportunity of these days of stress and anxiety be seized for the preaching of the deep truths of the living God, our Judge and our loving Father, and of His Son, who, in becoming man, assures us of His sympathy with the struggles and sorrows of His people.

After war will come peace; let us prepare for it by sustaining a worthy spirit. Christian people will throughout the war hold high the standard of chivalry and of charity. Reparation and not revenge must be the object kept before us. We will control our feelings of resentment, and try to believe the best possible interpretation of the motives and ideals of the people who are fighting us and over whom we shall be victorious.

We will steadily press the education of the young, and prepare them for a better citizenship than ours of today.

We will support and advance the cause of Christian missions with greater and not diminished loyalty and generosity, knowing that it is the power of Christ alone that will inspire and enable the nations of the world to work together for peace and righteousness, for human brotherhood and the fulfilment of human life in the Kingdom of God.

Christmas

It is going to be hard for us to hold our Christmas Festival this year with its usual joyousness. In many homes there will be one or more vacant places, and even at the altar, one who is almost a stranger to you will minister in the place of your beloved Rector; but we must all rejoice in the bravery and heroism of the men and women whose names are on the Honor Roll of this Parish.

I hope every member of the congregation will do his or her best to make this Christmas a time of real spiritual uplift. Let everyone come to the Holy Communion with the certainty that at least we are all one in Him, and that neither time nor space can separate us from our loved ones, for all are one in Christ Jesus, and, as we join in the prayer "that we and all others who shall be partakers of this Holy Communion, may worthily receive the most precious Body and Blood of Thy Son Jesus Christ, be filled with Thy grace and heavenly benediction, and made one body with Him, that He may dwell in us, and we in Him," there is no separation where such love and faith exist. Here, too, we may offer most effective prayer for our loved ones, and say.

"And then for those, our dearest and our best,
By this prevailing presence we appeal;
Oh, fold them closer to Thy mercy's breast!
Oh, do Thine utmost for their souls' true weal!
From tainting mischief keep them white and clear,
And crown Thy gifts with strength to persevere."

This, indeed, is the Communion of Saints in which we believe.

Celebrations on Christmas Day

There will be three celebrations of the Holy Communion on Christmas Day:

At 6, 7.30 and 11 o'clock.

Morning Prayer will be said at 10.30 o'clock.

Christmas Eve

The Christmas Eve Festival will be held as usual at 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon before Christmas. Let us make it just what we know our absent loved ones would desire, and make it a time of rejoicing in the gift the Holy Child came to bring.

Let the well-filled stockings for the children of S. Ambrose Mission in Kensington, reflect our own gratitude to the good God for all His many blessings to us: spiritual and temporal.

Bible Study

There will be held in the Parish House on the first and third Fridays of each month, at 8 P. M., a Bible Class for the men and women of the Parish, and any others who may care to avail themselves of this opportunity to become better acquainted with the Holy Scriptures. These classes are under the direction of the Men of the Way, and for the present will be conducted by the Priest-in-Charge.

Recollections of Dedication Festival

Initiated four years ago, our Dedication Festival, held again last month, marked the twenty-eighth anniversary of the Consecration of Grace Church, Mt. Airy.

The opening service was that of a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7.30 on All Saints' Day, followed at 10 by a sermon and a second celebration. In the evening at 8, there was an informal conference in the Parish House, at which Ewing L. Miller, Esq., Treasurer of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, forcibly brought to our attention the duty of providing means for specifically carrying the Church to the Forces; especially for assisting the Chaplains, and for work in the cantonments and camps here in America.

The Parish Reception to meet the Priest-in-Charge and Mrs. Chattin, followed the Parish meeting, and the event will be remembered as a most genial one. In every mind was the thought of our Rector, absent at the Front, but also that he would not wish us to permit any undercurrent of regret or sadness to mar the occasion. Simple refreshments were provided by the women of the Parish, the girls serving.

On the second day of the Festival, All Souls' Day, there was an early celebration in Commemoration of the Faithful Departed, and in the evening a gathering of the Men of the Way.

The Party of the children of the Kindergarten and Primary Department occurred on Saturday afternoon, and as usual the younger members of the Church School were given a good time.

November 4th was Festival Sunday. The Annual Corporate Communion being the first service, and, at noonday, a second celebration and sermon. The special preacher for the day was the Rev. Philip J. Steinmetz, Jr., Headmaster of the Episcopal Academy. The text was from the opening verses of the Eighteenth Chapter of Jeremiah: "The Clay in the hands of the Potter."

The thank-offering at this service, to be devoted to the increase of the Endowment Fund, while not as large as could have been wished, showed that some had not forgotten to help provide for the future of Grace Church.

At 4 o'clock came the always beautiful Church School Festival Service, with processions, addresses and songs of praise and thanksgiving.

On Monday, November 5th, the Juniors met, and afterward gave an informal tea in the late afternoon.

On Wednesday: Litany and Intercessions. An all-day session of the Woman's Auxiliary followed a celebration at 9.30. At noon Deaconess Morris gave a most interesting account of her new work in Frankford.

Thursday evening at 8 o'clock was the time appointed for the Party of the scholars of the Upper School,—when the main attraction proved to be a surprise pageant, produced by friends from another part of the city.

Thus closed the Festival of 1917. All in all, the religious services had the number and force of former years. but projects for amusement and entertaining were toned down in step with the times.

The absence of Dr. A. L. E. Crouter, Rector's Warden, always prominent in Parish affairs, was keenly felt. It is, indeed, a pleasure to be able to record that he is making a good recovery from a long and serious illness.

The Flower Fund

"Please remember the 'Flower Fund.' We all love to see the flowers on the altar, and from now until May they must be purchased. Contributions marked simply 'Flower Fund' and dropped in the box at the church door, will be gratefully received. Anyone desiring to donate flowers for a special day may communicate with Mrs. H. S. Lowber."—From last year's PARISH NEWS.

Advent Sunday

As usual, this day will be observed throughout the country as the time for an annual Corporate Communion of the men of the Church. This has been brought about by the influence of the Brotherhood of S. Andrew.

I see, by referring to the PARISH NEWS of last December, that this day is also the time for the semi-annual Corporate Communion of the Communicants' Guild. This year, as last, we shall have a number of the newly confirmed, who will then make their First Communion. It has also been suggested that Church people all over this land mark the closing of the Pilgrimage of Prayer by a Corporate Communion, and that the members of the Woman's Auxiliary make a special offering for S. Agnes' School, Kyoto, Japan. Envelopes have already been distributed for this purpose.

In view of all these obligations and privileges, shall we not as a Parish avail ourselves of this opportunity to begin the Church's New Year with our Blessed Lord at His altar? There will be a Service of Preparation for the Holy Communion, Friday evening, November 30th, at 8 o'clock.

The Corporate Communion will be on Advent Sunday, December 2d, at 7.30 A. M. At the last Corporate Communion of the Parish, during the recent Dedication Festival, the attendance was about forty; much less than ten per cent. of the total number of communicants. Can we not, in these times of stress, when so many noble examples of courage and self-denial are before us, rise to a higher standard ourselves, and show by our self-sacrificing devotion to high ideals our oneness with the spirit bred in these wonderful days of opportunity? Let us not be among those referred to by the Rector in his lament over the like conditions last year, "And they would not come."

VOLUME XIV JANUARY, 1918 NUMBER 1

The Rector's Letter

You may be sure the arrival of the Parish News is awaited with great eagerness by a certain chaplain, somewhere in France. I found the November number intensely interesting. It certainly did make me homesick to read the program of the Dedication Festival, and to think of all those interesting services and meetings which I was missing. It goes without saying that I was with you in spirit on All Saints' Day. I began that day with a spiritual communion (not being able to have a regular celebration) and it brought me into very close touch with you all.

There is something markedly fine in Mr. Chattin's self-effacing loyalty, which is bound to result in the hearty co-operation of all the people in the Parish. What a beautiful thing, both for St. Paul's Church and for Mr. Chattin, to make it possible that the work of Grace Church should continue in full vigor in the absence of the Rector. I am especially delighted, as you may understand, to learn of the successful beginning of the Church School work. I cannot imagine anything that would be more refreshing to me than to visit in the various departments of the Church School some bright Sunday morning. I should love to watch that circle of beginners in their sweet devotions, and to join, for a few moments, in the exercises of the primary department. I should like to see the various classes assembled around their tables in the upper school, eagerly learning the precious truths of our holy religion. I should love to catechise them and join with them in singing the Christmas carols.

The excellent suggestion to "write the Rector," which appeared in your columns, has already borne fruit, and I cannot tell you how grateful I am for the many cheering messages from home. In the strength of such letters I feel equal to anything.

My life here has so many phases that I hardly know of which to write you. It may seem a sad subject, but perhaps the most absorbing work which I have at present is in connection with the burial of the dead. I am going to describe to you an event which is not without its historical interest.

On a clear Sunday afternoon, late in November, a solemn procession formed at the huge gate of an American Base Hospital, and marched for a mile or more into the country. As they ascended a hill, and passed through the gate of a green field of an acre or more, the band began to play Hall's "Funebre." After the band came two companies of United States marines, then a detachment of French infantry, then followed the clergy in their vestments, and numerous officers and visitors. These officers represented almost every branch of the military service, both American and French. As they encircled the grounds, they seemed to symbolize the coming of a mighty host—men who were ready to lay down their lives for the great cause of human liberty. A hollow square being formed in the middle of the field, the Sous-Prefet, representing the French Government, made an address, formally presenting the land on which they stood to the United States Government, to be used for the burial of American soldiers and sailors. It was a touching address, as one remembered the sad experience through which France has gone during the past three years. I am sending you a copy of it, in full. It was eloquently delivered in French by the Sous-Prefet, and the liason officer translated it into English. Then followed a most stirring address of acceptance and dedication by the colonel of an American engineer regiment. I am sure you will be interested to read this true expression of the spirit which characterizes the American Expeditionary Forces. Those of us who heard it on that occasion cannot soon forget the tones with which he uttered these concluding words, "To a soldier fighting in a just cause, no worthier fate can come than to be gathered with her own sons to the bosom of France,—France, to whom the world owes so much, and who has repeatedly shown to the world that a nation and a people willing to die for a cause can never really die." After music by the band came the distinctively religious part of the ceremony, when the land was duly consecrated. The chaplain of an engineer regiment read a portion of the 90th Psalm and a lesson from the 15th Chapter, 1st Corinthians. Your Rector said the prayer of dedication:

"Almighty God, maker of Heaven and Earth, bless and sanctify, we pray Thee, this ground which we here set apart as a cemetery for the burial of American Soldiers and Sailors.

"Guard from all molestation those whose bodies shall here be laid to rest.

"Bring them at last unto Thy eternal habitations and admit them to the fellowship of those blessed ones who have laid down their lives for their friends, through Jesus Christ, our Lord."

Other prayers for the nation and for the men in service followed. A French curé, representing the Roman Catholic Church, made appropriate prayers, for it is to be remembered that this cemetery will be for Catholics and Protestants alike. As the band played the Marseillaise and the Star Spangled Banner, the troops stood at attention. I am informed by the chief of the burial department of the American Expeditionary Forces that this was the first American cemetery to be dedicated in France.

That was less than three weeks ago, and already it has been my sad duty to officiate at the burial of sixteen American soldiers therein. At least, their friends and relatives should know that they repose in consecrated soil, nor is it foreign soil, for, as the above story shows, it is the most sacred of American soil. No soldier or sailor has been laid to rest here without full military honors, and religious rites. There is always a military escort, and at the conclusion of the burial office, the three volleys are fired, and the bugler sounds taps—the soldier's last call to rest.

Before I close, let me turn to subjects more cheerful. We had a wonderful Thanksgiving here. I was under the necessity of choosing between two turkey dinners. It was my privilege to say grace over three different Thanksgiving dinners, and when at last I sat down to partake of one myself, I was triply thankful. I was a guest that day at the American Base Hospital.

Already we are making elaborate preparations for Christmas Eve and Christmas night. We are going to have a huge tree, all decked out with tinsel and candles. Santa Claus is expected to come down the chimney and to hand out favors to the men. We expect to listen to Dickens' "Christmas Carol" and to sing the ancient carols ourselves. Yes, we are even going to have the lights turned down, while someone sings "Holy Night," so you see, among all the rougher elements of soldiering, the beauty and sacredness of the Feast of the Nativity will not be forgotten.

Do not let me give you the impression that this camp is a church, exactly. Last Sunday, for instance, the order went out that all the men must work, which left the chaplain high and dry. To be sure, I had engaged a pianist and violinist, and the chaplain's assistant felt it his duty to be present. Aside from these, I had no other congregation at the start, but nothing daunted, I put on my vestments and started to sing the opening hymn lustily, accompanied by a violin obligato. In a few minutes, the congregation arrived. The kitchen police had heard the singing, and hastened to the rescue. To be sure, the cook was decked out with cap and apron, and looked almost as ecclesiastical as the chaplain, but we are not fastidious over here in France. We really had a good little service.

I will write you more about the seamy side of the military tapestry in a later epistle. Wishing you all a happy new year, I am,

Faithfully yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE,
Chaplain.

Translation of Sub-Prefect's Address

By Major Appleton

I am deeply impressed, gentlemen, while presenting the American Army with this small part of French ground, which is to become for you and for us, a particularly blessed place.

We, the French people, are rather known of you through the beauty of our history, through our love of Liberty, through our generous spirit, through the genius of our writers, our scholars, and our artists, and through the fame of our capital. But, before all, we are deeply attached to our country; so that the best way to understand our qualities, and I should say, our defects, too, is to think of this love of our native land. Yes, we do love this ground which belongs to us. We are always keeping touch with it, and this is the reason why we very seldom go abroad. We never lose sight of it, and the prospect to return one day into its bosom is always mitigated by the thought that it was a real mother to us, and that being buried in it is to enjoy the most quiet, peaceful rest.

As for you, citizens of the United States, crossing the sea with your formidable armies, which have come into life out of your sense of justice, of your love of honor, of your respect of right, of the matchless resources of your people, of your methodical organization and stubborn spirit, —now you are coming to us. And you are as welcome as lifelong friends whose mutual feelings have been known since the hour when we fought together for liberty. You are coming to us. But, unfortunately, each one, who in spite of German submarines, crosses the ocean, is not sure to see his home again. Some of your soldiers will fall here. But these, at least, will be few, we do hope sincerely; and our greatest desire is that your losses are as small as your glory will be great. As to the gallant soldiers who will sleep their everlasting rest in our land, we are offering to them this place as to our sons and brothers. May our land be their resting home, as sweet as it is for the many sons of France who have already fought and died. Surrounded with our respect and love, let them sleep peacefully in this ground which has become from this day a piece of their own land.

Address

By Colonel Sewell, 17th Engineers (Ry.)

It is our duty and our privilege here to dedicate this plot of ground as a last resting place for some of us who have come to France,—and some who will come to France,—to return no more to our native land.

This is not an ordinary occasion. It is customary for a people to provide decent resting places for their dead, but what we do here today is more than that, it is a part of the pledge of a great people to a great cause.

Had one the ability to paraphrase the speech of President Lincoln at Gettysburg, the present occasion would justify it.

At Gettysburg, President Lincoln dedicated the country to the prosecution of a war to preserve free and liberal government from destruction by inward dissensions. That dedication occurred after the decisive battle of a great war, but before its finish. Here, by our act, our country consecrates herself and us, and all of her sons to the protection of free and liberal government and decent international dealings against the most brutal and arrogant government and the most indecent nation that has ever existed. Here, also, the act of dedication occurs after the decisive battle of this war, for it has really been won by the sons of France,

But much remains to do; while we had not the privilege of sharing in what has gone before, we know, as we stand here today, that our country and we, her sons, are pledged to our full share in what is yet to come.

The motives of men and nations are never entirely simple, but always there is one that dominates the others, without which all the others are inadequate. In the complex of motives which is evidenced by our presence here today, what is the dominant one, the one without which we would not be here? Undoubtedly it is the firm conviction of the people of the United States that the real issue in this war is the whole question of the right of peoples to live under conditions that make life worth while; that the ruling classes of Germany have made of themselves and their nation a horrible Frankenstein; a soulless monster, dedicated to the worship of brute force, devoid of all sense of justice and decency in international relations, committing the basest and most infamous acts in the name of national necessity and justifying these acts by blasphemous use of the name of the Most High.

Our people feel that here is an international thug, grown powerful through devious ways, running amuck among the decent nations of the world, and attempting nothing less than to strangle them all.

Under such conditions we cannot stand aside. As a good citizen of the community of nations we must do our part to reduce this malefactor to order. It matters not that by doing our part now, we possibly save ourselves from greater exertions in the future. The dominant motive that has caused our country to send us here is the conviction that she and we must not shrink from the duty that lies before us, and that duty is first to the whole community of decent peoples and only secondarily to ourselves.

In full knowledge of the high purpose that sends us here, as a token that we stand ready to pay the price that our duty may demand, we here dedicate this plot of ground to those who must and will make the supreme sacrifice. It is a solemn and serious duty, but not one to make the heart heavy nor the soul bitter. Rather do we rejoice that, in such a cause we are privileged to risk ourselves and all that we are.

And this plot of ground itself. It is part of an historic soil; on it men have lived and died, fought, struggled, succeeded and failed; since the beginning of authentic history and before. Could the soil of Brittany tell its whole story, it would be nothing less than that of the struggle of the human race from its humble beginnings up to the point where a great nation can stand forth and show to the world, as France has done in this war, that a nation has a spirit and a soul, and can stand for right and justice first.

For those of us who may pay the supreme sacrifice is, therefore, provided here a final abode, worthy of the cause in which we are engaged.

To a soldier fighting in a just cause, no worthier fate can come than to be gathered with her own sons to the bosom of France, —France, to whom the world owes so much, and who has repeatedly shown to the world that a nation and a people willing to die for a cause, can never really die.

Address of Chaplain at the Burial of William E. Megee

It has not been my custom in officiating at the burial of American Soldiers and Sailors here in France to pronounce any eulogy. These patriots require no eulogy. He who stands beside these silent mounds in future years will be stirred to read the simple record revealing the fact that these Americans died in France at this momentous time in history. That is enough. Here sleep American patriots who offered their all upon the altar of Human Liberty.

But I am constrained to speak on this occasion, because I knew this man personally. He is the first of our regiment to surrender his life. His loss comes very close home to us all. I knew him to admire him. The victim of a terrible accident, which plunged him into pain and the staggering prospect of the life of a helpless cripple, he did not lose heart; he did not even complain. He was fine through it all, courageous, cheerful. Why to have known him during those days at the hospital was to lose half one's fear of wounds and death.

No soldier at the front could suffer worse mutilation than he. But his soul was not mutilated. Quite the reverse. A change came over him during his two weeks at the hospital, as though his soul had turned to God and had been strengthened and refined by God's grace. I could tell you of things he said, but they are too sacred for public utterance, even on this occasion. He had only one free arm; but whenever I went to his bedside, his right hand was stretched out, and when I left he always shook my hand, and there was something about that handshake which I shall not soon forget.

Men of the 19th, Megee was a man and a soldier. The supreme test of suffering and death proved it. He has set us all a splendid example of manliness. While we mourn his loss, let us lay to heart his fineness of courage. Let us face misfortune, suffering, death, as he faced it.

May God comfort his mother and his other loved ones as the sad news reaches them, thousands of miles away. Well may any mother rejoice to offer such a son for her country and for the cause to which this expedition is devoted.

And let me add before we take leave of this open grave, that we believe it is an open door to another, greater, more glorious life. He who opened that door of immortality has said, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give you a Crown of Life."

The Christmas Communion

The attendance at our Christmas services was about the same as last year, and about the same number received the Holy Communion; the aggregate being something less than one-half the number of communicants reported to the Annual Convention as communicants of this Parish. What about the two hundred or more who did not receive at Christmas? The Priest-in-Charge, although a comparative stranger among you, missed many faces he had hoped to see at the altar rail, and many familiar names are missing from the list compiled from the cards left at the door by those present. There will still be several opportunities for those who were away from home or unavoidably prevented from receiving at one of the Christmas celebrations. On the Sunday after Christmas there is a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7.30 A. M., and on the Feast of the Epiphany, January 6th, one at 7.30 and another at 11 o'clock. Will not those who have not been able to come before, make an effort to receive at one of these services? This is not only a great privilege, but an obligation as well, for every communicant of the Church. It is inconceivable that any Christian, believing in the Incarnation of our Blessed Lord, which we celebrate at Christmas, should neglect the opportunity of sacramental union thus provided for every individual soul. Of what benefit to us is the union of the Divine and human in the Incarnation, unless our individual human nature is united to our Blessed Lord Sacramentally? If we allow our family or social celebration of this great event to crowd out its spiritual significance and observance, we have robbed it of all meaning and ourselves of the blessings intended. There can be no real Christmas apart from Christ. Worship and communion should be the keynotes of our Christmas Festival. Feasting and the exchange of gifts are meaningless, if we neglect the spiritual realities.

JOHN M. CHATTIN.

From the Priest-in-Charge

Not being acquainted with all the communicants of Grace Church, and desiring to keep a list of those receiving at Christmas, I requested all those who did receive, to leave their names on a table at the church door. May I extend this request to include all those, not yet registered, who receive Holy Communion on or before January 13th (the Octave of the Epiphany). It has been suggested that all names so deposited be sent to the Rector in France with their Christmas greetings. I shall be most happy to carry out this suggestion, and hope his heart may be gladdened by many more than I have at present. The lists will be held open until after January 13th.

The Christmas Festival

The Church School Festival on Christmas Eve brought out the scholars in full force, and many of their parents.

The procession, headed by the vested choir singing Adeste Fideles, encircled the church, passed the well-lighted Christmas tree, and the children went to their places for the service, after depositing a small mountain of well-filled stockings for S. Ambrose Mission.

The carols were sung with unusual heartiness. There was an address by the Priest-in-Charge, which found the children's hearts, because it was made in the form of a story.

The Acting Superintendent presented prizes for those bringing in new scholars, and at the close of the services, the children were well content, in view of the times, with half the amount of sweets given them last year.

Duplex Envelope System

All members of the Parish are urged to avail themselves of the Duplex Envelope System as a regular method of contributing toward Missions and Church support. For pledge cards and envelopes, please address the Accounting Warden.

Candlemas

A more colloquial name for the Feast of the Purification is "Candlemas." The aged Simeon proclaimed Christ the "Light of the Gentiles" and the "Glory of Israel." From ancient times this festival has been observed by processions of lighted candles in the churches. The spreading light conquering the darkness symbolizes the mission of the Church to dark lands.

According to our custom for several years we shall have a Candlemas service in Church at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, February 2d. The whole Church school will attend. The children of the Font Roll are especially invited to bring their parents. This is one of the bright spots of our year's observances. All are welcome.

There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 7.30 A. M.

Offerings

On Thanksgiving Day, the offering for the Episcopal Hospital amounted to $247.08.

The offering on Christmas Day for "Disabled Clergy, and the Widows and Children of Deceased Clergy," was $260.25.

It is encouraging to note that both offerings, despite the times, were larger than those for the same objects last year.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

When Bishop Rhinelander was at Grace Church for the last confirmation, he spoke a few words in admonition of the way in which we Churchmen fail to support the institutions in our own Church, citing particularly, the case of the Episcopal Hospital. The same reproof is merited in connection with the fund for extending the Church to the camps, for, as yet, no very generous response has come to the request for money to carry on this most necessary work. Is it not quite as important as the clothing and feeding of the Men? Mothers are indignant that their boys do not receive winter outfits from the Government on time, and they talk loudly and long if the camp food does not happen to please; yet they seem little concerned with the welfare of the souls of these same boys.

Last month, in the PARISH NEWS, an appeal was made to all the mothers in Grace Church, asking them to picture their own boys away from home associations, thrown among companions of all kinds and lacking entirely the restraining influence of the Church. But they do not respond! Do they not care? Does their Church mean so little to them that it is a matter of indifference whether their sons are deprived of it or not?

There are many among the men who have been morally regenerated by their life in the camps, because they have been brought to a realization of the seriousness of this thing that they have undertaken. Instinctively these men turn to the Church —to the sacraments—for help and sustenance. But the Church is not there! It requires sacrifice on the part of those at home, to provide the money for its establishment.

Mothers! Will you not listen to the stirring call, and give liberally to this most urgent need?

The Bishop has asked for $50,000 at once. Shall Grace Church fail to do her part?

On Tuesday afternoon, January the 8th, the regular stated meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary will be held in the Parish House at 2.30 o'clock.

No notices will be mailed, as it is deemed advisable to curtail expenses in every way. Kindly bear the date in mind, and help to make it a successful and profitable meeting by attending and bringing someone with you.

Rev. Frederic Gardiner, L. H. D.

In the sudden death, on December 7, 1917, of the Rev. Frederic Gardiner, all the Church has suffered a great loss, but it comes with especial severity to this Parish.

From the time he came to reside here, three years ago, he was most generous in the gift of his time and powers for our good. Only our Rector knows how great was the help he gave. But we all remember with gratitude his work among us last summer, when he was in charge of the Parish.

The son of a distinguished clergyman and scholar, he inherited an aptitude for teaching, which he developed and applied in the education of a generation of school boys during the fifteen years he was headmaster of the Yeates School, at Lancaster in this State.

The directness and vigor of his mental processes, his sincerity and manliness of character and the deep spirituality which shone through his life, made, not only on his school boys, but on all with whom he came in contact, an impression not to be forgotten.

Of his success in other fields, others can speak out of a fuller knowledge than we possess. We desire here to record our grief at his death and our sympathy with his family in their sorrow.

Gifts from Grace Church

The Rev. Edwin S. Lane, of St. John's Northern Liberties, together with Deaconess Mills desires to thank the women of Grace Parish who have responded so generously to the request for furnishings for their Settlement House.

Deaconesses Kaign and Morris have also sent a letter of thanks from St. Agnes' House, Kensington, for the furniture sent there. A large van load was collected and divided between these two settlement houses. Books, games, pictures, rugs, a swing, Indian clubs, dumb-bells and a bench for the playground were also sent.

A large box of books sent by Mrs. Matlack to Rev. Mr. Henderson for his work in the negro camps along the Maine Line has also been gratefully acknowledged.

The two small organs, no longer in use by the Church School, have been donated by the Woman's Auxiliary to St. Monica's Colored Church, Forty-second and Woodland Avenue and to St. John's Northern Liberties.

Social Service

The function of the Social Service Committee is intended to be of a constructive nature. The committee deals directly with families in our own Parish, mostly those with children in the Church School.

The friendly visitor often finds poverty the basis of unsatisfactory domestic conditions.

To satisfy physical need is the first requisite, and funds for food, coal, transportation or medical attention demand a considerable outlay.

A yearly contribution for this cause is earnestly requested.

The Missionary Calendars

The Missionary calendars are now on sale in the Parish House. Apply to Miss Hearne or to the Educational Secretary. The price is 30 cents. Every family in the Parish should have one.

Advent Offering of our Church School

In a letter from our Rector, published in part in the December number of The Church News of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, the wish was expressed that he might have a large supply of soldiers and sailors' prayer books to put into the hands of all the men. It immediately occurred to us that this object would be a most suitable one for our Advent Offering in the Church School, not only because of our interest in the spiritual welfare of the men at the front, but on account of the joy it would bring to Mr. Cline to be able to distribute to the men of his regiment prayer books provided by his boys and girls in Grace Church. At about the same time came the request from the Board of Religious Education of our Diocese that all Advent offerings should be used for this purpose, and that every $50 given would provide 250 prayer books, with the name of the school inside the cover. At the carol service on Christmas Eve the offering was taken and amounted to about $50. Now we have decided to hold it over for about ten days, to give an opportunity to any who desire to add their contributions to this fund. I feel quite sure there will be a considerable increase when this comes to the attention of all the parishioners. What if we could send five hundred prayer books to Mr. Cline with: "From Grace Church, Mt. Airy," inside the cover! I think he would realize that every service during this Christmas Festival has been full of loving thoughts of him. We have, in preparing for each separate service, asked ourselves and each other, "What would the Rector do were he with us, or what did he do last year? In each heart, I am sure, has been the happiness of remembering him in all we have done, and the assurance that in the midst of all his pressing duties in France, we were as truly present in his thoughts and prayers as if he had been with us in body as well as spirit.

Mission Study Classes

The first Mission Study Class in 1918 will be held in Epiphany week, commencing Monday, January 7th, at 2.30 P. M., under the leadership of Mrs. Samuel Dreher Matlack.

Will those desiring to enroll, please hand their names to Mrs. Matlack?

Mrs. Hayes will hold her classes during Lent. The study this year is extremely interesting, taking the Bible as text-book, and Bishop Rhinelander's "Gospel of the Kingdom" as guide to find God's call and purpose and the mission of the Church and the individual.

The following report on Mission Study Classes in the Province of Washington during the past year was made before the joint session of the Synod, November 22d, last:

What has been done this year? There have been 341 classes and 4,790 members in classes.

This question was sent out,—"Is the Mission Study Class valuable in securing co-operation for one end in the work of the various agencies in the Parish?"

The answers differ. The majority report was that by its very nature it does cause co-operation. A few report that it is of no practical value and from three dioceses there was no report.

In the face of these differing decisions, it seems evident to me that I can speak only from personal experience.

Three years work here in Pennsylvania has convinced me that the Mission Study Class is one of the strongest factors in the development of co-operation, that is, a company working together for a common end.

We all meet together; members from the different branches of work in a parish, and in each class throughout the diocese, we are all using the same text-book, the same assignments, the same meditations, the same watchword. There, is unity, the very secret of co-operation.

Every class, whether normal or parochial, has an intercessor; one who, at the time of the meeting of the class, is interceding for its leader and its members. No one can doubt the wonderful help this brings.

I have never known in any department of life the fellowship and the co-operation born and bred of true mission study, and I take it for granted that by a Mission Study Class, we all mean a class studying the Mission of the Church, and that we do not limit the power of all missionary work by thinking of the study as "missions," only part of the whole.

I know of no system more compelling or more satisfactory, for it was our Lord's own method,—"He sat among the doctors, both hearing them and asking them questions." We do not for a moment suppose that they discussed only the geographical boundaries of the mission field and the number of inhabitants therein.

The most vital thing is,—What is the plan in the mind of the Greatest Missionary; how does it concern us, and why? The Mission Study Class is the place to find out. There, we study the Mission of the Church, and so long as we relegate to the background all fundamental questions, and cover them up, do you think we can ever co-operate? "Grant that we may all be joined together, in unity of spirit,"—by what?—"their doctrine." That is the essential thing. We must talk about it, we must understand it, for it is the very basis of co-operation. This method has produced one-half of the Mission Study Classes led in this Province the past year.

What should be done this year? We lay especial emphasis here, for it is our first year as an ally in the war which is convulsing the world. "Men are dying on a battle-line which circles the globe; women are suffering; children starving; rulers tumbling from their thrones; nations wiped out as a chalk mark." In this welter of vast issues, what place has mission study? One outstanding thought and query comes to all thinking people now. Is the Kingdom of God in this war, and by what means is it growing? This is one of them: The Mission Study Class. God is using it to establish His Kingdom,—for, it reveals to men and women the meaning of the Faith. There, we learn to love it, and there, we learn how to contend for it.

Will you recall the splendid death knell, ringing out now on the battle ground of this war! "Dead,—on the field of honor!" "Killed,—in action!" So we record the passing of our men into Life Eternal.

Are we here at home on the "field of honor"? Are we "in action"? Is the answer only Red Cross, and war relief work? For God Himself put the Kingdom of the Son of His love first, made that the "field of honor." In the Mission Study Class, the goal is the King and His Kingdom.

Is action only knitting socks and rolling bandages? Prayer is so much harder, but it is our greatest weapon, the ammunition we must depend upon before the war will end. In the Mission Study Class we learn the power of prayer.

The text-book this year is the Bible. The study is The Faith.

The clue to the study is Bishop Rhinelander's book, "The Gospel of the Kingdom." It really ought to be valuable in securing co-operation, for it does not even allude to the Protestant Episcopal Church in America. It has one clear, emphatic message,—"In Christ, shall all the nations of the world be blessed."

The government has made a great toll throughout this nation. Training camps for officers and privates have been established. The Mission Study Class also is a training camp, and do you think this enlistment is only "women's work"? We very earnestly ask your co-operation, and that you will become captains in this recruiting mission, whose fundamental aim is to form a company, operating together for one end: the King and His Kingdom.

E. SHREVE HAYES.

The War Call of the Church

Our boys and men have left our homes and churches. From the cantonments and camps in this country they are crossing the ocean to France. They are soldiers and sailors; they are, however, still boys and men; they are thinking as well as doing; some are homesick; others are tempted—all intend to do their duty to the end.

Who are going to follow them up, cheer and advise them?

The nation provides barracks, ships, equipment and guns; under military discipline the men develop. The Y. M. C. A. provides huts and a good social and moral atmosphere; the secretaries are friendly and often help men spiritually.

When, however, our boys and men are at home they do not turn to Y. M. C. A. secretaries for spiritual leadership, nor are they and we in the habit of worshipping at Y. M. C. A. meetings.

We have the Church with its Ministry and Sacraments.

To many thousands of our soldiers and sailors the services of the Church are endeared by long association.

Now when they are sensitive to every influence they need as never before the friendship and spiritual leadership of their own Clergy; they need the assurance that their own Church is with them, ready to help.

The final strength of a man is his will.

The will can be purified and fortified against the supreme test only by Jesus Christ and His Spirit.

The Church must, therefore, follow her sons into camp and ship and on to the battlefield, to give each his utmost strength, to speak to those who die for the nation the last word of pardon and peace.

How can the Church follow her boys and men?

The nation commissions ministers and priests of the various churches as chaplains in the Army and Navy; and most people think that there are enough chaplains for spiritual leadership.

Here are some facts as to the Army.

Last July, forty thousand young men were in the thirteen Officers' Training Camps, preparing to officer and thus give the tone to the new Army. And yet there was not a chaplain appointed for that body of forty thousand men. Today in great cantonments of from twenty-five to fifty thousand men there are only from two to six chaplains.

This is no one's fault; a great war has come upon us and we are unprepared. New laws and methods of administration must come.

Meanwhile what about our boys and men?

Clearly the Church must get to work. Last August the Presiding Bishop, realizing the situation, created a War Commission of clergy and laymen to act for the Church in these and other war relations. He appointed Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts, its Chairman. Bishop Perry, of Rhode Island, is the Executive Officer. Through the generosity of a layman the Commission has an ample office in the Bankers' Trust Company Building, 14 Wall Street, New York.

What practical work is the Commission doing?

Although there was no commissioned chaplain appointed for those forty thousand young men last summer, yet the Church had in or near every camp by the permission of the commandant a strong and sympathetic clergyman whose duty it was to become the friend of the Church boys and men; help them and minister to them.

In most of the camps there was a celebration of the Holy Communion in a Y. M. C. A. hut every Sunday morning.

Today the Commission is placing, with the permission of the commandants, volunteer chaplains in all the great camps.

For instance, at Camp Upton, Long Island, Reverend Dr. Manning, Rector of Trinity Church, New York, has accepted an appointment by the Commission to serve for three months. At Camp Devens, in Ayer, Massachusetts, two vigorous young clergymen are working under the guidance of Dr. Peabody, of Groton School. At Wrightstown, New Jersey, Reverend Karl Block is Voluntary Chaplain in charge of a Church House and Chapel at the entrance of Camp Dix. At Camp Custer, Michigan, Reverend William Heilman, appointed by the Commission in September, has opened a large Church Club House in the town frequented by soldiers who assemble in the Y. M. C. A. hut for church services on Sunday.

In all of the cantonments Holy Communion is celebrated by Church clergymen every Sunday morning, in some cases, as at Ayer, in three Y. M. C. A. huts at the same hour.

Later bulletins in the coming weeks will tell what is being done in other camps.

There are scores of smaller camps scattered throughout the country with several thousand or several hundred men and boys in each. Every parent in the Church will be glad to know if their boy can turn to a strong spiritual leader of their own Church for advice or cheer.

Laymen can often do what clergymen cannot.

Hence the War Commission is placing through the St. Andrew's Brotherhood, picked men of maturity and force, who as secretaries of the Y. M. C. A. will have special thought for the boys and men of our Church, not to draw them apart from others, but to prompt them to do their part in the moral and religious influences of the camp.

The nation provides the surgeons with surgical instruments; the paymasters desks and ledgers, but provides no equipment for the chaplains. We are surely unwilling to have a chaplain beg for his altar and service books. In France, where a regiment is billetted in villages along the railroad for several miles, the chaplain cannot reach his men without a motorcycle or a Ford.

The Church is unwilling to leave her chaplains unequipped.

Thousands of our boys are going to France—camps, trenches and, perhaps, hospitals await them.

The nation, Red Cross and Y. M. C. A. will do everything in their power for them. There will be times, however, when none of these will make up for a strong minister of their own church.

Bishop McCormick has gone to Paris to represent the Church. He, the chaplains and his fellow-workers will try to bring the personal touch from home to the boys.

> The other day a message came from a Western Rector that a boy of his parish was wounded before Rheims, giving the boy's address. What could be done? From the War Commission a cable message went immediately to Bishop Israel, who at the time represented the Church in France, and the parents of the boy knew that within a few hours the Bishop would be by his side.

Thus the offices of the War Commission in New York and Paris will be a medium through which messages and deeds of helpfulness will pass from home to the boys and men at the front.

Concentration of forces, strong executive, quick action are notes of today to which the Church must respond. When Mr. Hoover calls upon the Church, as he has done, for service, he can now deal not with five thousand clergyman, but with one Commission.

When the various societies and guilds of the Church, anxious to do their bit without overlapping other workers, want definite advice, they may turn to the War Commission. When Church people who have already contributed to the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. discover that the Church is organized to follow up her own boys, they find a Commission representing the whole Church through which the money will pour in right proportion to the various chaplains, organizations and camps.

The Visitation of the Sick

"When any person is sick, notice shall be given thereof to the Minister of the Parish."—(The Prayer Book.)

"Is any sick among you? Let him call for the Elders of the Church."—(The Bible.)

These quotations are simply to remind members of the parish of something which Christian people in these days, for various reasons, frequently neglect. Much might be written on the subject, as in a recent issue of the Parish News we wrote at length on the duty of parents bringing their children to Holy Baptism, and no doubt with as little result—so we simply quote from Bible and Prayer Book, and assure the people of our readiness to respond to all such calls.

Rule of Life

From the American Church Monthly

No prudent Christian lives without a rule of life: a Rule about prayer, about self-examination, about Communion, about personal expenditure, about intercourse with others, about the disposal of time, about study of Scripture, about management of his temper, of his thoughts and feelings and resolves. And such a Rule is meant, no doubt, to be kept; and in the Church of the Divine Redeemer, with the aid of His wonder-working grace, it can be kept. Every Christian may say with S. Paul, "I can do all things through Christ That strengtheneth me." But practically, for a great majority of us, such a Rule acts for us as did the ancient Jewish Law for the Jews. It is a tutor to bring us afresh, with a new sense of dependence, of guilt, of weakness, to the Feet of Jesus Christ. It was made and accepted in some moment of penitence and fervor; and that moment has passed. Since then we have passed through a time of darkness, of depressed moral effort, of enfeebled resolution, of shattered hopes—if through nothing worse. And so, with our broken Rule of life in our hands, we turn back to Him in Whose strength we hoped to keep it: "Lord!" we cry, "lift Thou up the light of Thy countenance upon us." Our Rule of life, like the Jewish Law of old, has done us good service; it has brought us, as a private tutor, to the School and Cross of Christ.—Liddon.

Let us read thoughtfully and prayerfully these words of the late Canon Liddon, and resolve to adopt a simple Rule of Life for Lent which shall bring us nearer our Blessed Lord this Good Friday and Easter than ever before, that "by continual mortifying our corrupt affections we may be buried with Him; and that through the grave, and gate of death, we may pass to our joyful resurrection." Concerning the Music

On the first of this month, Mr. Mahlon Yardley comes to us as Organist and Choir Master from Trinity Memorial Church, Ambler.

Mr. Yardley is a finished musician and experienced choir leader. Let all of us who are directly or indirectly connected with the music of the church, extend to him our hearty co-operation in making that important part of the services most attractive.

Our sincere acknowledgements are due Mr. Nodel, Music Master of S. Paul's, Chestnut Hill, for professional services of the highest order, under trying conditions.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The head of the Missionary Box Committee had troubles of her own in forwarding the clothing and other good things acknowledged in the following letters from the missionary in New Hampshire. At the last minute, traffic conditions prevented shipping the articles, as usual, conveniently in a barrel, but nothing daunted, she made up nearly a score of packages, each within the limitations of the rules of Parcel Post, and every last one of them went through to destination, and on time as may be seen. —EDITOR PARISH NEWS.

Goffstown, New Hampshire,
January 3, 1918.

MY DEAR MRS. JENKINS:

I am sorry not to have been more prompt in acknowledging the safe receipt of the "barrel," but just before Christmas, my wife was taken dangerously ill with what proved to be an almost fatal attack of ptomaine poisoning, and she is only now getting about even a little. I had the help of my father-in-law for awhile, beside the trained nurse, but life has been even more involved than ever, with the children to look after and keep quiet, and I have been able merely to keep on existing until now. Mrs. Beattie is entirely recovered, I think, from the sickness itself, but I fear that she will not be herself for some weeks at least. The doctor told me after the danger was over, that he did not expect her to live half an hour after he first saw her. Her pulse was gone as far as the elbow, and her heart was beating at 120 a minute and very weakly.

All the parcels came in good condition, the last one reaching here Christmas morning. What was sent has so relieved what I confess was absolute distress, that I do not know what more I can do, than to tell you so, and send my hearty thanks. We had reached the point where almost everything was going rapidly beyond mending, and with the first needs of warmth and food to attend to, I could not see how to clothe my family this winter. You have relieved very great anxiety, and made us all very happy.

My wife will write you when she can do so. For myself, the suit and overcoat fit me perfectly, and are keeping me warm in the 30° to 40° below zero weather we have been enduring this last week steadily. I had to make a forty-mile trip Sunday to a Mission up north, for the Christmas Communion, and although the average temperature was 30° below, I had a very comfortable trip. I fear I should not have been comfortable had I only the clothing I had before the coming of those bundles.

I wish that you would tell those who have been so kind to us that we needed everything that came and that everything came that we needed. I can only send my thanks, but you will understand how very much that means.

FREDERICK S. BEATTIE.

The following extracts are from the letter which Mrs. Beattie sent later:

We are all very grateful for the nice new warm underwear that we are wearing, and Mr. Beattie is finding his overcoat and suit just what he needs this 40° below zero weather. The sweaters, toques and mittens and all those warm suits are splendid. Harriet is most beside herself with her new clothes, two new dolls and the paper dolls. The flannel for the skirt is so lovely, and those dolls delighted me as much as Harriet. I had hoped to have gotten her dolls fixed up for Christmas, but of course, as things happened, it was out of the question. Such lovely warm blankets. I am so happy to have them for the comforters I had were giving out.

The linen is all nice, and the sheets came in time to use during my sickness. The nurse was looking all around for sheets. There were two extra beds in use, and my basket of clothes, ready for ironing, had been seized by kind neighbors, who intended to surprise me.

The rugs are beauties, and I did not have any difficulty in the least finding a place for them.

With the check that was sent, we purchased three pairs of shoes that were much needed, and there is a little left over.

I think Robert is a very fortunate little babe to have so many beautiful things given to him to keep him warm and "comfy." All the toys sent and the candy were much appreciated. I am sure you will be interested to know that the monkey and the rabbit have already had narrow escapes, the monkey from a hair cut and the bunny from a bath.

I hope you will thank all who took so much interest and thought and who gave so liberally of time and money and energy for us.

I could not help feeling that someone of you, at least, must know something of the needs of a family of growing children and I am sure you must have worked hard and faithfully to get so many boxes off in such good season, and certainly they have brought to us good cheer that will last, and added to the joy and happiness of those boxes was the fact that I had not slipped away as I had threatened to (so they tell me) and it was indeed a very blessed Holy Season for us this year.

FLORENCE J. BEATTIE.

Mission Study Classes

The Epiphany Class under the Educational Secretary is just about to have its third lesson. We are making a selective study of the Bible, with Bishop Rhinelander's new book, "The Gospel of the Kingdom," as our guide. Our object is to find whether the Bible, as a whole, has any one definite message for us; whether we may be admitted to the thrilling knowledge of God's purpose for man, from the beginning.

In these days of stress and strain, when the whole world seems to be a chaos, when all the threads of the pattern of life seem broken, have we not need to stop and see where we are going and not blindly stumble along? What is our goal?

In Genesis we find that God "created man in His own image," to walk with Him in Fellowship, endowing him with freedom of will, his greatest gift and greatest danger.

So, in Genesis, we take into our hands the clue; the thread: "Fellowship." We see Adam refuse, and hear God call again; this time to Abraham. One man and God to be the nucleus of the Fellowship. We see Abraham's response: faith and obedience. We follow the clue through man's failure, disobedience, repentance, return, failure again; always God's purpose persisting like a shining thread.

Then God Himself, who calls into the Fellowship, comes Himself, to perfectly answer the call. Christ was born of Mary by the act of God. The King comes to this earth to proclaim His Kingdom; His Fellowship. Follow the clue,—watch Him call the twelve,—listen to the question "Whom say ye that I am?" He has won their co-operation, faith and obedience.

Now, the third great act of God on man's behalf: The Holy Ghost; God comes upon a body of 120 persons, who have formed a Fellowship of Faith in Jesus as Lord; a human society who offer themselves in faith and obedience to co-operate with God,—and His purpose is accomplished. His Fellowship is created on earth among men. Now it can grow,—develop. The Kingdom of God is at hand, to be used; to be lived in.

A Kingdom at war with all sin; a Kingdom with enemies within and without; with traitors, pacifists, neutrals, slackers, within her ranks. The Church Militant. His instrument to prepare the way for His Second Coming. When will this be? When the gospel shall have been preached in all the world for a witness—then shall the end come. Then "the Kingdoms of this world shall have become the Kingdoms of our Lord and of His Christ: and He shall reign forever and ever."

This is just a very short summary of this year's fascinating study. If you have not yet enrolled, will you not do so? It is not yet too late to join the Epiphany classes and there will be an evening class in Lent, under the able leadership of Mrs. Ralph L. Hayes. If requested, there will be other classes. We do not want anyone to miss this opportunity of learning God's will for us. How can we do if we do not know?

KATHARINE M. MATLACK.

Mount Airy Red Cross, No. 8

December saw the Mount Airy Red Cross reach its high-water mark. This does not mean any diminution of our efforts in the future, but a keen interest in our growth and efficiency,—a strong desire to do our best to win the war.

LIST OF WORK

Gauze dressings	11,470
Muslin bandages	1,736
Knitted garments	319
Pairs pajamas	100
Convalescent robes	180
Surgical shirts	250
Total	14,055

Is not this an encouraging amount of work for one month? Read it carefully. Then come and help us. Newcomers will find a hearty welcome and plenty of work. Present yourselves to Mrs. Burrell, chairman, who is easily distinguished by her scarlet head-dress.

The Campaign for Enrollment gave us 733 new members, bringing our total to 1,922; and we are not yet a year old.

The Christmas Dance was a social and financial success, clearing nearly $800 for the wool fund. We wish to express our thanks to Mrs. Thomas H. Ball, chairman of the Entertainment Committee, for her efficient work, and also to Mr. Ball for the refreshments.

The boys must have knitted garments as fast as we can make them. Our last month's wool bill was $600; so you can see that we no sooner raise one sum of money for wool for our busy knitters than we are wondering how the next wool bill is to be paid. The women in the Surgical Shirt Department are now working for the wool fund. They are giving a Bridge and "500" Party at the Stenton Country Club on Tuesday, February 5th, at 2 o'clock. The tickets are only fifty cents. If you do not wish to come alone, take your tickets and get up your own table. Do help this good work. Tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Herbert T. Lewis, chairman, 367 Gowen Avenue, or of Mrs. Burk or Mrs. Matlack.

Is there any woman in Grace Parish not a member of the Red Cross? Hand your name and one dollar to Mrs. Burk or Mrs. Matlack and come to the Work Room at any time on Friday for wool, or for sewing to take home, if you cannot stay with us and work.

The War Intercessions have been moved to Friday at noon, and many of the Red Cross workers are availing themselves of this opportunity to pray for the nation, the Red Cross and their sons and friends in the service.

The Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown

The regular meeting of the Woman's Aid to the Convocation of Germantown was held in the Church of the Epiphany, Tuesday, January 15th. The Rev. E. M. Emhardt told of the great work now in progress in Edgeley, north of Bristol. A shipbuilding company has twenty-two large shipways there, and plans are made to extend further on north, and build many dwellings. A public hall has been turned into a Union Chapel, and the best lots in the place have been donated for a church site. Funds will be needed for the services of a priest or a lay reader, and a chapel is needed at once. The better class of workmen have moved, and the substantial element has not come in.

This is work that belongs to us all. The conditions are those of war emergency. There are more church communicants in that part of Bucks County than in any other with the exception of Doylestown.

Bishop Rhinelander spoke of the wonderful work Deaconess Morris is doing in Kensington. With the Bishop's influence, and the good will of a few people, there are hopes of having there some time, a place like S. Martha's House. Deaconess Morris has in mind an old factory site, as a possible location. She is most happy in her work, and the growth is marvelous. The first month she had 140 on her roll,—the next month, 350. The Red Cross started with a membership of 10; now they have a membership of 58.

Deaconess Morris has not worked among boys especially, but the boys will come, too, and as they must have rules, they brought their own constitution; crude, indeed, but to the point. She has had help from many parishes, and keeps in touch with them all, but she especially mentions Grace Church to the Bishop.

After the reports of the officers, etc., the meeting adjourned to hear the reports of the men. We learned that ground has been purchased for a temporary chapel in Dolington. Progress was reported in both Wissinoming and Morrisville.

Bishop Rhinelander said he was more hopeful of the work of the diocese than ever before, and also of the work in the camps. He had attended several platform meetings at Camp Meade the Sunday before Christmas and reported great spiritual interest and many confirmations. An intensive observance of Holy Week was announced.

The Archbishop of York will be in Philadelphia on Palm Sunday and the Monday and Tuesday following.

Will You Help?

There is special need this winter for all the partly worn clothing that can be found, for a very urgent appeal has gone out from the City Mission for clothing as well as money. The demands were so great last winter that the Mission faces a large deficit.

Please send to our Parish House all the clothing you can possibly spare, for Miss Edrington must have her barrels as usual, and the city's poor must be helped beside.

The Church Periodical Club

The librarian of the Church Periodical Club wishes to thank everyone who has responded so generously and promptly to the appeal for reading matter for the Army and Navy. Remember that the call is still urgent. The Club is most anxious for all up-to-date fiction, and for literature on current events. Do not be weary in well-doing, but give all you possibly can to cheer the men in the camps, and at the front.

Ten parishioners have reported as sending magazines to the Rector and the 19th Regiment; probably many others are forwarding reading matter, but will not more in the parish respond to this more personal call, so that the librarian will not have to send word to the Central Office of the C. P. C. that Chaplain Cline is not fully supplied with magazines from his own parish?

The Church and the War

The United States had scarcely entered the war before the Church realized its tremendous responsibility and began to plan its campaign. On April 12, 1917, Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts, chairman of the Commission on Army and Navy Chaplains, issued a pamphlet containing suggestions on the work. In September, the War Commission of the Church at large was appointed by the Presiding Bishop. A War Commission of our own Diocese became an accomplished fact soon after this, Bishops Rhinelander and Garland heading the Commission.

The Church has faced an unique position in regard to its apportionment of chaplains. The Government recognizes that members of the Roman Catholic Church must have the ministrations of their own priests. It assumes that the Y. M. C. A. will satisfy the claims of all Protestant Churches, including us among them.

It is surely not necessary for me to prove to a body of churchmen and churchwomen that only the ministrations of the sacraments through the ordained priests of the Church can satisfy its sons in the camps, on the treacherous seas, or facing death in the trenches. They ask for the Bread of Life—shall we give them a stone?

So we must pay the salaries and buy the equipment of more chaplains than the Government will commission for us; we must send the Brotherhood of S. Andrew to keep them safe and strong in the Fellowship of the Faith; we must send the Soldiers' and Sailors' Prayer Book; we must send them the Church—and we are doing so.

I should like to tell you of the work of Chaplain Dickens at the Navy Yard; of Chaplain Groton of the Ambulance Camp at Allentown; of Chaplains McFetridge, Haughton and Hill at Camp Hancock; of Chaplain Jeffries, with Hospital Unit No. 10, now in France; of Bishop Murray's work at Camp Meade; and of S. George's Church and Club at Camp Dix. Above all, I should like to read the honor roll of those parishes and those priests who have made the sacrifice. Since I cannot, you should visit the busy rooms of the War Commission here in the Church House, and ask for literature on the subject. It is your duty to know what the Church is doing in the war.

Bishop Brent has once more returned to his great and tragic task. Let me quote him from the trenches:

"Men, knowing that they were going to die, soon began to take stock of the situation, and they learned that the only true values in life were those which they had in common with life here and life beyond the grave, and now they are turning toward God. Almost the last thing I did before I left the front was to have a Confirmation for the Deputy Chaplain General just outside of Paris, under heavy shell fire, when the building was swaying with the storm of battle during the whole of that service, and there were seventy men fresh from the trenches to receive the gift of God's Holy Spirit through the laying on of hands."

And there, too, is Chaplain Thomas Sparks Cline, of Grace Parish, Mt. Airy,—with a faith in God's purpose so sure and firm, that the terrible sorrows about him are not able to dim his courage and joy in life. I quote from a recent letter:

"My life is full and joyous here. Our soldiers are doing manfully in France. They go to their difficult tasks with merry hearts, yet with deep, serious thoughts and grim determination. The world is changed. We have great tragedies to face. God bless America. Oh, what a glorious country! America is today the hope of the world. But if America is to be the world's Saviour —America must have her Calvary.

"How strange and terrible it all seems —and yet somehow glorious.

> " 'Let the hero, born of woman,
> Crush the serpent with his heel,
> Since God is marching on.'

"Somehow, I do not now sympathize with people who have suffered — I reverence them."

Shall we be able to face our boys when they come home, if we have cared only for their bodies and not for their souls? Dare we withhold our love, our money and our prayers? Theirs will be the Fellowship of Sacrifice. What if we have no part in it?

K. M. M.

What Are We Going To Do About It?

The Church is facing a new and serious problem in its Diocesan work; a problem born both of the war and of labor conditions.

The war has cut us off from immigrant labor. It has also increased the need for unskilled labor. The Southern negro is the answer. During the past year thousands and thousands of negroes, men mostly, have come to Philadelphia, and nearby towns. We have heard, vaguely, perhaps, of the serious difficulty of housing these people. We have thought it no concern of ours. Can we afford to have whole armies of colored men, the majority of them without their families, living under conditions that engender diseased bodies and souls, and say, "What have we to do with it?" There are five thousand in the little town of Coatesville alone.

In Philadelphia the negro quarter is so crowded that whole families are living in one room. Health, morals and efficiency are consequently impossible. In Chester, Coatesville and other places the same conditions prevail. There is no opportunity in most places for social life—only the saloon and lowest of vaudeville houses are open to them.

Now comes the great ship building plant at Hog Island. Many more thousands of negroes will pour into nearby Elmwood to be housed, amused and instructed.

Out on the Main Line of the Pennsylvania R. R. there are ten thousand negroes in ten work camps, scattered between Philadelphia and Harrisburg. Successful war means successful railroading and that means labor. These negroes are employed in railroad work and are housed in barracks just as our soldiers are. They seldom have their families north; they must be kept from the lure of the great city. They must be entertained and they must have the Church.

Who is caring for their social and spiritual welfare? The railroad is doing nothing. The Y. M. C. A. is doing nothing. The Episcopal Church alone, of all the Churches, has a worker among these men, the Rev. Mr. Henderson, colored priest. No people are so influenced by their clergy as are negroes. And no Church is so fitted for the negro as is our own. Its restraint, its dignity, its beauty of ritual, soon show their ennobling and refining influence. The excitable, shouting forms of worship are the very worst they could have.

All this work, all these towns and camps are in our own Diocese—colored missions right at our door. Mr. Henderson is working without salary, and under the handicap of long distances to travel between camps and wastes valuable time.

Who will make a Thank Offering at this time by helping pay his expenses, or donating an old automobile, or sending a Victrola or records, games and books for this work? Shall these negroes be a menace, or shall we help them up higher? "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me."

Educational Day

Diocesan Educational Day, January 16th, in the Church House, was marked by a series of lessons and conferences that were inspiring.

There were about twenty women present from Grace Church. The day began with a Celebration of the Holy Communion at 8.30 o'clock, Bishop Garland being the celebrant. Mission Study classes under Rev. Mr. Lane for the clergy, and Mrs. H. A. Pilsbry for women, were well attended and listened to with breathless interest.

A general conference followed. Mrs. North spoke of the United Offering, Mrs. George of the Woman's Auxiliary, Miss Bayard of the work of the Junior Auxiliary, and Mrs. Matlack of the Church and the War; Mrs. Pilsbry of the "Gospel of the Kingdom."

There were noonday intercessions for "The Kingdom in the World," and an address by Bishop Rhinelander on "When Our Boys Come Home." Our boys are learning; will learn, obedience, fellowship and true liberty. What will the Church have to offer them,—what life can we share with them, when they come home, if we do not, in spirit and in truth, learn these same lessons?

The Mission at Edgeley

Another promising Mission which was fully described at the last meeting of the Convocation of Germantown, was the Mission at Edgeley. This is a small village situated a mile and a half or more north of Bristol and separated from it by a railroad and a stream. Between Edgeley and Bristol, up until the present time, have been but open fields. Recently a large shipbuilding plant has located itself in this district, purchasing property having a frontage on the Delaware River for half a mile. It has started the development of a plant which will employ high-class artisans and mechanics to the number of five thousand men. It is providing, for most of them, company houses. Its welfare department has planned a motion picture place and a Y. M. C. A. building, but has not concerned itself with any church work. The laborers doing the construction work on the plant are largely Italians, but the artisans who will be building the ships will come mostly from the northern parts of Europe, and will be Protestants.

The Church has an opportunity here to erect a Mission which will be first in the field and which will be able to care for the religious life of the people as they appear. The work is in charge of the Country Centre Mission. The owner of lands in that vicinity has offered to the Mission two choice lots. The people who are already there are favorably disposed to the Church, and are attending faithfully the services now being held in a hall or union chapel.

The Convocation passed resolutions endorsing the work and continuing it in the care of the Country Centre Mission. It is a work to be watched and helped. When the plans are further developed we will doubtless be called upon to do our share in helping it. Bear it in mind.

Prayers During the War

The following prayers are authorized for use in the Diocese of Pennsylvania during the time of war.

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop.

For All in Authority

Let us pray for the President and for all in authority, that God may grant unto them at this time special gifts of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and strength, that upholding what is right and following what is true they may obey God's holy will and fulfil His divine purpose.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God most high, Who alone rulest in the kingdoms of men, grant, we beseech Thee, the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit to Thy servant, Woodrow Wilson, our President, the members of his cabinet and of the Congress. Endue them with prudence, fortitude, temperance, justice and the spirit of a sound mind, that guided by eternal truth and right they may labor faithfully for the safety, honor and welfare of our country and the advancement of Thy kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For Those in Training

Let us pray for all those who are in training to serve their country, whether by land or sea, that they may readily submit to necessary discipline and be preserved amidst all the dangers and temptations which beset them.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O Lord, our God, we ask Thy help and blessing for all those who have willingly offered themselves and are now being prepared to take their part in the service and defense of their country. Grant that they may cheerfully submit to necessary discipline and training; shield them amid the temptations that may threaten them; make them strong and of a good courage to face the dangers that are before them; that in all things they may quit themselves like men to Thy honor and their country's safety; for the sake of Him Who suffered, died and rose again for us, Thy Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

For Our Country

Let us pray for our country that God may aid us at this crisis with His love and favor; that He may keep us from pride and vainglory, and make our hearts courageous and our hands "strong to labor, that there be no decay: no leading into captivity, and no complaining in our streets."

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God, Who hast taught us in Thy holy word that Thou dost not willingly afflict the children of men, grant that, in the present time of warfare and distress of nations, our people may know Thy presence and obey Thy will. Remove from us arrogance and feebleness; give us courage and loyalty, tranquility and self-control, that we may accomplish that which Thou givest us to do and endure that which Thou givest us to bear, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

Notes

The priest in charge or the editor would appreciate any information which would tend to make the Honor Roll more accurate.

Please note in the list of Stated Offerings: "Ash Wednesday—Missions to the deaf."

We need several sets of Prayer Book and Hymnal for the use of the clergy in Sanctuary and Choir, also a suitable lighter for the candles. These might appeal to some of you as gifts at Easter; if so, please consult the priest in charge or the chairman of the Altar Guild.

Owing to the uncertainty as to the supply of coal available, it seems best to defer the publication of Lenten Services until later. They will be printed on cards, as usual, and be distributed before Ash Wednesday, if possible.

One of the men whose name appears on the Roll of Honor writes as follows:

"Thank you for sending the PARISH NEWS. It was full of interest, and I certainly did enjoy reading all about the doings of dear old Grace Church. It was fine to have the Rector's letters, too. Also his picture, which I prize highly.

"The life here is most interesting, and we are working hard preparing ourselves for the larger service on the other side."

The Rector's Letter

My dear Friends:

I am not sorry I made a rash promise to answer every letter you would send me. My recent travels have hampered my letter writing, but you will hear from me eventually,—submarines permitting. You certainly have been putting me to the test. All through the month of January, I have been receiving Christmas letters and packages. I am very grateful for them all. Aside from the news of one sad event, your letters have been uniformly cheerful. Every mention of Mr. Chattin has been in terms of appreciation.

Your correspondence has furnished me with a composite picture of vigorous parish life, with services well attended and good works well sustained. A letter handed me by the orderly this minute states that you will end the year with a substantial surplus.

I can truthfully say that I was never more conscious than at present of the joy of the pastoral relationship. I am so glad I am not simply a Chaplain and nothing more. I feel that I have come to know some of you better through your letters than I did before through personal contact.

I could hardly believe the report of Dr. Gardiner's death. Only a few days before it reached me I had a characteristic letter from him containing a cheering message for one of my men. He always had a lively interest in individuals.

His love of Church and Country was ardent. When I told him of my intention to join the forces he was enthusiastic and offered at once to render what aid he could in the Parish. You know with what generosity he did so, ministering to you on the very last Sunday of his life. His memory will long be an inspiration, especially to us, the people of Grace Church.

Just think, it has been seven months today since I set up my bunk with the engineers, and five months since I came to France. My experiences have been varied and interesting, especially during the past few weeks which have been spent in visiting the scattered portions of my regiment.

I travel in a Dodge car, accompanied by my soldier assistant. The car was purchased out of the Chaplain's Fund, but is now Government property and wears the olive drab of all U. S. cars in France. It has its distinctive insignia, however,—the Church flag with a white cross on a blue field—painted by our regimental artist.

My assistant is a graduate of the U. of P. and serves as chauffeur when we travel, and as private secretary when we are at station. Incidentally, he is a very congenial companion.

Last Sunday we visited troops in ———. Unfortunately, the men had to work all day. In the morning I attended high mass in a dim and lofty thirteenth century cathedral. In the evening I administered the Lord's Supper in the engineers' mess hall. How different the setting and yet inwardly the same great Sacramental Mystery.

The deepest satisfaction I have as Chaplain is to give the Bread of Heaven to a row of kneeling soldiers. The invitation is always extended to all Christian men.

Barriers seem to melt away and we find ourselves for the moment in the very heart of Holy Religion. But do not imagine too ideal a picture. Comparatively few men really value the Christian Sacrament. Our Roman Catholics attend mass in their Churches which are everywhere accessible. They are much more religious than the Frenchman with whom they are associated in their work. In fact, the Churches are quite deserted by the men in France. A striking exception to this seems to be the poilus. I often see large numbers of them either at services or at private devotions.

On our way we have visited five American Base Hospitals and a number of French hospitals. The sick and wounded are being well cared for. They are always very bright and hopeful.

We passed through some mountainous country where the scenery was beautiful beyond description.

The winter has been mild. The land is everywhere under cultivation. On every hillside may be seen the peasant men and women with their huge white cattle, plowing the fields. There is no shortage of food. I never ate such delicious meals in my life as some prepared by these French people.

I am very sorry to learn that you have had such bitter weather and such shortage of fuel. The aggregate Church coal bills in France would not amount to much. No attempt is made to heat Churches,—and no serious attempt to heat hotels or houses.

This letter will reach you in Mid-Lent. We are looking forward to Easter,—our Lord's great day of victory. But first we must pass with Him through the valley of the shadow of death. So it is with us,—beyond suffering and sacrifice lies triumph. PATIENCE.

Affectionately yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

February First, 1918.

Lent

I hope the first ten days of Lent are not to be taken as a sample of what we may expect in the way of Lenten observance in the Parish. About one-fifth of the communicants commenced their Lent at the Altar, seeking there the strength needed for a faithful observance of this wonderful Season of opportunities. The Church does not suggest to her members that they keep Lent; She requires it of them; and one would think every Christian instinct would draw the members of Christ to commemorate His Forty Days Fast for us by a real "Imitation of Christ." It is pitiful to see the empty places in even the small room in which we are holding our Services, and to know that a large majority of our people have not attended one Service. It is not impossible for many who make that their excuse for not coming, no, simply inconvenient,—and we are willing to let our lives slip away, not only our Lents, but our Lives, without any real effort to conform them to the will of God in all things. I beg of you careless, indifferent, nominal, self-indulgent Christians, to shake off your habits of sloth and indifference Now, and begin this Lent to come to the Services of the Church frequently, that you may learn God's will for you, and to the Sacraments regularly, that you may find the strength to enable you to perform it in your daily walk.

"Be not deceived, God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he reap." Now is our sowing time, but the reaping is sure. Can we afford to let this Lent go past without making a real effort to sow to the Spirit that we may reap life everlasting?

God must come first in our lives, all else must fit into its secondary place, not our other activities and interests first and God's next. The Devil will soon see to it that there is no next to offer God, even if He would accept our secondary consideration. No—the command is, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, soul and mind, and then, thy neighbor as thyself.

Do not, I pray you, be tempted this Lent and Holy Week and Easter to neglect God, making the excuse that your neighbor requires all your time. God will bless your work for your neighbor if it takes its proper place, and that surely is not God's place in your life.

Yours faithfully,

JOHN M. CHATTIN.

Patriotic Sunday

The Committee of Public Safety for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, George Wharton Pepper, Chairman, requested that every Church in Philadelphia inaugurate a Patriotic Campaign on Sunday, January 27th.

The War Call of the Church is: "To follow our boys to the Camps and to France.

"To bring the ministry and sacraments of the Church to every Churchman."

As this periodical went to press before that date, no notice of the services appeared in the February number. It is not too late, however, to record that a large and attentive congregation heard a most stirring address by A. D. Parker, Esq., of this city, and that the offerings for the Chaplain Fund amounted to nearly one thousand dollars in cash and pledges. The amount asked for from our diocese was $150,000. Have you given your share towards this noble work? If not, you can get an envelope for your offering or a card for your pledge at the Church door, or from Mr. Bayard. We are sure no one wants to miss this opportunity.

At the service of Holy Communion at 7.30, there was intercession for our Country and her Allies, and for all the men in the forces.

Pews and Sittings

All who desire to engage pews or sittings may apply to the ushers at services, or to the accounting warden, Mr. James Wilson Bayard, 105 East Johnson Street, Germantown, Philadelphia.

Will You Help?

There is special need this winter for all the partly worn clothing that can be found, for a very urgent appeal has gone out from the City Mission for clothing as well as money. The demands were so great last winter that the Mission faces a large deficit.

Please send to our Parish House all the clothing you can possibly spare, for Miss Edrington must have her barrels as usual, and the city's poor must be helped beside.

Lenten Boxes

We hope all parents will take an interest in the money boxes in which our Church School pupils are gathering their Lenten Savings to add to the Easter offering for Missions. A little interest and sympathy in their efforts would help a lot. Bishop Tuttle writes to the children of the Church in this month's Spirit of Missions, asking them to increase their offering this year by thirty-five thousand dollars. This means hard work and increased self-denial. We can do it through His help.

Mission Study Classes

Two Mission Study classes are in progress in the parish. Mrs. Hayes' class has just begun. It is held in the Parish House on Tuesday evenings during Lent, at 7.45.

Mrs. Matlack's class is about half through the course at date of writing (February 19th), but any who find an afternoon class more convenient are welcome. Monday, at 2.30, in the Parish House.

The Bible is being studied as a whole, with a view to finding in it God's plan and purpose for mankind. The Bishop's book, "The Gospel of the Kingdom," is our guide or key.

If you can enter either of these classes as a student, you will find it a wonderful course. If you can only come as a listener, you will undoubtedly get something. So consider this an earnest invitation to one or both classes.

THE EDUCATIONAL SECRETARY.

To Roll of Honor Men

Send us your photograph. We want to show a group, with the Rector of Grace Church in the center, and our honor men surrounding him. If you can send the photographs unmounted we would prefer them that way.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

On Monday afternoon, March 11th, there will be held in the Parish House, a Sale of useful household articles,—aprons, towels, rugs, war-time recipes and things of a like character.

It is hoped that the attendance will be large; that people will make a real effort to be there, for the proceeds of this Sale help materially with the missionary work of the Auxiliary, and it is not necessary to say that this year large sums are required to carry it on. They are not useless, ornamental things, you are asked to buy, but the articles that every woman needs every day in her home. Why not buy them here, when by so doing you will contribute to missions as well as fill your own requirements? They are of good materials and they are well-made by women who have spent time and energy in their preparation.

Your time and energy are needed too, at the Auxiliary meetings every Monday, to help with the sewing that must be done, because May isn't really so far off, especially if we count just the meetings between now and then, and the first week in May finds the main work of the Auxiliary done, until another fall comes round and we start in all over again. There have been cold Mondays and stormy Mondays a plenty this winter and people have not been able to be out, so now the time will have to be made up by increasing the number of workers. There are aprons to be made, and there are always carpet rags to be cut and sewed; there are slips for children in the colored ward of Grace Hospital at Morganton, North Carolina; there are dresses for the girls and pajamas for the boys in the schools at Cape Mount, Africa. Now because some of this work is for people far away, do not say you are not interested. These children have to be cared for, they have souls and bodies just as we have, and they have to be clothed and fed and taught no matter whether they are in Africa or America, no matter whether they are black or white.

Come next Monday and bring someone with you, to sew. What a roomful there would be if every woman in the Church would do just that!

To Grace Church

O House of God, which stands so calm and fair,
Amid the turmoil and the noise and strife!
Within thy doors are hope and peace and rest;
Without, the struggle and the pain call'd life.

How wonderful it is to turn aside,
And kneel before thine altar lost in prayer,
Yet know that just outside lie tragedy
And strangely mingled laughter and despair.

Well art thou nam'd, thou stately Church of Grace,
So calmly standing midst life's wild alarms;
May we like thee wait trusting in our place,
May we be folded close in God's own arms.

These verses, received from the Rector of Grace Church, New York, came to him anonymously in the year 1911—away back in the Age of Peace—so to speak! Only seven years have passed, but how long ago it seems! By comparison with the awful today of our lives, we can truly feel that there were then only the "turmoil" of the city streets and the "noise and strife" of one's daily life, to drive the passer-by to 50 operating gowns. Our total for January is as follows:

Knitted Garments	390
Surgical Dressings	11,627
Muslin Work	1,335
Hospital Garments	100
	13,452

The workroom is open all day Friday. Have you noticed in the papers the phrase "the American front?" Our boys are on the firing line. Come and work for them.

Four Lectures by the Bishop—Religion in War-Time

Those who missed the Bishop's four lectures on Religion in War-Time, will be happy to know that they are shortly to be published in booklet form.

Every churchman should step into the Church House at 12th and Walnut, get these lectures and read them carefully. They contain a new message; a thought so thrilling, so vital, so advanced, that it should make over Christendom and unite all men in a religious democracy, unselfish, un-individualistic, corporate.

Many of your perplexities and questions about this war, its purpose and God's plan, are answered with such depth and truth of reasoning that the hearer is amazed, and satisfied.

[The following letter from the Rector was delayed in transit and was received too late to print in the February issue.

EDITOR PARISH NEWS.]

My very dear Friends:

This is New Year's day and I am going to begin the year right by sending you a long letter. I thought of you a lot during Christmastide—and I had special reason for doing so. Just four days before Christmas I received a letter from Mr. Walton enclosing a money order for eight dollars as a "little remembrance of the children." It certainly did make me happy to be remembered by you and I love you all for it.

Would you like to know what I did with those eight dollars? Well, first I had them changed into francs—for we have no use for dollars over here, but many uses for francs. Then, too, it makes so much more money to have it in francs. Eight dollars makes forty-five francs and sixty centimes, and you will admit that is some pile of money, "beaucoup d' argent" as they say in France.

Well I took that pile of money to Captain O'Connor.

Now, of course, you don't know how great a person Captain O'Connor is, but I assure you he has many titles, Battalion Adjutant, Permanent Officer of the Day, etc., but the special title which he bore on Christmas Day was Santa Claus. That was the reason why I handed him the forty-five francs and sixty centimes—so he could buy some presents for twelve little French children—six boys and six girls. You see France has been at war so long that many people are too poor to buy Christmas presents. Living near our camp are hundreds of sweet children, whose fathers have gone to the War. The officers and men of our regiment thought it would be nice to have a Community tree for them. I wish you could have seen Captain O'Connor dressed up as Santa Claus (in a handsome costume made by our regimental tailor) standing beside a huge Christmas tree in the School yard near our Camp, handing out gifts to the French boys and girls. The children had all received invitation cards, which read as follows:

Fête de Noel

Donnee par le 19eme Genie Americain

Vous êtes cordialement invite, cher Enfant de France, d'assister a la fête de Noel qui sera donnee par le 19eme Regiment du Genie Americain le 25 Decembre a 11 heures du matin.

A la presentation de cette carte il vous sera donne un cadeau.

Joyeux Noel.

You who are studying French will enjoy reading this greeting to the French children from our soldiers.

You may be sure they came. Over sixteen hundred of them passed up the alleys formed by rows of soldiers and received presents. Each package contained some useful article of clothing, a toy and candy. The band played Christmas music. The parents, school teachers, and friends of the children seemed to enjoy it almost as much as the children themselves. But I imagine the soldiers got the most fun out of it.

They carried the happy kiddies about on their shoulders, showed them how to run their new toys, and patted their curly heads. French children are always friendly and they seem to know that every man wearing the American uniform has a tender heart.

A great many of those "soldier boys" have children of their own,— perhaps that made them understand the French children better and love them more. They would have been terribly homesick if they hadn't been busy getting up the treat for the French children.

Another Engineer regiment on the other side of town gave a party of the same kind to eighteen hundred more children. So you see over three thousand children were remembered by the Engineers in this place Christmas Day.

Wasn't that splendid? Aren't you glad you had a share in it too? In another city, which I was visiting lately, the French people were getting up a Christmas party for the American soldiers—but I think our plan much better. Anyway it shows what a cordial feeling there is between the French and the Americans.

We had a lovely Christmas party here in Camp—with carols, tree, presents, Santa and all. But I must not tell you about it now for when you get this letter Christmas will have been gone a long time.

But I promised a long letter so here goes for a second chapter on "Birdmen."

BIRDMEN

A little girl looked up from her book and said to her mother: "I wish I were an Angel." "Why, my darling?" "Because," she answered, eagerly, "then I could drop bombs on Germany."

Some people call Aviators "dare devils" —but I visited a Camp where there were several hundred of them and really they reminded me more of angels. I can see some of them now—tall, handsome, fearless and yet gentle. These fellows were most of them college graduates and gentlemen.

One Sunday morning, as I turned to administer the Blessed Sacrament to a row of them kneeling on the bare floor, there were two women—(Y. M. C. A. workers) about to kneel. A giant of an aviator quickly made a kneeling cushion of his sheepskin coat with all the grace of a Sir Walter Raleigh.

Another fellow who waited for a little chat with me after the service said with much earnestness: "Probably ninety per cent of this bunch will be killed—but I have faced all that and I am resolved that if I die it will be with a clean conscience and if I am fortunate enough to go back home, I shall not be ashamed to face those whom I love."

One evening I had the privilege of introducing to a large group of these aviators—that true "birdman," Bishop Brent. I always think of him as an Eagle-sort of man who lives in the upper spaces with God. He would make a fine archangel. He talked like one that night. Before he left for the English front, where he was to spend Christmas, I had the pleasure of taking him about in the Chaplain's car and showing him a magnificent cathedral and several sacred shrines, including the tomb of a great Saint whose name you would all recognize—if I dared mention it.

One of the birdmen I introduced to the Bishop, was a man named Hamilton—who had worshipped in Grace Church, Mt. Airy, and has relatives in Germantown. I mention him especially because he took me for a wonderful flight one day, and one loves the man in whose hands one has entrusted one's life. Edgar Guerard Hamilton, Pilate Aviateur of the Lafayette Flying Corps, belongs to the famous Foreign Legion of the French Army, and is now engaged—as a good American should be—in teaching young Americans how to fly. One fine afternoon not long before Christmas, he togged me out with helmet and goggles and showed me the front seat in a large biplane. Soon we were a couple of thousand feet up in the air. It was most exhilarating. The first thing I did was to say the Te Deum.

Far below lay the garden spot of France —white with a scanty covering of snow. We swept over two rivers, a large city, and miles of chateau country.

Finally, as we returned to the region of the aviation field, which, by the way, was the scene of one of the most important battles of all history—we came down in a great spiral.

The machine pointed her nose to the ground and came swooping down in graceful curves which sent thrills through your "Sky Pilot."

It was a great experience—I wouldn't have missed it for anything. It took a little courage to get into the thing. It reminded me of how I felt as a small boy when I dared to jump off the haymow. I was determined to do it—but when I got near the edge I had to push myself over. I suppose men who go "over the top" have the same feeling.

But although I felt a hesitancy in starting, during the flight which lasted for more than a half hour, I felt safe enough. We seemed to be so well poised and we glided so gracefully when we turned about.

I don't wonder the little girl wanted to be an angel. It must be very fascinating.

N'est ce pas my cherubs?

Affectionately yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Judging from the meagre response made to the appeal from the Social Service Committee, the people of Grace Church have little concern for the poor in the Parish. There are so few, comparatively, who need assistance that it is a shameful thing that they are not cared for by the Church people. They belong to us, they are our responsibility. Will you not take this matter to heart and contribute to the work of the Committee whose hands are tied by a lack of funds?

The little brown envelopes were sent out for this purpose at the beginning of the year.

Prayers During the War

The following prayer is authorized for use in the Diocese of Pennsylvania during the time of war.

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop.

For Our Country

Let us pray for our country that God may aid us at this crisis with His love and favor; that He may keep us from pride and vainglory, and make our hearts courageous and our hands "strong to labor, that there by no decay: no leading into captivity, and no complaining in our streets."

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God, Who hast taught us in Thy holy word that Thou dost not willingly afflict the children of men, grant that, in the present time of warfare and distress of nations, our people may know Thy presence and obey Thy will. Remove from us arrogance and feebleness; give us courage and loyalty, tranquility and self-control, that we may accomplish that which Thou givest us to do and endure that which Thou givest us to bear, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Rector's Letter

My Dear Friends:

I have just devoured the January and February issues of the Parish News. The February one got here first; probably because the other was so weighted down with heavy stuff from the Rector.

If keeping Lent consisted in giving up things, we could easily keep this Lent, but keeping Lent really means walking with Jesus right down through the valley of the shadow of death and on out into the glorious light beyond. Therefore, it can never be easy. My Easter prayer for you, my dear parishioners, is that you may see that light beyond the darkness. May it flood your souls.

Do you remember last Good Friday? How dark it grew during our three hours' devotions. Then it was that America solemnly entered the war. Then we faced our cross. Now we are beginning to feel its weight. At last America's blood is being shed. Our countrymen have taken their place in that great line of defense against humanity's ruthless foes. They have taken the brunt of a German attack. The French Premier has commended their bravery. Americans are receiving the Croix de guerre. It is a beginning of sorrows.

Activities along the line seem to indicate that the hour is near for the long talked of German drive. What then? There is but one worthy answer, "Ils ne passeront pas." Are we believers in the Resurrection? Then we see the light beyond the darkness.

"This day the noise of battle;
The next the victor's song."

My tour of visitation to the Engineer troops, lasting five weeks and covering a distance of 1,900 miles by motor car, was completed a few days ago.

I have returned to the starting point, but not to take permanent station. In a few weeks I follow regimental headquarters to another city. This means that I am no longer Base Chaplain. The Rev. Henry Russell Talbot, Chaplain of another Engineer regiment, succeeds me in this work.

The Base Hospital in which I visited for several months has been under the care of Chaplain John M. Groton during the past month and a half. He will probably join his own Unit, No. 34, soon. The new Chaplain assigned to the hospital arrived today and lo, he is a Jewish Rabbi!

There might be some point to a roving Chaplaincy for a Hebrew, but so far as I know there is only one Jew in the hospital and he is a Christian.

Be assured the Base Chaplain will see to it that the sick and dying in the hospital have the comfort of Christian ministrations.

Meanwhile, my heart is in new plans for our future regimental home. I wish you could see the blue-prints already approved by our C. O. for a Chapel, recreation hall, canteen, and library. I look forward to the day when I can gather my flock together, twenty-five hundred strong. I say my flock —thinking of the pastoral side of our regimental life.

We have a new C. O. and he has promised me a parade service on Easter day. I hope it will be a bright day so we can hold it under the open sky.

We have opened a regimental library with over 800 volumes. The Chaplain has been appointed Librarian with an enlisted man as assistant. Sometimes he issues 130 to 150 volumes in one day. The books have all been donated. Over two hundred of them came through the Church Periodical Club.

I am constantly receiving magazines through the same agency. Many come also from Mt. Airy, thank you.

In closing, may I just say that I have often felt that I was actually sustained and strengthened by your prayers.

Affectionately yours,

March 2, 1918. THOMAS S. CLINE.

Rev. John M. Chattin

It was with very great regret that the members of this parish learned on March 5th that in consequence of the Rev. John M. Chapman having been called to the colors, we were to lose our priest-in-charge, the Rev. John M. Chattin.

During the five months he was in charge of this parish, he did for it everything the Rector could have done, in a way we are sure the Rector would have liked, and with an unflagging and consecrated zeal, which only a true love for the Master could inspire. He won the respect and affection of everyone with whom he came in contact, and was remarkably successful in keeping the parish in good condition. Only those actively engaged in parish work can realize what close and unremitting attention, what really hard labor, the accomplishment of such results requires.

Our best wishes go with him in taking up again his work at St. Paul's, Chestnut Hill.

It is a pleasure to record the able and unremitting ministrations of the Rev. A. Overton Tarrant, M. D., during the major portion of the Lenten Season.

St. Andrew's Brotherhood in Camp

The Editor and Mr. Chattin urged me to write for the PARISH NEWS something of my work as Brotherhood Camp Secretary at Camp Hancock. This, of course, should have been done while there, but I not only found no time for "notes," but did the unpardonable thing of dropping all correspondence.

Grace Church is vitally interested in camp work, and it is not too late for me to relate my experiences and explain the nature of the work.

The War Commission of the Church sends a civilian chaplain to each camp and also supports the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew in sending a layman to co-operate with the chaplain. The Reverend N. B. Groton, of White Marsh, was sent to Hancock, and in this I was particularly fortunate, for our methods of work seemed in perfect harmony, and it was to me, at least, most delightful to work with him. The Church boys in camp all love Mr. Groton.

While sent by the Church, the Y. M. C. A. recognizes the Brotherhood man as a helpful religious force, and he is made a member of its staff, but with a perfectly free foot to pursue the work of the Church. My relations with the Y. M. C. A. were most friendly and there was always hearty co-operation.

For the first three weeks I lived in the camp in a Y. M. C. A. hut. The conditions were almost identical with those experienced by the boys themselves. After that, I was obliged to move out for lack of sleeping accommodations in the Y. M. C. A. buildings. Then Mrs. Meehan came and we took a room just outside of camp. There with Mrs. Meehan's splendid aid we kept "open house" for boys who would come spend the evening with us.

My special work was to organize groups of men in companies, quite informally, impressing upon them the importance in army life of remaining loyal to the Church, and to express this loyalty, especially in receiving the Sacrament as regularly as possible; to render service to their Master by spreading a good influence among their fellows; and to cultivate the prayer life.

In the three months that I was in camp, I formed exactly one hundred such groups —not large ones, but totaling about three hundred and fifty boys. These are nuclei for large groups into which it is intended they shall grow. While I naturally worked among our own Church boys, a few of other communions drifted in, and it is really intended that without any purpose to proselytize, the movement shall embrace all earnest Christian men who wish to express loyalty to their Church and the religious activities of the camp.

Starting with three hundred names that were accumulated by Mr. Groton and the Brotherhood, in various ways, I gathered over fifteen hundred names of our Church boys. While building this list, I was working on the group formation, making the acquaintance of as many as I could, and incidentally, meeting the individual experiences that came in conversation with the boys. In this way, by actual record, I got to know personally,— some most intimately, —over eight hundred boys.

The organizing of groups sounds quite business-like, but the actual contact with the men was anything but that. There were countless opportunities for intimate talks with soldiers about their Church relations, their moral life in camp, and things of the future. Not once was I received with anything but cordial interest on the part of these boys, and they were grateful that the Church was staying right with them.

A day's work, tramping around camp, would bring varied experiences. Here was a young man who at home had been a bartender, Uncle Sam enforcing abstinence had cleaned up his system, and he expressed himself as glad to get back into touch with the Church and decent living. Then a boy would be found who admitted he had not been to Church since he had been in the army, though regular at home,—simply neglect, which we helped to correct. One young man with straightforward, rather honest eyes, frankly told me that he was everything he should not be, but he was glad I appeared for he had a "kid brother" in the infantry, and he was anxious he should go to Church. I planned to get both. Another nearby, in a talk of an hour and a half, gave me quietly a remarkable story of degeneracy, reform, and then nerve-failure in company with bad companions.

Don't get the impression most boys in camp are bad. My experience impressed me that Camp Hancock has as fine a lot of boys as can be found anywhere. The standard of morality is remarkably high, and the religious activities of camp and city are meeting with excellent response.

Every day I would meet new boys who are building up character strangely under the influence of army discipline. The great need is definite religion. Camp tendencies are to scatter all the old home relations. The Y. M. C. A. and regimental services, good and necessary in themselves, together with friendly invitations from various city Churches, make the soldier content to live his religious life from week to week. There is nothing coherent or constructive about it, and while one's character will be builded, the positive religious force is completely lacking. Here is where our Church has, with splendid foresight, established our chaplain and the Brotherhood Secretary in the Camps to hold the boys together and guide them. In limited space I find it hard to sufficiently emphasize the importance of the work as it appears to me. A layman is needed in my place, for business duties will keep me from going back. Will some Grace Church man volunteer?

There are three army chaplains in Hancock who are clergy of our Church, and I am glad to say that they are beloved by their regiments. But chaplains are given innumerable duties, and they are expected to be impartial among men of different denominations, so the need for direct representatives of the Church is scarcely diminished by the presence of these army Church chaplains.

In my heart, and with the approval of the Brotherhood, I did hope to go over with the Division when it sailed, but it seems now I shall have to remain in Mount Airy. This is the pleasantest place in the world ordinarily, but in the interest of Church and our boys, the work should go on. Lift up your prayers, dear friends, in behalf of this work, for our splendid Chaplain Groton, and for the boys.

S. MENDELSON MEEHAN.

Our Missionary Service

The Sixth Annual Missionary Service, arranged by the Presidents' Association of the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Branches of the Woman's Auxiliary, will be held in Christ Church, Germantown (Tulpehocken and McCallum Streets) on Wednesday, April 17th, at 8 P. M. This evening service is especially for the convenience of women who are occupied during the day, and is also for men. It is to be in the interest of work amongst colored people, and Archdeacon James S. Russell, D. D., Principal of St. Paul's Normal and Industrial School, Lawrenceville, Va., will make the address. The offering will be for the needs of this school, to which Dr. Russell has given almost unparalleled devotion —even declining an election to the episcopate.

The importance of our two Church schools for colored people can hardly be over-estimated, and they should receive the hearty and enthusiastic support which they deserve. Especially is this necessary at the present time, because of increased expenses along many lines. St. Augustine's School at Raleigh, N. C., celebrates this year its Fiftieth Anniversary, and St. Paul's the Thirtieth. Archdeacon Russell is so unselfish that he makes a plea for the older school, giving his own the second place! Shall we not improve the opportunity, afforded by our service on the seventeenth, to make his heart glad? M. C. S. N.

Duplex Envelopes

The current series of Duplex envelopes runs out at the end of April. A package containing a set of the new series will be mailed, in regular course, before May 1st to each of the present subscribers, who does not, in the meantime, notify the undersigned that he wishes to withdraw his subscription. The needs of the Church were never greater than now, and it is earnestly hoped that each present subscriber will increase or at least renew his pledge.

It would be a great help if the present subscribers would also notify the undersigned of the names and addresses of any other persons who, they think, would like to pledge themselves to systematic giving in this way.

It would also greatly lighten the labors of the person who keeps the Duplex envelope books if all those now in arrears on their pledges for the current season would pay up during this month, so that he may close that series promptly.

J. W. BAYARD,
Accounting Warden.

The United Offering

Swiftly the months have "rolled around," and we find ourselves approaching another Presentation Service—on St. Mark's Day, Thursday, April 25th, at 10.30 A. M. This time we are going to the southern part of the city—to the Memorial Church of St. Paul, Fifteenth and Porter Streets. The rector was disappointed last year to find that his invitation was too late. He is depending upon this service to give inspiration to the women of the parish. They have not, as yet, a Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary, or even the United Offering. Please attend if you can possibly do so, and thus help to bring the women of St. Paul's more closely into "the fellowship." The Fifteenth Street trolley passes the church.

Are there still those among us who do not know that our Grace Church United Offering supports a worker,—our very own missionary? It is a great pleasure and comfort to Miss Nuneviller that this is so, and we are proud of it and of her. The only trouble is that we are not solidly behind her with our prayers and our gifts. Every woman,—senior and junior,—should have the joy of a share in this offering. It stands for thanksgiving, and it means obedience to the command: "Go ye into all the world," for we are helping to send our substitute because we ourselves cannot go.

MARY C. S. NORTH,
Treasurer (U. O.)

Will You Help?

There is special need this winter for all the partly worn clothing that can be found, for a very urgent appeal has gone out from the City Mission for clothing as well as money. The demands were so great last winter that the Mission faces a large deficit.

Please send to our Parish House all the clothing you can possibly spare, for Miss Edrington must have her barrels as usual, and the city's poor must be helped beside.

ROLL OF HONOR

The following, who have enlisted, are commended to the prayers of the congregation:

The Third Liberty Loan

When the First and Second Liberty Loans were offered for subscription, there was no general campaign conducted throughout the Episcopal Church, though most of the denominations were organized for the purpose. For the Third Loan, which was announced for April 6th, Bishop Rhinelander asked that all Churches in the diocese appoint committees and do their utmost to obtain results that will be a credit to them.

The Grace Church Liberty Loan Committee earnestly ask that you, as members of this parish, will support them in their efforts by giving your subscriptions to one of their members who will call on you in regard to it.

Think carefully over the matter of this loan and make your subscriptions as large as possible, even to the extent of personal sacrifice, for sacrifice will be the order of the day for some time to come, and every penny raised could be used many times over.

Mount Airy Red Cross, No. 8

The report of the Mount Airy Red Cross does not cover the entire month of March, since the PARISH NEWS goes to press with one week's work still to be done.

MARCH 1ST TO MARCH 22D

Surgical Dressings	18,067
Hospital Garments	155
Knitted Garments	437
Property Bags	540
Comfort Kits	50
Total	19,249

A request for 50 comfort kits for the Serbian Army was answered by sending the 50 filled with 21 articles each, including a pair of woolen socks.

We were also asked for 400 property bags for use in hospitals. They are used to hang at the head of the bed to hold the personal property of wounded men. We responded by sending 540.

On March 22d we were addressed by Miss Rumney, daughter of Dr. Rumney, for many years rector of St. Peter's, Germantown. Miss Rumney explained the splendid work of the American Church in Paris (Trinity) which, under its rector, Dr. Watson, has so devotedly aided the refugees of Belgium and Northern France. Passing through Paris, cold, hungry, sick and sad, their eyes light up as they see the Stars and Stripes and the Cross.

Food and clothing are still needed,—condensed milk for babies, second-hand clothing, which the clever fingers of French women remake for the needy. Trinity parish house has been turned into an ouvrier for this work; Trinity rectory is a lodging house for the unfortunate. Miss Rumney asked gifts of money and of second-hand clothing. A collection was taken in the workroom amounting to over eleven dollars. Clothing has been donated, and more promised.

Now as this help came from the undenominational workroom of the Red Cross, will not Grace Church parishioners who have not had the privilege of helping this work of our own Church for "these, His little ones," desire to send money or clothing to the Red Cross rooms or to any active member?

Speaking of second-hand clothing, the American Red Cross has asked the country at large for 5,000 tons for immediate transportation, and our local auxiliary has sent a number of large bags. Further donations may be sent to headquarters, 221 South Eighteenth Street.

Don't forget the Easter Dance, Saturday, April 6th, at the Automobile Club. Tickets, $1, to be had of Mrs. Burk or Mrs. Matlack. Please buy whether you go or not. A short musicale precedes the dance which bids fair to be as delightful as the one at Christmas.

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

Despite many drawbacks in the nature of stormy weather, bad walking and heatless days, the work of the Auxiliary has gone steadily on and there is every indication that the result of the year's work will compare well with that of former ones.

In most organizations there is to be found a certain number of loyal members who can always be depended on to do, not only their own shares, but to take up the work of the absentees and carry that through too. Such a group of women is to be found in the Auxiliary, and to them is due the credit of keeping things going so splendidly during this trying winter.

More women should attend the annual meeting in May to hear how much has been accomplished, for it will surely be an inspiration to them to do their part another year. In a congregation the size of that of Grace Church, the work on the missionary boxes should certainly not be left entirely to twenty or twenty-five women.

Just now the Indian box is being prepared and many useful and attractive articles have been made for it. No package for the Indians, however, is complete without a quilt, and the Box Committee ask that some kind friend will donate a pretty new one for this purpose. It will be heartily appreciated and will bring both comfort and pleasure to its recipient.

Easter Monday will be a holiday with the Auxiliary, but the following Monday, the meeting will be held as usual.

The Junior Auxiliary

Do some of you girls know that the work of the Junior Auxiliary is still going on? The attendance has been falling off when it should be getting stronger.

The girls work for Miss Nuneviller, and do Red Cross work alternately. Already four hundred and twenty surgical dressings and eighty bandages have been made.

The Juniors took part in the sale given by the Woman's Auxiliary on March 11th. They sold bags of all descriptions and assisted at the tea table.

Girls, won't you come out and help to lengthen the attendance roll?

There will be no meeting on Easter Monday, but after that the work will go on as before. It is essential in order to accomplish what is before us that all the girls come to all the meetings. New members are always welcome. There is not much time between now and May 6th, when, at the annual meeting, the officers for the coming year will be elected.

To Roll of Honor Men

Send us your photograph. We want to show a group, with the Rector of Grace Church in the center, and our honor men surrounding him. If you can send the photographs unmounted we would prefer them that way.

Two quarts of milk daily are urgently needed in a family consisting of mother and six small children in this Parish. Anyone desiring to contribute toward this cause is requested to communicate with Mrs. Albert Brand, Treasurer, Social Service Committee.

ALFRED HARRIS INSINGER

The many friends of our devoted chairman of the Social Service Committee, Mrs. Insinger, offer her their sincere sympathy upon the death of her husband on March 9th.

Mr. Insinger was a communicant of Calvary Church, Germantown, and transferred his allegiance to Grace Church, upon taking up residence in Mt. Airy. He will be remembered and missed as one who was always ready to lend a hand cheerfully and with marked efficiency.

Three daughters and two sons are members of the Church School.

Diocesan Missionary Report

The first speaker at the diocesan meeting was Miss Kempton, President of the Church Periodical Club, whose address was not only interesting, but surprised us by the breadth of the C. P. C. war work.

Miss Kempton said that, when asked why the C. P. C. had taken up war work, she replied that it had not; that for twenty-five years the C. P. C. had been supplying literature to army and navy chaplains of all denominations. The chaplains themselves have asked them to combine.

Now, they serve one-half the entire number of chaplains at the front; and all in this country. Thirty-five chaplains have been adopted by parishes. Sometimes more than one parish is needed to supply one man with literature; in other cases, a parish takes more than one. Holy Trinity has four.

We were urged not to put stamps on our magazines and then hand them to the postman. They get dirty, the backs torn off and worst of all, the wrong magazine gets to a man; the thing he isn't a bit interested in. If we send reading matter through the C. P. C., the magazines are thoughtfully distributed. Quality, rather than quantity, is the slogan.

The work of the C. P. C. has been greatly enlarged beyond its original "literature" lines, chaplains being outfitted with the many things needful for their work.

A monthly allowance of money is greatly needed by each chaplain. He has only his commission; usually has a family at home, and he cannot work without constant need to put his hand in his pocket. For instance, he takes flowers and fruit to the wounded, and he lends money to boys who "go broke" before pay day.

Tracts are sent by the C. P. C. for Baptism and Confirmation classes. Wafers for the Holy Communion are also supplied, the Sisters of St. Margaret making them without charge.

Bishop Lawrence says, "If men can do without God 'over there,' they will do without Him when they come back." We must send them the Church; we must have more chaplains.

Grace Church can assist the C. P. C. and so the Church and the nation, by sending magazines and giving money to Miss Margaretta Bayard, the C. P. C. representative in this parish.

Dr. Mockridge, of St. James, a member of our Board of the Church's War Commission, spoke next. In a splendid, stirring address, he explained the work. Being new and on such a scale, constant changes and adjustments are inevitable; they show progress. There are over 300 clergy in the service; chaplains in the army, navy, air service, hospitals, in Red Cross work, as Secretaries of Y. M. C. A., as volunteer civilian chaplains in camps and cantonments, while many clergy are either officers or privates in the army and navy.

This number, 300, is about as many clergy as there are in Pennsylvania, the second largest in the U. S. Of course, it means a shortage of clergy at home, in the West this condition is really serious.

As for the Church's war task, it is stupendous. The Brotherhood of St. Andrew, with its busy office rooms in the Church House, is registering our boys in the service, endeavoring to keep track of every single churchman. There are more than 70,000 in the service. Over 25,000 have already been registered.

What is the method of the Government in regard to commissioning chaplains for the army and navy. Last April, as we entered the war, sixty-six chaplains were authorized; sixty-six of all varieties of religion, for a million and a half soldiers. The Government has been interested from the beginning, but it is not a creditable service; not only are there too few in number, but they are not organized into a corps, as are surgeons, veterinarians, engineers, forester, signal men, etc. And only fifteen can rank as major; that is the highest rank; they can go no higher. This is not merely "empty honor," lack of rank hinders the service.

Neither is any equipment furnished. Physicians, dentists, signal men, etc., are given the tools of their professions. Chaplains are given nothing but a moving picture show—no Bibles, no means of transportation, though they minister to thousands and their men are often broken up into groups and widely scattered.

At present there is a bill before Congress to increase the number of chaplains. General Pershing has earnestly requested that there be one to each 1,200 men. But even if all the bill calls for are given, it will mean that each clergyman will have 1,500 men. Quite a parish, one would think, "over here." At present many chaplains have as large a number as 5,000.

The Church has tried to place in each cantonment one volunteer (not commissioned) chaplain. At first this was frowned on by the Government, but it is now winked at,—but not much more. The military commanders, however, welcome the chaplains.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew has 30 fine laymen in camps doing personal work among the men in ways that are wholly admirable.

The women's organizations of the Church are doing their share. The Girls' Friendly Society is co-operating with Miss Maud Meyer in safeguarding the young girls living near camps and cantonments. The C. P. C. is far ahead of all other Church organizations in their efficient work, being the purchasing and distributing agency for books, games, stationery, chaplains' equipments, etc. The latter has now been standardized, so that when a chaplain "blows" into the C. P. C. rooms in New York (Dr. Mockridge says they usually "blow" in excitedly a day or two before sailing), he finds the Church backing him. He is told, "The Church is behind you; you will not be held up for straw with which to make your bricks."

The Church has asked for half a million dollars. Pennsylvania has not yet given all of her apportionment. Our parish has not met hers.

What is the response of the men to the work of the chaplains? Is this work imposed by clergy and laymen on men who do not want it? Letters pour in showing how great the need is. There is a camp on Long Island where the soldiers themselves with their own money have built a church in the very center. Here are held, not union services, but continuous services all day Sunday, by all denominations.

And the Y. M. C. A. recently cabled for 100,000 Episcopal Prayer Books! They were sent,—and a clergyman with them. As for the khaki covered Soldiers' and Sailors' Prayer Books, they are distributed as fast as they are printed—more than 60,000 already.

The Holy Communion is celebrated with increasing interest. In the cantonments, this diocese is doing the best constructive work, at Dix and Meade.

Our enlisted churchmen do much by their own faith, enthusiasm and need for the sacraments to point the way to others.

We must have faith in this great work of the Church. More prayers, more work, more interest, more money. The war will not be won on the battlefields, nor yet in the kitchens as Mr. Hoover says. It will be won at the altar. Are we doing our part? Are we at the altar as often as we should be?

K. M. M.

Due to the increased cost of paper and printing, and an extended mailing list, the expense of producing the parish paper is very much above the revenue from advertisements and subscriptions.

Many of our patrons have recently cancelled their advertisements, and as the subscription list is absurdly small, when compared with the mailing list, the books show that the publication is not self-supporting by the amount of over one hundred dollars in the fiscal year. Should it not pay its own way?

Prayers During the War

The following prayers are authorized for use in the Diocese of Pennsylvania during the time of war.

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop.

For Our Country

Let us pray for our country that God may aid us at this crisis with His love and favor; that He may keep us from pride and vainglory, and make our hearts courageous and our hands "strong to labor, that there by no decay: no leading into captivity, and no complaining in our streets."

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God, Who hast taught us in Thy holy word that Thou dost not willingly afflict the children of men, grant that, in the present time of warfare and distress of nations, our people may know Thy presence and obey Thy will. Remove from us arrogance and feebleness; give us courage and loyalty, tranquility and self-control, that we may accomplish that which Thou givest us to do and endure that which Thou givest us to bear, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For All in Authority

Let us pray for the President and for all in authority, that God may grant unto them at this time special gifts of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and strength, that upholding what is right and following what is true they may obey God's holy will and fulfil His divine purpose.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God most high, Who alone rulest in the kingdoms of men, grant, we beseech Thee, the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit to Thy servant, Woodrow Wilson, our President, the members of his cabinet and of the Congress. Endue them with prudence, fortitude, temperance, justice and the spirit of a sound mind, that guided by eternal truth and right they may labor faithfully for the safety, honor and welfare of our country and the advancement of Thy kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

The Rector's Letter

As the time approached for going to press, we feared that the principal feature would be missing in view of conditions "over there," but here it is, and it made surprisingly good time, for it was written on Thursday in Easter week, the fourth of April.

It is published just as it was addressed, for the Rector had attached to it the following memorandum: "In case this letter, by any chance, reaches you in time for the May number, it would be all right to publish it as it stands."—Editor Parish News.

My dear Mr. Pease:

I made several honest attempts last week to write you a parish letter but it was "no go."

I am sorry. I had so much in my heart to say. That was the trouble. You see it was Holy Week, and the most terrific battle of history was raging just a few miles up yonder. One could see troop trains going and coming. Those fresh and eager, these shattered and spent.

It was a sad week.

Then came Easter.

"So we took heart again,
And built us refuges from pain
Within His coverture—
Strong towers of Love, and Hope, and Faith,
That shall maintain
Our soul's estate
Too high and great
For even Death to violate."

We really had a great Easter—with an early celebration, a regimental devotion on the parade grounds, and an evening praise service.

"I wish I could tell you, Chaplain," said a great handsome fellow that night, "what this day has meant to me." What he went on to say as we sat and talked together was enough to make the day memorable.

Our Commanding Officer traveled over 300 miles for the sole purpose of attending our Easter parade service. There are many indications that prayers for our work are being answered.

I just returned today from a successful mission to Paris with regard to our proposed recreation buildings. A delegation composed of a Major, a Y. M. C. A. Secretary and myself, laid before the authorities there a new plan whereby the Chaplains' work can be coördinated with Y. M. C. A. activities.

In addition to the usual Y. M. C. A. equipment, there will be a Chapel, which can, when occasion requires, be opened into the entertainment hall, thus converting the whole place into a Church.

It is a costly proposition, but it made a big hit with the really big men.

Its erection is now practically assured.

Incidentally, Bishop McCormick promised me 2,500 francs from the War Commission Fund for the Chapel. We Church Chaplains are grateful for Bishop McCormick's presence here in France. He is coming to spend Sunday here in a couple of weeks.

Our trip to Paris was successful in other ways. We booked Elsie Janis for a visit to our Camp. We even called upon her and arranged the details of our grand party. You see the duties of Chaplains are varied.

Elsie Janis has a warm place in her heart for the 19th for her beloved nephew is among us and has just jumped from a sergeant to a Lieutenant.

We found Paris very subdued in spirit. Occasionally we would hear the bursting of the mystery shells from the long range gun. We could get no bread with our meals without official bread tickets. We should probably be standing in line for railway tickets yet—had we not been fortunate enough to have the Dodge car along.

One reason, Mr. Pease, why I found such difficulty in writing a parish letter this time, was because I realized that I must soon send in my resignation as Rector.

You see my year's leave of absence is nearly expired. Now that Mr. Chattin has been recalled you are left as sheep without a shepherd.

It will break my heart to do it, but I must ask the vestry to accept my resignation and seek out some good man to take full charge. The parish must not suffer on my account. They have been wonderful and I shall never forget it all.

Of course, there is no possibility of my present return unless—! I am just like all these boys,—they are dying to go home, but they don't want to go until this war is over. In fact they,—we are eager, to a man, to get to the Front.

From General Pershing, down to the "buck" private, we are all keen to make this war our war in the fullest sense. But the end is not yet.

I am grieved to hear of Mr. Insinger's death—what an earnest whole hearted man he was! Mrs. Insinger and the children have my loving sympathy.

Very faithfully yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

The Vestry Declines to Accept the Rector's Resignation

At a meeting of the vestry of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, held on Easter Tuesday, that body stood squarely back of the Rector in his expressed desire to remain with our troops in Europe. In appreciation of his noble, patriotic and Christian purpose, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

> "That Mr. Cline's proffered resignation be not accepted, and that he be granted a further leave of absence of one year from July 1, 1918."

For Our Boys in the Trenches

Every week I make it a practice to send to five of my friends, who are in France, a personal letter of an optimistic nature. I tell jokes, write about friends and give the boys a good and cheerful greeting. Twenty of the boys get these letters each month. I write them at home and they are personal. The boys are not only Mount Airy boys, but boys whom I know, from friends and business acquaintances.

It only costs a three-cent stamp and little time to do this, but how the boys do enjoy these letters.

The reason I write them at home is to put in that personal touch, that feeling that you cannot dictate to your stenographer. It is a letter that is a part of one's personality and the boys feel that they are looking you square in the eye and know they have a friend.

'Tis a little thing, but think what a letter means to a homesick fellow fighting your fight; fighting for God and humanity; fighting for these glorious United States!

Just think of some fellow—no matter if he is only an acquaintance and he is "over there"—send him that letter. Send the boys in the cantonment letters—they all want them. Will you do this?

One of my Mount Airy neighbors is in France. A few months ago I made a snap-shot of his two kiddies while they were playing in my garden. Photographs were made and sent to him with a cheerful letter. Did he enjoy it? His thanks and gratitude blossomed out in every word he wrote me in reply and that letter is a treasure indeed.

You don't have to take a snap-shot to make the boys happy—the letter will do it, and if you wish to send them a popular magazine, just a one-cent stamp will make some other fellow pleased.

Then those Smileage Books for the boys in camp! You will never miss the dollar they cost you, and think of the delight it is for a lonesome chap to get an unexpected gift that will buy him a seat in a good show, some tobacco, or something he needs. It is wonderful what a Smileage Book will buy and how much is given for the coupons in it.

When writing that letter to the boy "over there," if you know what branch of service and his rank, put that on his letter and address it "American Expeditionary Forces, care Postmaster, New York," and he will get it all right.

A Gowen Avenue friend, whom I met at the station one day, was carrying a bundle and I jokingly asked him why he was carrying so much lunch. He told me that "the bundle contained towels, and each week one member of the family sends a couple of towels to a nephew who is right at the front." They had been doing this for the past forty weeks, and not a single parcel had been lost—they all reached him, although it might take six weeks to do so. They originally sent khaki colored, but not being able to get a further supply, they had lately been sending white ones, but the white ones were not long in becoming khaki colored.

Mighty good idea—don't you think so?

Here are good suggestions and I do hope that every reader will feel it his duty to do even his little bit. Will you be one of the generous ones?

Mount Airy Red Cross, No. 8

The total amount of work sent out in the last four weeks was 32,187 pieces. This included an emergency call for 1,336 surgical dressings, large and small cotton pads and 5 yard rolls. Each dressing was wrapped in sterilized paper and then packed in muslin bags which had to be made,—342 bags were necessary.

The Easter Dance at the Automobile Club cleared about $300 for the Wool Fund. Anyone who reads this article who did not purchase tickets to help this necessary fund, may still help by money donations sent to Mrs. Horace H. Burrell, 402 Gowen Ave., Mrs. Samuel D. Matlack, 215 Gowen Ave., or Mrs. Wm. C. Burk, 32 Gowen Ave.

A Card Party held in the Auditorium of Holy Cross Church cleared at least $400 for the Auxiliary.

Mount Airy, No. 8, did not parade as a unit in the Women's Liberty Loan demonstration on Saturday, April 20th. Many of our women were walking as Liberty Loan workers, however.

Grace Church is in the 19th Division of the 22d Ward and many of its parishioners are working for the Third Liberty Loan, both through the Church Committee and in the House to House Canvass. The latter has so far turned in $13,500, with more coming.

The 19th Division is also to be well represented in the Germantown Liberty Loan Parade, Thursday evening, April 25th, Church Workers and House to House Canvassers walking together.

Will not Grace Church women who have been doing very little Red Cross work, make it a point to set aside Friday of each week to help with surgical dressings and hospital garments? The need is great and will be growing greater. If that day is impossible, go to the Methodist work room on Monday, the Roman Catholic or Presbyterian room on Tuesday. This is no time for anything but friendly feeling and earnest work.

Social Service

During these days of patriotic stimulus our hearts are inclined to respond so generously as to put our living on a careful economic basis. We are apt to neglect former charitable impulses for vital national needs until reminded of local wants, when we find our circumstances are limited. It is a deplorable fact that in many instances the same conditions exist as did formerly.

The Social Service Committee is actively engaged in assisting several unfortunate families, and desires to express to the many contributors its gratitude for their having responded so generously to the appeal made in several issues of the PARISH NEWS. Appreciation is also felt for the results of the envelopes included with those of Auxiliary needs, and sent to the women of the parish by the officers of the Woman's Auxiliary.

The function of the Social Service Committee is forcibly defined by the Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins in the following words:

"The church stands for charity in the best sense of that much-abused word. I do not believe that the church should take the place of our charitable relief societies or of the organizations which plan to enforce certain economic and social principles. These unite all the churches and have a large work which neither the individual church nor the united churches in a community could do. But the church can use these agencies and be used by them to help in the many human needs which press upon us. There must be given a tender and wise care for the poor, a quickness of practical sympathy which shall prove that Christ is in the church, doing good still, as He did good when on earth. Love for men, in other words, must shine out from the church and make itself felt.

"There are two other things to be spoken of briefly. One is the spirit of unity which the church certainly should stand for. All who love the Lord Jesus Christ and try to serve Him must be counted as our Christian brothers whether they worship in the same place and in the same way as ourselves or not. The most pitiful ecclesiastical thing in the world is for a church to stand all alone, aloof from other churches, as if it were the only reliable source of the Holy Spirit's blessing. We are all serving the same Lord and looking forward to the same Heaven. Let us be brotherly in our feelings and actions and work together in a common spirit for a common end—the spread of Christ's kingdom of righteousness."

The Woman's Auxiliary and Guild

The first part of May marks a cessation in the business of the Auxiliary. I had almost said, it is the close of the year's work, but this never really stops, for all through the summer months there are women busy knitting and sewing on dainty, attractive articles to send to the leper colony at Kumomoto, Japan.

In September the things are shipped so that they may arrive in time to help brighten the Christmas season for those afflicted people. This is a splendid purpose to accomplish and you may all help in it if you will.

The last regular meeting of the Auxiliary is the ANNUAL MEETING, on Monday, May 13th, at 2.30 P. M., and there should be a goodly number present at that time. It is the most important one of the year, for it is then that we hear the summing up of all that has been accomplished during the past months, and the election of officers for the coming year takes place; also, the money in the treasury is distributed to various missions by the vote of those present. You should be interested in knowing how your money is used.

Every now and then questions are asked that show there are some women in Grace Church who know absolutely nothing about the way our missionary work is accomplished, nor what results are obtained. Will not these women try to attend the Annual Meeting and learn a little about the affairs of their own parish?

Mission Study Classes 1917-1918

The large assembly room of the Church House was packed on the afternoon of April 17th. The occasion was the Closing Session of Mission Study Classes and it was marked by deep spiritual feeling, by enthusiasm and love for this most wonderful course we have ever had, and by a keen desire to "pass it on" to others.

The curtains before the little altar were drawn back, there were lights and vases of lovely "Mrs. Aaron Ward" roses flanking the Cross, and we were always conscious that we were in the presence of the King whose Kingdom was our theme.

There were present educational secretaries, leaders and members of mission study classes throughout the Diocese and the following clergy: the Rt. Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, Bishop of the Diocese; the Rev. Edwin M. Lane, of St. John's Parish, Northern Liberties, Philadelphia; the Rev. G. L. Richardson, of St. Mary's, West Philadelphia; Father Ward, of St. Elizabeth's and Dr. Wm. H. Jeffrys, of the City Mission.

Mrs. Henry A. Pilsbry, Educational Secretary of the Diocese, lead the meeting, opening with an announcement of the Church Conference at Cambridge, June 21st to July 6th.

A rapid questionnaire followed on this year's course on the Gospel of the Kingdom. The Watchword for the year was "Fellowship" and for that day's session "Fellowship by and with the King." The aim of the whole course was to learn the message of the Bible so that we might fulfil our personal obligation toward it. At the close of the course we found ourselves "in His Kingdom in the World"—a Kingdom of Praise and Service. This naturally leads to next year's study, "Active Service."

Mrs. Pilsbry then read the Meditation for the day, Heb. 12: 22-24 and 28: "But ye are come unto Mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels."

"To the general assembly and church of the first-born, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect.

"And to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel.

"Wherefore we, receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear."

Then followed the Creed and Prayers, the Rev. Edwin S. Lane officiating.

Mrs. Pilsbry then read her yearly report as Diocesan Secretary. It showed such a marked increase in students, leaders, missionary endeavor and in deepened spiritual life and love of His Church, that the outlook is very bright in the Educational Department. A synopsis of the report follows:

Beginning with the class at the Cambridge Conference last June, Mrs. Pilsbry has led ten classes, with a total membership of two hundred and forty. In this Diocese there have been 74 classes on the "Gospel of the Kingdom," with 1,197 members under 41 leaders. Leaders have been supplied for five Junior classes. Three of the clergy have led congregational classes and Dr. Jeffrys reports a class at the Bishop's House and one at the Deaconess' House. One priest gave the substance of the eight chapters of the "Gospel of the Kingdom" in eight successive Sunday morning sermons.

Three splendid classes of men, women and girls, at St. Matthew's, Philadelphia, resulted in the formation of a society of Neighborhood Missioners who pledge to render assistance to the poor and needy, to visit the sick and lonely and to lend a helping hand to those in want.

Fifteen leaders trained in Normal Classes have led classes outside their own parishes: Mrs. Van Harlingen, 6; Mrs. Horner-Smith, 5; Mrs. Hayes, 3; Mrs. Harper, 3; Miss West, 3; Mrs. Chas. Carver, 3; Mrs. Matlack, 2; Mrs. Hamilton, 2; Miss Booth, 2; Miss Lawrence, 2; Miss Hart, 2; Rev. Edwin Lane, 2; Miss Blakiston, 1; Miss Douglas, 1; Miss Elizabeth Fisher, 1; Miss Corry, 1.

A new work undertaken this year is the correspondence course through which nine leaders for classes were trained; 3 in this Diocese, 2 in the Diocese of Easton, 1 in the Diocese of Washington, 1 Western Nebraska, 1 Florida. The course was also sent to one isolated Churchwoman in Pennsylvania. Our very grateful thanks are given to Mrs. Walter Pharo of the Church of the Redeemer, Bryn Mawr, for the preparation of these papers and the faithful and efficient work of correspondence and distribution.

Dr. Fred Gowing, Principal of the Girls' High School, gave a practical and helpful course on Pedagogy.

Normal and Parish classes have made corporate communions. Each class had had its intercessor and in this found power.

Here Mrs. Pilsbry interrupted the report to tell us that Father Harrison, of St. Andrew's School, Tennessee, was intercessor for the day and to read us his loving letter.

Continuing the report, many practical and spiritual results of the study of the Gospel of the Kingdom were told us. In one parish a dancing class of 35 young people, boys and girls, became a Mission Study Class in Lent. Being convinced by the course of their responsibility to work for Fellowship through the Church, they decided to continue a permanent class of five committees: Foreign, Domestic, Indian, Colored and Diocesan, to meet and learn and talk and work.

Another actual result of a class was the resolve to pray at noon for the Church and our Army, and the bell of that Parish Church rings at that hour to remind the people.

One Rector says, "Nothing of so vital importance has ever happened to the parish." In another, a Woman's Auxiliary has been formed through the Mission Study Class.

This year, classes have not only been Training Camps but Public Schools, not only for members of our own communion; they have included Roman Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Lutherans, Christian Scientists and followers of the New Thought.

Above all, leaders come back from their classes with faces aglow, saying, "I never thought I could be used for this. It is the Book." And it is the book, for it lays hold on and liberates the power and is the most successful and acceptable text book ever used in the Diocese of Pennsylvania.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Pilsbry's splendid report, came the report of the Juniors, presented by Miss Adele Bayard, in the absence of Miss Evans, Acting Educational Secretary of Juniors.

The resignation of Miss Anne Hubbard from the Secretaryship was noted with regret. The principal items of interest are the evening sessions being planned for next year and the week-day sessions of Church Schools.

Sister Lydia Margaret, of St. Clement's Parish, then read a beautiful paper, "Know the Kingdom," pointing out not only the value and joy of that knowledge but the fact that too often our knowledge of the Church and its doctrines and practices is very hazy.

Mrs. Arthur Van Harlingen, leader of no less than six classes, then gave a most stirring talk on "Contending for the Kingdom." She urged each member to make it a point to bring one more next year and asked that all members express themselves freely in class, not simply to agree but to "talk out" differences of opinion. Only so can we arrive at perfect Fellowship.

The Rev. Edwin Lane's topic was "Proclaim the Kingdom." Did not Christ begin His ministry with these words: "Repent and be baptized, for the Kingdom of Heaven is at hand?"

The Offertory was then presented by the various classes as a gift for the Extension of the Kingdom.

Mrs. Samuel D. Matlack, Chairman of the Extension Committee, then told of the committee's plans to "Extend the Kingdom." A spring campaign is to be made in the rural and suburban parts of the Diocese. After obtaining permission and help from the rectors, a leader is to visit each parish and give a "sample session" on the Gospel of the Kingdom.

The plan is to present the subject to all the women and girls (and men, too, if possible) not simply to a "class." Then, if a class results, a leader will be sent upon request.

After the first of May, Woman's Auxiliary and other church work are over and there is time to know the Kingdom. God's work and war work are one. "These ought ye to have done and not to have left the other undone," is the slogan of this drive. We, who have found the course so wonderful, must pass it on. Volunteers were called for to go on this missionary tour as leaders, after a session of preparation by Mrs. Pilsbry. Motor cars were also asked for and gifts of money to defray expenses. All present rose at a request to form themselves into an "Auxiliary Prayer Committee" to plead the success of this venture, each May noon, before the throne of God.

Miss Hart then told how we should "Live in the Kingdom," how, intensively in each life, the Kingdom must grow, by prayer and that Bread of Life which came down from Heaven to be the perfect food of the soul.

"Conserve the Resources of the Kingdom," was the plea of the Rev. G. L. Richardson, of St. Mary's. Conservation is the same as the good old Bible word "Salvation." But it does not mean hoarding; it means directing into the proper channels. That parish whose organizations are simply for the purpose of keeping the parish alive, has turned its power in the wrong direction —inward. It must be turned out. How soon would Christ's Kingdom come, if all the energies and graces of Christian people be spent fully and with intelligent direction, not upon themselves and their own parishes, but with that missionary spirit and duty that gives itself and its all for others.

Bishop Rhinelander, author of the "Gospel of the Kingdom," then said modestly, that his growing belief in the book rested on the fact that it "pointed in the right direction—it showed the way to go. That way might not always be easy, we weren't looking for that, but it was the right way, the way of Truth." "Fragmentary," he called it, and a "sign-post." We who have studied it and love it, know that "our hearts have burned within us" while we walked this way.

Prayers and Benediction by the Bishop closed this memorable last session of 1917-1918 Mission Study Classes.

The Fellowship of the Faith

(Reprinted by Request)

Underlying all our mission study is the idea of our fellowship in Christ.

We relate the birth and the death, the resurrection and the ascension. But do we all tell it the same way? Do we say it was a Life which was born, which died, which is living again, and is alive forever more? Or do we speak of the fellowship as a beautiful memory—a lovely example? What is it to us?

It is the oldest living fellowship in the world, for it springs from a Life which never had a beginning and will never have an end—Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, today and forever.

Nineteen hundred years ago, in the stillness of the midnight hours, an angel winged his way to a city of Galilee, named Nazareth. He bore to the most blessed woman in all the world a message of life: "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee, and that Holy Thing which shall be born is the Son of God."

Such was the beginning here on earth of that heavenly fellowship, made not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life. A body was prepared, and it was "a Holy Thing." It came from the love of God, and by the power of the Holy Ghost.

The Trinity encircled the beginning of the fellowship—loving, holy, powerful—God the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. Living, breathing, deathless, that fellowship goes pulsing on—the very core and life of all the world.

With a rushing mighty wind, through tongues of fire, by the operation of the Holy Ghost, immediately on the day of Pentecost, the power of the Church sprang into action and 3,000 souls in one day were CALLED into that fellowship, and they, the Church, continued steadfastly in the Apostles' Doctrine and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and prayers, and through these hundreds of years which have passed since then, countless numbers have been and are being called—called to the Father, through the Son and by the Holy Ghost.

So we, too, by our baptism, have been called, with one hope of our calling—so we must accomplish that hope—as our task. This then is our task, to know the Apostles' Doctrine and fellowship and to continue therein; to know the Church, which is His body and to make it known.

And because through the frailty of our mortal nature we cannot always stand upright, God has ordained a way by which each member of the fellowship may be strengthened, may be confirmed. Through the laying on of hands, the hands of an apostle, now, as in those days of old, the seven-fold gifts of the Holy Ghost, the seven-fold power is poured into our human nature. Then and there only we have boldness to enter into the holy place, by the way, a new and living way; that is to say His flesh.

Through that "Holy Thing," by the power of the Spirit, we come to the love of God the Father.

For the body and blood of Christ are given for the fellowship, are sanctified by His word and Holy Spirit and preserve us unto everlasting life.

So this fellowship, which is the extension of the "word made flesh," takes up its task; answers its call.

Built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the head cornerstone, link by link, the Holy Ghost, through the "laying on of hands," has forged a chain more mighty, more powerful than the gates of hell—naught can prevail against it—and into the hands of that body, have been given by God Himself His own authority—the power to "retain and to remit sins! As the father hath sent me, even so, send I you." Baptize and teach. Teach what? All things, whatsoever, I have commanded and with the fulfillment of that promise, "Lo, I am with this fellowship always, even unto the end of the world!" And through this visible organic body, the Holy Ghost energizes. From the moment when that Holy Power overshadowed the Blessed Virgin, on through these succeeding generations, God the Holy Ghost has conveyed to us the life by which we in turn can impart life through the fellowship.

Browning knew it: "'Tis weakness in strength that I cry for. My flesh that I seek in the Godhead. I seek and I find it. O Saul, it shall be a face like my face that receives Thee—a man like to me, thou shalt love and be loved by forever. A hand like this hand shall throw open the gates of new life to thee. See the Christ stand." Multitudes have been called into that fellowship. All kindreds and tongues and peoples are grafted into His life. How many have considered the task which is our calling—to know the Church, which is His body and to make it known. How many have listened to our Lord's great longing cry that we all may be one? For it is clear, that until we know the Apostles' Doctrine and Fellowship and continue therein we cannot be brought to perfection.

To us who are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation; to us, the fellowship called and chosen, God has entrusted the task—to build up this Church of the Living God through us, its living members—HERE and unto the ends of the world, until some day it shall come to pass as we answer the CALL, as we give our life, that at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that He is King of Kings and Lord of Lords to the glory of God the Father.

God hath given unto us the fellowship, eternal life, and that life is in His Son.

And whatsoever is born of God overcometh the world.

Nineteen hundred years ago, in the city of Bethlehem, that life was born of God. Through the power of the Highest it came into our flesh, made us the fellowship which must overcome the world. That life lived and died and rose again and is alive forever more. Loving, holy, powerful; God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost overshadows this fellowship, which was born, which lives and which is alive forever more, through the eternal life of the Son of God.

Prayers During the War

The following prayers are authorized for use in the Diocese of Pennsylvania during the time of war.

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop.

For Our Country

Let us pray for our country that God may aid us at this crisis with His love and favor; that He may keep us from pride and vainglory, and make our hearts courageous and our hands "strong to labor, that there by no decay: no leading into captivity, and no complaining in our streets."

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God, Who hast taught us in Thy holy word that Thou dost not willingly afflict the children of men, grant that, in the present time of warfare and distress of nations, our people may know Thy presence and obey Thy will. Remove from us arrogance and feebleness; give us courage and loyalty, tranquility and self-control, that we may accomplish that which Thou givest us to do and endure that which Thou givest us to bear, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For All in Authority

Let us pray for the President and for all in authority, that God may grant unto them at this time special gifts of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and strength, that upholding what is right and following what is true they may obey God's holy will and fulfil His divine purpose.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God most high, Who alone rulest in the kingdoms of men, grant, we beseech Thee, the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit to Thy servant, Woodrow Wilson, our President, the members of his cabinet and of the Congress. Endue them with prudence, fortitude, temperance, justice and the spirit of a sound mind, that guided by eternal truth and right they

For Those in Training

Let us pray for all those who are in training to serve their country, whether by land or sea, that they may readily submit to necessary discipline and be preserved amidst all the dangers and temptations which beset them.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O Lord, our God, we ask Thy help and blessing for all those who have willingly offered themselves and are now being prepared to take their part in the service and defense of their country. Grant that they may cheerfully submit to necessary discipline and training; shield them amid the temptations that may threaten them; make them strong and of a good courage to face the dangers that are before them; that in all things they may quit themselves like men to Thy honor and their country's safety; for the sake of Him Who suffered, died and rose again for us, Thy Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

VOLUME XIV JULY, 1918 NUMBER 7

The Rector's Letter

My Dear Friends:

I have been thinking what a mysterious thing is Morale. It is as elusive of definition as personality. In fact, it is the personality of an organized body. It is the spirit which sways and controls. Napoleon said, it was more vital to the success of an army than training or equipment. It is the indomitable will to triumph, which can remove mountains.

The thing that thrills me as I read about the Third Liberty Loan, the Red Cross drive, the steady march of new draft forces to the cantonments and the decision to raise an army without limitation, is the splendid morale of America.

When before did any people give with such fervor, work with such unflagging energy and pray with such faith as the people of the United States are doing today?

The same spirit animates the troops in France. The Engineers with whom I serve might have some excuse for indifferent morale. They are not sustained either by the first enthusiasm of enlistment or the excitement of the trenches. They have been working in France for nine months, along lines with which they were familiar in peace times. But they are not stale. Their morale is splendid. Many things conduce to this. The letters from home are an important factor. A Lieutenant applied to the Chaplain the other day for "expert information." He had found in a letter, "Read Proverbs 25 : 25," and wanted to know what it meant. I looked up the passage—"As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country."

Other influences which raise the tone of the regiment are military drills, religious services, athletic sports, Y. M. C. A. entertainments, the interest of the officers in the welfare of their men. Of great importance also is the sense of past achievement and present worth. The men are proud to belong to the Nineteenth for they know the regiment has turned out a lot of real, live locomotives, and is daily contributing to the great enterprise which brought us to France.

It is hard sometimes to tell who is the reagent in the chemical reaction that changes the morale of a body of men. Gradually we realize the ebb has changed to the flow—but by what mysterious influence? As I wrote some of you a few weeks ago, I was all but disheartened regarding the attitude of the officers and men toward religious services. That has suddenly and mysteriously changed.

On Whitsunday we had a field service. It was the first attempt since Easter. The notices went out through military channels. Although the services are of necessity voluntary I expected a considerable body of men to assemble, but I was sadly disappointed. After the service I told the C. O. plainly how jealous I was for the honor of God. Some officers standing near overheard my remarks. A few days later one of them asked me to announce another field service the next Sunday. I was about to say "no" when I saw that some new element was about to enter into the situation. The reagent was ready.

Later in the week this Captain called an informal meeting of the officers and made a little speech which started off like this: "Last Sunday morning the Chaplain was some mad and he had a right to be."

When Church call sounded and the band struck up the Religioso March on Trinity Sunday, four hundred and fifty men marched out with enthusiasm. That afternoon the Colonel got out a memorandum saying he had noted with gratification the increased attendance and urging that henceforth all officers and men of this command attend these services, not only as a religious duty, but also to support and encourage the Chaplain, etc.

On Memorial Day the men turned out to a field service a thousand strong. Along with this newly awakened interest in the field services, goes an ever increasing attendance at the Sunday Night Club.

Speaking of Memorial Day, it was my privilege to address a parade service attended by over three thousand troops. French officials, officers and soldiers were present. This service was entirely distinct from our regimental celebration and was held in the morning when the Engineers were at work. In the evening we marched to the Cemetery where the graves of American soldiers were beautifully decorated and appropriate religious and military ceremonies were conducted.

But enough about cemeteries. Now that fine weather makes outdoor sports popular, I find my duties as regimental athletic officer rapidly increasing. We have a fine athletic field in connection with the camp. We have laid out two baseball diamonds and shall soon begin on tennis and basketball courts. A boxing and wrestling ring is also planned. We have organized a baseball league, and our athletes are in training for a big boxing and wrestling match in the town market place in June, and for a field meet on the Fourth of July.

If this letter were not already too long I should tell you how paternal one of our Companies feels—having adopted a little French orphan girl, and how proud we all are to wear the gold service chevron. I should in any case avoid the one topic which is uppermost in all our minds—the great drive. You will know all about it before this letter reaches you. God bless our Arms and save our Cause.

This letter will reach you on the anniversary of our separation, for it was July 1st, 1917, that I joined the troops. I have often had misgivings during this eventful year as to whether my life was counting for more here in France than at home. Again I have been concerned about the well-being of the parish with an absentee rector. But you see the work with the regiment has been wonderfully blessed of late and the messages I receive from you are all reassuring. God is leading us on.

I am not unmindful of the things you leave unsaid in your letters; the difficulties you have faced; the sacrifices you have made and are making, and the burdens you have borne. You have spoken as you have lived, bravely and hopefully.

Your morale is excellent.

Loyally yours,

THOMAS S. CLINE.

Nevers, France.

Address to Troops in France Memorial Day, 1918

By T. S. CLINE, C. N. A.

We are assembled here today humbly and devoutly to acknowledge our dependence on Almighty God and to implore His aid and protection. We plead with Him for the safety and welfare of our cause—we seek His blessing on our arms and pray for a speedy restoration of honorable and lasting peace to the nations of the earth. We are here also to commemorate those heroes of our own country and of our Allies who have given their lives that the world might be free.

Man's deadliest enemy is man. It was so in primitive days of tribal warfare; it is so today. In those early days in order to protect themselves from their human foes men were forced to organize. They realized that they were like sheep exposed and in dire need of shepherds to guide, feed and protect them. Leaders rose up to shepherd their fellowmen—patriarchs, priests and kings. Some of the most beautiful annals of the race are concerned with their paternal care and heroic exploits. But in later centuries these shepherds became overlords—who ruled with a rod of iron, fleeced the flock and sacrificed the sheep upon the altars of their own ambition. As the people became more enlightened and self-reliant they awoke to the fact that they were in bondage; that those who posed as their protectors were in fact their worst enemies. Then was born in the heart of mankind a master passion for Freedom.

When they struck for freedom their overlords hardened their hearts and would not let the people go. Then the struggle was on, it is still on, and we find ourselves caught in its vortex at a time when it has attained its fiercest intensity. What a struggle it has been, bursting out with new fury, now in this land now in that, now in this decade now in that! It has devastated many countries, it has shattered dynasty after dynasty. It has lead to sacrifice of millions of human lives and deluged the world in blood. Although it has been costly it has been necessary. Man's destiny requires that he win his freedom. The objective of this persistent struggle has been to prove that people are not mere sheep to be driven about and exploited at the will of their masters, but MEN divinely endowed for self-government and called to noble destinies,—not a race of vassals or slaves, but a race of kings and priests—veritable Sons of God. It has been a tragic but glorious struggle—for it has called forth the heroism of the race—fired mankind with noble and imperishable ideals and given birth to new and mighty nations. Yes, and newest and mightiest of them all, and the one which above all others embodies and champions before the world the principle of Freedom is America—the "land of the free and the home of the brave."

Are we not the proud sons of "a nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal?"

Why did Almighty God plant that seed of Liberty in America? Why did He nurture it until there sprung from it a race of giants irrevocably committed to the principles of human freedom? Is it hard now to discern the divine purpose in the development of the great republic which we here represent;—now that there has loomed up in Europe a monster that threatens to strangle the nations, outrage civilization and place upon the throne of an intimidated and terrified world the ruthless god of FORCE? Oh treacherous, infamous, heinous and blasphemous monster! You dare to offer yourself as our overlord! What a shepherd you would make for mankind! To submit to your rod and staff would be to bid farewell forever to the green pastures and still waters of human happiness. No! We Americans here declare, as we have often done before, that life under the iron heel of Prussian militarism would be unbearable—for us or for any decent people. It would be to surrender our birthright. It would be to lose our souls. We prefer to die!

As we stand here today we feel the solemnity of the occasion. No former memorial day has held such significance. Never before in history was the precious cause of human liberty so seriously endangered. For three years our brave Allies have withstood this hideous Juggernaut. No historian will ever adequately record the wonders of their skill and their valor, nor write the stirring story of their martyrdoms. But the monster is still unsubdued. The crucial hour in the age long struggle of Right against Might draws near. The culmination—not only of this war but of centuries of war is at hand. The safety, honor and welfare not only of France but of our own homeland—not only of our own generation, but of future generations hang in the balances. Oh, America, God raised you up for this hour. In order that you might meet this crisis you were being trained in the days of Washington—in the days of Lincoln. During this century and a half you have been growing stronger in order that you might strike a mighty blow for freedom now. Your riches have increased that you might offer them now. Your industries have developed that you might supply the implements of warfare now. Your harvests have been plentiful that you might provision the world now. Your prophets have spoken and continue to speak that you may have clear vision now. Your heroes of former days have laid down their lives for high principles to hearten you for the supreme sacrifices you are called upon to make now. And "from those honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion."

We are mindful of the soldier dead today—not only our own countrymen, but the sons of France and other nations who in past days have offered their lives upon the altars of freedom. But more especially do we remember our comrades who have perished in this present war. What a multitude!—God fearing—peace loving men like you and me, men with homes and loved ones, men with professions and vocations, men of affairs, men of achievement. They loved life—just as we love life. But they laid down their lives for country, for humanity, and for God. How generous, how fine, how beautiful, how Christian! "He that loseth his life," says the Master, "shall find it." We are confident that they have found the secret and the power of an endless life. We need not speak their praises—future centuries will rejoice to do that. But we must "here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain." "Seeing we are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us and let us run with patience the race that is set before us." Oh, comrades, we must so live and so work; we must so fight and, if needs be, so die that this monster which has become the common enemy of all decent nations shall be forever crushed. So shall we prepare the way for a new age in which the earth shall be replenished and restored to safety and prosperity—a fit home and dwelling place for man.

When victory shall have crowned our efforts it will be forever impossible for man or "superman" to dominate the earth, for in that great human brotherhood, that Federation of the World, every man may confidently lift up his head and cry,

"The Lord is My Shepherd,
I shall not want."

In lonely watches night by night
Great visions burst upon my sight,
For down the stretches of the sky
The hosts of dead go marching by.

Strange ghostly banners o'er them float,
Strange bugles sound an awful note,
And all their faces and their eyes
Are lit with starlight from the skies.

The anguish and the pain have passed
And peace hath come to them at last,
But in the stern looks linger still
The iron purpose and the will.

Dear Christ, who reign'st above the flood
Of human tears and human blood,
A weary road these men have trod,
O house them in the home of God!

—Frederick George Scott.

Free Pews

From Bishop Perry's Convention Address

"The spirit of democracy for which half the world is giving its life will soon bring the Church to judgment. It will find the spirit of the Church congenial. It will hear the message of the Church pronouncing in no uncertain terms the principles of human liberty and brotherhood. It will find at the same time, in certain parishes, practices which are altogether contrary to the Christian spirit, yet are adhered to for old associations' sake.

"The institution of rented pews had once a place in the order and economy of parish life. Today it is no longer defensible. The ownership of pews is intolerable. It is time for the Church to ask whether it can continue to buy and sell places of privilege in God's house, claimed by our Lord as the house of prayer for all people. I appreciate the legal complications involved and I offer no recommendation. I simply point to the time, now at hand, when the few parishes of the land that still adhere to the traffic in pews will be required by the public conscience to break with the custom, or will themselves be relegated to the past."

Anachronistic Pews

When practically the whole world is fighting to the death for democracy, when the Church is taking so large a part in formulating thought, when men's hearts are failing them for fear, when to many souls faith itself is dependent on the outcome of this terrific struggle between light and darkness it seems strangely at variance with the spirit of the times that at any church edifice in his country one should feel embarrassed by the necessity of asking for a seat. And yet this is precisely what happens in any church that uses the autocratic, aristocratic, anachronistic system of owned, rented or assigned pews.

Can the imagination conceive of ushers at any of the services on the shore of the Galilean Lake? Does any one believe that the Publicans had all to be seated before the fisher folk could get a place? St. Peter said, "Use hospitality one to another without grudging." Did he mean one kind for our own homes and another kind for God's house? Is there a single person who reads this letter who would ask guests to his house and then say, "You will please wait in the hall until my family arrives because each one of them wishes his accustomed chair? When they are all comfortably seated you may enter." Yet this is done, in effect, in every church that is not absolutely free. In my opinion a church should be so free that any individual of any stratum of society would feel at ease in any seat therein.

The functions of the ushers should change and they should be no more than a reception committee who should have power to say, with a wave of the hand, "This is God's house. You are welcome. Walk in and take any seat that meets your mood or suits your fancy." I know from years of experience just the effect on people's minds, particularly strangers, of a restricted sitting and I grieve to say that in this respect this Church of ours is one of the chiefest offenders and as a consequence one of the greatest sufferers. I have, however, seen great improvement in recent years. After this war is over there must follow general reconstruction, commercially, socially and religiously. Commercially we are going to be greater, socially we are going to be more democratic and religiously we are going to be more tolerant and charitable, and as I am convinced that one of the beneficent results is going to be a tremendous increase in real Christianity, so I hope that every church in this country will be as free as was the open air at the first sermons preached by Christ himself. —The Churchman.

Mount Airy Red Cross, No. 8

Mount Airy No. 8 has adopted three French orphans through the Fatherless Children of France Association. A collection is taken each week in the Work Rooms, and as the fund grows, more children will be added to our Family.

It costs only ten cents a day, or $36.50 a year to adopt an orphan. Perhaps someone in Grace Parish would be glad to assist in this good work? The name and age of the child will be sent you and it is then possible to send it little comforts and toys.

The Bazaar held on June 15, by the Methodist Work Room, has netted almost $2,000 and the Presbyterian Room has raised $150 for the Wool Fund.

We are delighted with the efforts of two children who have raised money for the Red Cross. Louise Steelman made $8 at a little tea that she gave, and Margaret Schwacke, $29.16 at a Porch Bazaar managed entirely by children. Cannot other little boys and girls raise funds for the Red Cross during the summer vacation?

Please note that Grace Church Work Room is now open on Wednesday morning as well as all day Friday; hospital garments being the principal Wednesday work.

There is a rush call for 100 Komfort Kits and 100 Housewives to be made in the next two weeks. Will you not come and help? Also we are now doing Navy knitting. Anyone who applies at Grace Parish House on Friday morning may obtain free wool and directions for knitting. Is any pair of hands idle?

Report for June, ending June 21st:

Surgical Dressings	14,313
Hospital Garments	145
Knitted Garments	176
Komfort Kits	100
Housewives	100
Total	14,834

A Red Cross Noon Prayer

O God of Love, to Thy Almighty Protection we commend our beloved country, our flag, and in particular those brave men who have gone forth to vindicate our national honor and to reaffirm the noble principles upon which this government has been founded.

We pray with anxious hearts for all who fight on sea, on land, and in the air—for those in the firing line and for those men and women behind the trenches who are consecrating their lives to the care of the sick and wounded.

For those to whom the lesser task has fallen—the toilers at home— and especially the Red Cross Workers, we ask Thy Blessing. Inculcate in us that spirit of devoted service that knows no faltering. Endue us with the strength and determination to go on and on. Help us to infuse these dressings with that spirit of healing which will in due time bind up the wounds of the world. In Thine Own time grant us the victory, that through an honorable peace the Sons of men may restore order to this chaotic universe—this World the Savior died to save.

Thy will be done. Amen. S. S. B.

An Appreciation

My Dear Sir:

The GRACE CHURCH NEWS is sent to me regularly on account of my affection for your pastor, the Rev. Thomas S. Cline. I have been particularly interested today in reading his letter from somewhere in France, and the thought occurred to me that possibly, in all the excited interest in which everyone of us is moving these days, their thoughts do not go to this good man in the work that he is doing as fully as they should. I knew your rector when he was in Wesleyan University, the Berkeley Divinity School, and especially during his secretaryship in our Y. M. C. A. As I look back on his work and the principles that he stands for, I am more fully convinced than ever that a more Godly and righteous man never existed than does your rector, and I personally desire to send my word of love to your parish for having as their religious guide a man of his character.

I am sure that during his enforced absence your parish will stand loyally by him, and when he has a word from any of his parishioners, I ask that my expression of love go to him.

Yours very truly,
E. K. HUBBARD,
Hartford, Conn.

Vesper Hymn

FOR USE IN TIME OF WAR

Tune, "Resurrection Morn"
Hymn No. 243

Ere we leave Thy House, O Father,
For our nation we would plead.
Guard our soldiers, God of Armies,
In their need.

Spare our sailors in their peril,
Monarch of the mighty deep,
Safely guide them, Holy Pilot, Safely keep.

Grant to victor and the vanquished,
When their earthly conflicts cease,
Crown of blessing, loving Father,
Heaven's own peace.

Wheresoe'r, O God of Nations,
They who guard our shores may go,
Grant to soldier, nurse and sailor,
Thee to know.

Over land, in sky, on ocean,
Soon may strife forever cease,
Foes be friends, the sunlight sharing,
Of Thy peace.

When the stern war drum is silent,
And the storm of flood is past,
Bring our heroes, God-defended,
Home at last.

Diocesan Missions

The final meeting of the Diocesan Missionary Committee held in the Church House was unusually interesting, the Bishop addressing the meeting and presenting plans for the future.

Bishop Rhinelander asserted that he was cheerful over the outlook despite the fact of many worries. The budget has increased twenty-five per cent. He has noticed that in every big civic or national enterprise our Churchmen are always in the lead, numerically, on the various committees, here and everywhere else. Have these same men the knowledge and interest in Church affairs they should have? Is every parish conscious of its membership in the Diocese and the Church at large, or are we merely parochial? The ideal is that each parish is not just running itself, but ministering to the spiritual needs of the community. The alarming percentage of the unchurched is a unique, evangelistic opportunity and responsibility.

Real Americans are coming out of this war in closer union of national feeling. This was almost lost by the flood of immigration and the rush for material prosperity. We might have become divided, have been torn into twenty or thirty fragments.

Look at our opportunity. Look at the Church historically—the one religious institution competent to interpret to the American people the historical gospel. Ours is the most national Church; the same hands that controlled the country in its formative period controlled the Church. We have a national responsibility for the unification of American religion.

The Bishop's plan has three heads: Information, Organization and Extension.

1. Information: The conveying of information about the Diocese to people in the Diocese. Even the mere facts, the cold, hard, everyday things of success—this is important. We have a great showing and few know it, few take it seriously. A committee of fifteen or twenty laymen are to form a working program for a Publicity Campaign.

2. Organization: There must be a coordination of existing agencies, a method by which Diocesan organizations are brought together. We must not simply work for and know of one or two pet Diocesan activities. We must have an intelligent interest in all.

3. Extension: There is a great disparity between our resources and our reach. It is noticeable, as has been said, that our Churchmen are always, numerically, in the lead in every big civic and national enterprise. Here lie our resources. A campaign is to be launched to attach every member, to see that each realizes what membership means. Its aim is deeper than dollars.

Dr. R. W. Patton is to organize this campaign in Boston and Philadelphia in the Fall, then in Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities. Every parish will be called upon to help. The need is greater than ever; the opportunity is greater.

The Church Periodical Club

During the Summer months, the work of the Church Periodical Club will be carried on as usual.

Magazines and books left at the Parish House will be sent to Chaplain Cline and the 19th Regiment of Engineers—to the Navy Yard at League Island—to the barracks at the North Wharves, Vine Street; to the Seaman's Mission, Front and Green Streets, etc.

Donations for postage and expressage will be gratefully received.

Miss Helen Darlington, 42 Gowen Avenue, will be in charge, and would not refuse any offer to take the bundles of magazines to the sailors.

The Librarian hopes that all members of the Club will continue to send their periodicals regularly, so that the missionaries, individuals or institutions may not suffer on account of the extra war work.

M. W. BAYARD,
Librarian.

Clerical Notes

The Rev. Sidney Atmore Caine has accepted the position, unanimously tendered him by the Vestry, of Priest-in-Charge of this parish during the leave of absence granted to the Rector; and will begin the performance of his duties on September 1st next.

The Rev. Dr. William C. Rodgers of St. Stephen's College, Annandale, N. Y., has kindly consented to take charge of this parish during July and August. He will reside at the Cresheim Arms, Allen Lane, Mt. Airy, and will be glad to respond to any request for pastoral service from any member of this parish.

The grateful acknowledgments of the people of Grace Parish are due the Rev. Dr. A. J. Arnold and the Rev. Charles E. Eder for their zealous services during this Spring and early Summer.

The address of the Rector of Grace Church, Mt. Airy, is: Chaplain Thomas S. Cline, Headquarters, 19th Engineers (Railway), American Expeditionary Forces. Via New York.

He would like to have a letter from you. Use domestic postage.

Prayers During the War

The following prayers are authorized for use in the Diocese of Pennsylvania during the time of war.

PHILIP M. RHINELANDER,
Bishop.

For Our Country

Let us pray for our country that God may aid us at this crisis with His love and favor; that He may keep us from pride and vainglory, and make our hearts courageous and our hands "strong to labor, that there by no decay: no leading into captivity, and no complaining in our streets."

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God, Who hast taught us in Thy holy word that Thou dost not willingly afflict the children of men, grant that, in the present time of warfare and distress of nations, our people may know Thy presence and obey Thy will. Remove from us arrogance and feebleness; give us courage and loyalty, tranquility and self-control, that we may accomplish that which Thou givest us to do and endure that which Thou givest us to bear, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For All in Authority

Let us pray for the President and for all in authority, that God may grant unto them at this time special gifts of wisdom and understanding, of counsel and strength, that upholding what is right and following what is true they may obey God's holy will and fulfil His divine purpose.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O God most high, Who alone rulest in the kingdoms of men, grant, we beseech Thee, the inspiration of Thy Holy Spirit to Thy servant, Woodrow Wilson, our President, the members of his cabinet and of the Congress. Endue them with prudence, fortitude, temperance, justice and the spirit of a sound mind, that guided by eternal truth and right they may labor faithfully for the safety, honor and welfare of our country and the advancement of Thy kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

For Those in Training

Let us pray for all those who are in training to serve their country, whether by land or sea, that they may readily submit to necessary discipline and be preserved amidst all the dangers and temptations which beset them.

(Pause for silent prayer)

O Lord, our God, we ask Thy help and blessing for all those who have willingly offered themselves and are now being prepared to take their part in the service and defense of their country. Grant that they may cheerfully submit to necessary discipline and training; shield them amid the temptations that may threaten them; make them strong and of a good courage to face the dangers that are before them; that in all things they may quit themselves like men to Thy honor and their country's safety; for the sake of Him Who suffered, died and rose again for us, Thy Son, our Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.
